A FIRECRACKER

Causes an Explosion of Powder,

WRECKING A BUILDING, INJURING SEVEN CHILDREN,

Four of Them Fatally. The Little Ones Terribly Mangled and Burned—A Greater Disaster Narrowly Averted—Heartrending Scenes.

SCOTT HAVEN, PA., July 7.—A keg containing fifty pounds of powder exploded in August Smith's grocery store at Industry, near Scott Haven, Pennsylvania, in the evening, completely wrecking the building and injuring seven children, four of them fatally. The explosion was caused by sparks from a Jackson cracker, which exploded prematurely in the hands of August Smith, Jr., aged fourteen years.

The store was a resort for children, and at the time of the accident a large number were present firing crackers. The powder exploded with terrific force, lifting the building, which was a two-story structure, from its foundations, and wrecking it completely. Young Smith's body was burned to a crisp, and he was otherwise terribly mangled. John Brauner, aged ten years, had the soles of both feet torn off, was frightfully burned about the body, and both eyes were blown out.

George Kohler, aged eight years, was badly burned about the body, the flesh being torn from his limbs.

Willie Kohler, six years old, was burned about the head, breast and stomach.

Emma Smith, aged nine years, Mary Smith, nineteen months, and Charlie Shoulf three years, were all badly burned, but will recover.

The first four named are still living and everything possible is being done to alleviate their sufferings, but their death is expected before morning. The ruins took fire, but it was extinguished before the flames had gained much headway. Several kegs of powder were stored in the cellar, and a more horrible alamity was averted by the prompt and heroic work of the neighbors in extinguishing the fire.

Just From Mexico.

SAN ANTONIO, TEX., July 7.—James Truheart, special Mexican agent of the International Exposition Fair association returned last evening from the city of Mexico. While there he had many interviews with President Diaz, who expressed repeatedly his friendly sentiments toward the United States. He was especially pleased with the action of the Texas and national authorities in the matter of the recent raids on the border of New Leon, and said that he felt disposed to do something in requital. He will personally supervise the share of Mexico in the exposition and will write letters to the various ministers of the Mexican state urging their co-operation. President Diaz seems anxious to cultivate the most friendly relations with the United States and will probably visit this country in the fall if he can obtain the sanction of the Mexican congress which meets in September next.

Illinois Fire.

ALTAMONT, Ill., July 7.—At Iola, Illinois, a small station on the Ohio and Mississippi railway, about 18 miles south of here, early yesterday morning the drug store of S. A. Patrick's was discovered to be on fire but was under such headway that nothing could be done. The flames swept the entire portion of the town, leaving but one store standing. The losses are as follows: Nickery Brothers, $5,000, small insurance; J. M. Slone, $2,000, no insurance; J. A. Patrick $2,500, no insurance; J. M. Aldrich, $3,000, no insurance, Moore & Bullett, $1,500, fully insured. There is no idea how the fire started unless from combustibles in the drug store of Patrick.

The Silver Bill.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—The conferees on the silver bill expect to come to an agreement at their meeting today. They have practically came to an understanding under which the free coinage feature of the Senate substitute and the bullion redemption feature of the House bill will be struck out, and that the certificates to be issued under the new law shall be a legal tender. The points of difference between them now are the questions whether the law shall go into effect immediately or thirty days after its passage, and whether the amount of silver to be purchased each month shall be 4,500,000 or 4,500,000 ounces.

$200,000 Damage by a Cloud Burst.

MADISON, WIS., July 7.—News has been received of a cloud burst which occurred in Richland county and occasioned a loss of $200,000 or more. Four mill dams were carried out between Richland Centre and Lone Lock, while an iron bridge was wrecked at Eagle Mills. The St. Paul railroad was damaged so badly that trains will be prevented from running for five days, and two months will be necessary to restore the road bed to a first-class condition. Crops also suffered greatly, and in Richland Centre cellars were flooded and other minor damage was done.

Injunction on Railroad Commissioners.

DES. MOINES, IA., July 7.—The attorneys of the Minneapolis and St. Louis railway served an injunction on Railroad Commissioner Campbell at his home in Newton restraining the commissioners from putting in force their schedule of joint rates. The writ was issued by Judge Weaver and is made returnable at Fort Dodge, September 9. A similar writ was also served on Commissioner Dey of Iowa City.

New York Tax Duplicate.

NEW YORK, July 7.—The books of the commissioner of taxes and assessments just completed, which will be laid before the common council Monday, show that the assessed value of real estate in the twenty-four wards of the City of New York is $1,398,290,001 for 1890, an increase of $66,711,715. The personal estate of residents is assessed for 1890 at $217,439,160, an incsease over 1889 of $23,149,859.

Drowned While Bathing.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 7.—John Marster, aged 22, and living at 1621 Dickinson street, Philadelphia, was drowned while bathing in the ocean. The work of recuscitation lasted several hours, but life was extinct. His body will be sent to Philadelphia.

MORE SOLDIERS.

The Great Powers of Europe Arming

UNTIL NEITHER MEN NOR MONEY IS TO BE HAD.

Enormous Armament of the Nations and a Slight Incident Might Precipitate a War.

LONDON, July 7.

THERE are feverish symptoms in the European body politics, in spite of the confident assurances exchanged before the public by the august members of the triple alliance. More soldiers and more colonies are the cries heard in in nearly every capital.

"More soldiers is a bad watchword," said a well known Diplomat in London today. "It is sure to be passed on. On the continent it travels from from one country to another, only to come back louder than ever. It was raised in Germany in the winter of 1886-87. The unfortunate Boulanger was used as a scare-crow to obtain the Septennate. A series of increases in the army began, of which the end is not yet in sight. The war footing of the German army was raised 800,000 men by an alteration of the term of service in reserve. The peace footing was increased and a number of new batteries of artillery raised. The increased peace strength made it necessary to create two new army corps as a framework for the additional combatants. The increase of the units involved a further augmentation of the artillery.

All this activity in Germany has set the French generals to work to increase, improve and expand their fighting machine, and they have just provided themselves with a general staff of the approved paterns. Similar exertions are made in Russia. But the advanced preparations of France then becomes a reason why the Germans should spend a few supplimentary millions. So it goes on.

From Germany the example passes to Austria. Count Kalnoky completed a reassuring forecast by pointing out that Austru-Hungary 'must persevere in the developement of her forces so as to be on an equality with her allies.

Italy is already taxed to the utmost, and will probably be left behind in the race. Large supplementary estimates have just been voted by the German reichstag for the new army corps and for the increase of the artillery and of the total peace strength. Herr Von Bennigsen, the leader of what remains of the Cartel party, declared that the statistics laid before the reichstag showing the strength of the French army had established the fundamental points, the absolute necessity for more men and more guns.

The Prussian minister of war dropped a hint early in May that there was a new scheme in the back ground. This statement seriously alarmed the German tax-payer. General Caprivi soon afterwards came to the rescue with a patriotic appeal. The country was not keeping up such an army in proportion to the population, as did Prussa in 1816.

The Germans of today ought not to be behind their ancestors in sacrifice. This speech increased the consternation. The result was a widely supported popular demand for a compensation reform as a return for the new expenditure, the reform to consist in reducing the term of service from three to two years. The military authorities at once declared that they could not accept such a demand, but the two years' service is a very popular programme in Germany. The decided stand made by the generals on the three years' service principle, and the prospect of still further as yet unknown sacrifices in money and in person have frightened the German public, and the government, in order to avoid a parliamentary check, has minimized its demands. This benefit, however, has been lessened by the declaration of the Austrian minister of war that the current estimates for the Austrian army are merely a basis upon which to arrange a further expansion of military power.

DEMOCRATIC EDITORS

Express Themselves on the Federal Election Bill.

BALTIMORE, July 7.—The Maryland Democratic Editors' association held a special meeting Saturday and considered the political situation in the state. They adopted an address to the people of the state which says: "The stake in the coming contest is the right of the people to elect their own representatives, free from federal interference; taxation for revenue, upon a constitutional basis; an honest expenditure of the public money; a sound a stable currency; reform in the civil service."

Referring to the federal election law, the address says: "It implies a lack of patriotism, a lack of honesty, upon the part of the people, and assumes superior virtues for federal over state officials."

Will Fight Weir.

BUFFALO, July 7.—Prof. James Connors, of the Buffalo Athletic club, and Ike Weir, the "Belfast Spider," will fight for a $1,750 purse before the Erie County Athletic club, in this city, on Tuesday night. Special trains will be run from New York, Boston, Toronto, Rochester, and other sporting centers. John L. Sullivan will second Weir and Jack Dempsey is expected to be behind Connors. Jack Ashton will be the referee.

Politics Preached to the Alliance.

EMPORIA, KAS., July 7.—The largest crowd ever gathered in this city met Saturday at the call of the Farmers' Alliance to listen to their national president, L. L. Polk, of Washington. Polk in his speech preached politics as a fundamental principle of the alliance, declaring that it should be as full of it as an egg was full of meat. Ralph Beaumont, chairman of the national committee on legislation, Knights of Labor, also addressed the meeting.

Kalakana has no Cabinet.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 7.—The steamship Mariposa, seven days out from Honolulu brings intelligence that King Kalakana's cabinet has resigned.

NARROW ESCAPE.

A Freight Vessel Crashes Into two Excursion Barges.

NEW YORK, July 7.—At 6 o'clock last evening the freight steamship Eleanor of the Portland line ran into the barges Walter Sands and Charles Spear, loaded with excursionists at Heligate. There were about 2,000 persons on the barges and the greatest excitement prevailed among the the women and children. In the panic that ensued several, it is reported, were seriously hurt. The tug Idle Wild, which was towing the barges, quickly ran to the Astoria shore, where the excursionists were landed. The injured were taken accross the river to the Bellevue hospital.

The excursionists were members of the Order of Foresters of Elizabeth, N. J., and their families. They were returning from Oriental Grove, up the Sound, where the annual picnic had been held. When the Eleanor struck the Walter Sands she carried away the railing and smashed in a large hole in the front part of the barge. A panic immediately ensued and the shrieks of the women and children were appalling. Women fainted and strong men appeared paralyzed from excitement. A rush was made for the life preservers, and the officers and crew of the Sands had all they could do to prevent people from jumping overboard. The panic was finally stayed by the prompt action of the bargemen. As the Eleanor backed out from the Sands it was seen that a number of persons on board the barge were lying on the deck in agony. Those in charge of the excursion immediately ordered the Idlewild to make a landing, so that medical aid could be procured for the persons who had been injured.

When a landing had been made at Astoria, word was promptly sent to the village police station and a squad of reserves were soon on hand assisting the excited excursionists ashore. Women and children were still wringing their hands and crying and it took considerable time to land those who desired to come ashore. It was then found that the injured prsons were Mrs. Mary Sullivan, of 629 Fourth avenue, New York; Mrs. Smith, of 414 Fulton street, Brooklyd, and John Jenning, Henry Eak and George Long, of Elizabethport. Mr. Eak and the two men were the most seriously injured end were conveyed at once to Bellevue hospital. The extent of their injuries could not be ascertained. After receiving medical attendance at Astoria, Jennings and Long were able to go home.

Several hundred of the excursionists proceeded to their homes by rail, while the less excited portion of the party were taken to Elizabethport on the barge Spiers.

A sensational report, giving great loss of life was sent out early in the evening, but not one life was lost. A dispatch late last night from Elizabethport says the party arrived there safely from Astoria.

The Eleanor was badly damaged and the Sands is making water rapidly. Both will probably be decked.

INDIAN WARS

FEARED BY ARMY OFFICIALS ON THE FRONTIER.

The Number of Indian Scouts Employed by the Government Largely Increased and the Experiment of Indian Soldiers Made.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—In view of the recent indications of trouble with the Cheyenne Indians, the war department has approved a request from General Rugar, commanding the department of Dakota, to increase the number of Indian scouts for Fort Custer from six to thirty. This makes the third increase in the number of Indian scouts authorized during the present year. General Rugar was previously authorized to organize a company of one hundred Indian scouts at Fort Keogh, Mont., in response to an urgent request from a number of officers who advocated the use of Indians as soldiers. This company is organized purely for experimental purposes, and the department is now anxiously waiting to hear results.

General Merritt was also given a chance to see what he could do with the Indians as soldiers, authority having been given for the organization of a company of 100 within his department, but it will be some time yet before any results are reported.

EXCEEDINGLY PERILOUS.

Befogged at Sea in the Midst of Icebergs.

BALTIMORE, July 7.—The British steamship Urbino, Captain Evans, arrived Saturday from Rotterdam. Captain Evans reports an exceptionally bad trip. On June 26, at 7 p. m., in latitude 47.03, longitude 40.16, he passed an iceberg 700 feet long and 300 feet high. Near this monster were several others, all smaller in size. Immediately afterwards the ship ran into the densest fog the captain had ever witnessed, which lasted for five days. The density of the fog, so close to the icebergs, was something remarkable.

A FINANCIAL CRISIS.

Imminent in Buenos Ayres in a Few Days.

LONDON, July 7.—The financial situation at Buenos Ayres has led to grave difficulties for the government. The opposition, strengthened by discontent in commercial and financial quarters, is attacking the ministry with great force and bitterness; reconstruction in part can only avert a serious crisis. It is probable that Senor Racedo, minister of war, will retire. Fresh proposals have been made for a sterling loan, which is contrary to the policy of Senor Garcia, new minister of finance.

HERMAN J. FALKENBACH

Chosen to a Responsible Position at Boston.

BOSTON, July 7.—Herman J. Falkenbach of Columbus, O., has been chosen to take charge of the joint passenger and ticket agency to be established in this city during the Grand Army encampment next month. Mr. Falkenbach had charge of the joint agency in Columbus during the National encampment two years ago, which he managed very successfully.

A Summer in Jail.

NEW YORK, July 7.—An argument upon the application for an arrest of judgment and a new trial in the case of General P. J. Claassen has been postponed until the October term of the United States court. Claassen is under conviction for embezzling the funds of the sixth national bank. He will spend the summer in Ludlow street jail.

Fifty Spasms a Day.

Had Mrs. H. A. Gardner, of Vistula, Ind., lived two thousand years ago she would have been cut to be possessed by evil spirits. She was subject to nervous prostration, headache, dizziness, backache, palpitation and forty to fifty spasms a day. Though having been treated by eight physicians for years without success, she was permanently cured by one bottle of Dr. Miles' Nervine. A trial bottle of this new and wonderful medicine, and a finely illustrated treatise free at Baker & Hall's Drug store, who recommends and guarantees it.

DODD'S CATARRH CURE.

LOCAL AND INTERNAL TREATMENT.

In order to cure catarrh it is necessarry to allay the inflammation of the irritated membranes with a soothing application, cleanse the head of the plugging mucous secretions, and heal the discharging ulcers. For cold in the head and nasal catarrh Dodds' local treatment does this without the aid of snuff, douches or fumes. If the disease has extended downwards affecting the bronchial tubes or lungs, digestion and blood, the internal treatment both removes from the system the scattered poison, and by its building-up properties assists nature in restoring the impaired parts. Send for our book treating on catarrh. FOSTER, MILBURN & Co., proprietors, Buffalo, N. Y. Sold in Tecumseh, Mich., by C. A. Wright & Co., druggists.

MORTGAGE SALE.

WHEREAS, default has been made in the payment of a certain indenture of mortgage, bearing date the 18th day of January, A. D. 1884, made and executed by Jeremiah M. Burtson and Julia E. Burtenson, his wife, of the first part, to Enoch G. Cook, of Tecumseh, Michigan, of the second part, which mortgage was on the 17th day of January, A. D., 1884, duly recorded in the office of Register of Deeds for the county of Lenawee, Michigan, in Liber 109 of Mortgages, on page 490, and which said mortgage was afterwards on the 27th day of May, A. D. 1888, duly assigned by the said Enoch G. Cook to Moses Bartlett, which deed of assignment was on the 20th day of January, A. D., 1889, duly recorded in the office of Register of Deeds for Lenawee county aforesaid, in Liber 118 of Mortgages, on page 689; by which default the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become operative. And whereas there is at this date claimed to be due and unpaid, as principal and interest on the said mortgage, the sum of One Thousand Seven Hundred and Eighty and 8-100 Dollars ($1780.08) and no proceedings have been instituted at law or in equity to collect the same. Notice is therefore hereby given that by virtue of said power of sale, and the statutes of the state of Michigan, in such case made and provided, for the purpose of realizing the money now, as aforesaid, due and owing on said mortgage, together with interest thereon, and the costs and charges of this foreclosure, including an attorney fee of Thirty-five Dollars, as provided by law and stipulated for in said mortgage, I shall on the 29th day of July, A. D. 1890, at nine o'clock in the forenoon of that day, at the east front door of the court house in the city of Adrian, in said county of Lenawee, (that being the place where the circuit court for said county is holden) sell at public vendue to the highest bidder, all those parcels of land situate in the township of Macon, in the county of Lenawee and state of Michigan, known and described as follows, to wit: The east half of the northwest quarter of section five (5) town five (5) south, of range five (5) east. Also all that part of the east half of the northwest quarter of said section five (5), town five (5) south, of range five (5) east, bounded as follows: Beginning at the intersection of the Tecumseh and Saline road, so called, with the west line of the southwest quarter of said section five (5); thence running southwesterly in center of said road six (6) rods and twelve (12) links; thence north parallel with east line of said southwest quarter of section five (5) to the north line of said southwest quarter of section five (5); thence east to northeast corner of said southwest quarter of section five (5), thence south to the place of beginning, containing eighty-one acres of land, more or less.

Dated April 21, 1890.

MORTGAGE SALE.—Default of payment having been made of a mortgage made by Marion F. Mason and Elizabeth J. Mason to Elihu L. Clark, dated the Thirteenth day of November, A. D. 1877, and recorded in the office of Register of Deeds for Lenawee county, Michigan, in Liber 90 of Mortgages, on page 311, on the 13th day of November, 1877, and which mortgage was by instrument in writing, dated the Seventeenth day of November, 1883, assigned by Isabella T. Clark as executrix and residuary legatee of the last will and Testament of said Elihu L. Clark, deceased, to the undersigned Bronson C. Knapp, and said assignment was duly recorded on the 17th day of November, A. D. 1883, in said Register of Deeds office, in liber 104, of mortgages on page 578, upon which mortgage there remains due and unpaid at the date of this notice the sum of Seven Hundred Sixty-eight and 46-100 Dollars. And no proceedings at law or in equity have been taken for the collection thereof.

Notice is therefore hereby given that by virtue of the power and provisions in said mortgage contained, and of the statutes of the State of Michigan in such case made and provided, for the purpose of realizing the moneys above mentioned and interest thereon at 7 per cent, per annum from the date of this notice, and costs of this foreclosure and sale, including also an attorney fee as provided by law, I shall on the 7th day of July A. D. 1890, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of said day, sell at public vendue to the highest bidder, at the front door of the Court House in the City of Adrian, Lenawee County and State of Michigan, (that being the building in which the Circuit Court for the County of Lenawee is holden) all that parcel of land situate in the village of Springville, in the County of Lenawee, and state of Michigan, and described as follows, to-wit: Village lot Number Five (5), being situate on and a part of the Southwest quarter of the Southwest quarter of Section Fourteen (14) of Town Five (5) South of Range Two (2) East, containing about Three-fourths of an acre of land.

GATHERING OF NATIONS.

THE GRAND GLADIATORIAL EXHIBITIONS OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

Why the Colliseum Was Built—Probable Use of the Vast Embankments of the Mound Builders—Immense Fairs of Ancients and Moderns, and the Attractions That Draw the Multitudes Together.

Before modern times the vastest and most practical civilization the world ever saw was that of the world-embracing Roman empire. In some things that still pertain to civilization the colossal enterprises of the Romans surpassed modern effort. Perhaps the most wonderful of modern colossal enterprises are world's fairs, like the American Centennial in 1876, and the great French fair of 1889 in Paris, in which it seemed as if the arts, manufactures and inventions of the whole world were collected, and all the nations of the earth joined together to celebrate. But the ancient Roman empire held a world's fair in the month of May every year, in which immense crowds of people poured into Rome from all the then known nations of the world, bringing their rarest manufactures and products. And while in Rome these vast multitudes were amused and delighted by a splendid series of imperial displays, military, naval, civic and religious; games, races, and every form of spectacle, exercise and display that the world could then furnish.

Nor can the moderns, with all their crystal palaces and other vast world's fair structures, at all compete with the vast permanent buildings that Rome provided for such occasions. Rome established amphitheatres for her fairs and great gatherings in all the countries she conquered, and everywhere on a colossal scale. Their ruins are among the world's archæological wonders. There was one in England that could seat 15,000 people; one in Gaul (France) that could seat 75,000 people; and others of vast size in Austria, Egypt, and other countries. But the greatest of all was the immortal colliseum at Rome, which could seat 125,000 people, and contain almost a 100,000 more. It is plainly evident that the city of Rome alone, even when her population had reached 1,000,000 souls, could not need such a gigantic structure for spectacles and games. History mentions a number of instances where there was such a rush for seats that entrance tickets commanded two or three prices, and had to be procured some time in advance. This was because such multitudes of strangers had flowed into Rome from all over the world, at the time of her great fairs, largely drawn by the magnificent games, spectacles and as well as by the other attractions of the imperial fairs and celebrations.

There are many archæologists who believe that the still vast mounds, circles, enclosed arenas, etc., of the prehistoric mound builders of America were used for somewhat like purposes—national assemblages for religious and commercial fairs, with attendant spectacles, games and ceremonies. In Ohio is one great circle or oval, acres in extent, to which, from the water of the river was a carefully graded broad road, guarded on each side by embankments. Why such a road, unless to bring up from the river goods, wares, animals, or other objects, especially heavy or difficult burdens? Surely a broad and easy graded way would not be made leading into a fort. Among the mound builders' enclosed circles, ovals and squares are many that would readily seat upon their embankments from 30,000 to 500,000 people so that every one could be an easy spectator of any games, religious ceremonies, or sacrifices, or athletic, or warlike contests or combats upon the vast level arena within the enclosure.

To be successful a great fair must be a great holiday festival. And the managers of such fairs closely studied the most taking popular attractions. Hence, in the ruder ages, Christains and others under the ban of the laws were thrown to wild beasts to be devoured, gladiators slew each other, wrestlers and boxers, racers and athletics of all sorts contended for championships; in the later ages of chivalry armored knights contended in bloody lists, and yeomen archers shot at butts, or held bouts of long and quarter-staff, intermingled with bear, bull and badger baiting with savage dogs. It was at such fairs that Robin Hood won his early fame as the incomparable bowman, both before and after he became the bold outlaw of the Greenwood forest.

Great modern fairs and expositions appeal to the nobler tastes of our higher civilization. Still it is the same spirit—the same necessity. The world's fair at Paris last year put up the wonderful Eiffel tower, 1,000 feet high, for a grand spectacle, and also exhibited scores of taking shows and pageants and popular pleasures.

The Detroit International Exposition,

provides a ten days' festival of all that can delight the eye and ear, and appeal to the popular heart in the way of pleasure and amusement as well as instruction. The world renowned Cappa's Seventh Regiment band, of New York, with forty eminent soloists, will give daily and nightly free grand concerts—the finest music in America. The magnificent art hall will be filled with the choicest American and European paintings, statues and other art works, besides those two grandest great paintings of the present age—Makoffsky's magnificently beautiful "The Judgment of Paris," for the prize of beauty among the Greek goddesses, and Munkacsy's immortally grand religious painting of "Christ on Calvary." These paintings will be shown with all the weird and beautiful effects of the best modern electric lights. There will be horse races—trotting and running—by the best horses in America; foot races and all sorts of athletic sports; swimming and canoe races and regattas; balloon ascensions with appalling drops from the clouds by both men and women; parades, pagents and displays; the most magnificent pyrotechnic, scenic and dramatic display of "The Last Days of Pompeii," with $2,000 worth of fireworks every evening; and many other attractions, besides all the allurements of the greatest fair and exposition of the year, held at the pleasantest season, in the most charming city to visit, with theatres, opera, and all sorts of river, lake and railway excursions daily and nightly.

Robert L. Wallace and Ignatius Loultz, who stole $50,000 from the proprietor of Wallace's Monthly, fled to Cuba, and were brought back to New York by detectives, pleaded guilty to grand larceny Wednesday, and were remanded for sentence.

WONDERS OF NATURE.

THE STRANGEST AND BEST PROOF AND PRODUCT OF EVOLUTION.

The Mysterious and Wonderful History of the Horse—The First Horse With Five Long Toes on Each Foot—The Race Originated in America—How it Developed to the Present Horse—A Grand Gathering of all the Breeds and Varieties of Horses, Etc.

The doctrine of evolution is now universally accepted by the learned world as regards the production of families of animals, if not of species. Among the most striking evidences of the truth of the evolution theory is the horse. Let us state some interesting facts of his history.

It is now conceded that the horse originated on the American continent, and thence spread all over the world. But few could recognize the original horse if we could see him. He was an animal not much larger than a common fox, with only the rudiments of a mane—short hairs that bristled along the top of his neck—a bob and comparatively short haired tail. His body was thick and sturdy. His feet were each divided into five long and widely spreading toes, like fingers, each with a thick, horny claw at its tip. He inhabited great shallow marshes, near the present base of the Rocky Mountains, which were then just heaving their heads above the universal ocean. The habitation of the horse being marshy, over which the sea tide ebbed and flowed, he lived upon coarse grasses and herbs. His wide-spreading toes enabled him to walk upon the grassy tufts and hammocks that showed above the water, and to get over bogs without sinking, and thus escape from his foes. So he grew and multiplied.

NATURE IS A GREAT INVENTOR.

She is very like a human inventor. When she created the original horse, or cat, or wild ox, they were no more like the horses, cats and oxen of to-day than the first crude steam engine is like the modern locomotive. But the first horse was a crude success. The principle was there, and the patent a good thing. So nature went to work making improvements from time to time, as the environment—the habitat, food, climate and habits of the horse—changed. The mountains and continent rose; the sea receded; the marshes dried up; the climate changed slowly, through how many centuries conjecture hesitates to guess. The coarse marsh grains and herbs became finer, jucier and richer. Forests grew. The horse's enemies became different also. Gradually, therefore, he had little and thus no use for his long hind toe, which projected from above the rest. It became first a limb appendage; thus it shrunk in length and size; finally it disappeared completely, except a bare rudiment, now only to be found by the skillful anatomist. The claws or nails of the other toes thickened and enlarged, as the horse now walked upon firm earth or ground. His body grew larger and more graceful, as his food was richer. His speed increased, as he now had to escape his foes partly over fair running ground.

So the change went on for many more centuries. Having less and less use for his still spreading toes, they shortened and thickened slowly. By and by

TWO OF THEM BECAME JOINED IN ONE.

The nails became more like hoofs, and now there was the three-toed horse. He was about as large as a good common sheep of to-day, and still stocky, but much fleeter than his grandfathers. His mane had grown into a thick, hairy ridge, and his tail hairs had lengthened. Now he began to speed marvelously.

Again a period of centuries. Now the earth was clothed with rich meadow grasses, or savannahs, generally bearing dry berries. Climate had changed also. The horse now had to travel and feed on dry, sandy, gravelly and sometimes rocky ground. He had to fly from wolves and other fleet enemies. His legs grew longer, his proportions slimmer, but larger; his toes shortened still more, and his hoofs thickened. By and by his smallest toe joined its next neighbor. He was now with a cleft hoof like the deer, the sheep, the hog and the ox, and as large as the wonderful little mite of a fairy pony that you will see at one of the rare attractions at the great Detroit Exposition this year. But he wasn't as handsome as the midget pony—bless you! No. His mane and tail were still thick, short and coarse. His body was still comparatively stumpy. But he was a real, genuine, no-mistake horse.

But now for another cycle of centuries the horse went on changing. He forsook the morasses and marshes. He preferred the dry, hard, plains and prairies, the forests and the mountains. The climate made him acquainted with snow and ice, as well as summer heats. Evidently his split hoofs were a disadvantage. Pebbles got into their clefts and clogged them. So they slowly closed up; the horny hoof grew, and presently there was the single-hoofed horse, as he is to-day. He was in heathen Asia and in Europe for food, like other wild animals. His charred bones are found in caves where the wild man—the aboriginal savage—dwelt. Still the first wild horses were small, shaggy, rough-maned and rough-tailed ponies. They were fleet, cunning and bold, as they should have been, having the future before them. And in favorable climates and countries they grew in size and beauty, until their manes and tails spread like shining silk to the free winds of the plains, as they became fleet, strong and beautiful, with their necks "clothed with thunder," as mentioned in the Holy Writ.

For now, in some unknown country, by some unknown race, man interfered, and began to aid nature in improving the horse. He became the slave, the servant, the friend, the companion of man. The very earliest teachings of Egyptian art, probably show the horse already a war charger, and already developed generally in strength, beauty and fleetness.

So now there was a new tendency in the horse. The oftner animals are improved by either nature or man, the easier improvement becomes. Of all animals, except dogs, horses have the strongest inherited faculty for improvement. We now breed a new variety of a horse in a century, when once it required 1,000 years. The thoroughbred race horse is the product of about 200 years of breeding: the fast trotter of less than 100 years—mainly of the last fifty years.

The Detroit International Fair and Exposition, August 26 to September 5, inclusive, will exhibit the largest and finest collection of splendid blooded horses ever gathered upon this continent. There will be the largest horses in America, *the small*est horses in America, the costliest horses in America, the swiftest and most beautiful horses in America. All the great stables and breeders will be represented, and all breeds and varieties. It will be the greatest stock show of all kinds ever held in this country. Then there will be running, trotting and pacing races by some of the most famous horses in the country, and exhibitions of leaping horses, etc. Besides there will be all sorts of games, spectacles, pageants, grand concerts, a good art hall full of beautiful paintings and works of art, regettas, fireworks, the thrilling pyrotechnic drama of the "Destruction of Pompeii," balloon ascensions and drops from the clouds, and everything to make ten days of perfect pleasure and profit.

PARABLE OF THE SUPPER

LESSON II, THIRD QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, JULY 13.

Text of the Lesson, Luke xiv, 15-24. Commit Verses, 22-24—Golden Text, Luke xiv, 15—Commentary by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Compiled from Lesson Helper Quarterly by permission of H. S. Hoffman, publisher, Philadelphia.]

In our last lesson we saw the religious leaders of the people contending with Him because He healed a woman on the Sabbath day; but He put them to shame and caused his followers to rejoice. So shall it be again when those who cast out others for his sake say, Let the Lord be glorified; but He shall appear to the joy of his people and his enemies shall be ashamed (Isa. lxvi, 5). He then repeated the parables of the mustard seed and the leaven, both of which had a fulfillment in Israel at that time, and are having a fulfillment in the church today. He added a prophecy concerning the coming desolation of Jerusalem because of her rejection of Him, indicating its continuance until He should come again. After this we find Him in the house of a Pharisee on the Sabbath day, where He had evidently been invited to dine. He here heals a man who had the dropsy, and speaks a parable to the invited guests to teach them humility, after which He tells his host that if, when he makes a feast, he would invite those who were unable to return the compliment, he would have a recompense at the resurrection of the just; and this leads one of the guests to give utterance to the first words of our lesson.

15. "Blessed is he that shall eat bread in the kingdom of God." According to the first part of this verse, that which caused the guest to utter these words was the Saviour's remark concerning the resurrection of the just.

16. "Then said He unto him, A certain man made a great supper, and bade many." This parable is somewhat similar to that in Matt. xxv, but that was spoken during Passion week in Jerusalem, and this while on His way to Jerusalem (Luke xiii, 22; xviii, 31). In both he covers Israel's rejection, and the present dispensation of gathering out the church, reaching forward to the marriage of the Lamb at the time of the resurrection of the just and of the restoration of the Kingdom to Israel.

17. "Come; for all things are now ready." This was the message which the servants were to carry John the Baptist, and the twelve were some of the servants as they went forth, saying: "Repent, for the Kingdom of Heaven is at hand." The salvation of Jehovah, whether it be the Kingdom offered to Israel, or the higher position offered to the church, is a prepared salvation even as Simeon said: "Thy salvation which Thou hast prepared" (Luke ii, 30, 31); and it is all, from first to last, summed up in Jesus Christ.

18. "And they all with one consent began to make excuse." Nothing to do but to take it; simply to accept the invitation and be there; yet they prefer not to. How anxious many are to get an invitation to anything great in this world, and how disappointed if left out. Here is the God of Heaven inviting freely to the riches of His grace and glory, and it is not considered worth accepting. His feast is despised, His invitation spurned.

"I have bought a piece of ground, and I must needs go and see it: I pray thee have me excused." His little piece of ground for which he has paid a few shekels is of more importance than that which has cost so much.

19. "I have bought five yoke of oxen, and I go to prove them: I pray thee have me excused." Lands must be seen to, and oxen must be proved, but the great feast provided by infinite love may go a begging. It is nothing to them. The earth is the Lord's and the fulness thereof; the cattle on a thousand hills are His (Ps. xxiv, 1; l, 10); yet there are fools (and plenty of them today) who prefer a little which they can purchase to the great riches which the Lord of all offers so freely to "whosoever will." Any one of these ten oxen was a rebuke to their owner, for it is written "The ox knoweth its owner, * * * but my people do not know" (Isa. i, 3). Was it not rather late to prove oxen after buying them?

20. "I have married a wife, and therefore I cannot come." This is no better than the others, yet the refusal is even more decided "I cannot come." If the invitation did not include his wife, he might have had some excuse; but God's invitations include all who are willing; and while the others might have to leave their lands and oxen, he could bring his wife with him.

21. "So that servant came, and showed his lord these things." A servant has only to deliver his master's message, and take the answer back, if there is any; he has no power to excuse people. Our responsibility ceases when we have lovingly and faithfully given the invitation, proclaimed the glad tidings. Then it becomes us, like the disciples, to tell Jesus all we have done and taught (Mark vi, 30), leaving results with Him. His command to Ezekiel was, "Speak my words unto them whether they will hear or whether they will forbear" (Ezek. ii, 7).

"Go out quickly into the streets and lanes of the city, and bring in hither the poor, and the maimed, and the halt, and the blind." These have no earthly possessions or pleasures to entangle them; they will be more likely to accept the invitation. It was just these four classes which Jesus advised the Pharisee, in whose house He was, to invite to his feast in order that he might be recompensed at the resurrection of the just.

22. "And the servant said, Lord, it is done as Thou hast commanded, and yet there is room." The servant has only to obey, lovingly to deliver his message, and report for further orders. It is not said whether any among these classes excused themselves or not, but it is said "Yet there is room." What abundant provision! What riches of His grace! What plenteous redemption!

23. "And the lord said unto the servant, Go out into the highways and hedges." Again it is "Go!" The word for the outsider is "Come!" And the encouragement is: "Him that cometh unto Me I will in no wise cast out." "Come unto Me all ye that labor and are heavy laden." "Come now and let us reason together, saith the Lord. Though your sins be as scarlet they shall be as white as snow, though they be red like crimson they shall be as wool."

"Compel them to come in, that my house may be filled." We are not simply to invite but to urge and lovingly constrain them to come. Our indifference to the salvation of others is a strange sight. We believe that we are joint heirs with Christ to an inheritance which is incorruptible and everlasting, and that all who are not in Christ are on the way to everlasting punishment; yet we can meet them, do business with them, have fellowship with them, and never even invite them to share our inheritance, much less compel them to come to the feast. We would do well to ponder these words: "If thou dost not speak to warn the wicked from his way, that wicked man shall die in his iniquity, but his blood will I require at thine hand" (Ezek. xxxiii, 8). It is true that we, of ourselves, are powerless to either convince or compel; but He who says "Go!" says also "Lo, I am with you" (Matt. xxviii, 20).

24. "For I say unto you, That none of those men which were bidden shall taste of my supper." Refusing to accept His gracious invitation they doom themselves, to hear the fearful words "Depart from me ye cursed into everlasting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels."

Is Consumption Incurable?

Read the following: Mr C. H. Morris, Newark, Ark, says: "Was down with Abscess of Lungs, and friends and physicians pronounced me an Incurable Consumptive. Began taking Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, am now on my third bottle and able to oversee the work on my farm. It is the finest medicine ever made."

Jesse Middlewart, Decatur, Ohio, says: "Had it not been for Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption I would have died of Lung troubles. Was given up by doctors. Am now in best of health." Try it. Sample bottles free.

PROHIBITION STATE CONVENTION.

The Prohibition State Convention to nominate a state ticket, will be held at Lansing, Wednesday, July 30th. The basis for representation is eight delegates and alternates for each representative district.

The following is the closing clause of the official call:

"The citizens of this state, without reference to past party affiliations, who believe in the prohibition of the liquor traffic, and governmental reform in tariff and other financial legislation, who are opposed to trusts, monopolies and gambling in the products of labor, who favor laws protecting the rights of the laboring and farming classes are invited to attend the primaries and other conventions of the Prohibition party and lend their aid to that organization in bringing about these needed reforms."

Our Messenger, the Methodist paper, was issued this week. It treats of the topics of the day, as well as church items, inasmuch as it notes the fact of its being "hot," "vacation," and that "the coolest place on Sunday morning is in your pew at church."—Hudson Post.

Even the women of Morenci caught the railroad craze, and held meetings and appointed canvassing committees, and signed notes. They took off their coats and sailed in, in their shirt sleeves (metaphorically), securing about $1,000 toward the bonus.—Heaven bless the ladies!—Adrian Press.

The committee on the soldiers monument report good progress so far as subscriptions are concerned. There are a great many of our citizens who intend to subscribe, and it would be well for them to do so at once, in order that their names may appear near the top of column when the names are published.—Hudson Post.

The man who left the mustang at Geo. Nisle's stable last week went to Jackson, where he offered to sell the harness so cheap that he was arrested on suspicion, and proved to be the fellow who has been stealing horses in different parts of the state. He has been in prison and will undoubtedly get there again.—Manchester Enterprise.

The annual meeting of the Michigan Press Association occurs July 16th to 18th, at Saginaw. From thence the quill drivers will start on an excursion to the "Soo" and points of interest in the upper peninsula, and those whose time and purse will permit, will continue on through Minnesota, Dakota, Montana, bringing up for a four days' stay at Yellowstone National Park. From there the trip will continue to Denver, and home via Chicago.

LENAWEE G. A. A.

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Lenawee County G. A. R. Association, held at the office of Dr. J. H. Reynolds last week, the President, M. T. Cole, Vice President, Dr. Reynolds, Secretary, A. W. Mills, of Tecumseh, Treasurer, Fred Bay, of Ogden, and each Post Commander in the county, were present.

It was decided to hold the first annual reunion of the reorganized association on the 12th of August, at the Lenawee fair grounds, and a programme was prepared, committees appointed, and all necessary detail attended to.

Dr. Reynolds has hung up a special prize of $20 to the camp of Sons of Veterans giving the best exhibition drill, provided no less than three companies of twenty men or over each enter for the contest. Here is a chance for the S. of V.'s of the county. Who will capture it?

"When your heart is bad, and your head is bad, and you are bad clean through, what is needed?" asked a Sunday-school teacher of her class. "I know—Ayer's Sarsaparilla," answered a little girl, whose sick mother had recently been restored to health by that medicine.

OBITUARY.

Died at her home in Detroit, on Wednesday July 2d. 1890, of Typhoid fever, Sarah Luella Craig only daughter of John and Mary Craig, aged 18 years 3 months and 24 days. Although to her friends she was suddenly and unexpectedly called away, they are consoled with the assurance that she was not unprepared for her summons. Her life, and conversation gave evidence that her faith and trust was in the Savior only, that through his mercies, and by his power, she would sleep in Jesus, and rise again at the resurrection of the Just.

"She is not Dead but Sleepeth."
Luke VIII: 52

O, call it not death—it is life begun,
For the waters are pass'd, the home is won;
The ransomed spirit hath reach'd the shore
Where they weep and suffer and sin no more.
She is safe in her father's house above,
In the place prepared by her Savior's love;
To depart from a world of sin and strife,
And to be with Jesus, yes, this is life.

O, call it not death—'tis a holy sleep,
And the precious dust the Lord doth keep;
She shall wake again, and how satisfied!
With the likeness of Him who for her died.
As He rose again, she shall also rise,
From the quiet bed, where now safe she lies;
Then cheer ye, fond mourners, who sadly weep,
For happy are they who in Jesus sleep.

O, call it not death—'tis a glorious rest,
Yea, saith the Spirit," for all such are blest;
"They rest from the labors," their work is done,
The goal is attain'd, the weary race run.
The battle is fought, the struggle is o'er,
The crown now replaces the cross they bore,
The pilgrimage past shall no more be trod,
"A rest remains to the people of God."

O, call it not death—it is true indeed
The soul from the shackles of earth is freed,
'Tis true that dissolved is the house of clay,
And the spirit unchained has pass'd away,
'Tis true, the loved one hath gone before,
The home, how darken'd, that knows her no more,
He chides not your grief, for Jesus, too, wept,
O'er the grave where his friend, a Lazarus, slept.

But call it not death—a few short days o'er,
Ye shall meet her in glory, to part no more;
What a "blessed hope," lo! Christ shall appear,
For "the restitution of all things" here.
Then (if not till then) ye'll see her again,
When brought by the Lord with his glorious train
Those "sleeping in Jesus" shall be restored,
And so shall we ever be with the Lord.

"If we knew whose feet were standing
Close beside the silent stream,
If we knew whose eyes were closing
In the sleep that knows no dream,
We should be so kind and tender
Lightly judge, and gently speak—
Let us act as if our vision
Saw the links that swiftly break.

Card of Thanks.

I wish to extend to my friends my heartfelt thanks for their many acts of kindness and words of sympathy in my recent affliction.

ELSIE ROWLAND.

What Does It Mean?

"100 Doses One Dollar" means simply that Hood's Sarsaparilla is the most economical medicine to buy, because it gives more for the money than any other preparation. Each bottle contains 100 doses and will average to last a month, while other preparations taken according to directions, are gone in a week. Therefore, be sure to get Hood's Sarsaparilla, the best blood purifier.

SECORD—SMITH.—At the Baptist parsonage, Tecumseh, by Rev. F. Adkins, July 1, 1890, Mr. Charles A. Secord to Miss Mina M. Smith, both of Adrian, Mich.

ESTATE OF EDWARD ROWLAND.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss.

At a session of the Probate Court for the county of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office in the city of Adrian, on Tuesday, the eighth day of July in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety.

Present, Richard B. Robbins, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Edward Rowland, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Elise Rowland, widow of said deceased, praying that administration of said estate may be granted to petitioner or some other suitable person.

It is ordered, That Monday, the 4th day of August next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

What a Difference between the WOMAN who is wedded to old-fashioned ideas and she who is bright enough to appreciate a new one. Everybody is striving to get something to make life easier—often it's right beside them—those who are bright enough to embrace it get the benefits, those who don't go backwards—their work grows harder. Pearline makes life easier and cleaner. Washing and cleaning done with Pearline has about enough work in it to make it good exercise—but not enough to tire the body or ruffle the temper.

Not ours, but the word of the millions who use it as to whether it hurts the hands, clothes or paint—probably your neighbors can tell you all about PEARLINE.

Send it back Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, and if your grocer sends you something in place of Pearline, the honest thing to do is—send it back. 167 JAMES PYLE, New York.

The Toledo Panorama Company have now in course of erection a large and complete Cyclorama building which will be a permanent structure, equal in all its appointments to the finest in this country. The building is expected to be completed early in August, and will be opened with an exhibition of the far-famed Picture of the battle of the Monitor and Merrimac.

Arrangements are being rapidly made with all Railroads and Steamboat Companies centering in Toledo, to bring thousands of people into the city to view this great work of art. Neither pains nor expense will be spared to make this one of Toledo's permanent attractions.

The building is situated on the corner of Michigan and Jefferson Streets, and is constructed from plans executed by one of Toledo's best architects, D. L. Stine, and is truly a model of modern architecture. Every citizen in and around Toledo should feel proud of the prospects of having such an enterprise in their midst.

SONGS.

Sweet are the songs we sing,
Yet some unsung are sweeter;
As our best thoughts rarely ring
Into measured time and meter.

The songs of life are apt to reveal
Its changing of storm and shine;
Sad or glad, about as we feel,
Throbs into every line.

What thrilling notes of gladness
Swell from the joyous tongue,
But mute is the pathos of sadness,
In the silence of songs unsung.

How we feel the tremolo
As we sing the songs that sigh;
For well we know a great soul's woe
Molds the strings' sweet melody,

Songs are like the tears that flow
From the well-spring of the heart;
Where sweetest joy and wildest woe
Dwell till life and thought depart.

A beautiful thought is the soul of rhyme;
'Tis the charm that moves along
The cadence of melodious chimes,
In the glorious mission of song.

The song of love will linger fond
At vernal mound and sculptured stone;
The song of hope will soar beyond
And find once more her own,

The song of memory often strides
Back o'er the years and longs;
But the song of faith forever abides
With the ideal of her songs,

John R. Clarke, in the Cincinnati Assembly Herald.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

Village of Tecumseh, Mich.
Council Room, June 16, 1890.

Regular session. Present—President Heeson, Trustees Elliott, Heck, Ames, Kennedy, Smith and the recorder. Absent, James.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

The chairman of the committee on public grounds and buildings reported that the new iron fence for the soldiers' monument had arrived and been set up and that the work was satisfactory to the committee. Report accepted. The chairman of this committee further reported that he had investigated the cost of lawn seats. Report accepted and on motion said committee was instructed to purchase eighteen steel lawn seats, five feet long, and place twelve of them in the cemetery and six in Military square.

Mr. Heck's special committee on procuring a steam pump for the water works reported that he was investigating the cost, etc., and asked for further time. On motion further time was granted.

REPORTS OF OFFICERS

The street commissioner presented the following report for the month of June:

Corporation team, 20 days; hired team, three days; hand work, 18½ days; street commissioner, 23½ days: poll tax worked, 9 days.

The sexton reported two adult interments for June and one lot sold, with treasurer's receipt for $8.00 interment fees.

NEW BUSINESS.

The following bills were presented and referred to the finance committee:—

T. R. Kyle, marshal, $11.00; J. D. Alverson, dentistry on corporation team, $3.00; C. F. Field, publishing "Proceedings," $5.00; S. C. Stacy, printing, $3 00; Satterthwaite Bros. & Boyd, fence for monument and sundries, $131.58; and the following for street labor: E. A. Hodges, $32.00; B. Bartholomew; $2.50; W. S. Morse, $2.50; Fred Haynes, $2.50; J. L. Waldo, $3 38; John McWilliams, $2.50; Francis Herring, $4.06; Martin Crossman, $.88.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS.

The finance committee reported favorably on the above bills as read and on motion orders were directed drawn on the treasurer for the several amounts.

Trustee Elliott asked permission, in behalf of the Orangemen's society, to use Military square on the 12th of July for a balloon ascension. On motion permission was granted.

On motion the marshal was instructed to appoint three extra police to assist in preserving order on July 12th.

Council then adjourned.

CAMBRIDGE CLIPPINGS.

Charles Cole is on the sick list.

Wheat is good and the harvesting of it is nearly over.

A few from here attended Orangemen's day at Tecumseh last Saturday.

C. H. Dewey is buying wool. From 20 to 26½ cents seems to be the general price.

Mrs. C. A. Blackmar was on the sick list last week, caused by picking berries in the hot sun.

The C. L. C. will hold an ice cream social at the home of Miss Lutie Billmyre Friday, July 18th.

A fine double-seated carriage passed through here last Saturday, with two ladies and two gentlemen in, on their way to Chicago. One of the gentlemen was 84 years of age.

Ayer's Hair Vigor has long held the first place, as a hair-dressing, in the estimation of the public. Ladies find that this preparation gives a beautiful gloss to the hair, and gentlemen use it to prevent baldness and cure humors in the scalp.

A SAD AND FATAL ACCIDENT.

On Thursday evening last a shocking accident occurred on the Mackinaw depot grounds, which resulted in the death of James Zeluff. For the past few years Mr. D. H. Zeluff, father of the young man who lost his life, has resided in a new house on Maumee street, one block north of the Mackinaw passenger depot. He owns quite a tract of land east of the depot grounds, on both sides of the railroad track, extending down on the river flats, which land is used for farming purposes, the flats being used for pasturage. The fence separating the railroad lands from Mr. Zeluff's pasture had got out of repair, and immediately after supper James went down there with hammer and nails and fixed the fence. Starting for home he struck the track near the water tank and walked down towards the passenger depot. Just then an extra freight train came from the east, running at a high rate of speed, and the locomotive struck the unfortunate man, hurling him several feet into the air. He was, when struck, near the cattle yard, a few rods east of the freight depot. The train was halted as soon as possible and James was conveyed to his father's house. Medical aid was summoned but it was useless. His body was frightfully bruised and mangled, one leg being broken in two places, his skull crushed, and one hand mutilated. He never saw one moment's consciousness after the blow. He barely breathed until eleven o'clock, when the vital spark fled. The train men and one of the depot hands saw the whole affair. Whether the train could have been stopped in time to prevent the accident is a disputed question. There is considerable feeling in the community that the train men did not use proper caution and precipitated the accident carelessly.

The deceased was born Dec. 13, 1853, at Utica, Macomb county, Mich., being a twin brother of William Oscar. The latter died of scarlet fever when 17 months old. When eight years old James Orson, the deceased, had an attack of brain fever which ruined his hearing. On account of this infirmity he always made his home in his father's family. He was ten years old when his father moved to Ridgeway, and for the past fifteen years he has lived in this village. He possessed rugged physical health, was a great lover of horses, was a most exemplary young man in every respect, and had become the mainstay of his father in conducting the farm. He was retiring in disposition but highly esteemed by all who knew him.

Owing to the celebration on Saturday the funeral obsequies were postponed until Sunday morning. They were held at Mr. D. H. Zeluff's residence at 10-30 o'clock that forenoon and were attended by a large concourse of people. Rev. Jas. Wright of Britton gave a feeling discourse and vocal music was provided under the direction of H. W. Stevens. Friends of the family were present from Ridgeway, Dundee, Saline, Marshall and Jackson. The floral offerings were beautiful and appropriate. The high character of the deceased during his life time, his unfortunate infirmity, and the surroundings of his death, combined to make the funeral ceremonies deeply impressive and mournful. There were no dry eyes in all that gathering when the shattered body was conveyed to the hearse and thence to its final resting place in our beautiful cemetery. The parents and family have the deepest sympathy of our entire community in their awful affliction, but they can comfort their stricken hearts with the reflection that James has exchanged the fickle uncertainties of this life for a better habitation on high.

TECUMSEH, THURSDAY, JULY 17

Henry M. Stanley's wedding, which took place in Westminister Abbey, could be termed the "toniest social event of the season."

One benefit may result from the passage of the McKinley tariff bill, after all. It will convince the most skeptical mortal that the tariff is a tax.

Are the West and South prepared to sell themselves out to Reed, Quay and Dudley? The real political issue is rapidly narrowing itself down to this point.

Napoleon III, in the worst days of his unscrupulous rule. would have shrunk from promulgating such an infamous law as the federal election bill that has passed the house.

"Tariff is a game more than one nation can play at," says the Chicago HERALD. Very true, and other nations are beginning to retaliate upon us for our Chinese wall tariff policy.

"Are the employed poor when the employers are prosperous?" asks a war tariff organ. Frequently they are. Andrew Carnegie, for instance, derived a large fortune in one year from his protected mills—more than all his 10,000 workmen together will be able to save in ten years.

The McKinley bill and the senate bill both having doubled the tax on starch, a starch trust has been promptly formed under a Kentucky charter with a capital of $10,000,000, and it is now only necessary to pass the new tariff bill to enable the new starch trust to nearly double the price of starch to the whole country.

The Louisiana lottery has struck a snag after all. The House passed the resolution for submission over the Governor's veto but by the sudden death of a member of the Senate that body lacked one vote of the necessary two-thirds. The best legal talent is of the opinion that this will prove fatal to the submission scheme.

In the death of Gen. Clinton B. Fisk, the Prohibition party loses its most conspicuous and trusted leader, and the Methodist church one of its most eminent laymen. He was a man of wealth, but liberal with his riches, a broad guage man of affairs and yet one of liberal culture. That party has no leader who can fill his place.

The tariff bill should be disposed of in some way very soon. Business of all kinds is suffering from the present uncertainty. Even a bad bill is better than constant agitation. The Democrats of the Senate should insist upon a reasonable time for discussion, but should not resort to any obstructive tactics. Let the Republicans pass their bill and take the responsibility.

If the Senate should attempt to pass the revolutionary force bill, the Democrats would be justified in resorting to every obstructive method known to parliamentary law to defeat it. This is not legitimate legislation, but an attempt to obliterate state lines and abolish home rule. It is not only the right but the duty of senators to use every means in their power to block such monstrous legislation.

How propetic and how true were these words, once spoken by Old Hickory Jackson:

"The ambition which leads me on is an anxious desire and a fixed determination to persuade my countrymen, so far as I may, that it is not in a splendid Government, supported by powerful monopolies and aristocratic establishments, that they will find happiness or their liberties protected. There is but one safe rule, and that is to confine the general Government rigidly within the sphere of its appropriate duties."

We certainly hope there will be no plank declaring for a test of party fealty in our state platform. There is only one test of party fealty, and all the resolutions imaginable can't change it. That is a vote for the Prohibition ticket The man who votes our ticket is a Prohibitionist. The man who doesn't vote our ticket is not a Prohibitionist. And that is all there is to it The only test of party fealty chestnut ought to be put in the museum along with the other ancient land marks.

We clip the above from the Messenger.. By substituting the word Democrat for Prohibition, it would make an orthodox item for a Democratic organ.

HOW WE ARE TAXED.

A correspondent of the New York Evening Post, who has been examining the McKinley bill carefully, sends the papers the following communication: "Upon glancing over the majority report on the McKinley bill, I find a table on page 9, showing the increase in the protection of wool under the fostering care of a protective tariff. The report then proceeds: "It will be noticed that in 1860, after 14 years of revenue tariff, the total production of domestic wool was 60,264,913 pounds or 1.7 pound per capita, while in 1884, after 24 years of protection, the total production had increased to 308,000,000 pounds, or 5.4 pounds per capita. This increase justifies the policy of affording this important agricultural product adequate protection." Are the figures as given correct, and if so will you kindly explain them?" The reply is instructive, as it unmasks nicely the protectionists style of reasoning, which usually arrives at a false conclusion by stating only half the truth, and which assigns results to protection which should be attributed to other and more natural causes. The Post says: "There was only a nominal duty on wool until the year 1867. Therefore the place to begin reckoning is 1868, the year after the wool tariff went into operation. In 1868 the total clip of the United States was 177,000,000—that is, it had increased under the low duty from 60,264,913 in 1860 to 177,000,000, or about 200 per cent in 8 years. From 1868 to 1873 it declined in the ratio shown below:

1869	162,250,000
1870	163,000,000
1671	146,000,000
1872	160,000,000
1873	174,000,000

In seven years after the passage of the tariff of 1867 we had barely recovered the ground we had reached under the low nominal duties of the antecedent period. About this time the western plains became available for sheep grazing, and there was an increase of the clip, which reached its maximum in 1884 of 308,000,090, an increase of 70 per cent in seventeen years. Since 1884 there has been a decline, the clip of 1888 amounting to only 260,000,000 pounds."

The great steel and iron barons of Pennsylvania are preparing to descend on Washington in force, so as to prevent the senate finance committee from changing in any way the metal schedule of the McKinley bill. writes a Washington correspondent, It is understood that the finance committee proposes to reduce the duty on steel rails from $13.40 per ton to $11.50 New England is demanding raw material for her factories, and the interpretation put on the proposed reduction on metal products is that the metal schedule and the wool schedule are to be played against each other. Andrew Carnegie is very much worried about this cut on steel rails. Under the present rate of duty his income is $5,000 a day. but if the rate proposed by the finance committee becomes a law he he will have to worry along on a beggarly pittance of $4,600 a day.

A letter from Philadelphia to the Dry Goods Economist a few days ago mentioned the fact that the price of pearl buttons had already advanced in anticipation of the McKinley bill, from 40 to 60 cents per gross. It added that "the cheapest pearl button now costs, landed, 17 cents per gross, whereas the duty alone which these will have to pay will be 36 cents per gross. In the higher grades the advance will be proportionally less, but in lower qualities it is most serious and is already showing its effects here in demoralizing trade." Some further information was contributed by G. Blumenthal to the senate finance committee the other day. He showed, by exhibiting a shell the various kinds of pearl buttons made from one and the same shell, the very finest of which would pay at the new proposed rate 106 per cent for a twenty-line button, and in the cheapest grade 500 per cent. or an average for the six grades as now imported, made from the same shell, of 250 per cent for a twenty-line button; but as there are a great many more imported of the three cheaper than of the three better grades the average on importations as they take place to-day would amount to over 350 per cent. Besides this, there are cheaper grades of shell, and he showed samples whereof a button that is imported by the thousands of gross every week would pay an ad valorem duty from eighteen to twenty-four line of 640 per cent. In reply to a question by Senator Voorhees, he said that the cheapest grades are principally used by the large manufacturers of shirts, underwear, etc., and he showed the committee a sample of a button which is used by tens of thousands of gross by shirt manufacturers, and which would pay at the new rate an ad valorem duty of 571 per cent. In conclusion he created quite a stir amoung the senators by giving the facts as to a small invoice of pearl and other buttons which arrived by steamship Elder, June 3d, and which were entered at the New York custom house on the following day. This invoice, showing a market value of $1,600,80, paid a duty at 25 per cent, of $400.20. At the new rate of duty as proposed in the McKinley bill this same invoice would pay $5,187.60.

The theory of the war tariff men that when an employer finds himself making lots of money he proceeds to increase the wages of his employes has at last found an illustration, tho' it comes from a free trade country. The Guinness Brewing Company has voluntarily added a shilling a week to the wages of its employes, with the statement that the increase of business justifies this compensation to the men whose industry and fidelity have contributed to the result. This will add £7,000 yearly to the company's payroll. But it is the only case of the kind of which we ever heard, and as it comes from a so-called "free-trade" country it will hardly be used as an argument by the high-taxers.

It may not be amiss to ask how the wages of the farm laborer have been affected by thirty years of protective tariff. According to the protectionist theory they should have been maintained at least, if not advanced, but the facts show that the reverse has been the case. The following figures of the average wages paid to farm hands in the sections and during the years indicated are taken from report No. 51, issued by the department of agriculture in May, 1888:

Eastern states	$33.30	$26.03
Middle states	30.07	23.11
Southern states	16.00	14 54
Western states	28 91	22.2-
California	35.75	33.08

The figures given represent the wages per month, without board.

While both the farmer and his laborer have thus been getting into narrower quarters for twenty years past, there is nothing to indicate that their condition will be materially improved in the coming twenty years if they shall still be obliged to buy everything in a protected market and sell the product of their labor in a free-trade market. For the clothes upon his back, the implements with which he tills the soil, and every article within his house and barn the farmer pays tariff tribute to the protected manufacturer; but the price of his corn and his wheat is fixed by the prices in the foreign market, where he sends his surplus crops and where he has met the competition of cereals raised by cheap labor in India, Russia and Australia. The American farmer cannot change the conditions existing in those countries nor can he increase the price of their products. He must meet their prices, and the tendency is ever downward. The "home market" theory has no application to the American farmer. The people of this country cannot consume his entire crops; there is a surplus of millions of bushels yearly, and therefore he must make the whole world his market. As he is unable to secure a large return for his labor and his invested capital, his only hope lies in an increase of the purchasing power of his earnings. He must have cheaper clothing and cheaper farming tools, and even then the labor of years will not relieve him of the almost overwhelming burden of mortgaged indebtedness that has been heaped upon him in his struggle against those who have sought to "protect" him by a high tariff on everything he buys.—Chicago Herald.

WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH WOOL.

Maj. McKinley made up his mind that he could ride into the White House on the back of a blooded ram Therefore he got up a tariff bill in which he repeated to the wool growers what Delano, Lawrence, and Harpster told him—that his bill would add millions to the selling value of their fleeces. He added 2 or 3 cents a pound to the duty on merino wools, which are grown extensively in this country especially in the warm arid South western regions, and he doubled the duty on carpet wools, which are not grown in this country at all and which it is not probable ever will be. His bill with these provisions for the welfare of the American wool-grower has passed the House and the wool schedule has been modified but slightly by the Finance Committee of the Senate. With so fair a prospect of passage the wool market ought to show signs of activity and wool-growers ought to be getting the good of a rise in price.

Singularly enough this is not the case. Wool is four cents a pound lower than last year and shows no signs of bettering. One of the phonograph organs of McKinleyism in this city, which repeats the words dictated by Delano & Co., blooded ram-raisers for New Mexico, admits in its commercial columns that wool matters are in bad way. These are the pathetic headlines over a dispatch printed yesterday: "Wool Slow at Boston." "A Dull Week Noted in the Great Eastern Fleece Market." "Few Manufacturers visible to eyes of expectant Dealers." "Sluggish Sales Due to most of the Big Mills Being Closed."

Following are extracts from the commercial dispatch which justify the headlines:

The general market has been exceedingly dull, and small sales as a rule, reported by the various large dealers. The increase in the volume of business is due to some large sales of new Texas, California, and other wools made previously to arrival and just now approved by manufacturers. They are, therefore, included in the sales reported this week. There is no excitement here or at any point of the seaboard, and it is seldom that a week passes during which so few manufacturers are seen on the market as was the case this week. Many of the mills are wholly shut down and others partially so, and it is no surprise that the actual business in progress is so small.

Why is the wool market depressed thus, and why are the mills closing just at the moment when the stimulating and benign influences of the McKinley wool tariff ought to be felt? The McKinleyites may say what they please, but the reason for depression is to be sought for in the intention to levy higher duties on foreign mixing wools. Says George William Bond of Boston, protectionist and wool expert:

An experience of high duty for over twenty years has failed to increase the value of wool, home grown. So different is the character and quality of wool grown in different countries, and even in different parts of the same country, that if wools were free the probable result would only be to equalize values the world over, and it would be found that other countries would want our wool as much as we should want theirs.

The farmers have been told that while their clothing would be increased in price they would make the loss up on wool. They have now a chance to see how much truth there is in this humbugging assertion. In spite of the fact that foreign-grown wools are to cost the manufacturers more, American wools persist in going down not up. Evidently the wool schedules of Mac's Tariff bill are a delusion and a fraud so far as the farmers are concerned.

Let the Senate amend the bill by knocking off all duties on third-class or carpet wools, and then wait awhile to see what the effect is on the market. If the prices of American wools advance any and the big mills begin to open and the wheels to go around, it will be a sign that the right path has been struck and the way found to get the American wool-raiser out of a hole. —Chicago Tribune.

If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to take any other. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a peculiar medicine, possessing, by virtue of its peculiar combination, proportion, and preparation, curative power superior to any other article. A Boston lady who knew what she wanted, and whose example is worthy imitation, tells her experience below:

To Get

"In one store where I went to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla the clerk tried to induce me buy their own instead of Hood's; he told me their's would last longer; that I might take it on ten days' trial; that if I did not like it I need not pay anything, etc. But he could not prevail on me to change. I told him I knew what Hood's Sarsaparilla was. I had taken it, was satisfied with it, and did not want any other.

Hood's

When I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla I was feeling real miserable, suffering a great deal with dyspepsia, and so weak that at times I could hardly stand. I looked, and had for some time, like a person in consumption. Hood's Sarsaparilla did me so much good that I wonder at myself sometimes, and my friends frequently speak of it." MRS. ELLA A. PROTECTION—PRICES.

THE TENDENCY TO LOWER PRICES IS GENERAL.

The Protectionists Claim That It Is the Tariff That Does It, but the Figures of the Treasury Department Show the Same Decline in the Prices of Imports.

The report on "Foreign Commerce and Navigation," recently issued by the treasury department, gives some highly interesting figures as to the general decline of prices of goods imported into the country.

One of the cheapest tricks of the protectionists is to call our attention to the decline in price of some domestic article, and say, "See there! What a good thing protection is!" The simple souls fancy that if the price of any article happens to go down after protective duties have been imposed, nothing but protection could have caused this decline, and even the champion protectionist himself, Secretary Blaine, claims that the general effect of protection is to lower prices. But it is evident that the protectionists will have to adopt some more trustworthy method of proving this statement. It will not do to point to prices when the duty was first imposed and prices at the present time. That method simply proves nothing at all, for in nearly every department of human endeavor there have been improvements of processes and of machinery which, as can easily be shown, have had an enormous influence in bringing prices down. When a machine has been invented which will do the work of ten men we have a factor which cannot be ignored in estimating the cause of lower prices. Improved processes and machinery are things whose effects can be accurately measured; the effects of protection can never be stated in dollars and cents, and can at best only be guessed at, even by protectionists themselves. In the absence of anything tangible they "claim everything" for protection, and when they get hold of a price list of some line of domestic goods they fondly point at how the tariff has brought down prices.

A protectionist of this stamp is Mr. T. J. Clark, who was a delegate to the recent Illinois Republican convention. Mr. Clark is a farmer who fancies that protection has done a great deal for him. In this convention he made a speech to his fellow protectionists, and among other things he pointed out the beauties of protection in the following luminous words: "The blankets under which I sleep, that cost me $12 per pair fifteen years ago, can be bought today, the same weight and kind, for $6 per pair. Cotton and dress goods have decreased in price since 1860 in like proportions. The ax I use cost me seventy-five cents—a better ax in every respect than the one my father bought in '57 for a $2 bill. The wagon I use cost me $50, and a better wagon than my father bought during the good old Democratic free trade days of 1856 to '60 for $140."

That may be very convincing to the "simple, childlike faith" of a man like Mr. Clark; but what would he say when it is pointed out that the prices of nearly all foreign goods have declined in the same way? Would he claim that protection did that, too?

Men like Mr. Clark should study the figures on pages 23 and 24 in the latest report of the treasury department on "Foreign Commerce and Navigation." These pages give the prices of several different kinds of manufactured and crude articles imported into the country from 1873 to 1889. The price of ordinary unpolished window glass in 1878 was 8.4 cents per pound; in 1889 it was 1.9. In 1878 foreign plate glass cost 77.8 cents per square foot; last year it was 33.4.

This latter fact is very interesting in view of a dispatch from Pittsburg, Pa., which was recently printed in the daily papers, and in which it was claimed that "until a few years ago very nearly all the plate glass used in America was imported and was sold at about $1.50 a foot." But the treasury reports for twelve years back give the price of foreign glass as 77.8 cents; and the decline in price has been more than one-half. But this Pittsburg dispatch goes on to say: "Now the home manufacture has grown to such a degree that importations have ceased almost completely, and the price has come down to 65 to 90 cents a foot." The question arising here is, if protection caused the price of domestic plate glass to fall from $1.50 a foot to 65 to 90 cents, what caused the imported glass to fall from 77.8 to 33.4 cents per foot? Protection could not possibly have caused the foreign glass to decline in price; and if this declined without protection, why may not the domestic article have declined likewise with no regard for protection? As a matter of fact the decline was due in both instances to improved methods.

But returning to the treasury report we find that in 1878 foreign pig iron sold at $23.728; last year it was $16.186. Bar iron fell from 2.3 cents a pound to 1.6 cents. Steel rails started at $48.182 a ton; last year they were $28.956—a decline of more than half in twelve years. And yet it is steel rails, above all things else, that the protectionists point to as having been cheapened by protection. Tin plates fell from 4.1 cents to 2.8; raw sugar from 4.7 to 3 cents. The average price of foreign carpeting of all kinds was $1.432 a yard in 1878; in 1889 it was $1.213, and in 1890 it is as low as 86.7 cents.

We have been trying to keep up the price of domestic wool by means of high duties, but the attempt has not succeeded, and foreign wools have been coming in at steadily declining prices. The prices per pound are as follows:

	1878.	1889.
Clothing wools	24.4c.	20.4c.
Combing wools	32.0	23.1
Carpet wools	18.4	11.5

The same general tendency to lower prices could doubtless be shown in many other imported articles, but the reports are not given in these tables. The figures here produced are simply sufficient to show the general lowering of prices which is going on all over the world, and which the protectionists make haste to claim as the result of our high tariff. They would have people to believe that it is only in America that prices have become lower.

But what do protectionists mean by claiming that the protective tariff lowers prices? What right have they to make that claim? Does not their great apostle McKinley assure us that protection is intended to do just the opposite thing? He defended his high duties when making his noted tariff speech in congress by saying, "We want no return to cheap times in our own country," and also "when merchandise is the cheapest men are the poorest."

And yet when prices fall the protectionist children sitting in the market place pipe to one another and say, "Protection did it! protection did it!"

How can these contrary claims be reconciled? If "protection did it," then McKinley must give the country a totally different kind of medicine if he wants "no return to cheap times in our own country." Let it be kept in mind that Dr. McKinley wants to keep the temperature of his patient up. But if the temperature goes down in spite of his quack medicines he has no right to boast that he reduced the temperature and thus saved the life of his patient. He was trying to keep the temperature up.

DON'T BELIEVE IT THEMSELVES.

Facts Which Show the Insincerity of Protectionists.

The protectionists say that the foreigner pays the tariff tax. This is a kind of password with them, which proves the orthodoxy of each one's political creed. They all speak it, from the least to the greatest—from the youngest to those who have grown old and hoary headed in their tariff sins.

But do they believe it themselves? Are they sincere?

Let us see. Why did they give free lumber to Chicago and Portland, Me., after the great fires in those cities? If the Canadians paid the lumber duty, what good would it do Chicago and Portland to have free lumber?

Lo, and behold! Chicago and Portland are in distress; therefore let us help Canada!

But as that was twenty years ago and may not count today, let us find a modern instance. Have you ever heard of a "compensating duty?" A compensating duty is this: Woolen goods, for example, bear two duties, so much per cent. ad valorem and so much per pound additional. The reason given for this is that the ad valorem duty is protection against foreign goods of the same kind, and that the duty by the pound is to make good to the manufacturer the duty he had paid on his raw wool. It is "compensation" to him for that outlay; the manufacturer himself regards it as such, and always insists on having the "compensating duty" maintained.

Now, if the foreigner pays the tax, why do the protectionists vote a "compensating duty" to the manufacturer? Ought they not in justice to vote it back to the foreigner if it is to "compensate" anybody at all?

No; they don't—they don't believe it themselves!

A Race to Beat McKinley.

The uncertainty in regard to the final form in which the tariff bill will become a law is producing great obstruction in our foreign trade. The leading trade paper of the dry goods business in New York gives the following in its market reports as the effect of this uncertainty:

"The order trade is hampered by the tariff, buyers insisting on contracting at old prices, which importers are not willing to do unless they are sure to be able to enter them before the duties are raised. Spring orders are delayed for the same reason, and buyers here as well as buyers now in Europe are anxiously waiting for definite information in order to begin spring operations."

The New York Commercial Bulletin reports, too, that things are at a standstill in some lines of goods because importers decline to take orders at present prices and buyers refuse to give the advance demanded. In some instances goods already imported are held at higher prices in view of the certain rise which will follow the passage of the McKinley bill.

Imports are being hurried into the country, however, at an unusual rate. The same dry goods paper already quoted says: "The imports continue large, and it is a noticeable fact that with a smaller actual consumption of imported goods the imports this year have exceeded those of last year by a good sum. This is largely due to the proposed tariff changes, all firms who could afford to do so having accumulated a good stock of goods as a precaution against an advance in duties. European manufacturers are, as far as the execution of American orders is concerned, rushing them through speedily in order to be able to ship the goods according to contract."

This condition of things ought to delight the soul of Maj. McKinley, who is said to cast a cold smile of pity on any man who confesses that he is an importer. McKinley believes that importing is a thing that is carried on in the interest of foreigners and is injurious to the welfare of America. His bill, which he boasted of as "an American bill, not a European bill," is a direct effort to suppress importing. He looks upon importers as enemies of their country and as the legitimate prey of tariff oppression.

But the great army of American consumers know that these importers are only the agents of the consumers themselves. The importer will not order a yard of cloth unless he knows that there is some American citizen who wants it, and when McKinley strikes at the importer the blow is really aimed at the consumer of the goods that the importer brings into the country. It is the freedom of the millions of American citizens that McKinley believes it a just and good thing to hamper.

But why this hurry to get goods into the country? What inducement is there to make haste? Republican politicians are diligent in spreading the delusion that the foreigner pays the tax, but if so why are our importers trying to get in a supply of goods before the McKinley wail goes up? Is not that hurry very foolish if the foreigner pays the duty?

Ayer's Sarsaparilla
The Best Blood Medicine

So say Leading Physicians and Druggists, and their opinion is indorsed by thousands cured by it of Scrofula, Eczema, Erysipelas, and other diseases of the blood.

"Ayer's Sarsaparilla has won its reputation by years of valuable service to the community. It is the best."—R. S. Lang, Druggist, 212 Merrimack st., Lowell, Mass.

Dr. W. P. Wright, Paw Paw Ford, Tenn., says: "In my practice, I invariably prescribe Ayer's Sarsaparilla for chronic diseases of the blood."

Dr. R. R. Boyle, Third and Oxford sts., Philadelphia, Pa., writes: "For two years I have prescribed Ayer's Sarsaparilla in numerous instances, and I find it highly efficacious in the treatment of all disorders of the blood."

L. M. Robinson, Pharmacist, Sabina, O., certifies: "Ayer's Sarsaparilla has always been a great seller. My customers think there is no blood-purifier equal to it."

"For many years I was afflicted with scrofulous running sores, which, at last became so bad the doctors advised amputating one of my legs to save my life. I began taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla and soon saw an improvement. After using about two dozen bottles the sores were healed. I continue to take a few bottles of this medicine each year, for my blood, and am no longer troubled with sores. I have tried other reputed blood-purifiers, but none does so much good as Ayer's Sarsaparilla."—D. A. Robinson, Neal, Kansas.

The figure 9 in our dates will make a long stay. No man or woman now living will ever date a document without using the figure 9. It stand in the third place in 1890, where it will remain ten years and then move up to second place in 1900 where it will rest for one hundred years.

There is another "9" which has also come to stay. It is unlike the figure 9 in our dates in the respect that it has already moved up to first place, where it will permanently remain. It is called the "No. 9" High Arm Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine.

The "No. 9" was endorsed for first place by the experts of Europe at the Paris Exposition of 1889 where, after a severe contest with the leading machines of the world, it was awarded the only Grand Prize given to family sewing machines, all others on exhibit having received lower awards of gold medals, etc. The French Government also recognized its superiority by the decoration of Mr. Nathaniel Wheeler, President of the company, with the Cross of the Legion of Honor.

The "No. 9" is not an old machine improved upon, but is an entirely new machine, and the Grand Prize at Paris was awarded it as the grand est advance in sewing machine mechanism of the age. Those who buy it can rest assured, therefore, of having the very latest and best.

ORANGE AND BLUE.

THE ORANGEMEN OF DETROIT AND TECUMSEH UNITE IN A GRAND CELEBRATION.

The Battle of the Boyne Commemorated in a Brilliant Manner—Tecumseh Crowded with People. Full Report of the Exercises, Games, Balloon Ascension, Etc.

The twelfth day of July, in the year of grace, 1890, was the two hundredth anniversary of the battle of the Boyne. The celebrated battle, although not a great one when compared with Napoleon's contests, or those of our war of the rebellion, has nevertheless been regarded as one of the pivotal battles of modern history.

Throughout the province of Ontario, and in some of the larger cities of the United States, the order of Orangemen is very numerous, and many of the smaller cities can boast of a lodge. Tecumseh has for several years supported an excellent lodge, called the Chosen Few. A few weeks ago the idea suggested itself that they had better celebrate their two hundreth anniversary, and their arrangements culminated in the largest celebration of the kind ever witnessed in Tecumseh. A large excursion came from Detroit over the Wabash and Mackinaw roads, bringing the Martin Luther Lodge and Hudson's military band, and the surrounding towns of Lenawee county furnished hundreds of spectators.

The clerk of the weather was in his most accommodating mood Saturday morning. The fearful hot weather was broken the day before and that morning was cool and hazy. Tecumseh had put on her holiday attire. Nearly every business house on Chicago street was decorated with the National emblems and with orange and blue bunting. Anderson & Co's store and the Lilley House were perhaps the most elaborately trimmed, but many others were very nicely decorated. Stretched across Chicago street from Anderson's store to Orr's drug store was a streamer composed of red, white, orange and blue bunting, in the center of which was a lodge design and the words, "Welcome Bretheren." About half the business houses were decorated on Friday afternoon and the rest of them fell into line Saturday morning. The sidewalk margins were trimmed with evergreen trees. Chicago street, from Pearl to Ottawa, presented a beautiful appearance that has seldom been equaled. By nine o'clock the streets began to fill up with visitors. Every train brought accessions to the crowd, and teams came pouring into town from all points of the compass, and at noon when the Detroit contingent arrived, the village was filled to overflowing. The special train was over an hour late, not arriving at the Mackinaw depot until about eleven o'clock. The Tecumseh City band and Chosen Few lodge had proceeded to the depot to meet the Detroit delegation and escort them up town. Marshall James Elliott formed the procession on Maumee street, with Hudson's Detroit band in the lead. Then came the members of Martin Luther L. O. L. No. 54, with 163 men in the ranks Next came the Tecumseh City band and then the Chosen Few Lodge with their visiting bretheren, with about one hundred men. The procession marched north on Maumee street to Pottawatamie, thence West to Union, thence North to Chicago, thence East on Chicago to the East branch school, and then countermarched West on Chicago street to the Opera House, where it disbanded. As the hour of noon had then arrived, the speaking was deferred until afternoon. The crowd scattered and the next two hours were devoted to refreshments. Every available place where a meal could be procured was crowded, but in time all were well supplied and no one was obliged to go hungry.

AFTERNOON PROGRAM.

At two o'clock the crowd had received numerous accessions from the neighboring townships, and the business portion of Chicago street was a literal sea of human faces from Ottawa to Pearl streets. The gathering was called to order on Evans street, where the band stand had been erected to accommodate the speakers and officers of the day.

The Tecumseh band gave a fine selection and the Detroit band followed. Mr. W. J. H. Traynor, editor of the Patriotic American, acted as chairman of the meeting and announced the exercises from the band stand. At this point it was announced that the balloon was nearly inflated and that Prof. Granger would soon make his ascension. The crowd broke at once for monument square, and Chicago street was vacated almost as quick as one could say Jack Robinson. A slight shower arose just at that time which nicely laid the dust, but it laid the balloon also, and thus postponed the ascension for some time. The process of inflation had to be repeated. The crowd then drifted back to Chicago street, and Mr. Traynor again called the gathering to order which was no easy task. Rev. J. M. Getchell of this village, was first introduced, who spoke substantially as follows:

REV. GETCHELL'S ADDRESS.

Mr. Chairman, Orangemen and Friends:—Without preamble or apology, I at once declare that we live in the afternoon of a great and eventful century. A new day is being ushered in for the higher welfare of humanity. The memory of women and of men are revered, and at this hour a million hearts beat quickly in love and remembrance of King William III, surnamed The Silent Prince of Orange.

How true, we become the supporter of truths and principles that are never overthrown and never defeated. With them as incentives we scale all the battlements of time and win victory for eternity.

Names, places and events are immortalized, chanted in verse or gloriously told in prose. History resounds through the years with deeds of valor and our children's children rehearse them, and in shouts of honor and of love echo them around the whole earth and upward to stars and remoter sky.

Who that loves a hero, who would not bow to despotism in religion, would not commorate to-day the triumph won on The River Boyne in 1690. No matter what his country or blood, whether a peasant or a king, esteem the soul that dared to do for freedom, for the uplifting of mankind, and the exercising of the rights and justice and love of heaven. So to-day, as in 1829, souls seen and unseen rally in unbroken phalanx in memory of him who was named William of Orange, President of the Dutch Republic. All may do homage, all sing the song of praise of a human being that died in defense of the c use of universal liberty; to perpetuate that which in spirit can never be forgotton, and makes us Orangeman at heart, though knowing nothing of its working secrets, its pledges of fidelity, or unentitled to wear its emblems or ensign of brotherhood and membership.

For general information Rev. Getchell now read the Declaration of the Loyal Orange Institution of the United States of America, and then closed with this stirring appeal.

Orangemen, here assembled and everywhere, I know not the inner secrets of your order, but the principles involved in the declaration are noble and grand. You are to make them holy.

Go on then in your great cause, remembering it is glorious and sacred, and that in the end for triumph, humanity, freedom and God, all souls are with you in that struggle and mighty march that wins victory at the immortal door-way, at the Gate Beautiful where the conflicts of earth end and the glories of eternity anew begin. For the Almighty in his wisdom has deter mined

"No good thing is failure
No evil thing success."

His remarks were greeted with generous applause and at their close Rev. D. H. Hind, of Detroit, was introduced, the Detroit band first giving a selection. As Mr. Hind's remarks were impromptu we are unable to give them. His address, however, was intently listened to, and evidently gave entire satisfaction, for it was greeted with hearty applause at its close. This closed the speaking exercises and the prize contests were then called.

THE BICYCLE RACE.

The course was from Chicago street south on Evans to the railroad target and return. There were six starters: Henry McClure, Levi Hayden, Earle Sheldon, Jas. Mark, L. Farman, all of Tecumseh, and L. Weldig, of Coldwater. At the word "go," the line started, but owing to a false motion by Marks, he pushed into Hayden's wheel, throwing Hayden off and delaying his start. On the way down Marks slipped a pedal and sustained a severe header, and dropped out of the race. Levi Hayden came out first, with Sheldon a good second. The prize was an elegant gold badge worth $25.00.

THE FOOT RACES.

The course was from Pearl to Evans street on Chicago, a distance of twenty-four rods. There were 7 entries: C. Joslyn, M. Eckhart, R. Hastings of Tecumseh; W. McKensie and J. Glick of Detroit; W. Driscoll and H. King of Adrian. The crowd was so dense on Chicago street, that it took some time to make a passage down the middle of the street for the course. This was accomplished, however, after some delay. It was a lively race and an even one. McKensie of Detroit, took the prize which was $25.00.

THE FAT MAN'S RACE.

The course was on Chicago street, same as the preceding, and there were five entries: John Smith, Albert Waring, Chet Bronson, B. Smith, Sam Underwood. These five men would tip the scales at about 1200 pounds and when they tore down Chicago street, it fairly made the earth tremble. It was not a 2:40 race, but they all got there in time. John Smith won the prize, with Albert Waring a good second. The prize was a $10.00 bill.

THE BALLOON ASCENSION.

At this point some one shouted "The balloon is going up," and the crowd made a rush for monument square. Prof. Granger's second attempt at inflation had inflated, and he made the ascension very nicely. There was a slight westerly breeze, which carried the balloon east and a little north. At a heigth of 3000 feet Prof. Granger detached the parachute and he slowly descended, alighting in the eastern part of the village near the mouth of Evan's Creek. The balloon itself sailed onward and upward for nearly thirty minutes after, when it collapsed and came down about four miles East of Tecumseh.

THE WHEELBARROW RACE.

The course was on Chicago street from the Evans street cross walk to the opera house. There were three entries: Robert Hasty, Mike Eckhart, and Will Hastings. We would not pretend to say with exactness how many times they tumbled over each other, but Robert Hasty got there first and took the $5.00 prize.

THE SACK RACE.

The course was the same as the preceding and there were four entries: Mike Eckhart, Robert Hasty, Peter Ridgeley, Will Hastings. Eckhart was the first man to reach the goal and pocketed the $5.00 prize.

THE EXCURSIONISTS RETURN.

The hour of five o'clock had now arrived, when the Detroit visitors must start for home. The procession was reformed in front of the Opera House, with the Orangemen and both bands in the ranks, and marched back to the Mackinaw depot. The train was soon filled and the contingent was on its way to the City of the Straits. With the departure of the procession, the formal part of the day's program came to an end, and the crowd scattered. The village was full of people however, the entire evening, and hundreds remained until nearly midnight. The celebration, from opening to finish, was a grand success.

REPORTER'S PICK-UPS.

Not an accident of any kind occurred during the day to mar the harmony of the exercises.

The restaurants were all crowded until late at night and the extra lemonade stands were all well patronized.

The Tecumseh Band never appeared to better advantage. With the drum-major there were 17 men in the ranks.

Marshal James Elliott proved to be the right man in the right place.

The Detroit band was finely uniformed and rendered first-class music.

The decorations on the business houses elicited much praise and commendation from the crowd.

It was nip and tuck between the two bands and it was difficult for an outsider to say which one excelled.

The members of Chosen Few Lodge of Tecumseh, are entitled to unstinted credit for their untiring efforts to make the celebration such a grand success.

The dance at Armory Hall was well patronized during the entire afternoon and evening, and the bowery dance also had no lack of custom.

How many gallons of ice cream were consumed that day? This is a question which the most expert statistician would have trouble in solving.

The lateness of the Detroit train and the shower at three o'clock, disarranged the program somewhat, but the exercises were carried out in excellent shape nevertheless.

The street peddlers were in their glory and had lots of customers.

It was one of the finest balloon ascensions ever witnessed in Southern Michigan. Prof. Granger filled his bill most creditably.

The Detroit visitors were highly pleased with the manner in which they were received and entertained.

The Lilley House tables were crowded to their utmost capacity, and landlord Patterson was in his element feeding the crowd.

The W. R. C. furnished ice cream and other refreshments in the vacant store of the Hewett block, and did a thriving business all day.

Tecumseh has rarely seen a larger crowd and never a more orderly one.

To sum it all up, the celebration was well planned, well executed, and a big success from start to finish.

Deafness Can't be Cured.

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be distroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surface.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that we cannot cure by taking Hall's Catarrh cure. Send for circulars free.

F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O.

A Remarkable Case from Illinois.

"I suffered for five years with Mercurial Rheumatism, which was the of potash and mercurial treatment by physicians, for constitutional Blood Poison. They not only failed to cure me but made me a physical wreck and my life a burden. I then commenced taking Swift's Specific (S. S. S.), and after using a few bottles was entirely cured of the Rheumatism, which the doctors brought on by their remedies, and the Blood Poison which they failed to cure I cheerfully commend S. S. S. to any one similarly afflicted."

JOHN H. LYLES, Sorento, Ill

My physician said I could not live, my liver out of order, frequently vomited greenish mucous, skin yellow, small dry humors on face, stomach would not retain food. Burdock Blood Bitters cured me. Mrs. Adelaide O'Brien, 372 Exchange St., Buffalo N. Y.

A BEAUTIFUL LIGHT.

SOME FACTS AND FIGURES ABOUT OUR NEW ELECTRIC LIGHT PLANT.

How the System Works, the number of Lamps Now Placed, and the Prospects for Future Expansion.

Now that our new system of electric lighting has been fairly inaugurated and has proven such a success, it may not be amiss to give our readers a brief description of the plant, with the present condition thereof and its prospects for the future.

The theory by which the electric light is produced has been known to scientists for many years, but it was only about ten years ago that methods were invented by which electricity could be generated in sufficient quantity and at so cheap a figure as to make the system useful for practical business purposes. Since this was accomplished its use for street and commercial lighting has been extended very rapidly, until now, not only the large cities but also our most enterprising villages are using this light.

Last winter Mr. A. B. Cotton of Chicago, who represents the Thompson—Houston system paid Tecumseh two or three visits and as a result the Council granted a franchise to that company or its assigns to erect an electric light plant in the village and agreeing to take a certain number of street lamps. Through Mr. Cotton's efforts, Mr. Travis, a practical electrician of several years experience, became interested. He visited Tecumseh and was so well pleased with the field that he bought the franchise and began work at once. Mr. Travis arrived in Tecumseh on the 10th day of April. On the 20th of April he bought a lot of B. J. Bidwell on the west side of Mill street, just north of the creek bridge, and the work of excavating for the foundation walls was begun the next day. This work of erecting the building was pushed as rapidly as possible, and within sixty days the building was up and enclosed. It is a one story brick structure with metal roof, shaped like an L. It is 57 feet in length east and west, and the rear portion is 33 feet north and south. The rear part is used for the boiler, pumps, heater and coal bin; the front part for the engine and dynamos. The boiler is from the Mansfield Machine works, 85 horse power and the engine is an 85 horse power N. Y. Safety. The dynamo now in operation is a 50 arc light Thompson and Houston machine. The building is constructed for this particular use and is a model of its kind. During the erection of the building, the work of the planting street poles and stringing the wires was progressing every day. The last week in June the street lamps were hung and the store lamps placed in position. During the first week in July the machinery at the works was set and tested. Monday and Tuesday of last week the engine and the machinery were kept running and all the little details of preparation were attended to. On Wednesday evening July 9th, the circuits were turned on to both the inside and outside lamps, and they all ran like a new top the very first night.

The following parties now have lamps in there stores; Anderson & Co. 6, Satterthwaite Bros. & Boyd, 2; Jas Lowry, 2; Alva Spayde, McClure Co. Anderson Brs, C. A. Wright & Co, Jacob Cheever, S. P. Hosmer. John J. Orr. Will Anderson, M. F. Marks, Harris and Hiteshu, Postoffice, E. C. Kennedy and Will Sutfin, one each.

Four more arc lights have been engaged, one by each of these firms; Heesen & Son Birdsall and Glenn, Macham Bros. & W. W. Marsh.

There are now 22 street lamps in position, which are located at the following points; Corner of Chicago and Evans, Chicago and Oneida, Chicago and Wyandotte, Chicago and Maiden Lane, Chicago and Van Buren; Corner of Pottawatamie and Democratic, Pottawatamie and Union, Pottawatamie and Pearl, Pottawatamie and Ottawa, Pottawatamie and Maumee; Corner of Logan and Union, Logan and Pearl, Logan and Ottawa, Logan and Maumee; Corner of Shawnee and Maiden Lane, Shawnee and Evans; Corner of Killbuck and Maiden Lane, Killbuck and Evans; Corner of Mill and Brown, corner of Union and Brown north of cemetery; Union South of cemetetry; Maumee North of Hicks mill.

Mr. Travis has ordered a 650 light incandecent dynamo, which will be placed in position within a month or so. About twenty firms have ordered incandescent lights; this makes a beautiful light for offices and private dwellings. The HERALD office will be equipped with these lights, and we predict that within five years most of our dwelling houses will be useing them. All stores and houses that would naturally use gas, in case we had a gas plant can afford to use incandescent lights.

Mr. Travis, the manager, is well posted in the business and has "come here to stay," and the plant will be enlarged whenever our needs require it. No municipal improvement has taken place in Tecumseh in twenty years that will be of more substantial benefit to us than the introduction of the electric light.

Co. C had a very fine drill last Tuesday evening.

Will Anderson's hobby is tea and coffee. See his new card.

Wm. Totten left this noon for his usual summer visit at Petoskey.

Monday and Tuesday were two more scorchers. The mercury reached 96 both days.

Mrs. H. M. Webster has gone to Camden, Ind., to visit her daughter, Mrs. T. E. Webb.

Miss Fannie Stocking will begin the summer term of her select school on Monday next, July 21st.

The state encampment will begin next week Wednesday, July 23d. Co. C will leave for camp Tuesday noon.

Misses Lou and Rhoba Arner of Ridgeway, were the guests of G. W. Jackson's family yesterday afternoon.

Considering the recent pranks of the clerk of the weather he gave us a very good day for the celebration last Saturday.

About half of Ridgeway township has been sojourning in Tecumseh for the past two days, to attend the Prindle-Hoagland law suit.

We call attention to the card of the Fayette Business College in another column. It is an excellent school, and is achieving a wide reputation.

A game of base ball will be played this afternoon on the Tecumseh grounds, between the Milan and Tecumseh clubs. Game called at three P. M.

An expert bicyclist from Chicago, was in town Tuesday afternoon, and performed some fine evolutions on the wheel to the edification of our townsmen.

The Farmers' Union Picnic Association of Northern Lenawee extend greetings to the Patrons of Industry and invite them to attend the Union Picnic to be held at Putnam's landing, Sand Lake, Aug. 6th, next. There will be good speaking and good music. Let the Patrons all go and enjoy a good time.

A meeting of the subscribers to the stock of the new foundry was held Tuesday evening. Lucius Lilley acted as chairman and Chas. Burridge, secretary. Articles of incorporation were drafted and signed by those present. The name of the concern will be the "Tiffany Iron Works." Capital stock $50,000. A good beginning. Go in, gentlemen.

Tuesday last, the suit of Wm. Prindle vs. Thos. Hoagland was called before Justice Wightman for a third trial. A jury was procured and the trial began after dinner. As the atmosphere indoors resembled tophet, the court, attorney, jury, and crowd adjourned to the old Court House square and Justice Wightman administered justice beneath the shade of the maples that afternoon. Webb Frazer and W. S. Westerman appeared for the plaintiff; Walter Burridge and Seth Bean for the defense. The trial continued all day yesterday. At ten o'clock in the evening the jury brot in a verdict of no cause of action. Three times and out.

THE TECUMSEH HERALD

TECUMSEH, MICH., JULY 17, 1890

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

Hudson is organizing a new brass band.

A. P. Coddington read a sermon at the Baptist church last Sunday.

Capt. Wood was over from Adrian to attend drill last Tuesday evening.

Mrs. J. B. Carlton, of Adrian, is visiting Tecumseh friends this week.

Mrs. S. P. Hosmer is spending a month or so with friends in Freeport, Ill.

Among our callers last Saturday was postmaster Travis of Macon. He still holds on.

The Hudson Chaffs start out this year to win the pennant, if they can find one to win.

Miss Georgie Sherman, of Grand Rapids, is spending a few days with Tecumseh friends.

Charley Whittier is now in Richmond, Va. We understand he has a good position there.

The stock for the foundry is gradually growing. But a few hundred dollars still remain to be raised.

The trot last Thursday was a very good one, notwithstanding the fact that the principal race dropped out.

The Tecumseh Table Co. keep a regular night watchman at their shops. He goes on at six P. M. and remains till six in the morning.

An excursion train will run from Toledo to Devils Lake next Sunday. It passes this station at 10 A. M. Fare for the round trip, 40 cents.

Mrs. J. T. Isham, of Kansas, a daughter of John Walters, is spending about a month in Tecumseh, as the guest of Zach Snell's family.

Florence and Roy Burlingame are home from Cadillac for their summer vacation. Miss Gussie Burlingame will also remain here a few weeks.

Levi Hayden returned home last week for the summer vacation, arriving just in time to take the bicycle prize at the Orangemen's celebration.

We have received the catalogue for the coming year of the Michigan Military Academy, which shows that institution to be in a flourishing condition.

Editor Smith, of the Adrian Press, took in the celebration last Saturday and favored the HERALD with a pleasant call. We were glad to see him in good health and spirits.

Miss Temple has resigned her position as teacher and her place in the East school will be filled by Miss Chase. Miss Minnie E. Martin, of Clinton, will take the North branch.

The Mancelona Herald of July 10th was a special illustrated edition giving a "write-up" of that thriving town. It is a very creditable sheet and far above the average for a town of that size.

Commencing Monday, July 14, mail will be dispatched north on the night train of the Jackson branch, carrying mail for Detroit, Chicago, New York, Boston, Western States and Michigan. Mail closes at 8 P. M.

Editor Stearns was all cocked and primed to make a spread-eagle speech at Wampler's Lake on the Fourth, but the Lake Shore and Mackinaw trains failed to connect at Tecumseh, so Brother Stearns shot through to Manchester. At the hour appointed for his oration he was wandering about that burg searching for a "hoss," but none could be procured for love or money.

Hudson base ball enthusiasts who failed to attend the game between the Chaffs and Tecumsehs, at Island Park Wednesday, missed a rare treat. The sporting editor of the Gazette has had the privilege of witnessing some good games this season, but Wednesday's game equals, if not surpasses, any of them in good plays, etc. The battery work of Seewald and Capron was par excellent, and their support was also good. If the effective work done on Wednesday is maintained, the end of the season will find the Chaffs champions of Southern Michigan. Following is the score by innings.

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Chaffs	1	0	1	2	0	4	0	1	1	—10
Tecumsehs	0	0	0	0	0	0	4	0	1	— 5

The latest intimation received regarding the C. J. & M. and its future is that the road will be acquired by and consolidated with the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton, giving a parallel line to the latter, to relieve the overcrowded Michigan lumber business. The fact that Mr. Brice, as well as Mr. Thomas, has holdings in the C. J. & M., and it is strongly suspected to be represented in the C. H. & D. directory, lends some color to the reported negotiations in relation to such a deal. Examination of the map will show how the acquisition of the Mackinaw, especially of the Ohio division, with an extension to Jackson, would be of advantage to the C. H. & D. As the latter road is now in the control of the "progressive party," which believes in spreading out sufficiently to protect and aggrandize the property, such a deal may be already under way.—Hudson Gazette.

The electric lights are running very smoothly and giving perfect satisfaction.

Forty bands will be present at the band tournament in Adrian August 21st.

"Everything goes on the Fourth but a balloon" is the current expression at Morenci.

Rev. Frank Arnold of Ypsilanti will occupy the Baptist Pulpit next Sunday morning and evening.

Street Commissioner Hodges has been doing a good job in trimming up the shade trees about the village.

S. Milo Dole has taken a position with the Adrian Gas Company, and will act as bookkeeper and office manager.

The State Teacher's Institute for Lenawee County will be held at Adrian, beginning August 11th, and continuing two weeks.

There will be a meeting of the Patrons of Industry at Cheever's Hall Thursday evening July 24th. Let there be a good attendance.

The program committee of the Union Picnic will meet at the HERALD office next Saturday evening at seven o'clock to complete the program.

Co. C. wish to build a new Armory, as they need more room, and the boys are now devising ways and means to accomplish that object.

Editor Field is attending the State Press Association at Saginaw this week. He will probably take a trip to the Soo and prolong his stay about a week.

The Detroit Evening Journal offers a cash prize of $500 to that company of the state militia receiving the most votes. There will be a big strife for the prize.

A big fire swept through Ithica, Mich, one night last week which destroyed 22 buildings. Col. N. Church was among the losers, to the extent of about $400.

During a thunder storm last week, William Miller, who lives near Morenci was knocked to the ground by the force of a stroke of lightning which struck a tree near by.

The C. J. & M. R'y will run a special low rate excursion to Devils Lake and return Sunday, July 20th. For time of train and rates of fare see hand bills or call on nearest C. J. M. Agent.

The Ohio Quartette which was advertised at the Opera House Thursday evening has been obliged to defer the engagement for a few weeks, but they are coming so keep watch for the date.

Supervisor James went to Detroit last week and had an operation performed on one of his eyes. He is obliged to remain in a darkened room and the eye is very painful but he hopes to be out again soon.

Levi Hayden won the bicycle race Saturday on a Columbia wheel which he bought in '85. He sold it after the race for $50, and will buy a new one. It is the same wheel which carried him from Boston to Tecumseh two years ago this summer.

The gas well has been sold, at a greatly reduced figure from the first cost. At one time the face value of the property was $5,000; now the old pipe has been sold for $7, and the derrick for $25. The well, of course, remains in the ground, and is the property of the owner of the land—Hudson Post.

We are all curious—and it is surprising how curious we are—to know the way other people live, especially well-known people. For several months we have been treated to glimpses into "Some Homes Under the Administration," in Washington, in a fine series of beautifully illustrated articles in Demorest's Family Magazine. In the August Number (just arrived), Postmaster General Wanamaker's mansion is thrown open to us, and we are charmed with its beauties.

The Orangeman's celebration, at Tecumseh, Saturday, was one of the largest and most orderly affairs that village has seen in many years. A large number of people attended from this city, and a delegation of 250 came down from Detroit. The balloon ascension by Prof. Granger was a great sight, the balloon going fully 3 thousand feet into the air, from which height the Professor made an elegant drop with the chute, landing safely, and never losing his feet when he alighted. The ascension was visible with a strong glass from high buildings in this city.—Adrian Times.

The Detroit News, in speaking of University medical graduates says: Miss Mary Elizabeth Newcomb is a resident of Blissfield, Lenawee County and has studied for her chosen profession for three years. Before entering the University Miss Newcomb studied at Painesville, O, for three years, and afterwards taught for six years. Her plans have not yet become settled, but she will surely locate in the West, and being a star, of the class as well as the daughter of a physician, it is not difficult to see a brilliant future before her. Her father was the late Dr. Newcomb, of Lenawee, who was a member of the Legislature and one of the best men of his day.

THE RACES LAST WEEK.

The matched race between Banker and Gov. Hayes which was advertised to come off last Thursday did not materalize, owing to the lameness of Gov. Hayes, and he was withdrawn by his owner, Marshal T. R. Kyle. The crowd that was attracted with the expectation of seeing this race, were not doomed to disappointment however, as the remainder of the program was carried out, which lasted until nearly sunset. There was a large crowd in attendance and they seemed to be well satisfied with the exhibition as it was given.

Banker put in an appearance promptly on time and trotted two exhibition heats, one with Caprice and one alone. On the last heat he beat his own record by 8 seconds, making the one mile in 2-30¾.

The farmers' race was then called, best three in five. There were three entries. Alden Rundell of Franklin named Hamlet B.; C. T. Geddes of Adrian, Jack; Will Bennett of Tecumseh, Glencoe Prince. Jack won the first heat in 2-54, Glencoe the second in 2 50¾; Glencoe the third in 2-41. Glencoe the fourth in 2-44, thus winning the race, which carried a cooler as first prize. Hamlet B. took second prize.

In the free for all race, best two in three, there were three entries; Texas Jim by Jas. Harmon of Saline; Ruby by C. T. Geddes of Adrian; McIntosh by Fred Teachout of Brooklyn. This was close and exciting and much relished by the spectators. McIntosh won in three straight heats. Time 2 40; 2-42; 2 37. Ruby took the second prize.

In the two year old race C. D. Bills and Dell Cairns entered their colts and a nice evenly matched race resulted. Best two in three. Bills took the first and third heats in 1-33½ and 1 34, and Cairns the second in 1-31, thus giving Bills the first prize.

There were but two entries in the running race, best two in three, Curtis' Little Kate and Auten's mare. The two first heats were both won by Little Kate.

John R. Hialey, Ab Simmons and John Gibson presided at the Judges stand and filled their position to the satisfaction of all. This town ought to furnish just as good a trotting matinee once a month during the season.

Buy A Buckeye.

Thos. R. Kyle has received the Agency for this vicinity of the Buckeye Harvesting Machinery. The Buckeye light mower has been a standard article of farm machinery for over a third of a century. It is the most perfect mower ever sold in this country. It has remained unchanged in its mechanism for thirty-three years, and no mower of late years has ever surpassed it. The Buckeye Binder is the lightest, strongest and most durable. Dynamometer tests always prove it to be the lighest draft binder ever made. Its knotter is adapted to the use of all kinds of twine, and it never fails to tie. Farmers wishing to buy a new mower or binder should examine these machines.

As there is no royal road to learning so there is no magical cure for disease. The effect, however, of taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla for blood disorders comes as near magic as can be expected of any mere human agency. This is due to its purity and strength.

CAMP CAPTURED

The Sultan's Troops and Slaves

Terribly Slaughtered and Butchered.

Fifteen Prisoners Burned Alive at the Stake.

1,000 Buildings Fired in Constantinople.

BALKAN SITUATION SO GRAVE AS TO HASTEN WILLIAM HOME.

An Increased Trouble With France Another Cause—The Coming Interviews Between the Emperor and Czar Will Govern the Future—Petition for American Pork—Panic Subsiding in Buenos Ayres.

TANGIER, July 14.—News has been received here of a raid by the Zemmeur tribe on the camp of the Sultan's son near Salee. The camp was taken completely by surprise. The troops and slaves were mercilessly slaughtered by the raiders, and fifteen prisoners were burned alive.

The Sultan's son is furious and has sent to his father for reinforcements and threatens to retaliate and exterminate this wild, warlike tribe if it costs a general war with all the tribes of the interior. It is believed the Sultan will now wake up to the dangers menacing him from these unconquered enemies and move with swiftness to conquer them.

A Dark Italian View.

BERLIN, July 14.—The Berlin Tageblatt has a telegram from Rome which purports to give information drawn from Prime Minister Crispi. In this it is asserted that the Czar's advisers, considering the time opportune, insist upon war. The chiefs of the dreibund, the telegram adds, will make united efforts to maintain peace. They have the gravest and most urgent reasons for preparing for eventualists. M. DeGiers, the Russian Minister of Foreign Affairs, is now making a tour of Finland. He will return to St. Petersburg to assist in the Imperial interviews. Count Schouvaloff, the Russian Ambassador to Germany, will leave here for St. Petersburg at the end of the month for the same purpose. The exact date of these momentous interviews has not yet been fixed, but they will probably begin on August 17.

FACING THE DANGER.

Emperor William, on arriving at Fide, on the Faa Fiord, on Thursday, sent a dispatch to Chancellor Von Caprivi announcing his intention to shorten his voyage and return to Kiel on July 21. The gravity of the situation in the Balkans and the increased prospect of trouble with France over the English agreement, make necessary the Emperor's presence, and keeps both the Chancellor and Minister Miguel from taking a holiday. The other ministers—Herren von Bericpsch, von Boetticher, von Gossler and Herrfurth—are absent from Berlin, but they have been warned not to arrange for a prolonged leave.

GEN. GEORGE LEO VON CAPRIVI, THE SUCCESSOR OF PRINCE BISMARCK.

NO IMMEDINTE OUTBREAK EXPECTED.

Although the prospects of a permanent peace in Europe begin to appear doubtful, official confidence remains strong in the continuance of repose for some time to come. Even the probable abdication of Prince Ferdinand, with a sequent revolution in Bulgaria, will not be allowed to involve an immediate European war. The maintenance of peace, according to the official view, is certain until after the conference between Emperor William and the czar of St. Petersburg, where the resources of diplomacy will be exhausted in a final effort to harmonize Austrian and Russian relations in the Balkans Peninsula.

RUSSIAN PAPERS HOPEFUL.

The Russian newspapers, the Novoe Vremya, the Novosti and the Viedomosti, concur in the hopeful view that Emperor William, freed from the tutelage of Prince Bismarck, will succeed in his efforts to effect an amicable arrangement with the czar. Official opinion here, based on the known fact that Emperor William has definite proposals to lay before the czar, is also hopeful. The czar has as yet given no sign of how he will receive them.

WANT AMERICAN PORK.

Mr. Phelps, the American minister, has received from Hamburg a copy of a petition which has been sent to Chancellor von Caprivi, and which bears the signatures of various steamship companies and leading firms and corporations. The petitioners ask for the rescinding of the prohibition against American pork. The price of pork has risen so enormously that poor people can not buy it. The wholesale price of German salted bacon is 130 marks per 130 kilograms, while American bacon can pay a duty and be sold at 85 marks. Pork imported from neighboring states, although bringing high prices, is not as good as the American article. When the prohibition was enacted there was no official examination of pork in America, whereas, the United States government is now ready to make whatever inspection Germany may ask. When American pork has been allowed to enter the country no case of illness has ever been traced to its use. If the American inspection should be insufficient there could be one made in Germany as well. The petition concludes by asking that the importation of American pork be allowed in the interests of the working classes, and of the commerce and shipping of Germany.

W. W. PHELPS.

A NEW SOURCE OF TROUBLE.

A fresh difficulty has arisen in France over the fifth article of the convention, which affirms the reciprocal regime of Germany and England within the territories between the Benu River and Lake Tchad. The article did not appear in the first published draft of the convention and since the official text has been issued the French government has discovered that the article is an interference with the French claim to the Upper Niger, besides leading to the future extension of the Anglo-German spheres of influence from the Niger to the Nile. If M. Eibot continues to make the recognition of the French claims in the Niger district the condition of the withdrawal of his opposition to the Zanzibar protectorate, an amicable settlement is improbable.

BISMARCK EXCITES OFFICIAL RESENTMENT.

The official feeling against Prince Bismarck has been heightened since the report of an interview with him appeared in the Frankfort Journal. Even his friends admit that he has been indiscreet in his revelation of knowledge obtained by him while in office. His statements that the emperor's labor programme as originally sketched was much more extravagant than as issued, and that his majesty supposed that the programme would tell at the elections, have incensed Chancellor Von Caprivi and the other ministers, and it is considered certain that the statements will lead to energetic remonstrances on the return of Emperor William.

The refusal of the ex-chancellor to accept the candidatures offered him for a seat in the Reichstag is now known to be due to his desire to obtain a seat in the Bundesrath as a representative of a minor state, with a free hand to operate in the Reichstag.

The attack of asthma from which Baron Wissmann is suffering is assuming a more aggravated form.

Grant Conflagration in Constantinople.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 14.—A great fire is now raging in the Stamboul quarter of this city. The conflagration began in a timber yard, and the flames, fanned by a strong wind, spread rapidly to the adjoining property. Fully one thousand houses and shops have already been destroyed.

Not Confirmed.

LONDON, July 14.—News has been received that the French steamer Henri IV from St. Pierre for Havre, has stranded and sunk near Croisie.

THE CHICAGO EXPLOSION.

The Killed, Wounded and Property Destroyed.

CHICAGO, July 14.—The loss of human life caused by the explosion of kerosene vapors in the hold of the steamship Tioga, is as yet an unknown quantity. Just how many were killed may never be accurately learned. A list of the laborers who were on the vessel at the time of the explosion in possession of the affairs, is admitted to be inaccurate. Besides, many may have been blown into the river from the adjacent docks. In the morning the best information obtainable placed the number of the dead, injured and missing at forty-five. Of this number four bodies have been recovered and identified; eight rescued and taken to the hospital in a critical condition; the remainder are still missing.

Work of removing the debris and pumping water out of the boat is going on, and it is probable by night that a more accurate estimate can be made. The vessel's damage is placed at about $35,000.

Another Disaster.

CHICAGO, July 14.—When the work of pumping out the wrecked propeller Tioga had been almost finished last evening another explosion, much less violent than the one of last night, occurred. No one was hurt and not much damage was done, but the propeller again caught fire and in their efforts to quench it the firemen were again compelled to flood the hold with water, thereby undoing all the work accomplished. The explosion was no doubt caused by the accumulation of kerosene vapor in the hold. The work of recovering the bodies was going on when the explosion occurred. Six, in addition to the seven already lying in the morgue, were found today. It is believed that three or four more still remain in the hold, but the explosion will delay their recovery at least twenty-four hours.

THIEVES' HARVEST

At the Stanley Wedding—The Light Fingered Gentry did Well.

LONDON, July 14.—The number of thieves arrested while plying their trade in the crowds attracted to the vicinity of Westminster Abbey by the marriage of Mr. Stanley, leads the police to believe that the light-fingered gentry of various continental capitals made a descent upon London in force during the last week. Many of those arrested are French and Germans, and unable, or at least pretend to be, to speak English. Hundreds of persons who were in the crowds have reported the loss of valuables to the different police stations, but thus far very little of the missing property has been recovered.

A Bartender in Hoc.

DALLAS, TEX., July 14.—Anky Temple, a bartender at Fort Worth, was brought here by United States Marshal Knight on suspicion of being connected with the train robbery at Pryor's Creek, in the Indian Territory, last November. He had an examining trial before Commissioner Ledrum, at which he made a statement, under oath, that he was one of the parties concerned in the robbery. The other was a man named Mitchell, alias West, who is known to the authorities to be Turlington, now under arrest at Booneville, Missouri, for the murder of a sheriff. Temple says that he and his partner secured three revolvers each by robbing a store at Dennison, and they proceeded to Pryor's creek, and held up the train.

B. & O. Road Discharging its Shop Men.

NEWARK, O., July 14.—Supt. Edward Dickson, of the Baltimore & Ohio lines west of the river, discharged eighty-nine men from the shops here. The shops at Caldwell were closed indefinitely and 150 men taken off at Bellaire.

A Suspicious Robbery.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 14.—Mrs. Paran Stevens' jewels have been recovered. There is no doubt about her being robbed, but beyond this mere fact the police are utterly in the dark.

GENERAL FREMONT DEAD.

The Great "Pathfinder" and Gallant Soldier Passes Away to the Grand Army Above.

NEW YORK, July 14.—General John C. Fremont is dead.

John Charles Fremont, explorer, statesman and soldier was born in Savannah, Georgia, January 21, 1813, and was the only son of a Frenchman who had settled in Norfolk, Virginia, where he supported himself by teaching his native language. Young Fremont became a mathematician, was professor in the navy and afterwards a distinguished engineer and explorer in the far west. He was lieutenant-colonel in the Mexican war, settled in California, and became United States senator. Was the Republican candidate for president in 1856 and a gallant officer—major-general in the Union army.

MUNICIPAL WARFARE.

Two Rival Mayors in Southern Texas Array Their Factions.

ELPASO, TEX., July 14.—The following particulars in regard to the battle between the rival mayors of Yaleta and their adherents have been received here: The sheriff of Elpaso reached Yaleta early in the morning and succeeded in stopping the battle by persuading the forces of Mayor Alderette to withdraw. The party, headed by Caal, who resisted arrest, is in his house, which the sheriff has surrounded. It is now believed that there were but three men killed instead of six, as at first reported. It is learned that the trouble originated in this way: Benigo Alderette, as mayor of Ysleta, has charge of the Acequia, and had a couple of men cleaning it out when Gaal sent a posse of armed men to drive Alderette's men from the work. Gaal claimed that he was mayor, and put his own men to work, and refused to discontinue when ordered by Alderette so to do. The mayor then secured a warrant for the arrest of Gaal, to place him under a peace bond, and deter him from further interference with the Acequia. Gaal summoned his armed forces around him and refused to be arrested, and the fight followed.

Fifth race, mile heats, first heat, Wary won, Lottie S. second, others distanced. Time 1:53¾. Second heat, Wary won, Lottie S. second. Time 1:56¾.

WILL CHANGE THE RULES

In Order to Defeat an Attempt to Filibuster.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—The committee appointed by the senatorial Republican caucus held a meeting Saturday and it is understood will probably recommend a change in the rules of the Senate so as to enable the majority vote to order the "previous question" on the passage of any bill. After its adoption each senator will have a right to speak five minutes,

WANT A CONSTITUTION.

Freedom Steps Half-Way Across the Pacific.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 14.—According to advices by the steamer Australia, which has just arrived from Honolulu. Representative Kalua gave notice in the legislature on June 20 of an intention to introduce an act authorizing the king to call a convention to frame a new constitution.

Wants Another Go.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 14.—Jim Connors wants another "go" at Ike Weir. Connors is not satisfied with the result of the recent battle; is much chagrined at the summary way in which he was knocked out, and is confident that in another fight he would give Weir the worst of it. Before leaving for New York Connors said that if there is a possibility of getting on another match with Weir he wants it arranged. When he went into fight with Weir, he said he felt confident of defeating him. He intended to make a waiting battle of it for the first six or seven rounds, and then go in for business.

He Was a Partner of W. F. Storey.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH., July 14.—Ananias Worden, a prominent citizen of Cannon township, Kent county, committed suicide yesterday by shooting. During the war he was a partner of Wilbur F. Storey, of the Chicago Times, and was the younger brother of Commodore John L. Worden, of Kearsage fame. Financial reverses brought on a fit of despondency. Mr. Worden was 70 years of age, a widower, and leaves no children.

THE DARTMOUTH HORROR.

All the Bodies Recovered—Another Victim Dies.

HALIFAX, N. S., July 14.—The search for the bodies at the scene of last night's accident has ceased, no more having been discovered, and it being believed that there are no others to recover. Edward Foster, who was taken out alive, and whose daughter was among the drowned, has since died.

Looks Bad for Rouse.

WESTBORO, MASS., July 14.—Frank Martin, Jr., a young farmer, was fatally shot in a swamp, where he and his hired man, John C. Rouse, had gone with some barrels of swill. Rouse says that they found a party of a half dozen men in the swamp drinking beer, and that after some words one of the party shot Martin. Both started to run, and Rouse says he fainted. When he recovered he found Martin against the fence with a bullet in his back. Martin gained consciousness about three o'clock, and denies Rouse's story. He says the cause of the shooting was without provocation. Mr. Rouser has been arrested.

A New Cattle Disease.

HALIFAX, N. S., July 14.—Advices from Antigonish county report the prevalence of a peculiar kind of cattle disease. In its first stage it is mild; in its second stage, it is malignant, and in its last stage its victims get wild, rush to the shore and in many instances drown themselves.

A Fortunate Woman.

Mrs. Mary L. Baker, of Ovid, Mich., has reason to be very thankful. She was a great sufferer from heart disease for years. Was short of breath, had hungry spells, pain in side, fluttering, faint ness, etc. After taking two bottles of Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, she says, "I am better than for 10 years. My mind and eyesight have improved wonderfully. I advise all persons thus afflicted to use this great remedy. Baker & Hall, druggists recommend and guarantee it. DODD'S CATARRH CURE.

LOCAL AND INTERNAL TREATMENT.

In order to cure catarrh it is necessarry to allay the inflammation of the irritated membranes with a soothing application, cleanse the head of the plugging mucous secretions, and heal the discharging ulcers. For cold in the head and nasal catarrh Dodds' local treatment does this without the aid of snuff, douches or fumes. If the disease has extended downwards affecting the bronchial tubes or lungs, digestion and blood, the internal treatment both removes from the system the scattered poison, and by its building-up properties assists nature in restoring the impaired parts. Send for our book treating on catarrh. FOSTER, MILBURN & CO., proprietors, Buffalo, N. Y. Sold in Tecumseh, Mich. by C. A. Wright & Co., druggists.

MORTGAGE SALE.

WHEREAS, default has been made in the payment of a certain indenture of mortgage, bearing date the 16th day of January, A. D. 1884, made and executed by Jeremiah M. Burleson and Julia E. Burleson, his wife, of the first part, to Enoch G. Cook, of Tecumseh, Michigan, of the second part, which mortgage was on the 17th day of January, A. D., 1884, duly recorded in the office of Register of Deeds for the county of Lenawee, Michigan, in Liber 109 of Mortgages, on page 591, and which said mortgage was afterwards on the 27th day of May, A. D. 1888, duly assigned by the said Enoch G. Cook to Seneca Bartlett, which deed of assignment was on the 30th day of January, A. D., 1890, duly recorded in the office of Register of Deeds for Lenawee county aforesaid, in Liber 118 of Mortgages, on page 689; by which default the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become operative. And whereas there is at this date claimed to be due and unpaid, as principal and interest on the said mortgage, the sum of One Thousand Seven Hundred and Eighty and 8-100 Dollars ($1780.08) and no proceedings have been instituted at law or in equity to collect the same. Notice is therefore hereby given that, by virtue of said power of sale, and the statutes of the State of Michigan, in such case made and provided, for the purpose of realizing the money now, as aforesaid, due and owing on said mortgage, together with interest thereon, and the costs and charges of this foreclosure, including an attorney fee of Thirty-five Dollars, as provided by law and stipulated for in said mortgage, I shall on the 29th day of July, A.D. 1890, at nine o'clock in the forenoon of that day, at the east front door of the court house in the city of Adrian, in said county of Lenawee, (that being the place where the circuit court for said county is holden) sell at public vendue to the highest bidder, all those parcels of land situate in the township of Macon, in the county of Lenawee and state of Michigan, known and described as follows, to wit: The east half of the northwest quarter of section five (5) town five (5) south, of range five (5) east. Also all that part of the east half of the southwest quarter of said section five (5), town five (5) south, of range five (5) east, bounded as follows: Beginning at the intersection of the Tecumseh and Saline road, so called, with the east line of the southwest quarter of said section five (5); thence running southwesterly in center of said road six (6) rods and twelve (12) links; thence north parallel with east line of said southwest quarter of section five (5) to the north line of said southwest quarter of section five (5); thence east to northeast corner of said southwest quarter of section five (5), thence south to the place of beginning, containing eighty-one acres of land, more or less.

Dated April 21, 1890.

MOSES BARTLETT, Assignee of Mortgage.

S. C. STACY, Att'y for Assignee. apr24

MORTGAGE SALE.—Default of payment having been made of a mortgage made by Marion F. Mason and Elizabeth J. Mason to Ellhu L. Clark, dated the Thirteenth day of November, A. D. 1877, and recorded in the office of Register of Deeds for Lenawee county, Michigan, in Liber 90 of Mortgages, on page 81, on the 19th day of November, 1877, and which mortgage was by instrument in writing, dated the Seventeenth day of November, 1883, assigned by Isabella T. Clark as executrix and residuary legatee of the last will and Testament of said Ellhu L. Clark, deceased, to the undersigned Bronson C. Knapp, and said assignment was duly recorded on the 17th day of November, A. D. 1883, in said Register of Deeds office, in liber 101, of mortgages on page 548, upon which mortgage there remains due and unpaid at the date of this notice the sum of Seven Hundred Sixty-eight and 46-100 Dollars. And no proceedings at law or in equity have been taken for the collection thereof.

Notice is therefore hereby given that by virtue of the power and provisions in said mortgage contained, and of the statutes of the State of Michigan in such case made and provided, for the purpose of realizing the moneys above mentioned and interest thereon at 7 per cent. per annum from the date of this notice, and costs of this foreclosure and sale, including also an attorney fee as provided by law, I shall on the 7th day of July A. D. 1890, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of said day, sell at public vendue to the highest bidder, at the front door of the Court House in the City of Adrian, Lenawee County and State of Michigan, (that being the building in which the Circuit Court for the County of Lenawee is holden) all that parcel of land situate in the village of Springville, in the County of Lenawee, and state of Michigan, and described as follows, to-wit: Village lot Number Five (5), being situate on and a part of the Southwest quarter of the Southwest quarter of Section Fourteen (14) of Town Five (5) south of Range Two (2) East, containing about Three-fourths of an acre of land.

Dated April 10, 1890.

BRONSON C. KNAPP, Assignee.

CHARLES BURRIDGE, Atty for Assignee.

ADMINISTRATOR'S SALE.

STATE of Michigan, County of Lenawee, ss.—In the matter of the estate of Hugh Heaney, deceased.

Notice is hereby given that in pursuance of an order, granted to the undersigned, Administrator of the estate of said Hugh Heaney, deceased, by the Hon. Judge of Probate for the county of Lenawee, on the 9th day of June, A. D. 189, there will be sold at public vendue to the highest bidder at the dwelling house on the hereinafter described land in the township of Clinton, in the county of Lenawee, in said State, on Saturday, the 26th day of July, A. D. 1890, at 1 o'clock in the afternoon of that day (subject to all encumbrances by mortgage or otherwise existing at the time of the death of said deceased, or at the time of this sale, and also subject to the right of dower and the homestead rights of the widow of John Heaney, deceased, therein) the following described real estate, to wit:

ANCIENT OF DAYS.

THE EARLIEST ANIMALS THAT WERE DOMESTICATED BY MAN.

What Cultivation by Man Has Accomplished for the Brute Creation—The Finest Specimens of Domestic Animals in the World—A Grand Exhibition That Everybody Should See.

Among the earliest of domesticated animals are the ox, sheep and swine. Most people suppose these animals to have been servants of man from time immemorial. They have read of the sacred cattle of ancient Egypt, where the bull was one of the chief sacred symbols of deity, far back in the days of the earliest pyramid builders. They have read of the oxen of Greece and Rome, and how the Roman senate voted to brave Horatius from the public corn lands, as a reward for his heroic defense of the bridge over the Tiber, "as much as two strong oxen could plow from morn till night." And they have read in the early books of the Bible how Moses commanded that "thou shalt not muzzle the ox that treadeth out the corn," and of how the ox and the ass were unequally yoked together.

Everybody knows, too, that the sheep is FAMILIAR IN THE EARLIEST BIBLE RECORDS.

Abel tended his flocks and sacrificed a lamb before he was slain by his brother Cain. When Abraham went to sacrifice his son, he saw a ram caught by the horns in a thicket. "Jake played his father-in-law for a sucker in the increase of the flocks story," as the irreverent commercial traveler stated it when he was unexpectedly called upon to address a Sunday school.

The history of the hog is not so familiar. But the fact that the law of Moses prohibited the eating of pork by the Israelities is proof that the hog was a common article of food amid surrounding nations. Homer describes Ulyses as eating pork, and names one of his most faithful friends as a hog drover or keeper, away back in the earliest dawn of Greek nationality. The hog, as a domestic animal, is mentioned in other bibles of other religions, older than those of the Hebrews.

But these most ancient writings and traditions are only tales of yesterday,

SO IMMENSELY OLD IS THE HUMAN RACE.

In the records of science, as in the eye of deity, ten thousand years are but as a day, and a thousand years as an hour that is past. Geologists and biologists have found indisputable proofs that these animals were hunted and eaten by man for ages before they were domesticated. The charred, broken and gnawed bones of roasts from the horse, the ox, the hog and the sheep are found in caves and holes inhabited by prehistoric man in all countries, alike in those where civilization first dawned as in those where it appeared centuries on centuries later. Remains found where there were evidently prehistoric villages nobody knows how long before man began to become civilized—so long ago that their sites are now dug from beneath the everlasting hills, or are pierced by the well borer in the Egyptian desert 60 to 100 feet below the present level of the sand—show that man hunted and ate these animals in fact before the great ice age sent its gigantic glaciers over Europe and America to plow out the present shape of the continents and create the world as we now know it, while yet the great desert of Sahara was a foaming sea, and possibly while yet the horse, the ox, the hog and the sheep had three toes on each foot!

IN THE DAYS OF THE MASTODON AND MAMMOTH,

It is a fact also that, even down to this day, these animals are hunted and eaten in their wild state, and are not yet domesticated by the most primitive savage races. And until quite a recent date they were so treated nearly all over Europe. During the early Roman empire, and even up to past the time of Julius Cæsar, wild horses were hunted and eaten in parts of northern Europe. Wild hogs are even yet hunted in Europe, the wild boar being the noblest prey of the sportsman. The wild ox, down to a period later than the days of Wallace and Bruce, was the fiercest and most dangerous game of Scotland. The wild sheep, where it still lingers, is exceedingly shy, cunning and swift, and a desperate fighter upon occasion, quite different from the familiar type of innocence of our farms. It haunts the upland plains and inaccessible mountains, and braves the fiercest extremes of climate with wonderful hardihood and self-reliant energy.

HOW DIFFERENT YET HOW LIKE

are these wild animals and their tame descendants. Domestication has made them mild and tractable in disposition, and added to their strength and size. Yet, after thousands of years of cultivation by man, it is a curious fact that the animals have not changed in type, but have actually approached still nearer the true type of each. Place the wild horse, ox, sheep and swine beside their tame brethren, and how unmistakably they are the same animals. The best tame specimen is beyond question nearer the true type intended by nature than the best wild one. This is not so strange, after all. Man has bred the horse all these centuries not to change him to something else, but to make him still more perfectly a horse. Hence he is a more perfect horse, and nearer what may be deemed nature's ideal horse, of which her wild horse is only the prophecy. And so, also, of the domestic ox, sheep and swine, the nearest to the perfect figure is found in the tame and not in the wild.

Would you see the best types of these animals that can be found in the world—see great numbers of the very choicest and costliest specimens of every breed and variety, from down to the smallest and most beautiful pet of the race—see and study them singly and in groups and masses, in great parades and processions and in small family exhibitions—the best place and time you will ever have in your life time are at the great Detroit International Fair and Exposition, Aug. 26 to Sept. 5, which will be the greatest stock show ever held in America. It will also be the greatest dog show, and the greatest poultry, pigeon and bird show. Not only is there beauty in these things, but there is more money in breeding fine stock and fine poultry, and even in pigeons and fancy birds than in perhaps any other things that farmers can take up as an addition to their business. And there will be a world of pleasures, shows, spectacles, concerts, races, sports and games, magnificent fire works nightly, and all the delights of a great city and a grand Exposition. Don't miss it.

GRANDMOTHER'S KITCHEN

WONDERFUL THINGS THAT INVENTION HAS DONE FOR OUR HOMES.

How Art and Science Have Elevated and Softened the Lives of Women—The Luxuries, Elegancies and Comforts of Modern Life—Where to See All These Beautiful and Useful Things.

Much as invention and progress in manufactures have done for man, it is probable that they have done still more for woman within the last fifty years. Although the inventions for the household and for woman have not been great ones, except the sewing machine, and therefore are not comparable to the telegraph, telephone, thrashing and mowing machines, phonograph, typewriter, electric lights, and other wonderful inventions that have revolutionized modern life and business for man; yet the host of comparatively lesser inventions and improvements in woman's household realm have really ameliorated her life and elevated the condition of society more than the grander achievements of science.

It was only about fifty years ago that the blessed genius of invention first turned its serious attention to improving woman's utensils and inventing new comforts and labor saving devices for household use. But in that period what an enormous advance! The invention of the sewing machine was one of the early great advances that has caused an immense progress in elevating woman from the position of an overworked household drudge; but the lesser inventions have done still more.

ASK YOUR GRANDMOTHER

to describe minutely her kitchen and her household furnishings of sixty years ago. Possibly you remember how grandma's pies, or cookies, or doughnuts were the delights of your childhood. But now, taking a calm business view of it, with your wife's assistance, you will be astonished to think how grandma managed to keep house at all, much more to cook anything beyond the barest necessities, with her meagerly furnished kitchen, pantry and house.

Your grandmother had no stove, nor any of the convenient pans, pots, kettles, and other furnishings that go with a stove. Just think of that as a starter—cooking and keeping house without any stove! Your grandmother had no roller process nor any other process fine flour. The poorest and coarsest grade of flour you can possibly find anywhere now is better than the best flour your grandmother had. Your grandmother had no good sugar. She used a quality like our cheapest brown sugar—such as your wife probably never uses, and wouldn't have in the house. Sometimes, "for company," grandma brought out "loaf sugar," white but "harder'n a rock," and before it could be used even in chunks for tea or coffee. And a large part of your grandmother's "sweet'nin'" in cooking was done with black Orleans molasses.

But we can best tell what your grandmother didn't have by hearing what she did have. Your grandmother's kitchen was furnished with a big brick or stone fire-place, where she burned cordwood three to six feet long. She had a frying-pan with a handle five feet long; a skillet with a similar long handle; two or three pots to hang over the fire on hooks hung on the iron crane in the chimney; an iron tea-kettle with legs, to either hang on the crane or set on the coals; a big iron bake-kettle with a thick iron cover like a saucer—(it was set amid the coals to bake, and coals were also piled upon the saucer shaped cover); and a tin bake oven, fixed to sit on its long legs over coals, with a sloping roof that reflected the heat from the fire down on top of the bread or biscuit baking.

YOUR GRANDMOTHER HAD NO WASHBOILER.

She boiled her clothes in a big iron or brass kettle hung over the fire. She had no soap except she made it herself, either for washing or toilet. She couldn't send to the grocer, as you do, and take her choice of a dozen different kinds of soap.

Your grandmother not only did all the family sewing and knitting by hand (sewing and knitting machines were then undreamed of), but she actually had to make the cloth of wool and linen, and her yarns, with her own loom and spining-wheel, and dye them, and cut and make underwear for the whole family, both male and female.

The furniture in your grandmother's house was scanty, though the best might be solid mahogany. She had no piano. Your grandmother had not more than one carpet, unless it was home-made; so she had no use for a carpet sweeper, had there been any such thing in her days. So barren, so hard, so poverty-stricken, we should consider the conditions of her life. But grandmother got on pretty happily, after all, and managed to train up

BRAVE SONS AND CHASTE DAUGHTERS.

Both were bred to live useful and industrious lives.

If the wives and daughters, as well as the fathers and sons of the present day, want to appreciate the comforts and luxuries of modern homes, let them, bearing in mind the scantiness that grandmother endured, visit the Detroit International Fair and Exposition, Aug. 26 to Sept. 5, inclusive, and see the rich and immense collection of goods, wares, inventions, tools, utensils, machines, and the thousand useful, elegant, and toil-saving articles for the family and household that will there be exhibited, all of the latest styles and best makers. From the richest jewels, en broidery, laces, furs, and the latest styles of bonnets, hats, robes, silks, velvets and all dress goods for both men and women, to all the finest furniture and furnishing of a modern home—all the latest and handsomest stoves for heating and cooking, from the elegant and artistic art tile stove through all grades to the latest and best nickel-plated kitchen range; from all machines and inventions, through the finest sewing and knitting machines, meat choppers, cherry stoners, fruit-jarers, raisin seeders, down to the smallest of the thousand ingenious devices and inventions; all the most elegant and artistic pottery and glassware; all the richest silver and gold plate; mantels, hearths, beautiful carpets, and all sorts of floor coverings; curtains and draperies; pianos and all musical goods; that render home pleasant, elegant or comfortable, and that have so elevated and softened the condition of wives and mothers by lightening and lessening their formerly incessant toil—all that delight the eye, please or cultivate the taste, and fit the length of every family purse from the poorest to the richest, will be exhibited in abundance at this great exposition.

ALL THE SUBSTANTIALS AND ALL THE LUXURIES

Meanwhile all machines and inventions for the farm and the shop, to lighten the toil and increase the profit of the labor of men will also be on exhibition, mingled with the delights of grand concerts, beautiful and thrilling spectacles, processions, displays, races, games, balloon ascensions, regattas, immense animal and stock shows, and a ten days' round full of profit, education and pleasure.

TAKING UP THE CROSS.

LESSON III, THIRD QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, JULY 20.

Text of the Lesson, Luke xiv, 25-35. Commit. Verses, 27-30—Golden Text, Luke xiv, 27—Commentary by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Compiled from Lesson Helper Quarterly by permission of H. S. Hoffman, publisher, Philadelphia.]

25. "And there went great multitudes with Him." Such a teacher and worker of miracles would naturally have a great following; some from curiosity, some because of the loaves and fishes, some because of His miracles of healing, some because they really enjoyed His teaching even if they did not put it in practice; but O how few followed Him as true disciples, accepting Him as Israel's Messiah and joining themselves to Him for life or death till the Kingdom come. Even of those who professed to be His disciples we read that after a certain discourse "many of His disciples went back, and walked no more with Him" (John vi, 66). And of the twelve chosen out of all the rest, one possessed by the devil sold Him for thirty pieces of silver, and in the time of His sore trial all forsook Him and fled (Matt. xxvi, 15, 56). Knowing the hearts of all men, and reading easily the inward purpose of every one of this great multitude, He turned and said unto them:

26. "If any man come to me, and hate not his father, and mother, and wife, and children, and brethren and sisters, yea, and his own life also, he cannot be my disciple." It was written in the law that if any one hated his neighbor unto death the cities of refuge were to give no refuge to him (Deut. xix, 11-13); and the Spirit through John writes that "Whosoever hateth his brother is a murderer;" and that "If a man say, I love God, and hateth his brother, he is a liar" (I John iii, 15; iv, 20). Yet here are the Lord's own words to the effect that we cannot be His disciples unless we hate even father and mother, wife and children. The explanation is found in the fact that the word "hate" is sometimes used to signify "loving less." It is written that Jacob loved Rachel more than Leah (Gen. xxix, 30), and in the very next verse this is called hating Leah.

27. "And whosoever doth not bear his cross and come after me, cannot be my disciple." The cross of Christ was that cruel instrument of death on which He died when he bore our sins and made peace for us (I Pet. ii, 24; Col. i, 20). Paul said that by it the world was crucified to him and he to the world (Gal. vi, 14). And on the four different occasions on which Jesus gave utterance to this saying (Matt. x, 38; xvi, 24; Mark x, 21; Luke xiv, 27), He seems to mean nothing less than death to all that is against Him. "We who live (i. e., true believers) are alway delivered unto death for Jesus' sake, that the life also of Jesus might be made manifest in our mortal flesh" (II Cor. iv, 11). We are so selfish and unchristlike that we are apt to think every little trial a cross, and too often complain about our crosses.

28-30. "This man began to build, and was not able to finish." Such might be said of one who having laid the foundation was not able to complete the building, and therefore he might be made sport of for not counting the cost beforehand. Christ is not of this world, and His Kingdom is not of this world, therefore those who identify themselves with Him should consider well beforehand what it may possibly mean to be "not of the world" (John xviii, 36; xvii, 14, 16). A Christian is one who is given to Christ "out of the world," and then sent back "into the world" to stand in Christ's name against the world while seeking to rescue as many as possible from it (John xvii, 6, 18). If one confesses Christ before men as his Saviour, and identifies himself with a body of Christians, then continues just as much mixed up with the world and worldly ways as before, such an one has evidently not counted the cost, nor understands what it is to be a disciple of Christ. The Christian life consists of self renunciation, separateness from a world lying in the wicked one, patient endurance of trial, patient continuance in well doing, and a determination to know nothing but Jesus Christ crucified, risen, ascended and returning.

31, 32. "Or what king going to make war against another king, sitteth not down first and consulteth whether he be able," etc. In the previous illustration the disciple was looked at as a builder and his life a building; here he is compared to a warrior and his life a warfare. Jesus Himself is the great builder, He is the true Zerubbabel whose hands both laid the foundation of the house and shall also finish it (Zech. iv, 9). He is also a man of war, captain of the host of the Lord (Ex. xv, 3; Josh. v, 14), and He has considered well the cost and the ability necessary to build His kingdom on this earth and overcome and cast out the enemy. He saw the consummation and the way to it before He ever left the Glory which He had with the Father before the world was; and for the joy set before Him, He endured the cross, despising the shame, and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God (Heb. xii, 2), where He ever liveth to make intercession for us (Heb. vii, 25), while we continue the daily warfare waiting with Him for the time when the kingdom shall be His and ours. We do well to remember that we have a great adversary, and that to contend successfully with him we need to put on the whole armor of God (Eph. vi, 11). If we would receive the crown of righteousness, we must war a good warfare and fight the good fight of faith, and the great inspiration is the joy before us at His appearing (I Tim. i, 18; vi, 12-16; II Tim, iv, 7, 8). It is interesting to notice that the service of the Levites in connection with the Tabernacle, taking it down, setting it up, transferring it from place to place, not when and where they pleased, but only as God pleased and directed, is called "the warfare of the service of the tabernacle" (Num. viii, 24, 25, margin.)

33. "So likewise, whosoever he be of you that forsaketh not all that he hath, he cannot be my disciple." All that one has is summed up in the relations mentioned in verse 26; the nearest and dearest earthly friends, and then our own selves, our very life. How can one possibly forsake, or as in the R. V. renounce, all these so as to hold and love them not as our chief good, but only as minor things in comparison of Him whose disciples we profess to be? How can we learn to say with Paul: "I count all things but loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus my Lord." In Paul's case it was brought about by a sight of the risen and ascended Jesus as his own personal Saviour, and as Israel's true Messiah to sit on David's throne and restore the kingdom to Israel at His Glorious appearing. This made Paul to live on earth as a citizen of Heaven, willing to bear anything in his body of humiliation while he waited for the glorious immortal body like unto Christ's (Phil. iii, 8, 20, 21). Paul was a master builder, and a master warrior; but in reference to his life and service, he says: "I live, yet not I, but Christ liveth in me;" and "I labored more abundantly than they all, yet not I, but the grace of God which was with me" (Gal. ii, 20; I Cor. xv, 10). Truly, he, like his great Master, renounced all that he had that he might glorify God. By the same grace of God we may do likewise if we will. A little light concerning the resurrection of the just, the marriage supper, and the Kingdom of God (vs. 14-16), will wonderfully draw us

AROUND THE COUNTY.

Peanut socials are the latest fad at Hudson.

The wheat crop is about all secured in this section and threshing has begun.

The Temple of Fame was presented by the Congregational church of Addison last Tuesday evening.

The libel suit of Thomas M. Hunter against the Messenger has dropped out of court, as the plaintiff failed to furnish the required security for costs.

It is rumored that editor Smith, of the Adrian Press, listened to Prohibition talk until noon on the Fourth and then went home sick.—Addison Courier.

Postmaster Humphrey, of Adrian, has removed letter carrier Hack, a crippled veteran, to make room for William Green. Hack is a democrat. Green is a republican. That's all there's to it.—Blissfield Advance.

Ex-sheriff Chas. Bidwell, of Tecumseh, traveling agent for the Davis binder, was in town yesterday. Says he knows nothing of the Tecumseh postoffice matter—hasn't, in fact, been home in three weeks.—Morenci Observer.

There is a gain in the census of Reading, so the Telephone says. We should think there would be, when four pairs of twins are credited to that township during the past year and girls of 13 get married.—Addison Courier.

The music at the Cong'l church is a much-appreciated part of Sunday worship in Hudson. The large number of singers are doing excellent work under Mrs. Smith's careful training, and the orchestral accompaniment is a delightful accession to the choir.—Hudson Gazette.

J. C. Wheeler, who contemplated starting a new paper in Clayton, has finally come to the conclusion, after running a job office there for a while, that the experience of others was about right, namely, that Clayton doesn't possess a journalistic goldmine for anybody.—Morenci Observer.

The House refused to concur in the Senate amendment to the silver bill, making it free coinage. Congressman Allen, by his negative vote, helped to defeat the measure. He will have to explain that vote to the farmers of his district, when he comes around to see them next fall.—Blissfield advance.

While R. A. Beach and family were celebrating on the Fourth, the horse worked open the barn door, went into the garden and ate up nearly all the vegetables. The loss is a severe one, inasmuch as said garden was a source of great pride to the proprietor, who expected to get money enough for an eastern trip out of the sale of the vegetables.—Hudson Post.

Two brutes, not fit to be called men, hired a horse of an Ann Arbor livery-man one day last week and so abused it by whipping and hard driving that the poor animal dropped exhausted upon reaching the stable, and is not expected to recover. A man who will thus abuse a poor dumb brute is devoid of a spark of humanity and no punishment is too severe.—Saline Observer.

After portraying the many virtues of Will Carleton, the Geneva correspondent of the Gazette adds the following: "But not alone to him belongs the pæan of of congratulation. To become even slightly acquainted with the gentle lady who walks life's pathway by his side—'Adora,—friend, comrade, lover, wife,'—is to cease to wonder at the successful work and triumphant career of 'Will Carleton.'"

Who stuffed that owl? Farmer Brant's choice chickens did, or rather the owl stuffed himself with thirteen of the farmer's fowls, on his place in Pittsford, a few nights ago. Mr. Brant brought the big-eyed biped into town and presented him to the boys at Boies' mill. His owlship occupies a lofty perch in the engine room, descending now and then to pluck out engineer Spencer's eyes. He has decorated Spence with two scars already—one on the forehead and another on the cheek.—Hudson Gazette.

The fore part of next week a company of Dundee nimrods and anglers expect to leave for Sutton's Bay, Leelanau county, to ply their vocation for a few weeks, in search of health and recreation. The party is expected to consist of B. J. Corbin, W. Clute, H. A. Wilkerson, H. G. Drew, H. A. Hershfield, M. B. Johnson, H. Ball, C. G. Kenyon, W. H. Egabroad, Geo. Gainsley, and possibly a few others. They will be joined the latter part of the week by M. J. Howe, Dr. R Schuyler and Daniel Howe. A new tent has been purchased in which to live.—Dundee Reporter.

George Miller was taking a traveling man to Tecumseh on Monday afternoon and when near Ed. Smith's farm house, south of Clinton, a strap broke, letting the tongue down, when the horses plunged and broke the tongue, tipping over the wagon and throwing the man to the ground, hurting his arm and shoulder. T. J. Farrell happened along soon after and kindly took the man to Tecumseh, where it was found that no bones were broken, although he was so badly bruised that he took the first train for his home in Saginaw.—Manchester Enterprise.

P. Chapman, an old resident of Seneca, met with a painful accident last Saturday afternoon, about 4 o'clock, it being especially unlucky in view of the busy farm work just now. He was drawing hay to the barn, and had nearly finished stowing away a load, when the hay fork, in dropping down, caught hold of the rack, unknown to him. His wife was attending to the horses, and by starting them ahead, as her husband directed, the rack was suddenly lifted out of place, throwing Mr. Chapman to the barn floor. The fall broke his left leg about half-way between the knee and hip.—Morenci Observer.

Congress' Forecast for this Week.

Civil Appropriation Bill to be Taken Up.

PROPOSED CHANGE OF RULES IN THE SENATE

To Hasten the Passage of the Federal Election Bill—Talk of Its Defeat Through Bolters—Republican Senatorial Caucus Tonight—The Original Package and Bankruptcy Bills in the House.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—There is only one thing certain about the programme of the Senate for the coming week, and that is that the sundry civil appropriation bill will be taken up, and if possible, disposed of. Before adjournment Saturday afternoon, the tariff bill was made the unfinished business of the Senate which makes it pretty certain that that measure will be taken up for discussion when the sundry civil bill is out of the way. But there is no certainty that the Democratic members of the Senate will permit the sundry civil bill to be put through within the week. It is generally recognized as a fact that the Democratic policy in the Senate is to be one of delay until it is determined that the federal elections bill is to go over the next session, or until that measure is passed.

The caucus of Republican senators to be held early in the week will come to a determination on the subject of a programme for senate action. When that programme is announced the Democrats will know how to govern their conduct hereafter. Until the Republicans come to a decision, however, the general belief is that the Democrats will keep the discussion of the sundry civil bill going. What the decision of the Republican caucus will be is a matter of much doubt. There is no doubt that a majority of the Republican senators who met in caucus Thursday night favor a change in the rules in the Senate under which debate can be limited, and subsequently the passage of the federal election bill. But the enemies of this proposition on the Republican side of the chamber claim that they can muster enough "bolters" to defeat the caucus' action with the assistance of the Democrats. Senate caucuses are never considered absolutely binding. They are rather advisory, although it is a bold member of the Senate who will repudiate a caucus' action. The Republican caucus will probably be held Monday night. It will determine the programme of the Senate.

The House this week will probably follow the programme determined on by the committee on rules for the week before—the disposal of the original package and bankruptcy bill. Mr. Payson's land grant forfeiture bill is well on its way to final disposition and he will hardly object to the consideration of the other bills as he did last week. While no definite programme has been determined on, it is safe to say that the bankruptcy and original package measures will have the right of way, with the contested election cases of Langston vs. Venable from the Fourth Virginia district and or Miller against Elliott from the Seventh district of South Carolina, as possibilities. The committee on the District of Columbia will have the floor on Monday for the further consideration of the Atkinson railroad bill.

London Federated Trade Unions.

LONDON, July 14.—An immense meeting of the Federated trades unions was held at which it was resolved to call a council embodying representatives of every branch of labor with a view to the formation of a General Board. This action was taken in consequence of failure of attempts of police and post-men to organize a general strike as well as the ill-success of several recent strikes which at the outset promised victory.

Dr. Livingston's Acquittal.

YANKTON, I. D., July 14,—The State Board of corrections and charities have announced the full exoneration of Dr. H. T. Livingston, superintendent of the Yankton Insane hospital, who was on trial charged with immorality. Dr. J. A. Potter, who has been hospital steward for ten years, resigned his position shortly after the decision of the board was announced.

Freight Handler's Strike.

TOLEDO, O., July 14.—The freight handler's strike took on a new phase yesterday. The men of the Lake Shore and Wabash roads, the only ones yet out, joined the Federation of Labor. This it is believed will lead to a strike of the brakemen and switchmen of the two roads, who belong to the federation. The roads have secured about ninety men to take the place of the four hundred strikers.

The Cold Ice Trust.

NEW ORLEANS, July 14.—The ice trust of this city has given notice that after Monday next dealers will be charged $7.50 per 1,000 pounds for ice. As western ice can be delivered here for about $5.00 per ton, the probabilities are that these exorbitant rates will be short-lived.

Wall Paper and Sash Factories Destroyed by Fire.

PHILADELPHIA, July 14.—Cary Brothers' wall paper factory, Tenth and Nevada streets, and Campbell & Atkinson's sash factory, Tenth and Susquehanna avenue, were totally destroyed by fire in the morning. Carey Brothers' loss is placed at $500,000, and Campbell & Atkinson's at $80,000.

Accident to Two Young Ladies.

BATTLE CREEK, MICH., July 14.—While two young ladies were out driving last evening their horse became frightened and threw them out and so seriously kicked one of them, Miss Jessie Beach, a school teacher, that she will die.

Brewery Seized by Uncle Sam.

HURON, S. D., July 15.—C. P. Van Tassel, of the United States internal revenue department, took possession of the Beum Brewery yesterday by direction of the government. Violation of the revenue laws are alleged.

WELL WON.

Stanley Wedded to Miss Tennant

In Westminster Abbey in Royal Style.

RECEPTION AT THE HOUSE OF THE BRIDE'S MOTHER.

The Greatest Explorer of the Earth's History Captured at Last—The Streets About the Abbey and En Route to Richmond Terrace Crowded—Magnificent Presents.

LONDON, July 14.—The Stanley-Tennant marriage ceremony in Westminster Abbey began at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Stanley and Miss Tennant entered the majestic structure amid the pealing of bells and the playing of a march on the two organs, one on each side of the choir, and took their places before the altar.

The bride was attended by two pages, each three years of age; seven bridesmaids, six of them attired in white in the fashion of the time of Charles the First.

Count D' Arache, who attended as the personal representative of the King of Belgium, was Stanley's best man. He was assisted by Dr. Parke and Jephson, Nelson, Stairs and Bonny as groomsmen.

The Bishop of Ripon officiated, assisted by the Dean of Westminster and Cannon Farrar.

Mr. Stanley was pale and showed some signs of the illness he experienced Wednesday last, when he had an attack of vertigo which left him rather weak. In spite of riding out and taking such exercise as he could since he had not wholly recovered. Nothing but his indomitable force of will enabled him to go through the ceremony, and he was obliged to beg permission to sit during a portion of the hour it lasted. He had arrived at the abbey at a quarter of two. Miss Tennant was the very picture of health and blushed deeply when she found herself the observed of admiring thousands.

At the conclusion of the ceremony, the happy pair passed through the naive which was crowded with people of all ranks and classes, and entered their carriage at the north portal. The carriage drawn by a pair of superb roans, was driven directly to the white hall terrace, the residence of the bride. It was followed by a long line of private coaches, led by that containing Mr. and Mrs. Gladstone.

The people who surrounded the north entrance of the abbey in great numbers, gave hearty cheers for Stanley and his bride as they emerged from the church, and all along the route thousands on the pavements stood and cheered them and Gladstone as they passed.

A Reception was given at the residence of the bride, Richmond Terrace, Whitehall, Thousands of distinguished and illustrious people were present including a large number of the nobility. There were flowers in profusion tastefully arranged, and immense palms brought from Africa gave appropriate character to the scene. Another striking feature of the decorations was great bouquets of strange plants and flowers grouped in artistic and classic forms.

The presents were numerous, rich and splendid, as those of princes and princesses. The king of the Belgians sent a bracelet of torquoise and diamonds, and a portrait of the donor. The prince of Wales gave a silver ink stand with his initials and plume carved. From Mr. Gladstone came seven volumes of "Gleanings of Past Years." From the Marquis of Salisbury a set of gold spoons. From Sir Frederick Leighton, president of the Royal Academy of Arts, a silver windmill, to be used as a bell. From Henry Irving, an enamelled necklace. From the daughter of Livingston, a silver toilet set. From Mrs. Burdett-Coutts, a desk with folding drawers, mounted on siver pedestal. From Lady Burdett-Coutts, a torquoise fan with diamond birds.

The happy couple will spend their honeymoon at Melchet Court Hants, which has been placed at their disposal by Lady Ashburton. Thence they will go to Brussels, and will return to England stay with the bride's mother until the end of November, when they will sail for America.

The gown worn by the bride was of a rich ivory silk, en traine. The front was of satin, embroidered with pearls. The coiffure was trimmed with orange blossoms. A crown of radiant diamonds fastened her long tulle veil, which completely enveloped her dress. She wore dainty little boots of kid, embroidered in silver and diamond buckles of fabrique speciale, which were presents from the bridegroom. She wore a miniature, given her by the queen, attached to a diamond necklace.

HOT IN THE COLLAR.

A Mayor Who Divorced His Wife and Married a Girl Telephone Operator.

FT. WORTH, TEX., July 14.—Over eight hundred citizens, leading bankers, merchants, lawyers and business men generally assembled at the court house Saturday night and for three hours prominent speakers denounced Mayor Pendleton in unmeasured terms for his perfidy to his wife and children and this community. A telegram from Mrs. Lizzie B. Pendleton announced that she knew nothing of the Chicago divorce and would leave for Forth Worth at once. It was decided to raise a fund to prosecute Pendleton in Illinois and Louisiana. Robert McCart left for Chicago last night to investigate the divorce records there. A message was sent to Pendleton signed by a number of citizens requesting him not to return to that city.

GENERAL FISK'S BURIAL.

Last Earthly Rites to a Gallant Soldier and Great Philanthropist.

COLD WATER, MICH., July 14.—The remains of General Clinton B. Fisk reached this city Saturday afternoon on the 5 o'clock train, and were met at the depot by the G. A. R., W. C. T. U., delegates from the Prohibition club, and a large concourse of citizens generally. As the funeral services had been held in New York, the day previous, the remains were taken at once to Oak Grove cemetery, where the burial service was read, a requiem sung by a choir, and the remains laid to rest beside those of two children, who died many years ago in St. Louis.

What is a cold in the head? Medical authorities say it is due to uneven clothing of the body, rapid cooling when in a perspiration, &c. The important point is, that a cold in the head is an inflammation of the lining membrane of the nose, which, when unchecked, is certain to produce a catarrhal condition—for catarrh is essentially a "cold" which nature is no longer able to "resolve" or throw off. Elys Cream Balm has proved its superiority, and sufferers should resort to it before that common ailment becomes seated and ends in obstinate catarrh.

What Does It Mean?

"100 Doses One Dollar" means simply that Hood's Sarsaparilla is the most economical medicine to buy, because it gives more for the money than any other preparation. Each bottle contains 100 doses and will average to last a month, while other preparations taken according to directions, are gone in a week. Therefore, be sure to get Hood's Sarsaparilla, the best blood purifier.

The Great Benefit.

Which people in run down state of health derive from Hood's Sarsaparilla conclusively proves that this medicine "makes the weak strong." It does not act like a stimulant imparting factitious strength, but Hood's Sarsaparilla builds up in a perfectly natural way all the weakened parts, purifies the blood and assists to healthy action those important organs, the kidneys and liver.

ESTATE OF EDWARD ROWLAND.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee.

At a session of the Probate Court for the county of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office in the city of Adrian, on Tuesday, the eighth day of July in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety.

Present, Richard B. Robbins, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Edward Rowland, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Elise Rowland, widow of said deceased, praying that administration of said estate may be granted to petitioner or some other suitable person

It is ordered, That Monday, the 4th day of August next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

RIDGEWAY RAMBLES

Geo. Clark, Jr., left Monday for Steele, Dakota, to harvest his wheat crop.

The Sunday excursions to Devils Lake are very poorly patronized by our citizens.

C. L. Lowe was the first to bring new wheat to the elevator this season.

T. H. Temple is taking in considerable new wheat this week, the price paid being 80 and 82 cents per bushel.

Farmers that have threshed say the yield to the acre is on the average with other years and the quality above the average.

Pension attorney N. M. Hindes has moved his office to rooms in the Loree block, over the drug store, where he will be pleased to meet any who need his assistance.

H. J. Williams is on the gain at present writing, though very slowly.

Wm. H. Arner is under Dr. Woodward's care at present writing with a heart trouble.

The officers of the Hall Library Association are making arrangements for an excursion to Devils Lake about the middle of August. Full particulars will be given in due time.

Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Bush, of Brooklyn, N. Y., arrived Saturday night for their summer vacation at their mother's, Mrs. Hall's, and her family.

Wm. Hyde, of Connecticut, Mrs. H. J. Williams' nephew, arrived the first of the week for a visit.

Alfred Lucking, wife and children, of Detroit, are spending a short vacation with Mrs. Lucking's father, Dr. D. W. Loree and family.

The Temple brothers drove to Toledo and Ann Arbor last week with honey.

Mrs. N. C. Norton and daughter Kate, of Dundee, visited at the home of Mrs. E. W. Rappleye Thursday of last week.

Ethel Gripton, of Britton, and Ethel Moore, of Azalia, spent Sunday and Monday with their music teacher, Miss Barlow.

Ella Miller returned to her home Thursday from Detroit, where she has been spending several months with her sister, Mrs. B. J. Coller.

Miss May Niverson, of Coldwater, visited with her cousin, Flota Smith, several days last week.

Mr. Carpenter, of Chelsea, who has been putting down a drive well for David Coryell, drove a three-inch hole 142 feet, and then drove a two-inch hole 48 feet, into solid slate rock. Water has risen to within 12 feet of the surface and the supply is thought to be permanent. $1 00 a foot is the cost of putting down the well.

Tink's time is pretty well taken up during the boss' sickness keeping the clerks in order, minding the shop, watering and feeding Jumbo, etc., but he seems to be taking it all O. K.

Frank Brown, one of our village merchants, had the misfortune to lose his pocket-book, containing quite a sum of money and valuable papers. The finder will be liberally rewarded by returning same to owner.

OBITUARY

Lydia Swarthout was born May 31st, 1808. She married Sanford Hause Nov. 20th, 1824, and came to Michigan from her birthplace in New York State, May 17th, 1833, to the old home in Ridgeway. She raised seven children, four of whom are living. She enjoyed her golden wedding in 1874, outliving all her brothers and sisters, a husband and his brothers and sisters. And now, at the age of 82 years, one month and twelve days, being the last but one of the pioneers of Ridgeway, passes to the other shore, as she expressed in her last sane moments, to meet Martha and others over there. The funeral services were conducted by her pastor, Elder James Wright, from the M. E church of Ridgeway, assisted by Elder Lowry. Thus, under the usual solemn rites of a Christian burial, there were laid away in Ridgeway cemetery the mortal remains of the last one of the charter members of the First Christian Church of Ridgeway. It is indeed solemn when children, grandchildren, great-grandchildren and neighbors are called upon to lay away in the grave the last remaining relic of an old home, whether it be the husband or the wife. The home of the late Sanford and Lydia Hause was ever made the hospitable resting place for the tired and weary worn minister of the gospel. The deceased, during the last few months of her more feeble state of body and mind, was affectionately cared for by Elmer Hause and wife, of Tecumseh, in whose home death came. Peace be to the sleeping dust of the aged one.

The funeral services of the only child and son of Mr. and Mrs William Ryan, was held from their home in Britton, Monday, July 14th, at 10 A M., conducted by Elder James Wright, assisted by Elder Borden. Text, II. Samuel, xii.-23: "I shall go to him, but he shall not return to me." Notwithstanding all the medical aid procured for him could do, attended with most tender and affectionate care of loving parents, yet the day came, on Saturday, July 12th, at 10 A. M., after a continued wasting disease, preceded last winter by la grippe, at the age of 1 year, 3 mo. and 10 days, that loved one closed his eyes in the calm quiet of death. These little ones that stay so short a time in our homes to cheer and sweeten all around by their presence, then go out forever from the earthly home, are only the flowers that are snatched, while budding, to bloom in heaven. Our esteemed friends, William and Olive, in their sad bereavement have the sympathy of the entire community.

The evils resulting from habitual costiveness are many and serious; but the use of harsh, drastic purgatives is quite as dangerous. In Ayer's Pills, however, the patient has a mild but effective aperient, Superior to all others espcially for family use.

Don't be discouraged about tha eczema till you have given Ayer's Sarsaparilla apersistent trial. Six bottles of this medicine cured the complaint for George S. Thomas, of Ana, Ohio when all other remedies failed to afford any relief.

GOOD WORDS WELL SPOKEN.

The Evening news is publishing a series of biographical sketches of noted musicians throughout the state. Last week it had a nice sketch of Miss Octa E. Wise of Adrian. Tuesday's issue contained the following favorable mention of Miss Belle Barlow of Ridgeway, Miss Barlow's many friends in this section of the county will heartily endorse the kind words spoken of her. They are not exaggerated in the least.

Miss Belle Barlow was one of the famous Strelesk's favorite pupils, and she captivated the great composer at her first rehearsal before him, and he went into ecstasy at her masterful rendering of masterpieces. She lives at Ridgeway, and is another brilliant product of the Adrian college conservatory of music. Excelling in the superlative degree as a pianist, she also has a remarkable soprano voice, and is a pipe organist. She makes music her profession, and a part of her everyday life. Her many pupils and musical friends in Tecumseh, Ridgeway, Macon, Holloway, Britton, Dundee, and Petersburg are a unit in pronouncing her, both musically and socially, as near perfect as they could wish.

SPRINGVILLE SIFTINGS

Miss Anna White is entertaining Plainwell friends at Sand Lake.

Chas. Maharr has been engaged to teach the village school the coming year. The selection gives general satisfaction.

Mabel Lewis, of Muskegon, is the guest of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Delos Lewis.

It is rumored that F. D. Avery, of Tecumseh, having purchased a share of the Glenn property, will resume business at Onsted. May the rumor prove to be correct.

An abundant harvest has been secured and laborers have no occasion to complain of scarcity of work or low wages.

The July meeting of the Cambridge Farmers' Club will be held at the home of Chauncey Cooper, and notwithstanding counter attractions at the Lake promises to be a success, as instructive topics will be discussed.

LENAWEE TEACHERS INSTITUTE.

The State Teachers' Institute for Lenawee County, will be held at Adrian, commencing at 10 o'clock A. M., Monday, August 11, and closing at 4 P. M., Friday August 22. Sec. E. G. Walker, Adrian, Local Committee.

The value of the instruction received at these institutes is being very generally recognized by teachers and school officers. As a rule, it has been the experience of County Examiners and other examining officers, but the most successful teachers are those who have availed themselves of the normal instruction offered by these local Institutes.

The daily sessions of the Institute for this year will, as heretofore, be devoted exclusively to topics of special interest to teachers, presented by persons of extended practical experience as teachers, and who have made a special study of Institute work. The evening lectures will be of a popular character.

The institute law allows teachers, whose schools are in session at the time appointed for the County Institute, held under the direction of the State Superintendent, to close their schools during the continuance of such Institute without forfeiting their wages for as many half-days as they are in attendance at the Institute. The provision of law, and the fact that there will be no enrollment or tuition fee exacted, should insure the attendance of every teacher in the county who possesses the true professional spirit.

Full particulars in regard to board, etc., may be obtained upon application to the local committee.

THE UNION PICNIC.

The Committee on program completed their work Saturday evening.

They succeeded in procuring the services of Frank M. Fogg of Lansing, a fine speaker, and a prominent Patron of Industry, who will give the chief address of the day. Good music has also been procured. The exercises will be presented substantially in the following order.

TECUMSEH, THURSDAY, JULY 24

Gen. Alger has already tapped his barrel and is in the field for 1892.

The tariff debate is fairly on in the Senate and is likely to continue three or four weeks.

The present indications are that the Fraud and Force bill will have a hard road to travel in the Senate.

If reciprocity with South America is a good thing, why would'nt reciprocity with Canada and Mexico be an equally good thing?

Speaker Reed might apply his rushing process to pretty good advantage upon the committee appointed to investigate the Ohio ballot box forgeries.

A meeting was held at Cleveland, Ohio, last week, which was called a Republican State convention. To an outsider it looked more like Governor Foraker's wake.

Secretary Blaine is not talking to Congress. That would be only casting pearls before swine. But he is talking to the American people and they are likely to give him a respectful hearing.

Roger Q Mills's free trade and Secretary Blaine's reciprocity are as near alike as two white beans. They differ only in name. Both of them, carried to their logical conclusion, would knock out the war tariff completely.

What will be the practical effect of Blaine's revolt from the McKinley tariff bill? It comes too late probably to prevent the passage of the bill. But it will make a serious split in the party which will help the cause of tariff reform.

In his letter to Senator Frye, Secretary Blaine said: "There is not a section or a line in the entire bill, that will open a market for another bushel of wheat or barrel of pork." Neither Carlisle's logic nor Mills's eloquence could have uttered a truer sentiment in regard to the McKinley tariff iniquity.

The Farmers' Alliance convention held last week at St. Paul, denounced the McKinley bill as "the crowning infamy of protection." Speaker Reed should devise some means of squelching these rebels. If the mutineers of Minnesota are allowed to talk in this fashion, it will raise the "Old Harry" with the war tariff.

Will the radicals and revolutionists who are now running the Republican machine attempt to read Blaine out of the party? It looks that way now. Chase, Summer and Seward were all kicked out of the party before their death. Palmer and Curtin, the war governors of Illinois and Pennsylvania, are now acting with the Democracy.

An exchange hits the nail on the head in these words:

"There is no disguising the fact and it is a bitter dose for republicans to take—President Harrison's Secretary of State is promulgating pure democratic doctrine. He is advocating the abolition of prohibitive duties on our trade with South American states. This accomplished, a complete revision of the tariff in the interest of extended commerce with our nearer neighbors, nearer in point of consanguity and mutual interests, must inevitably follow. What will the party leaders do with Mr. Blaine and his apostasy?"

Reciprocity treaties with the South American States would not have weakened our protective policy as against cheap European products one jot, and they would have extended the markets for American products to an extent exceeding one hundred millions. Mr. Blaine is not the first man to call attention to this fact, but he is the first Republican leader who has had the courage to tell his own party leaders in Congress the truth about the matter.

Speaker Reed's error, says the Springfield Republican, in including Representative Enloe, of Tennessee, in one of his arbitrary quorum counts Wednesday, was but a sample of a happening by no means infrequent in the House. Mr. Enloe was not present, but the Speaker said he was, and therein showed the "greatness" about which many people are prating these days. Such one-man power is an outrage and a usurpation, even if it has become an old story.

A BUGLE CALL TO DEMOCRATS.

From a Speech by Samuel J. Tilden at the Democratic State Convention at Rochester in 1871

The Democracy advances to fight anew the battle against centralism and corruption to which it was first led by Thomas Jefferson in the nation and by George Clinton in the State of New York.

The equilibrium of our whole political system is in danger of being overthrown and a despotic and corrupt centralism established. The whole value of the arrangement by which our world is kept in its place in the solar system is the balance between the opposing forces. It would matter little to us which of these forces should be allowed to prevail. If the centrifugal tendency should dominate, our planet would shoot madly into the realms of endless space, far away from the source of heat and life, until every living thing upon its surface would perish. If the centripetal tendency should prevail, the earth would rush with inconceivable velocity toward the sun, until it would be engulfed in the burning mass. So it is with the adjustment of powers between the State and Federal Governments; disunion and centralization are equally fatal to good government. Disunion would generate the centralism if military despotism in the separate States; centralism attempted on areas and populations so vast would break the parts asunder, and fill our continent, as it has filled every other, with rival nations.

Our wise ancestors devised the only system possible to avoid these opposite evils. They formed a Federal Government to manage our foreign relations, to maintain peace and unity between the States, and to administer a few exceptional functions of common interest; and they left the great residuary mass of government powers to the State.

The creed of the Democratic party is comprised in two ideas: First, to limit as much as possible all governmental power, enlarging always and everywhere the domain of individual judgment and action; secondly, to throw back the governmental powers necessary to be exercised as much as possible upon the States and the localities, approaching in every case the individuals to be affected.

These ideas dominate over the Democratic party, and find in it their best representative. The opposite ideas, to meddle with everything properly belonging to the individual, and to centralize all governmental power, express the tendencies of the Republican party.

Under this inspiration the Federal Government is rapidly seizing upon all the powers of human society. It has assumed to regulate the suffrage and threatens to take the control of all elections.

I oppose centralism because it is incompatible with civil liberty.

I oppose centralism because it creates an irresponsible power and an irresponsible power is always corrupt. A government ruling all the affairs of individuals and localities, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, from the great lakes to the Gulf of Mexico, would be the most incompetent for what it would undertake, the most oppressive, the most irresponsible, and the most corrupt government of which history affords any example.

THE BATTLE-CRY OF 1890.

1. Tax Reform, by the repeal of all needless taxes on the necessaries of life; the repeal of all taxes on the raw materials of our industries, in harmony with the policy of every other protection country of the world, and the repeal of all taxes which foster monopoly trusts and combines to tax the masses for the benefit of the classes.

2. Ballot Reform, by absolute freedom of all voters from the dictation of political or business masters, and the absolute secrecy of every citizen's vote.

3. Civil Service Reform, by the overthrow of the vicious system that degrades local, state and national governments to the control of professional spoilsmen, and excludes integrity and competency for the dependents of party bosses.

4. Public economy, by the restoration to solvency of a now bankrupted National Treasury without imposing additional burdens on the people to maintain needless officials and satiate the greed of monopolists and profligates.

5. National Peace, by the defeat of revolutionary measures aiming at the control of elections by force and fraud, creating 200,000 new Federal officials to be paid out of a Treasury already bankrupted, and rekindling sectional strife a quarter of a century after peace.

If political leaders in Washington would know why Pennsylvania, with her 80,000 Republican majority, is now considered debatable; why republicans of conspicuous intelligence and character are daily declaring against the party ticket, and why the overwhelming Republican States of the West are threatening revolution, they have the causes clearly stated in the foregoing summary of the popular battle-cry of 1890.—Philadelphia Times.

FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC PRICES.

The tariff reform club wrote to South America for a copy of the "foreign price list" of American agricultural implements, and the New York World is printing a series of photographs of the Precio Corrient's pages that are proving (in connection with Mr. T. E. Wilson's able articles on tariff reform) dymamite bombs thrown into the protection camp. One of the pages thus photographed gives the Ann Arbor agricultural company's list, foreign and domestic, and farmers will be especially interested therein. For instance: The American farmer pays $8 for a No. 30 Advance chilled plow; if he lived in Spanish America he could order it for $4, delivered on board ship. For the convenience of interested readers we have reproduced the lists in parallel columns:

	Spanish Price	American Price.
Advance plow, No. 34,	$ 9 00	$18 00
Advance plow, No. 30,	4 00	8 00
Hay tedder	30 00	45 00
Mower	40 00	65 00
Horse rake	17 00	25 00
Cumming feed cut'r No. 3.	60 00	90 00
Ann Arbor cutter, No. 2.	28 00	40 00
" " " No. 1,	16 00	28 00
Clipper cutter	9 50	18 00
Lever cutter	4 25	8 00
Cultivator	22 00	30 00
Horse power sweep	60 00	90 00

There is apparently no "getting around" these figures, and the beauties of high tariff protection for the manufacturers, and its ugliness for the American consumer could not be more positively proven. Protection is protection for those it protects. Who does it protect?—Detroit Commercial Advertiser.

McKINLEY PRICES.

If the republican tariff bill, or anything like it, is to become law, prudent persons will do well to begin at once to make their purchases for the next few years. The increased cost of tableware, crockery and glass under the proposed tariff has been set forth in the advertisement of a Chicago firm, and more recently the effect upon the cost of household linen and wearing apparel of the same material has been made the subject of a circular issued by the Linin Trade Association of New York. Following are some of the items:

	Costing now Cts. per yd.	McKinley bill cost Cts. per yd
Russia crash	5¾	7½
Canvas for ladies dress facing or tailors' trim's	8¼	10
Padding for clothier's tailors' trimmings	8½	11½
Farmers' drill	10	12
Brown duster linens	11½	13½
Lawn for dresses	9	11
Unbl' table damask	27	33
Bleached table damask	42	51
	Per Doz.	Per Doz.
Huck towels	$1 12½	$1 38
Huck towels	2 25	2 75
Ladies and children's linen handkerchiefs	54	68
Ladies' and children's handerchiefs	4 50	2 50
Men's linen hdk's	2 25	2 70

It is noticeable that in the linen schedule, as the rest of this bill, the republican tariff scheme places the burden of taxation upon articles in common use by the people who are not wealthy, and by the farmers. It is characteristic of the "protective principle" that the burden is placed upon those who most need relief, upon necessities of life and not upon luxuries.—Chicago Herald.

COST OF TARIFF TAXES.

Adolph Oheme, an intelligent farmer at Brainard, Neb., has figured up how much tariff taxes have cost him in a year. He has done more or less trading at the village stores, and of course, has paid protection prices for everything he had to buy. The following is his account for twelve months:

	Tariff Paid.
780 pounds of sugar	$18 75
18 gallons molasses	40
22 pounds woolen goods	9 90
Dry goods (cost $89)	33 75
10 pounds chocolate, etc	20
5 pounds mustard	50
42 pounds rice	5
8,000 feet of lumber	16 00
Machinery (cost $57)	22 80
Salt, 450 pounds	55
1 barrel lime	31
2 boxes soap	1 00
Medicine (cost $10)	2 50
Binding twine (cost $8)	3 20
Saddleries, etc., (cost $68)	20 50
Boots and shoes (cost $28 50	8 55
Total tariff on purchases	$142 02

In this way Mr. Oehme figures out that the tariff compels him to pay each year $142.02 more for goods which he requires than they would cost were the tariff removed. This he calls his "indirect" tax and comparing it with the direct tax which he pays, his county, city, and state he finds this to be the case:

Tariff tax—indirect	$142 02
City, county and state—direct	76 82
Difference	$65 20

And thus Mr. Oehme figures that he is paying indirectly a tax which is almost twice as large as his direct tax, and this tax is filched from him little by little in the shape of living expenses that make it hard to make both ends meet. Were all the farmers as smart as Mr. Oehme there would be a speedy end of the protective system.

The census figures will place Chicago second in the list of American cities, being a few thousand in excess of Philadelphia. With the impetus given by the World's fair, Chicago will tread close upon the heels of New York, in 1900.

KANSAS AND HOME RULE.

The original package decision of the Supreme Court has made Kansas a home-rule State. The brewers and distillers of other States have flooded Kansas with agents selling whiskey in packages of all sizes and descriptions from a two-ounce vial to a barrel. The sentiment of the State is undoubtedly opposed to the sale of liquor either in original packages or in any other form, and the officials have arrested a number of these original package agents only to have them released on habeas corpus proceedings before the Federal courts.

Emboldened by their success, the liquor agents have brought suits for false imprisonment against the local officers. This has brought the State and Federal authorities into actual collision, and Governor Humphry has directed the attorney General to appear in behalf of the State to defend the cases brought for damages against State officials. The Governor, in his instructions to the Attorney General, says it is the State's bounden duty to fight for home rule in every form, and that all judicial methods and remedies should be exhausted before the contest is abandoned. He points out the danger to the health, morals and business integrity of the State if it is once established that the State has no power to restrain or regulate the sale of adulterated or poisonous articles that are manufactured in other states and therefore the subjects of inter-State commerce.

The friends of home rule in every State will sympathize with Governor Humphry's efforts to maintain the right of the State to regulate its internal and local interests. But they will not understand why it is wrong to deprive the State of power to control or tax the whisky or beer manufactured in another state and wrong for the State to control its own elections. If the original package decision is wrong in principle and destructive of local self-government in its practically application the Lodge Force bill is equally so. The Kansas Republicans who are opposed to an application of Federal control that makes whisky and beer practically free to everybody in every State, should, on the same principle, be opposed to Federal control of any elections, Congressional or otherwise.—St. Louis Republic.

Both Ankles Crushed.

In a railroad smash up in 1876, I had both ankles badly crushed. Soon after Blood Poison set in, and both legs, from my knees down were covered with ulcerated sores, that refused all efforts to heal. I was virtually helpless for ten years, being bedridden most of the time. During all the time I was attended by the best physicians in this section of the State, and must have a cartload of medicine, without receiving any relief or being benefited in any way. In 1887 I was induced to try Swift's Specific, (S. S. S.) I commenced to improve from the first dose, and continued to get better, until to-day I am as sound and well as any man in the universe. This was two years ago since which I have had no return of sores or any pain in the legs. From my experence I conscientiously believe that Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) has no equal as a blood purifier, and I cheerfully recomend it to any one suffering from any disease of the blood.

WHAT IS

SCROFULA

It is that impurity in the blood, which, accumulating in the glands of the neck, produces unsightly lumps or swellings; which causes painful running sores on the arms, legs, or feet; which developes ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or the many other manifestations usually ascribed to "humors;" which, fastening upon the lungs, causes consumption and death. Being the most ancient, it is the most general of all diseases or affections, for very few persons are entirely free from it.

How Can It Be CURED

By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by the remarkable cures it has accomplished, often when other medicines have failed, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. Some of these cures are really wonderful. If you suffer from scrofula, be sure to try Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"My daughter Mary was afflicted with scrofulous sore neck from the time she was 22 months old till she became six years of age. Lumps formed in her neck, and one of them after growing to the size of a pigeon's egg, became a running sore for over three years. We gave her Hood's Sarsaparilla, when the lump and all indications of scrofula entirely disappeared, and now she seems to be a healthy child." J. S. CARLILE, Naurlight, N. J.

THE COFFEE TAX GHOST.

IT RETURNS ONCE MORE TO TROUBLE THE HIGH TARIFF PARTY.

Falsity of the Protectionist Claim That the Abolition of the Duty on Coffee Did Not Reduce the Price—Figures Show the Contrary.

The reciprocity scheme of Mr. Blaine for the free admission of South American sugar and wool in return for like treatment of our agricultural products by South American nations has called forth all kinds of opinions as to the wisdom of the plan. There are some who claim that the abolition of the sugar duty would not result in lower prices, and they cite the case of the duty on coffee as warranting their opinion.

Thus the New York correspondent of The Philadelphia Ledger writes to that paper as follows:

"I find that the idea is entertained by many people here that the duty on sugar should not be removed until reciprocal advantages are obtained from sugar producing countries, and reference is frequently made to the case of coffee, which was put upon the free list July 1, 1872. Instead of the price of coffee declining after the duty was abolished it went up. In 1871 the average price was less than 16 cents a pound; in 1872 it was nearly 18½ cents, and in 1874 it was over 21 cents. Indeed Brazil put an export duty on the article. But in 1885 the average price of coffee was down to 9 cents, and last year was up again to 18.30 cents. The argument is used that free sugar would not insure a reduction of price, but the fluctuations in the price of coffee are attributed by some to crop conditions having nothing to do with tariff laws. Senator Edmunds a year or two ago cited the facts of the advance in the price of coffee as an illustration to show that free trade would not always cheapen the necessaries of life, as is claimed by its advocates."

The facts here set forth as to the fluctuations in the price of coffee since the duty was abolished are true, but it is not true that coffee has been lower since the duty was abolished.

Coffee came in free till Aug. 1, 1861, and a duty of four cents a pound was then placed on it. On Dec. 25 of the same year the duty was raised to five cents a pound, at which figure it remained till Jan. 1, 1871, when it was reduced to three cents. The duty was finally abolished July 1, 1872.

The average wholesale price of Brazilian coffee in the New York market for the eleven years 1862-'72 inclusive was $18.61 per 100 pounds. This is the price reduced to a gold basis for the entire period that the tax covered. For the seventeen years since the removal of the duty the average price has been $15.22. Before the duty was imposed the average was still lower, being only $10.42 for the ten years 1850-'59 inclusive.

It is seen from the above figures that the price since the duty was abolished has averaged $3.39 per hundred less than during the period when the duty was collected. This reduction, it is true, does not equal the entire duty removed, but that discrepancy can be satisfactorily accounted for.

About the time that we removed the duty on coffee Brazil adopted the singular policy of taxing coffee for export, and to this day our merchants are compelled to pay that export duty to the Brazilian government. The duty of three cents a pound which we removed in 1872 was equivalent that year to 16 per cent. ad valorem. The Brazilian duty is 11 per cent. ad valorem. When our merchants buy in Brazil they pay so much for the coffee, and then buy from the government a permit to export, which is 11 per cent. of the value of the purchase.

But, it may be asked, why do not our merchants buy in other parts of the world and thus avoid the Brazilian duty. The answer to this is that Brazil produces about 60 per cent. of the world's supply of coffee, leaving only about 40 per cent. to be supplied by Java and other countries. But the United States consumes about 50 per cent. of all the coffee grown, and therefore the countries other than Brazil could not supply us with enough, even if we could control their entire product.

Aside from this practical difficulty everybody knows that tastes determine the distribution of the world's coffee; the different kinds—Rio, Java, Mocha, etc.—are in demand among all coffee drinking nations, and one nation could not get all of any one kind, even if it wished to do so.

The figures for the average cost of coffee as already given do not convey a complete idea of the advantage that the abolition of the duty has brought to the country. The increased consumption must also be taken into account. Our average annual consumption between 1862 and 1872 was 90,011 tons; during the ten years following the repeal of the duty this average was raised to 154,228 tons, and last year our imports were 258,659 tons.

It is a fact that coffee rose in price for a time after the duty was taken off. The following figures give the average price per 100 pounds for several years before and after the duty was removed:

1870	$16 88	1874	$21 08
1871	15 91	1875	19 01
1872	18 48	1876	17 97
1873	19 99

A still more remarkable rise in price is seen from the following figures:

1885	$9 01	1888	$15 26
1886	10 82	1889	18 30
1887	18 04

In the first table we have a rise of $2.66 from 1872 to 1874, and in the second a rise of $9.03 from 1885 to 1887. Mr. George C. Rand, a prominent coffee dealer of New York, explains these disturbances in prices as follows: In 1887 importers allowed their stock of coffee to run low in anticipation of the removal of the duty. In this way there was an extraordinary demand for coffee after the duty was stricken off; buyers were compelled to replenish their stocks, and this was one reason why prices went up. Furthermore, the crops of the next two years did not come up to expectations; our importations for each of the years 1873 and 1878 were more than 22,000 tons less than in 1871.

In the same way the sharp rise in prices in 1887 was caused. A large crop had been anticipated and importers held off from buying because lower prices were looked for. But the crop was not large and the sharp competition of buyers forced prices up with an unusual bound.

The apparent lack of effect of removing the duty can thus be accounted for on natural grounds.

It is admitted that the precise effect cannot be determined by comparing a series of years; for, as above shown, the varying size and condition of the crop, together with trade influences, are disturbing elements which cannot be accurately measured.

Is not a more trustworthy method possible for determining whether the repeal has saved the consumer the amount of the duty? Can we not compare two countries at the same time—one with a duty and the other without a duty? Fortunately we can. These two countries are France and the United States. France has a duty of 18.66 cents per pound on coffee; we admit it free. The same coffee which now retails for 5 francs per kilo in France is bought by our people at retail for 30 cents a pound. A kilo is 2.2 pounds and 5 francs are equal to 96.5 cents, which means about 44 cents a pound. This is 14 cents more than the American price, and is accounted for by the duty of 18.66 cents and the commissions for handling the duty.

This proves beyond all cavil that the duty is added to the price when the consumer buys. In other words the tariff is a tax.

Pennsylvania Knows Her Mind.

The Republican state convention of Pennsylvania took care in indorsing the McKinley bill to say that what it indorsed was the bill as it passed the house. The house, it will be remembered, reduced the duty on steel rails from $17 a ton to $13.44. When this was done the steel rail makers of Pennsylvania squealed; but they squealed still more loudly when the senate made a further reduction to $11.20 a ton.

Not long ago the rail manufacturers and their newspaper organs were pointing with pride to the fact that steel rails were selling at as low a price here as in England. Ben Butterworth defends the old style protection which seeks simply to produce what he is fond of calling an "equality of opportunity;" but his party has gone far beyond this "equality of opportunity" idea. Equality of opportunity would in this case demand the removal of the duty altogether; but the tariff makers are far from taking the duty off.

The manufacturers, however, do not at all accept the "equality of opportunity" idea. On the contrary, the duty of $11.40 excites their patriotic apprehensions to such an extent that they are holding meetings and sending committees to Washington as if the British were about to deluge the country with cheap rails.

What is the use for any duty at all on steel rails? The price is about the same in England as here, and the cost of ocean freights, insurance and commissions is said to be about $3.50 a ton. The Pittsburg and Chicago rail makers have, of course, the further protection of inland freights.

When, however, these facts are pointed out to the rail makers they whine and say that the price of coal may go down in England, and then they will sell cheaper than we do and ruin us! That is the kind of talk that comes from men who have made enormous fortunes out of the protection on steel rails.

More Valiant Talk from Butterworth.

Ben Butterworth is a valiant talker, however much his valor may flow out at his finger ends when the time comes to vote. Now that he has lost his opportunity to vote against the infamous McKinley bill he has again resorted to valiant talk.

"What is our situation as a party?" he asks, and then he answers his question by painting this melancholy picture of the situation: "The tariff unrevised and no consoling prospect that the senate will do more than transpose the exorbitant rates that abound in the present schedule."

What "consoling prospect" has the country that Maj. Benjamin Butterworth will use his vote, when the bill gets back into the house for conference work, to defeat its "exorbitant rates?"

And the major devotes some valiant talk again to the farmer's tariff, so called. He says that the farmer "is shown a tariff schedule which runs the whole gamut from snap beans through peas, onions, peanuts, squashes, cabbages, eggs, oranges, hops, corn, rye and wheat—all of which is as useful to him as a duty on tin whistles."

Then he indulges in some super-valiant talk against the workings of our present high tariff laws. He says: "The injury comes in various forms. Its most humiliating aspect is in the fact that it makes our prosperity partial and makes the mass of the people the servants of the few, and does it in the name and under the guise of protecting labor and cherishing our infant industries." He hopes, too, that "we shall adopt the policy suggested by the administration, and remove all the barriers that hamper our commerce and rule us out of the markets of the western hemisphere."

Oh, that there were no caucus to squelch a valiant talker like Butterworth before he puts his words into action! A valiant talk could make a country happy what a blessing Butterworth would be to America!

The French minister of commerce does not seem to favor the removal of the prohibition of American lard in France. On the contrary he says that France could not at present meet America's avowal of an economic war by concessions. This attitude of the French government is seen still more strikingly in the recent passage of the tariff act levying prohibitory duties on our corn.

Epoch
The transition from long, lingering and painful sickness to robust health marks an epoch in the life of the individual. Such a remarkable event is treasured in the memory and the agency whereby the good health has been attained is greatfully blessed. Hence it is that so much is heard in praise of Electric Bitters. So many feel they owe their restoration to health, to the use of the Great Alterative and Tonic. If you are troubled with any disease of Kidneys, Liver or Stomach, of long or short standing you will surely find relief by use of Electric Bitters. Sold at 50c. and $1 per bottle at

Miles' Nerve & Liver Pills.
An important discovery. They act on the liver, stomach and bowels through the nerves. A new principle. They speedily cure biliousness, bad tast, torpid liver, piles and constipation. Splendid for men, women and children. Smallest, mildest, surest. 30 doses for 25 cents. Samples free at Baker & Halls.

The Liver

When out of order, involves every organ of the body. Remedies for some other derangement are frequently taken without the least effect, because it is the liver which is the real source of the trouble, and until that is set right there can be no health, strength, or comfort in any part of the system. Mercury, in some form, is a common specific for a sluggish liver; but a far safer and more effective medicine is

Ayer's Pills.

For loss of appetite, bilious troubles, constipation, indigestion, and sick headache, these Pills are unsurpassed.
"For a long time I was a sufferer from stomach, liver, and kidney troubles, experiencing much difficulty in digestion, with severe pains in the lumbar region and other parts of the body. Having tried a variety of remedies, including warm baths, with only temporary relief, about three months ago I began the use of Ayer's Pills, and my health is so much improved that I gladly testify to the superior merits of this medicine."—Manoel Jorge Pereira, Porto, Portugal.
"For the cure of headache, Ayer's Cathartic Pills are the most effective medicine I ever used."—R. K. James, Dorchester, Mass.
"When I feel the need of a cathartic, I take Ayer's Pills, and find them to be more effective than any other pill I ever took."—Mrs. B. C. Grubb, Burwellville, Va.
"I have found in Ayer's Pills, an invaluable remedy for constipation, billiousness, and kindred disorders, peculiar to miasmatic localities. Taken in small and frequent doses, these Pills on the liver, restoring its natural powers, and aiding it in throwing off malarial poisons."—C. F. Alston, Quitman, Texas.

"Whenever I am troubled with constipation, or suffer from loss of appetite, Ayer's Pills set me right again."—A. J. Kiser, Jr., Rock House, Va.
"In 1858, by the advice of a friend, I began the use of Ayer's Pills as a remedy for biliousness, constipation, high fevers, and colds. They served me better than anything I had previously tried, and I have used them in attacks of that sort ever since."—H. W. Hersh, Judsonia, Ark.

Failures in Life.
People fail in many ways. In business, in morality, in religion, in happiness, and in health. A week heart is often an unsuspected cause of failure in life. If the blood does not circulate properly in the lungs, there is shortness of breath, asthma, etc.; in the brain, dizziness, headache, etc.; in the stomach, wind, pain, indigeston, faint spells, etc.; in the liver, torpidity, congeston, etc.; heart strain. For all these maladies Dr. Miles' New Cure for the heart and lungs is the best remedy. Sold, garanteed and recommended by Baker & Hall. Treatise free.

How I Saved My Life

The figure 9 in our dates will make a long stay. No man or woman now living will ever date a document without using the figure 9. It stands in the third place in 1890, where it will remain two years and then move up to second place in 1900 where it will rest for one hundred years.
There is another "9" which has also come to stay. It is unlike the figure 9 in our dates in the respect that it has already moved up to first place, where it will permanently remain. It is called the "No. 9" High Arm Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine.
The "No. 9" was endorsed for first place by the experts of Europe at the Paris Exposition of 1889 where, after a severe contest with the leading machines of the world, it was awarded the only Grand Prize given to family sewing machines, all others on exhibit having received lower awards of gold medals, etc. The French Government also recognized its superiority by the decoration of Mr. Nathaniel Wheeler, President of the company, with the Cross of the Legion of Honor.
The "No. 9" is not an old machine improved upon, but is an entirely new machine, and the Grand Prize at Paris was awarded it as the grandest advance in sewing machine mechanism of the age. Those who buy it can rest assured, therefore, of having the very latest and best.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.
It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.
The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.
WHAT IT CURES.
All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with Inflammation.
It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.
Over 40 Years.
This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

A COMMENCEMENT ADDRESS.

Delivered at the Last Graduating Exercises of Raisin Valley Seminary by Prof. F. R. Hathaway.

Friends, neighbors, schoolmates and pupils! Emotions of joy and pain, pleasure and sorrow, strangely mingle in my heart at this time. To-day the busy shuttle of memory makes varied figures in the tapestry of the past. Had one told me when I entered this school the fall of '79 that I should remain here so long, first as pupil, second as teacher, third as principal, I should have thought him a false prophet indeed. Yet to-day the very roots of my being strike down into this neighborhood, this school, this church, and from these I draw that nourishment which makes me what I am. The silken bands of earlier school life have become strong manhood friendships and I stand bound to this place by ties which only death can sever.

To you, members of the class of '90, I come in the threefold relation of brother, teacher, friend. For the past three or four years we have mingled together as teacher and pupils; as fellow students we have explored the fields of knowledge in search of the pearl of wisdom. Steadily our hearts have been drawn closer and still closer together in friendship's union. To-day it becomes my pleasant privilege, as an older brother, to welcome you to our family circle. Here you will find more than a hundred brothers and sisters, many of whom are present to-day to voice this welcome which I I extend to you. In all this company you will find no one who has disgraced the name he bears. Many are holding important places of honor and trust. We are all proud of our Alma Mater. Among the schools of the state none, that do the same grade of work, have a better reputation than has Raisin Valley Seminary. Thoroughness, stability and character, upon which its reputation rests, should characterize the life of every child of the institution. While we ought not to be unduly elated by reason of the position we have reached, we should nevertheless feel the dignity of our standing.

Thus far public opinion has judged you as boys and girls in school; you will now be considered as young men and women. Conduct excusable in school children is entirely inexcusable in graduates. Your acquaintances, friends, teachers and alma mater expect much of you. The diploma which you receive to-day is merely a trade mark by which we know you. It is not even a means of success, much less a guarantee of success. To be sure it may at first be considered by some a recommendation. If, however, you you do not come up to the standard in the jostling, competing world, you will be set aside as unworthy the trade mark you bear. The vast majority of the failures that have been made by graduates result from placing two much value in their diplomas. Such a certificate, acting as a letter of recommendation, may assist in securing a position, but never in holding one. Your initial success may depend somewhat upon the reputation of the school; your ultimate, and final success depends upon your own ability. When Whitelaw Ried, then comparitively an unknown man, was chosen editor-in-chief of the New York Tribune, some one remarked that he was truly a lucky fellow; to which the reply came pointedly: "his selection may have depended upon luck, but his continuance in office will not."

All men do not begin life equally advanced. Many take positions entirely beyond their ability, others somewhat lower than they belong; yet in the general shaking up which we receive each man gravitates to his appropriate level. Undoubtedly many men would have risen higher had been differently circumstanced, but the great rough and tumble of life pretty accurately determines ones ability. Men who bemoan their surroundings are usually seeking excuses to account for their failures in life—failures which, the world charges to inferior ability rather than unfriendly environment—

"The fault dear Brutus, is not in our stars,
But in ourselves, that we are underlings."

At this time I wish to leave with you three life thoughts.

There is an army of men who have started in life with every prospect of success. During the first years of their career they have made wonderful strides. Friends and neighbors have watched them with admiration. There seemed no limit to that which they might attain. This initial success intoxicated them. Soon they began to trust to their genius and their lucky star. Instead of studying their cases, they trusted to their power over a jury, in place of attending to their customers, they depended upon their social standing; instead of giving just weight, they traded upon their church membership; in place of doing their own work, they hired a corps of assistants; instead of giving close application to business, they drifted into speculation and idleness It matters not how rich, how bright, how popular such a per-on may be, there is but one possible end to which he can come. The motto which you have selected gives the only guarantee of continued and permanent success. The visitor at the Studebaker wagon works will see this motto in large gilt letters adorning the topmost arch of their massive brick building. Beginning as boys, these men have built up the greatest wagon manufactory in the world. Their relation with their employees is almost ideally perfect. We read of no strikes, no riots, no tumult in their establishment. During their long and prosperous business career they have steadily remembered and believed that "work conquors all things." Work! hard, untiring, persistent work is the price man must pay for real success. "Earth gets its price for what Earth gives us." Sir Isaac Newton was accustomed to say that if he differed from other men, it was simply because he applied himself more closely than did they. The decree that man shall earn his bread by the sweat of his brow is rather a blessing than a curse; but whether curse or blessing it is as real and established a law in the social world as is the law of gravitation in the physical world.

The financial prosperity and business enterprise of the American people make necessary a word of caution to the young men and women of to-day. As a nation we point with pride to the unprecedented increase of wealth in the United States during the last twenty-five years. Gladstone says that the world accumulated more wealth between the years 1850 and 1870 than in the entire centuries from the birth of Christ to the year 1800. During these decades the United States received more than its proportionate share, even though part of that time it carried on the most destructive war in the annals of history. Foreigners wonder at the stupendous growth of this country; while citizens of the republic, having breathed no other air from childhood, live in ignorant intoxication upon the ozone of success. This shuffling, scrambling rush for wealth is producing a nation to which Mathew Arnold's critism too justly applies; we are becoming a people, "beastly prosperous."

The home, the school, the church, the nation, all feel the influence of this greed for gold. Money can build dwellings, but it can not make homes. Where mammon is the god of the hearth, love vanishes, even though it must leave a marble palace for a peasant's hut. The American lords, barons and kings of finance form as real and absolute an aristocracy as those who proudly trace their ancestors to the time when William the Norman invaded Saxon England. Their palace doors turn on golden hinges and never open to the calloused hand of labor. Who can estimate the power one man has to shape the domestic and foreign policy of the nation when possessing a fortune equal to the assessed valuation of fourteen entire states when taken separately, or the combined valuation of four great states with an area of 350,000 square miles? Such however is the fortune of Vanderbilt, a fortune which yields its owner an income of $75,000 every day in the year. Remember that Christ said "a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things he possesseth." The history of the last quarter of a century plainly shows the influence money has in shaping the affairs of government. Its power has been felt repeatedly in the halls of congress, the office of the executive and the courts of justice. So true is this that it has become a recognized fact that no party can hope for success unless it advocates principles that will help fill the pocket books of the voters. Moral, benevolent, social questions scarcely receive a hearing when competing with financial measures.

Not content with ruling the home, domineering society and regulating the government, this same thirst for gain lays its grasp upon the schools of the country and demands what it is pleased to call a practical, business education; meaning by that an education sufficient to enable a person to compute interest and manipulate a corner in hogs. Education which goes beyond this it condemns in unmeasured terms as a useless waste of time. It urges that that boy is most likely to succeed who graduates from the "university of hard knocks." Andrew Carneige, the apostle of this creed and a man whose income is $4,500 per day, says that "the college graduate who enters business at the age of twenty-three has not the slightest chance with the boy who began sweeping the office early in his teens." His conclusion that a college education unfits a person for a successful business career has a very metalic ring. While reading his arguments one cannot help thinking that he is explaining how a young man can help Andrew Carneige increase his fortune rather than win one for himself.

Granted, however, that his judgment is correct it becomes, when rightly understood, a tribute of praise to the schools of this country. The money maker is a specialist just as much as is a railroad attorney, engineer or architect. In every other specialty a liberal education is considered an advantage, as it broadens the mind and makes it more able to reach excellence in any given field of investigation. Only in the gladiatorial contest for wealth is it useless. Here there must be the avarice of a Shylock the greed of a Gould, the push of a Carneige. Here there is no need of broad, cultured intellects. "Old Hutch" can squeeze a million and a half out of the "shorts" in a single wheat deal even though he must sign his checks with his mark. If such a man desires a position in the United States Senate when he becomes too old and imbecile to transact his own business, he simply spends a week's income in a judicious manner among the candidates for the state legislature. As a result a "barrel of standard oil" occupies a seat made vacant by "the noblest Roman of them all."

The college student has learned that there are nobler objects in life than the acquisition of wealth. He has seen that the men who have most helped mankind have been poor in this world's goods. He does not consider the Sages, the Dillons, the Goulds, the Vanderbilts the highest types of manhood. In him the rights of mankind, the true grandeur of the nation, and duty toward God arouse higher thoughts than do the sugar trust, the standard oil monopoly and the stock exchange. He had rather stand with Harriet Beecher Stowe, Charles Sumner and T. DeWitt Talmage than with Carl Spreckels, Henry B. Payne, and Russell Sage. To him Agassiz's remark is intelligible; "I have been offered five hundred dollars a night to lecture but I have no time to make money." If the love of money can be kept from dictating the college course our institutions of learning will continue to send forth high minded men rather than nickle-in-the-slot machines.

This feverish thirst for gain is leading the nation day by day nearer and still nearer an open conflict between the extremely rich and the extremely poor. Soulless corporations are producing godless socialists. An irrepressible conflict is brewing. In the words of President Seeley, of Amherst College: "There is one question of our time toward which all other questions, whether of nature, of man, or of God steadily tend. No one will be likely to dispute the affirmation that the social question is, and is to be, the question of our time." Into this conflict the young men and women of to-day must enter. Well will it be for the nation if from its five hundred colleges and seminaries there shall go forth each year a company of youth with nobler aims than the acquisition of wealth, and from whose lives shall radiate influences that will tend to counteract the sordid tendency of our people. Go forth, then, young men and women, not to acquire fortune, but to promote human happiness. Let love toward mankind and supreme love toward God dominate your lives. Remember that "a man's life is more than meat" and that a human soul is more valuable than the whole world. Live lives actuated by such principles and though your earthly home be not a marble palace, you shall have a house not made by hands, eternal in the heavens. Though you do not become a millionaire you will yet "lay up treasure where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt and where thieves do not break through and steal."

When Christ placed so great a value upon the human soul he introduced a new principle into the history of the world. Before this the individual had been nothing, the state everything. There is no history of a people prior to the advent of the Nazarene. The record of the past told simply of kings and dynasties. From that time to the present the people have continually increased in importance, until now they make the entire history of a nation. It is this principle of individualism that has overthrown despotisms, worked revolutions, limited the power of monarchs, achieved reformations, drafted constitutions, established justice, created republics and overthrown a mediating priesthood between man and God. In short this principle, enunciated by the Great Teacher, is the foundation upon which modern civilization rests. Or, if you prefer, it is a book upon whose pages are recorded every chapter in the history of human liberty. When Christ thus sought to base human civilization upon the masses rather than the classes, upon the many rather than the favored few, he undertook at the same time so to change the natures of men that they would "abhor that which is evil and cleave to that which is good." To accomplish this he shed his own blood, which thus became a universal reagent, precipitating the sin of th world and leaving the uman heart clear and sparkling in the beaker of humanity. So universally is this principle now accepted that it has become a recognized fact that the stability of a nation does not rest in its fortifications, its armies, its navies, its munitions of war, but rather in the intelligence and morality of its citizens. With the advancing centuries the world sees more and more the great underlying truth in Christ's assertion that the pure in heart are the salt of the earth. Jesus invariably conditions personal and social improvement upon regeneration.

In the present century individualism has taken a most peculiar turn. "Socialism is individualism run mad." The socialist seeks to improve society and thus advance civilization "without eliminating the factor of sin." He would "gather grapes from thorns and figs from thistles." Such efforts at reform end in revolution. Men, believing in the common brotherhood of man, dissatisfied with their lot in life, unable to see why some should be rich and others poor, undertake to rearrange society, while their hearts are filled with envy, jealousy and hatred. No wonder that idleness, strife, arson and murder follow their attempts to improve the social condition. These abortive efforts, engineered by unscrupulous men for personal ends, are filling the land with hosts of idle, discontented people. Their number is ever increasing, their political power is growing and their demands are becoming louder and ever louder. With selfish lust they would annihilate the home, overthrow the government, destroy the church and do away with property. The unemployed classes in America constitute the most dangerous element in our population.

I remember once to have stood by Niagara Falls. Above, as far as the eye could reach, the water rushed madly along to the brink of the precipice. Then, with a sheer plunge of a hundred and sixty-five feet, it fell into a basin from which it poured with a current almost irresistible. Rushing, boiling, seething, it whirled away down the narrow gorge. When the first sensation of awe and wonder wore away a feeling akin to sadness crept over me. What a waste of energy! The water from four great inland seas has been plunging along by day and by night until the years have lengthened into centuries, the centuries into ages. During all this time the strength of a million giants is in the sounding torrent. What has it to show for this epoch of opportunity? Nothing but the deep path it has worn through the solid rock—a monument at once of its power and uselessness. For ages eternal the roar of the cataract has sounded the same refrain, wasted! wasted! wasted! Yet within its veil of tears the bright sun weaves a glorious bow of promise, foretelling the time when man shall harness the strength of glorious Niagara to the industries of the world. Then, as acres of machinery whir to the music of its falling waters, joyous labor shall fill the lap of Nature with abundance. No longer shall the refrain be, wasted! wasted! wasted! but useful! useful! useful!

The thoughtful observer who sees men idling away their time in public places, who beholds the stagnation in industry attending a presidential election; who marks the idle army of middle men through which a commodity passes before it reaches the consumer, who observes the host of boys growing into manhood without training in industrial pursuits, who sees these boys seeking positions among the dressy distributors rather than the brawny contributors of the world's wealth, who notices the girls trained to habits of luxury rather than industry,—in short, the observer who considers the forces that are withdrawn from the ranks of the world's producers and are thus absolutely supported by others, he must exclaim, "what a Niagara of waste!" Yes, more than this. Nature's Niagara does no harm; its energies are simply wasted. The human Niagara must be supported in all the pomp of idleness by the world's toilers. Moreover, as its floods penetrate the fertile fields of industry they spread confusion, desolation, dissatisfaction, poverty, riot and death. Thrice blessed shall he be who devises some plan by which the sum total of the world's energies shall be applied to the world's needs. He will work a change by which the utilization of Niagara's forces will sink into insignificance.

Young men and women, be not among the idlers. Take your stand with the bread-winners when

. . . . . "clamorous labor
Knocks with its hundred hands at the golden gates of the morning."

Toil on till close of day. Your bread will be the sweeter, your lot the happier, your influence the greater.

With you I go out into life. With you I cherish these three life thoughts: We shall not be idlers. We shall be persistent. Our aim shall be the promotion of human happiness.

Deafness Can't be Cured.

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed. Deafness is the result and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be distroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surface.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that we cannot cure by taking Hall's Catarrh cure. Send for circulars free.

Bro. Field speaks in very flattering terms of the reception accorded the Press Association at Saginaw and other places. He was delighted with his trip and returns to his duties much invigorated.

Editor Field and wife returned from the Press Excursion yesterday afternoon. Geo. Field left for camp. Peter Ridgely, the office devil, had charge of the News for a few hours, and carried the responsibility with grace and dignity.

Lenawee County was represented at the Press Association last week by Editor Stearns and wife of Adrian, James Schermerhorn of Hudson, Editor Kempton and wife of Addison and Editor Field and wife of Tecumseh. Mat Blosser and wife of Manchester, also attended.

Mrs. Lydia Hause, the mother of Dr. E. Hause, who died last week at the advanced age of 82 years, was one of the earliest settlers of the township of Ridgeway, and was the last remaining charter member of the Christian church at Britton. An obituary notice appears elsewhere.

The Stockholders of the Tiffany Iron Works met last Friday evening, and executed their legal articles of Association, to be filed in the office of the Secretary of State. The enterprise is sure to go now. They will meet again to-morrow evening when seven directors will be chosen and other officers elected.

The Union Sunday School Excursion to Manitou Beach has been definitely settled for Friday, Aug. 1st. The train will leave Tecumseh at 7:30 A. M., and will leave the beach, returning at 6:30 P. M., standard time. Fare for the round trip, including a steamboat ride from the beach to Birdsall's Grove, 30cts. Transportation will be furnished to all who purchase tickets before Thursday noon.

A sure way to exterminate English sparrows is said to be to feed them cornmeal and salt, one piece of salt to one peck of corn meal. The salt should be dissolved in water and thoroughly mixed with the meal, then dried. The best time to destroy them is in cold weather, for then feed is scarce. Within thirty days every sparrow in in the country can be exterminated.

"Lawn Tennis for Women" is the title of an article in Lippincott for August, which will greatly interest all lady players. It is written by those famous lady players, Miss Bertha L. Townsend and Miss Margarette Lyman Ballard, for years the champions of the United States. Lawn Tennis is the most widely popular of all out door games among men and women, and much has been written about it, but so far only from a man's point of view. Women's play of course differs essentially from that of men. This article is written with the object of improving the play among women, and should be read by every lady player.

THE TECUMSEH HERALD

TECUMSEH, MICH., JULY 24, 1890

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

Jas F. Cummins of Toledo was in town yesterday.

Will Baker, of Detroit, made a brief visit at the old home last week.

Wm. C. Heck is convalescing, but he seems to improve very slowly.

The Soldiers' Monument fund at Hudson is booming right along.

Prepare for the Union Sunday School excursion on Friday, Aug. 1st.

Miss Zella Gregory, of Battle Creek, returned to her home Tuesday. Miss Gregory has been visiting Miss Gertrude Fisher.

Tecumseh Lodge No. 69, F. & A. M., will hold a regular communication tomorrow evening. Work in the first degree. A full attendance is requested.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Coryell and Emilie Hamilton took their leave yesterday for Petoskey, with the expectation of remaining about four weeks.

Mrs. F. Farnham of Dunkirk, N. Y. and Mrs. L. H. Maltbie of Cattaraugus, aunt and sister of Mrs. S. M. Smith and Mrs. Hardenburgh, are spending a few weeks in Tecumseh.

Frank H. Hall received notice last week of his appointment as topographical aid on the government survey, and left at once for Washington. He expects to work in Montana on the irrigation survey.

We have received from T. E. Camburn a copy of the premium list of the South Dakota state fair, which will be held at Aberdeen, Sept. 15th to 19th. The premium list indicates that it will be a fine exhibition.

Mrs. W. C. Blood and daughter, Grace, left last Monday for their new home, Geneva, Ohio. Mrs. Geo. Spafford, who is in very poor health, accompanied them, in hopes of benefit from the fresh air of Lake Erie.

On Friday evening, August 1st, a concert will be given at the Macon M. E. church, Macon, by the Loyal Temperance Legion of this place. Let all who are interested in the children and the cause of temperance come. Remember the date, August 1st.

The W. C. T. U. having secured Miss Nannie Kyle as teacher, invite the co-operation of our townspeople in organizing a Loyal Temperance Legion. Let all the children and young people meet at the opera house next Saturday, July 26th, at 3 o'clock.

The August meeting of Lenawee County Grange will be held at Harmony hall, Riga, August 7th. A good program is promised. Public meeting commencing at 2 p. m. Conveyances will be in waiting at the station, to carry patrons to the hall, three miles south of Riga village.

Co. C. will furnish meals to all excursionists next Sunday for twenty-five cents per meal. The company is in fine shape, but the expenses incident to camp are heavy. The boys seldom call on our citizens for aid, so help them out now by patronizing them. You can help the company and get a good square meal at the same time.

The Evening Journal has supplemented its offer of $500 to the military company receiving the most votes with a second offer of $300 for companies outside of Detroit. This will give the smaller towns a fair show. Co. C stands a fair show of winning this prize. Let everybody vote for Co. C and help the boys win this prize. The ballots to be used can be cut out of the Evening Journal.

Vote for Co. C and help the boys win the $300 prize

Miss Sullivan, of Toledo, is spending a few weeks with Mrs. Dr. Fisher.

Supervisor James is able to be out and attend to his office duties again.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. James, of Detroit, arrived in town last Saturday for a few days' visit.

L. M. Ide and family, of Detroit, are spending the present week with his parents in Tecumseh.

Harry Snell, of Grand Rapids, spent last Sunday at his father's. His wife will remain here for some time yet.

A beautiful meteor was seen by several of our citizens last Saturday evening and another one on Sunday evening.

Mrs. Jas. S. Wilson, of Detroit, who is stopping at the old home, N. M. Sutton's, will prolong her stay during the heated term.

Mrs. Will Myers, of Nashville, Ill., arrived in town last week, and will spend about a month with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Heesen.

Lt. Elliott Gray has arrived in safety across the water. We received from him on Tuesday a copy of the London Globe of the date of July 9th.

Co. C goes to camp this week in splendid condition. We understand that Capt. Wood will make an effort to win one of the Evening Journal prizes.

Mrs. W. B. Mumford, nee Ada Peters, is spending a few days with Tecumseh friends. It recalled old times to see her in the Presbyterian choir last Sunday.

During the encampment the Mackinaw road will sell special trip tickets between all stations in Michigan and Battle Creek, at one and one-third fare for the round trip.

We print this week Prof. F. R. Hathaway's address delivered to the last graduating class of the Valley Seminary. It is a fine production and will repay careful perusal.

Co. C. took the noon train yesterday on the Mackinaw for the Battle Creek encampment. The boys left in fine style, with over sixty men in the ranks. Some of the officers went up Tuesday, and Quartermaster Patterson with those detailed for special duty went up Monday. Co. B of Adrian came up yesterday on the noon Lake Shore train and joined our boys at the Mackinaw depot.

"One Thing at a Time" is a good motto, the wisdom of which is exemplified by a striking picture in the August number of Peterson's Magazine. A girl stands with a broom in her hand, so completely absorbed in a newspaper that she is oblivious of the fact that the kettle is boiling over on the stove, the toast burning, and disorder generally reigning in the kitchen. The number is rich in fine illustrations, fashion plates and needle work designs.

A FEW HOURS DRIVE.

Business calling us to Ridgeway and Britton Tuesday we concluded to go with a horse and buggy. It was a delightful afternoon in which to take a little exercise in the open air and we improved the few hours at our command to the best advantage.

We found our friend J. B. Coller of Britton prospering as usual, and Dr. Hendershot is working up a fine practice there. Geo. Exelby keeps making improvements and he is now running a first class country hotel. F. Brown and Son are doing well in their new quarters. Ezra Sink is spending a few weeks with his gem car at Devils Lake. John Britton is managing the pestoffice up to the handle. Osgood Bros. are right there at the old stand.

Chas. Kniffin has good reason to be proud of his new dwelling house, as it is one of the best in the township. Charley Gripton too has a fine place. He is well fixed and evidently enjoys life.

Coming back to Ridgeway we halted about an hour. Frank Temple is working up a nice little business at the corner drug store. Charley Culbertson—Well, he makes a tip top postmaster, and they all say so.

H. J. Williams is still on the sick list and is having a pretty hard tustle. He has the best of medical aid and nursing, however, and is now slowly gaining. R. S. Houseman is managing the store during his illness. Wm. R. Wilson was found on the old farm and apparently as contented as ever. We made a short call at the Library and found a goodly number of Ridgeway's young people enjoying the magazines and books. We never visit the Library without congratulating our sister village upon the possession of such a sterling friend as Rufus T Bush. While we do not begrudge Ridgeway her good fortune we cannot help harboring the wish that Tecumseh had as fine a library and building.

—Get your tire neatly and carefully set at Richart's wagon shop and get a "grippe" Buggy Wrench gratis. Or your wheels new rimmed and tired and get a "Daisy" wrench and jack on the same terms, and with one or a pair of shafts get a set of Safety Holdbacks. Call and see the Novelties.

—Binder Twine. Binder Twine. Come and get our prices on twine. We will furnish it as cheap as any one and have a large stock on hand of three grades. Buy one of those whips that you can tickle the horses' ears with. We also have a large stock of fly nets, hammocks, and general stock of Hardware. We are also agents for the celebrated Star Windmill. Osgood Bros., Britton.

To farmers in need of binders or mowers. I sell the "Triumph" the most reliable machine in the market, and as I keep no canvasser on the road will give you his wages in reduction of price. Give me a call before buying elsewhere; it will certainly pay you for I mean business. Look out for low prices and No. 1 goods.
H. J. WILLIAMS, Gen'l Hardware Store, Ridgeway Mich.

—My store in Britton is head quarters for Drugs, Paints and Groceries, and you can buy them cheaper and get better quality than elsewhere. Farm produce of all kinds taken in exchange for goods at the highest and latest market price.
J. B. COLLER.

Buy A Buckeye.

Thos. R. Kyle has received the Agency for this vicinity of the Buckeye Harvesting Machinery. The Buckeye light mower has been a standard article of farm machinery for over a third of a century. It is the most perfect mower ever sold in this country. It has remained unchanged in its mechanism for thirty-three years, and no mower of late years has ever surpassed it. The Buckeye Binder is the lightest, strongest and most durable. Dynamometer tests always prove it to be the lighest draft binder ever made. Its knotter is adapted to the use of all kinds of twine, and it never fails to tie. Farmers wishing to buy a new mower or binder should examine these machines.

—Aching teeth are an abomination and a nuisance. Have them filled at Dr. B. F. Snyder's dental office before they commence to ache, thereby saving much valuable time, trouble, pain expense.

As there is no royal road to learning so there is no magical cure for disease. The effect, however, of taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla for blood disorders comes as near magic as can be expected of any mere human agency. This is due to its purity and strength.

The Great Benefit.

Which people in run down state of health derive from Hood's Sarsaparilla conclusively proves that this medicine "makes the weak strong." It does not act like a stimulant imparting fictitious strength, but Hood's Sarsaparilla builds up in a perfectly natural way all the weakened parts, purifies the blood and assists to healthy action those important organs, the kidneys and liver.

Secretary Windom has issued a call for offers of U. S. bonds to be made at the office of the treasury July 24. The recent light offerings have allowed the surplus to accumulate to $50,000,000 and with other available funds there is about $100,000,000 available for debt reduction.

Mr. Daniel D. Wilson, one of Newark's (O.) oldest, most wealthy and prominent citizens, died at his home on Granville street at the advanced age of eighty-two years. He had been a resident of Newark for upwards of forty years, coming originally from Virginia. Mr. Wilson was one of twenty-seven children, and came of good stock. He was the father of Mr. Gideon C. Wilson, an attorney of Cincinnati.

SHIPLOADS OF TOURISTS

Sail from New York for Europe, Among Them Chas. A. Dana.

NEW YORK, July 21.—Six large steamships sailed from this port for Europe, crowded to their utmost copacity. The steamships were La Gascogne for Havre, Etruria for Liverpool, Wieland for Hamburg, Werra for Bremen, Anchoria for Glasgow, and Werkendam for Rotterdam. Among the passengers by La Gascogne were: Mr. Charles A. Dana, of the New York Sun; M. Roustan, minister from France to the United States; Count Raffingnea, the Marquis and Marchioness Del Real Socorra, and General J. H. Wilson and daughters. On the Etruria were: Lieutenant Commander Emory, Sir Herbert Crane, Judge and Mrs. Eugene Cary, Judge and Mrs. J. C. Gray, Lieutenant Colonel and Mrs. P. J. Hewett and Mrs. George Pullman. On the Werkendam was Dr. Lesten H. Montgomery, delegate from Chicago to the Berlin medical congress, and about twenty other doctors from various cities, all going to attend the congress.

Swindling Poor Immigrants.

NEW YORK, July 21.—Several hundred angry people beseiged the banking establishment of Bernard Aronson, at 78 Canal street, hooting and denouncing Aronson, whom they accused of misappropriating funds entrusted to him to be used in bringing out the relatives and friends from Poland. A number of the crowd forced an entrance into the building and savagely assaulted the banker and his clerk, Samuel Silakowitz. In response to the cries of the two men for help Detective J. Raep appeared and after rescuing them conducted them to the Eldridge street station.

On being arraigned at the Essex market police court almost every man and woman in the crowded court room desired to appear against the prisoners and testify as to the worthless character of the tickets sent by Aronson to Europe. The banker and his clerk were remanded until today.

A TICKET SCALPER

Secures the Arrest of the President of the Chicago Railway Inter-State Commerce Association.

CHICAGO, July 21.—An attachment has been issued by Judge McConnell for the arrest of Chairman Walker, of the Inter-State Commerce Railway association, for refusing to answer to a subpœnae in an action brought by ticket scalper Mulford.

HOUSE TO VOTE ON ORIGINAL PACKAGE BILL TODAY.

Status of the Tariff Measure—The Senate to Change its Rules—Matters to be up for Discussion—When Will the National Solons Adjourn—Current Washington Gossip.

WASHINGTON, July 21.

SENATE will take up the tariff bill finally this week. Before doing so it will dispose of the Indian appropriation bills, but one. It is thought that this bill can be put through the Senate in a day. It will be taken up today apd this makes it likely thats that the tariff bill will be taken up Tuesday. The reading of the bill, if insisted upon, will consume the greater part of a day. The general debate will be chiefly from the Democratic side of the Senate chamber that is the Democrats have prepared long speeches to be made on the bill while the Republicans propose as far as possible to confine their remarks to the amendments. During the finance committee will take under consideration several proposed amendments to the bill and will likely report upon them. In the meantime the Republican may call another caucus to consider the proposition to change the rules so as to permit the federal election bill to be taken up. The Republican members of the committee on privilege and elections had the bill under consideration during the past week but have made little progress with it.

The managers of the original package bill are anxious to get a vote on it as soon as possible after the House meets today, and if they succeed in carrying out their plan the national bankruptcy bill will be taken up that day and discussed until Wednesday when a vote will be taken according to the order of the committee on rules. The appropriations committee intend to dispose of the conference report on the District of Columbia appropriation bill at the first opportunity and it will endeavor to call up the report Thursday. It is believed that the bill will be strongly antagonized and this may prevent the election committee bringing up either the case of Langston against Venable from the Fourth Virginia district or the case of Miller against Elliott from the Seventh Carolina district.

Burned His Wife to Death and then Killed Himself.

COLUMBIA, S. C., July 21.—One of the most horrible crimes on record is reported from Collecton county. The crime was committed on Mary's Island, an unfrequented spot in the county mentioned. Paddy Grant lived there with his wife Phoebe and another woman, supposed to be too intimate with Grant, frequently visiting his wife. Wednesday last Grant informed the relations of his wife that she had been severely hurt the week before by the explosion of a kerosene lamp and was in a bad condition. The relatives found her burned from her knees up in front, terribly charred and speechless. She died when an attempt was made to remove her. No traces of oil could be found on the floor or no traces of burning below the knees of the woman. These and contradictory statements caused the arrest of Grant, but he escaped from his guards. Having been run to earth again he requested permission to return to his room for a short while. Almost immediately the report of a gun was heard, and it was found that he had placed the muzzle of his musket against his stomach and exploded it, blowing a hole clear through himself. It is thought that kerosene was poured over his wife by himself and the other woman and that she was then set on fire.

Short in his Accounts.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 21.—James Mulick, book-keeper for Weber & Meyer, carpet dealers, was discovered to be short in his accounts $1,000. Mulick promised to make good the defalcation and was discharged and will not be prosecuted if he lives up to his promise. Mulick comes of a good family but has been traveling in fast company.

DODD'S CATARRH CURE. LOCAL AND INTERNAL TREATMENT.

In order to cure catarrh it is necessarry to allay the inflammation of the irritated membranes with a soothing application, cleanse the head of the plugging mucous secretions, and heal the discharging ulcers. For cold in the head and nasal catarrh Dodds' local treatment does this without the aid of snuff, douches or fumes. If the disease has extended downwards affecting the bronchial tubes or lungs, digestion and blood, the internal treatment both removes from the system the scattered poison, and by its building-up properties assists nature in restoring the impaired parts. Send for our book treating on catarrh. FOSTER, MILBURN & CO., proprietors, Buffalo, N. Y. Sold in Tecumseh, Mich., by C. A. Wright & Co., druggists.

MORTGAGE SALE.

WHEREAS, default has been made in the payment of a certain indenture of mortgage, bearing date the 16th day of January, A.D. 1884, made and executed by Jeremiah M. Burson and Julia E. Burleson, his wife, of the first part, to Enoch G. Cook, of Tecumseh, Michigan, of the second part, which mortgage was on the 17th day of January, A.D., 1884, duly recorded in the office of Register of Deeds for the county of Lenawee, Michigan in Liber 109 of Mortgages on page 91, and which said mortgage was afterwards on the 27th day of May, A. D. 1888, duly assigned by the said Enoch G. Cook to Moses Bartlett, which deed of assignment was on the 30th day of January, A.D., 1890, duly recorded in the office of Register of Deeds for Lenawee county aforesaid, in Liber 118 of Mortgages, on page 669; by which default the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become operative. And whereas there is at this date claimed to be due and unpaid, as principal and interest on the said mortgage, the sum of One Thousand Seven Hundred and Eighty and 8-100 Dollars ($1780.08) and no proceedings have been instituted at law or in equity to collect the same. Notice is therefore hereby given that, by virtue of said power of sale, and the statutes of the state of Michigan, in such case made and provided, for the purpose of realizing the money now, as aforesaid, due and owing on said mortgage, together with interest to accrue thereon, and the costs and charges of this foreclosure, including an attorney fee of Twenty-five Dollars, as provided by law and stipulated for in said mortgage, I shall on the 25th day of July, A.D. 1890, at nine o'clock in the forenoon of that day, at the east front door of the court house in the city of Adrian, in said county of Lenawee, (that being the place where the circuit court for said county is holden) sell at public vendue to the highest bidder, all those parcels of land situate in the township of Macon, in the county of Lenawee and state of Michigan, known and described as follows, to wit: The east half of the northwest quarter of section five (5) town five (5), south, of range five (5) east. Also all that part of the east half of the southwest quarter of said section five (5), town five (5) south, of range five (5) east, bounded as follows: Beginning at the intersection of the Tecumseh and Saline road, so called, with the east line of the southwest quarter of said section five (5); thence running southwesterly in center of said road six (6) rods and twelve (12) links; thence north parallel with east line of said southwest quarter of section five (5) to the north line of said southwest quarter of section five (5); thence east to northeast corner of said southwest quarter of section five (5), thence south to the place of beginning, containing eighty-one acres of land, more or less.

Dated April 21, 1890.

Judge of Probate for the county of Lenawee, on the 9th day of June, A. D. 1890, there will be sold at public vendue to the highest bidder at the dwelling house on the hereinafter described land in the township of Clinton, in the county of Lenawee, in said State, on Saturday, the 26th day of July, A. D. 1890, at 1 o'clock in the afternoon of that day (subject to all encumbrances by mortgage or otherwise existing at the time of the death of said deceased, or at the time of this sale, and also subject to the right of dower and the homestead rights of the widow of John Heaney, deceased, therein) the following described real estate, to wit:

All that certain tract or parcel of land situate in the township of Clinton, Lenawee county, Michigan, known and described as follows, to wit: The west half of the northwest quarter of section one, (1) of town five (5) south of range four (4) east, containing seventy-five acres and one-hundredths of an acre of land, more or less; excepting and reserving therefrom one and one-half acres heretofore sold to Lester Brooks and Charles O'Hara.

Dated June 9, 1890.

ALEXANDER RICHARD, Administrator.

ESTATE OF EDWARD ROWLAND.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss. At a session of the Probate Court for the county of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office in the city of Adrian, on Tuesday, the eighth day of July in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety.

Present, Richard B. Robbins, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Edward Rowland, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Elise Rowland, widow of said deceased, praying that administration of said estate may be granted to petitioner or some other suitable person.

It is ordered, That Monday, the 4th day of August next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

COMPENSATIONS.

The morning comes with bitter winds that blow
Along the street a swirling mass of snow;
But evening brings, from low rifts upward rolled
The radiant glory of the sunset's gold.

One finds the day with weary labor long,
While close at hand he hears an idler's song
That leaves an echo, but his work remains,
To greet new people's rushing down the plains.

A sturdy ship, in seas that wildly toss,
Where northern tempests surge the waves across,
Makes desperate battle till the night is done,
And finds at morn the long-sought haven won.

When autumn's heavy footsteps lingering pass
Above the fallen leaves and withered grass,
Beneath the rustling garments trailing slow,
The buds of violets to perfection grow.

Swift as the thought that sweeps the star-spent skies,
Death's arrow to its work unerring flies,
And finds that Love, with prescience as fleet,
On the chill lips has laid his message sweet.

No wearing toil, no hours of bitter pain,
Come to the world unknowing joy or gain;
And life, with all its weary waste, will prove
The pathway leading to a radiant love.

HIS WIFE'S FORTUNE.

A Charming Little Romance with a Moral.

"Have you heard the news about Miss Temple, Ned?" said Charley Ashton, as he sauntered leisurely up to the desk which Edward Farnham occupied in Messrs. Smith & Jones' office on Wall street.

The warm blood colored Ned's cheek in spite of all his struggles to prevent it, and he replied:

"No; I hope no harm."

"Well; I should guess it wasn't. Come, put up you books, and as we go up town I'll tell you."

"No; I can not leave yet. I have not finished my balance."

"Oh, pshaw! finish that to-morrow before ten o'clock. I wouldn't work as hard as you for any man living, much less bankers, who think that all a fellow is made for is to work and make money for them. Come along."

"No, I can not go."

"Well, then, the tale in short is she's had a big fortune left her, some say $500,000."

An involuntary sigh escaped Ned, and he rather muttered than spoke:

"I'm sorry to hear it."

"Why, what's got into you, you ninny? Sorry? Why, I haven't heard any thing to please me so much in many a day. I always liked the girl, but I'm not philosopher enough to marry for love alone. My doctrine is when poverty comes in at the window love goes out at the door."

"I am afraid I don't agree with you in all things, but I have no time to discuss it now. Miss Temple, in my opinion, would be a fortune to any man did she not possess a cent of money."

"Pshaw! that's old fogy. Love in a cottage! Ha! ha! Well, I liked her pretty well before, but can't help thinking her attractions very considerably enlarged since I heard that news. Never should have thought of any thing but a pleasant acquaintance; guess I'll go in for her now. Good-bye, old fell, and don't hurt yourself working over those books."

Ned made no reply, but he felt as if he would like to grind beneath his heel one who could speak so irreverently of her, who, to his idea, combined every grace of heart and mind and perfection of form and feature which should make up a perfect woman. His thoughts turned to action, and he caught himself stamping his heel on the desk stool with such force as almost to dent a hole in it, and looking up saw Mr. Smith's steady gaze fixed on him.

Back to his work he tried to bring his thoughts, but they were not subject to his will, and he found himself in great danger of writing the thoughts passing through his mind. "She is lost to me now. Oh, how I wish it had never happened!" He shut the book, but put away his papers, and with that dreary, lost, far-away kind of look passed unheedingly among the throng on the money mart of the new world.

Charley Ashton lost no time in improving his opportunities, for that night found him seated tete-a-tete with Miss Temple in a cosy little room in Twenty-first street.

Miss Temple was an orphan, and had for years lived with an aunt—her father's sister. An income of $400 a year had been left her, which at least supplied all absolutely necessary wants. She was not ashamed to assist her aunt about many things some would call menial; and in form and feature, heart and mind, all her acquaintances said, fully sustained the high opinion we have seen Ned Farnham had of her.

Ere the evening was over Charley Ashton had succeeded in appearing deeply in love, and not many days passed ere he had proposed and was accepted. Of all her male acquaintances Miss Temple had always preferred the two young men we have mentioned. It was true she had rather leaned to the quiet, steady Mr. Farnham, but of late he had ceased to visit her, while Mr. Ashton's presence had been almost constant. Hence she had persuaded herself that she loved and had accepted him.

Charley urged a speedy marriage, why, came in a conversation too long for me to detail, wherein it appeared that some of the "boys" on the "street" were fixing up a pool to buy up a certain stock, and our friend Aston wanted some of the $500,000 to put in it. Anna Temple preferred a longer time, urged that time would make them know each other better, especially in the intimate relation they now stood. Charley vowed that he would never change, and he knew that time could never develop any fault in her.

"But," said Miss Temple, "there is another reason, and I think I can be free with you now. I have spent so much of my little income, and aunt has no spare money, so that I have no means of defraying the necessary expenses."

"But you have the fortune left you by your Australian uncle, and even if you have not received it your agents will certainly make an advance."

"I have no fortune, dear Charley. Some thought it was mine, but the fortune you probably allude to was left to my cousin, Miss Anna Thompson Temple, to whom I introduced you at the Philharmonic."

"Ah, it was, indeed! She is a favored young lady; and how much does she receive?"

"Report said $500,000, but Cousin Nan has been informed by the agents that there is but $10,000 in money, and the rest in houses and lots in Melbourne, valued at $90,000."

"Ah! well, really, how these things do spread. But to our matter; I guess Miss Anna, you had best have your way."

The hours of that evening dragged heavily along, and as they lengthened Mr. Charles Ashton's manner became more and more formal. He left, and Anna's warm heart was sad as she thought over the cool manner and cooler parting. No sleep came to her eyes that night.

"Can it be?" she said to herself a thousand times; "and yet it must, for his manner changed almost from my telling him of Nellie's fortune."

The next night and Charlie was not in his usual place, and the next, and still more. About a week afterward a short note informed Miss Temple that, "having lost all his savings in a bad speculation, he could not think of holding her to an engagement which would be out of his power to consummate in years."

To say this did not grieve her would be false, but it required not many days to teach her that she had not loved Charles Ashton as she should the man she was to marry.

Again our two young men met. This time on Broadway. Charley, gayly sauntering along, hailed Ned in his old familiar way:

"Well, old boy, off early to-day?"

"I've been promoted, and am not obliged to work so late, though I do often; then I think of taking a ride in the park; my head has ached much of late, and I am more nervous than formerly."

"Shouldn't work so hard; don't get any thanks for it. By the by, that fortune of Miss Temple's turns out to be all in my eye."

"How—what's that?" was the eager reply.

"Well, a Miss Somebody Temple had about one hundred thousand dollars left her, but it wasn't our pretty little friend."

"But I heard you were very attentive—some said engaged."

"There's no telling what might have been but for that fool of an uncle making a mistake in names. However, it's all over now. You know that I, at least, can't afford to marry a poor woman, no matter if she is a Peri. I know you entertain some sort of foolish notion that love, etc., will do, but it's all bosh. Give me the dimes, my boy. When poverty comes in at the window, etc., you know. Take my advice and drop all such foolish ideas."

Ashton might as well have talked to the lamp-post for all the hearing Ned Farnham did. What he was thinking of we can not say, but he did not go to the park that afternoon, but the evening found him in the little parlor, which had been so often graced by Charley's presence. Ere the evening was over he had explained his long absence, told of his better prospects, and had offered her his heart and hand. She asked three weeks to consider, he to visit her as often as he pleased. At the end of that time he was accepted, and Anna learned what true love was.

Here the story might end, but there is a sequel. Some months after the engagement Mr. Smith tapped Ned on the shoulder and motioned him to the private office.

"Going to marry my niece?" said that gentleman.

"I am engaged to Miss Anna Temple, sir, and we expect, in a quiet way, to be married one month from to-day. But was not aware that she was your niece."

"Neither was I until a few days since. As for your quiet way, understand me, sir—the child of my only sister can be married nowhere else but in my house. Come, now, no flinching. I've heard all about it. But she's poor—poor as Job's turkey; and I've too many children to give her more than a decent wedding."

Ned did not understand the expression on Mr. Smith's face, but felt a little angered, and replied:

"I should never have addressed her, and I would release her this moment, if I knew she were an heiress."

"No you don't; no you don't. I know you and I know the whole story. You can go."

Ned pondered long over this singular conversation, but got no satisfaction from his own thoughts or from Anna. She replied only by a smile and a kiss.

Notwithstanding all the urging of her new-found uncle Anna refused to leave her aunt until the time for the wedding. That event came and the ceremony was over. Then Mr. Smith called the young couple into his library, and drawing from his safe a strong box, said:

"Now, young man, you're tied hard and fast, I'll tell you, you have got an heiress and a rich one, too. A foolish brother of her father, who would go to Australia, took it into his head to die, not long since, and left such a botched-up will, that it has taken over six months to get at the straight of it. We were his agents and kept the matter to ourselves because it was a large sum and might create impostors. We soon disposed of the smaller legacy of $10,000 to Miss Anna Thompson Temple, but the contents of this box, £100,000, in consols, we used more scrutiny in assigning, and in the course of our investigations I not only found the rightful owner of our trust, but the child of my only sister. Sir, you are worthy of her and what is of less value, her fortune. The morning papers will announce you as a partner in our house."

THE LOST AND FOUND.

LESSON IV, THIRD QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, JULY 27.

Text of the Lesson, Luke xv, 1-10—Commit Verses, 4-7—Golden Text, Luke xv, 10—Commentary by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Compiled from Lesson Helper Quarterly by permission of H. S. Hoffman, publisher, Philadelphia.]

1. "Then drew near unto Him all the publicans and sinners for to hear Him." Whatever else these might have to forsake in order to be His disciples, they would not have to renounce that which is perhaps the hardest *of all to lay aside—religiousness, or self right*eousness—for they did not profess to have any. They were despised by the holy people of the day: The Kingdom was not for them.

2. "And the Pharisees and scribes murmured, saying, This man receiveth sinners, and eateth with them." They said a grand true thing when they said "This man receiveth sinners." He said Himself, "I came not to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance" (Luke v, 32). And Paul, by the Spirit, rings it out as "A faithful saying and worthy of all acceptation, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners" (I Tim. i, 15).

3. "And He spake this parable unto them." The whole chapter is one parable in three parts, showing the love of the Good Shepherd, the Spirit and the Father, in searching for and welcoming back the lost one. The lesson today brings before us the first two parts of the parable, the third part being reserved for next week. Both in creation and in redemp*tion the Father, Son and Spirit are seen work*ing for the welfare of the creature. "In the beginning God created." "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God. * * * All things were made by Him." "By the Word of the Lord were the heavens made and all the host of them by the breath (spirit) of His mouth." "And God said, Let us make man in our image" (Gen. i, 1; John i, 1, 3; Ps. xxxiii, 6; Gen. i, 26). So also in redemption. "God so loved that He gave His only begotten Son." "The Son of God loved me and gave Himself for me." "Through the Eternal Spirit He offered Himself without spot to God" (John iii, 16; Gal. ii, 20; Heb. ix, 14). And, stranger still, both Father, Son and Spirit come to make their abode in the heart of the true penitent who has turned to God (John xiv, 17, 23).

4. "Go after that which is lost until He find it." First we have the Son as the Good Shepherd seeking the sheep which is lost. The same illustration is found in Matt. xviii, 11-14, in connection with His saying, "The Son of Man is come to save that which was lost." The sinner is brought before us as a lost and helpless soul, unable to do anything to restore himself; not knowing the way back, and even if he knew it he is without strength to get there.

5. "*And when He hath found it, He lay*eth it on His shoulders, rejoicing." Out in the desert He heard its cry; sick and helpless, and ready to die; and the cry of the helpless reached his heart. He said to Moses, "I have surely seen the affliction of my people which are in Egypt, and have heard their cry * * *; for I know their sorrows" (Ex. iii, 7). "In all their affliction He was afflicted, and the angel of His presence saved them; in His love and in His pity He re*deemed them; and He bare them and carried* them all the days of old." "And of Benjamin He said, * * * he shall dwell between His shoulders" (Isa. lxiii, 9; Deut. xxxiii, 12).

6. "And when He cometh Home." Thank God for this, that, having found the sheep which was lost, He bringeth it home. He does not lose any by the way. Of those whom the Father gives to Him He loses none. He says, "I give unto them eternal life, and they shall never perish; neither shall any pluck them out of my hand" (John x, 28).

"Rejoice with me; for I have found my sheep which was lost." Not only is his own heart glad, but he will have his friends and neighbors to rejoice with him because the lost is found. Jesus would have His people to rejoice with Him, for he says, "These things have I spoken unto you, that my joy might remain in you, and that your joy might be full."

7. "I say unto you, that likewise joy shall be in heaven over one sinner that repenteth." If a shepherd is so glad over the recovery of a lost sheep that he causes his neighbors to rejoice with him, "How much is a man better than a sheep?" (Matt. xii, 12). And how much is the finding and bringing home of a lost soul better than the finding and bringing home of a lost sheep. But here is a revelation of the unseen by one who has been there and knows all about it: joy in heaven, and why? Because a sinner has repented.

8. "Either what woman having ten pieces of silver, if she lose one piece, doth not light a candle, and sweep the house, and seek diligently till she find it." In the sheep there might be a consciousness of its being lost, but a piece of metal has no feeling and is not conscious of anything. It may be that we are thus reminded of the soul that is "dead in sins" (Eph. ii, 5), and requires the convicting power of the Spirit (John xvi, 8). The woman with her light is the active agent in this case, and, as in the former, she seeks till she finds. Israel, as a nation, is compared to a woman (Isa. liv, 1, 5; lxii, 11, etc.)

9. "Rejoice with me; for I have found the piece which I had lost." Again, as in the former case, are friends and neighbors called upon to rejoice. All who have the Spirit of God ought to rejoice in the work of the Spirit wherever that work is manifest; and if we were filled with the Spirit what a going forth there would be after lost ones and backsliders. If friends and neighbors rejoice in the restoration of a piece of silver to its owner, the piece of money being the peculiar property of its owner, how much more should Christians rejoice in the conversion of every soul, wherever on the face of the whole earth that soul may be saved, because every redeemed one becomes a member of that body of which all the redeemed form a part, and of which Christ is the head (Eph. iv, 15, 16). And every member added to the body (although in His book all the members were written, when as yet there was none of them, Ps. cxxxix, 16) just hastens so much the manifest completion of the body, the marriage of the Lamb, and the coming of the Kingdom. Then shall be the true home bringing and the fullness of joy of all the redeemed.

10. "Likewise, I say unto you, there is joy in the presence of the angels of God over one sinner that repenteth." Not only there shall be (as in verse 7) but there is joy in Heaven over one penitent sinner. If we saw only one soul saved as the result of a day's teaching or preaching, we might not feel very much encouraged; but when we remember that every repentant soul, young or old, small or great, causes joy in Heaven, it ought to make us rejoice, too, with great joy. Think of Jesus patiently and diligently seeking the soul of Nicodemus, and just as patiently and diligently the soul of the poor sinful woman of Samaria, and let us be encouraged to more diligent personal effort. When praying once with a repentant one, upon whose mind the memory of a mother's prayers was doing effective work, I said to him as we rose from prayer: "Now it may be that the angels have already told your mother about this transaction." The joy that filled that man's heart at the very thought of the possible joy of his mother in Heaven made the words of this verse seem very real to me.

In the Clinton items of the HERALD awhile ago, we spoke of an old gentleman in Clinton who has but one leg, is 72 years old and knits his own socks. The Adrian Press thinks it curious he should need more than one sock. The old gentleman has played in hard luck all his life, but still retains a change of socks.

THE SCHOOL AT MURPHY'S MILL

"I'll tell you how," said grandpa to the listening girls and boys,
"A teacher taught a backwoods school. 'Twas out in Illinois
In rough and ready days when schools were not as they are now—
When many boisterous deeds were done we folks would not allow;
When people boasted of their strength and seemed to take delight
In trying it on every one, and thought that might was right;
When fathers at barn raising bees would wrestle, jump and box,
And when a man was little good who couldn't stand the knocks.

"The school of which I speak was called the worst for miles about;
No matter who essayed to teach, the boys would turn him out.
They somehow would arrange it to discourage every one,
For they were full of mischief and they did it just for fun.
Committeemen would hire teachers every week or two,
Who'd hold the fort a little while and all at once be through.
It seemed as if there was no hand with strength those boys to rule,
And so 'twas only now and then the district had a school.

"At times they used to hire youths from college fresh and new;
It didn't take them very long to find they wouldn't do,
For he who put on city airs and had an uppish way
Had not the very slightest chance of having long to stay.
And then again the men employed would be so very cross,
They did not seem to care to teach but simply just to 'boss;'
And so the boys for this or that found fault with every one,
But it was only mischief and their way of having fun.

"They had a half a score of ways a pedagogue to rout;
Sometimes they'd close the chimney o'er and smoke the teacher out,
Or bar the doors, or work some one of many cunning tricks
To place the new-found leader in a trying, helpless fix.
For when a lot of roguish boys decide to have some fun,
The point they set about to gain is certain to be won.
And though the teacher might declare with force he came to stay,
It nearly always happened that he quit and went away.

"Once when the school had long been closed the word was sent around
That books would be resumed again; a teacher had been found;
And all the sturdy youths who in the former sports had shared
Felt not a little pleasure, and for future sport prepared.
And little fellows much too small to take an active part
Were all on hand to see the fun and get an early start.
And ere the teacher had arrived the stragglers all were in,
And waited quite impatiently to see the fun begin.

"I call the morn to mind as though 'twere only yesterday;
The flakes of snow were falling in a blinding sort of way.
The wind was wildly blowing it in fleecy puffs about;
'Twas just a jolly winter morn to turn a teacher out.
The boys assembled early, with the leaders all on hand,
And all their schemes were nicely laid and every thing was planned;
They waited for the teacher with a curious suspense,
And all were very anxious that the 'doings' should commence.

"No one could tell from whence the newly hired teacher came,
Nor did it seem to matter much; the end would be the same.
The boys with smiles recounted the victories they'd won,
And talked of what would come to pass before the day was done.
The storm grew fiercer out of doors, the snow in scurries drove,
The boys were all within and closely huddled round the stove.
All unannounced the door swung back and ere they were aware
The teacher—just a woman young and frail—was standing there.

"The fiercest flash of lightning from the fairest azure skies
Would not in the beholders waken more of deep surprise;
And o'er the faces of the youths who mischief planned there came
A sudden flush of color and a look akin to shame.
In vain their minds had plotted and for naught their wits had schemed,
For she was quite beyond the realm of all which they had dreamed;
The glances that were passed between wide open, wondering eyes
Said nothing should be done until they might reorganize.

"So at recess the boys convened to talk the matter o'er,
For such a turn in their affairs had never come before.
And one strong youth, with firmness said: 'Who dares that girl to harm
Will learn how much of strength I have laid up in my right arm;
Who disobeys a rule she makes shall suffer for the deed.'
And all the others then and there with him as one agreed.
The youth who thus spoke up for her she loves and honors still.
Ask grandma if she ever taught the school at Murphy's Mill!"

HOW I WAS "BURGLED."

The Precautions Taken After the Thief's Visit.

I live in a suburban villa in the vicinity of London. Mine is one of a row of detached houses with small gardens, and fields both front and back. I am comparatively new to housekeeping, having lived in chambers until my marriage a few months ago. When we entered into residence we were so full of the delights of furnishing that we paid no particular attention to the details of window and door fastenings. The former had those little ordinary latches that are drawn across under a clip and are known (in the profession) as the "burglar's joy." Their flimsy character excited no special emotion in our inexperienced and ingenious minds. We supposed that they were like other people's fastenings; the same builder had put up the entire row of houses, and all were occupied by tenants who, if they had any fear of burglars, kept those tremors to themselves. The back door had rather rickety bolts, it struck us; but, on the other hand, the front door—the burglar's favorite entrance, as every one knows—was massively barred, chained and double-locked. So we possessed our souls in a sense of security, and even joked about the possibility of the midnight prowler making a descent upon us. For a time we even took our valuables—including a collection of very superior electroplate—up to our bedroom every night. There was nothing like proper precaution, as my wife sagely remarked. After awhile we got to let the cook take charge of the "silver." This she did satisfactorily enough until the continued absence of burglars lulled her spirit into a state of happy oblivousness of the predatory tribe. Rumors of housebreaking at a distance occasionally reached us, but they affected us no more than do the obituary notices of people we don't know. All we did was to talk vaguely of getting a dog.

This was the sleep; presently came the awakening. One fatal Monday morning our marital slumbers were disturbed at seven a. m. by the cook rushing into our bedroom, and with pallid cheeks, distended eyes and disheveled locks, crying: "Oh, m'm, there's been robbers in the house!"

In less time than that brief period popularly known as a "jiffy" my wife and I reached the scene of the catastrophe. Never shall I forget the spectacle that met our gaze. The villain had apparently confined his depredations to the kitchen, but there he had wrought fearful havoc. All the doors of the cupboards, all the drawers of the sideboards were wide open, and such of their contents as had been left were strewn upon the floor. On the rug were fragments of cold rabbit pie and cocoanut cake, apparently cast there out of pure superfluity of naughtiness. On the table were the pie dish and cake plate, both empty. There also stood a glass and jug from which the ruffian had evidently been drinking beer. Hard by were some half-burned lucifer matches and a few shreds of tobacco, showing that he had finished up comfortably with a smoke. Both the kitchen windows and that of the scullery were wide open—a fact which thrust itself upon our outer consciousness, for the morning was raw and damp and we were thinly clad.

When we had recovered sufficiently to take note of our actual losses, then indeed the iron entered our souls. Wedding presents are not always a source of unqualified pleasure to either donors or recipients. The former frequently regard them as a little better than a tax levied by custom; the latter occasionally feel that Aunt Jane and Cousin Peter might have done the thing rather more handsomely while they were about it. But it is astonishing what a wonderful affection one feels for wedding presents when they have been stolen.

As we looked for this gift and that, and found them not, the most tender chords were touched. I remember having thought Uncle Sniffkin's pair of plated snuffers rather a poor gift, for he is something considerable in the city. But, now that the accustomed peg knew them no more, I saw those snuffers in a new light. I thought how uncle had probably walked miles to get them—he was greatly addicted to a second-hand shop in the Mile End road—and a softened sadness stole over me, and I longed to grasp his honest hand and hint at his buying us another pair. My wife bore the trying ordeal of seeking and finding not bravely enough until she made one dreadful discovery. Then she broke down, and, flinging herself on my breast, exclaimed through her tears: "O dearest, the wretch has actually helped himself to some of our we-e-dding cake!"

Eventually my burglar was captured, and I had the pleasure of a personal interview with him. He was a thick-set young fellow with a not unpleasing air of melancholy about him. By profession he was a shoe-maker—that is to say, he professed to follow that calling; but the pair of boots he made for his solicitor (who represented him at the trial) were a misfit, and were actually being touched up at the moment he was arrested. In some respects he was a man of careful and providential habits; he banked at the postoffice (£11 9s stood to his credit when he took my spoons), and he kept a diary. In the latter were artless references to certain "calls" he had made, and particularly "remembrances" he had taken away with him. Joe—for so he was familiarly addressed by the police, who boasted quite a nodding acquaintance with him in private life—was rather offended when I asked if he had experienced much difficulty in getting into my house. "Why," he said, "to crack a crib like yours is as easy as kissing my hand." He further explained that he took the servant's stockings from the dresser drawer merely to put the knives and forks in. He had also taken a volume of culinary recipes. "My missis ain't much of a cook," he said to me half apologetically. The whole plunder he had wrapped up in my Inverness cape; and he actually used to wear that garment not a mile from my house when passing the bad money for which he was primarily nabbed! Had I met the rascal in the street, with what a start of surprise should I have recognized the cloak.

I asked him if he usually had a bite and sup in the houses he visited. "Yes," he said, confidentially, "you usually feels a bit down when you've finished a 'job.'" Poor fellow, he dines on skilly now, for he got seven years.

Perhaps I need scarcely add that my house is now a sort of combination of fortress and arsenal. I have had the kitchen and scullery windows barred, and the other windows secured with heavy shutters. Strong bolts have been fixed on the passage side of the drawing and dining-rooms, so that if either of these were entered from without the sphere of operations would be confined to that one room. Then, on all the back doors I have fixed bells and springs. In the passage I every night chain up a large and savage dog. I have purchased a double-barrel gun and a revolver, and with the latter I practice at a target on the wall, and am now so skillful that I never by any chance miss the wall. And when at night we retire to rest, my wife leading the way, the cook following with the plate and I last, armed to the teeth—well, really, I sometimes almost wish that a burglar would pay us another visit.—St. James' Budget.

—A captain in a regiment was asked why he was so bald. He replied (the Duke of York being present): "By junior officers stepping over my head." The Duke immediately promoted him.

GREAT SCHEME.

Proposed Amalgamation of Base Ball Interests.

COMBINE OF LEAGUE, ASSOCIATION AND WESTERN LEAGUE

Into Two Divisions of Eight Clubs Each, The Leaders of Each of Which Will Contest for the World's Championship.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN., July 21.—The Journal prints the details of a big base ball combination now in process of incubation. The information comes from base ball magnates who are in A. G. Spalding's confidence. The plan is for an amalgamation of the National league, American association and Western association into one large organization of sixteen cities. These would be divided into an eastern and a Western circuit as follows:

Eastern—New York, Brooklyn, Boston, Philadelphia, Washington, Pittsburg, Cincinnati and Cleveland.

Western—Chicago, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, Detroit, Indianapolis, Kansas City, Omaha and St. Louis.

On each of these circuits a regular schedule would be played. The winners in each would then play a world's championship series in each of the large cities. In this way base ball would once more be put on a paying basis, and the combined associations would be in a position to make it very uncomfortable for the Brotherhood. Traveling expenses would be much lighter, and with a pool of the three big associations, there would be enough first-class players to put up the very best article of ball. Spalding's recent purchase of a controlling interest in the New York club is part of the plan.

Kidnapped and Killed.

COLORADO SPRINGS, COL., July 21—Three weeks ago Mr. B. F. Spinney, a business man of this place and a large ranch owner in South Park was kidnappped and taken to the mountains by a Texan named Harris who claimed that Spinned owned him $2,000 for a bunch of cattle he had purchased of him. Since that time nothing has been heard of Spinney. Mr; Harrington, brother-in-law of Spinney, raised the requisite sum recently and went into the mountains to pay the ransom, but he too, has disappeared. The Texan said that he would hold Spinney ten days and the money not forth coming in that time he would kill him. It is feared that he has carried out his threat.

A Woman Dies from Stabbing.

COLUMBUS, O., Julp 21.—A fatal sequel to a peculiar tragedy occurred here Sunday. Elizabeth Jones, a white woman who was stabbed about a week ago by John Evans, colored, died from the effects of her injuries. Evans has been confined in jail since the cutting and today the charge against him was changed to murder. The tragedy grew out of the woman's refusal to marry him. She regarded the idea of wedding a colored man as rediculous and laughed at his proposition, whereupon he drew a large knife, plunging it into both her sides.

Another Cyclone.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, IA., July 21.—A cyclone visited Pacific Junction, a small town 19 miles south of this city, doing considerable damage to property. A grocery store and feed store were demolished and a passenger coach on the Chicago Burlingtod and Quincy road was blown from the track. A conductor who was sleeping in the coach was fatally injured.

Machine Works Burned.

PATTERSON, N. J., July 21.—A fire was discovered in the engine room of J. C. Todd's machine and boiler factory. Before the fire department could get the flames under control the boiler room, together with its contents and the greater portion of the building were destroyed. Loss about $150,000; insurance $75,000.

Switchmen's Strike.

CHICAGO, July 21.—About 200 Rock Island switchmen who went out on a strike because a switchman, Michael Fox was discharged returned to work in the afternoon on the order of grand organizer Sweeney, pending an investigation into the matter.

OHIO NEWS.

Items of Interest Gathered From Buckeye Cities and Towns.

SIDNEY.—William Gates, a resident of the Fourth ward, took arsenic yesterday with suicidal intent and died soon after.

BELLAIRE.—Thomas Potts, a railroader, had his head crushed under the cars at the nail works yesterday and was instantly killed.

XENIA.—Eugene Hellriggle, a carriage maker of this place, has assigned to T. L. Magruder. Assets and liabilities about $6,000.

ATHENS.—Elnora Brisbane, aged 23, was so overcome by the heat while gathering blackberries near here that she died soon after reaching home.

MASSILLON.—Mayor Reed sent Mart Larkins to jail for six months and fined him $100 for smashing Harry Seely in the face. Seely was badly used up.

MT. VERNON.—Mrs. Nelson Sharp, a demented woman, aged 50, deliberately laid her neck across the rail before an approaching train and was decapitated.

WASHINGTON C. H.—Colonel S. N. Yeoman, of this place, died yesterday at Tate Springs, Tennessee, whither he went some time ago for his health. He was 62 years old.

ZANESVILLE. — Lottie Vincent, the courtesan who shot herself, is dead at last.

Clarence Dietz, overcome by heat while threshing, will probably die.

WAPAKONETA.—A driving rod on a C. H. & D. passenger train broke near here and it was only by the prompt action of the engineer, C. C. Klein, that the whole train was prevented from jumping into the river.

MT. VERNON.—The 16-year-old son of Mrs. Fannie Albaugh caused the arrest of her and Amos Wymer on the charge of adultery. Not long ago the woman gave birth to a child which died mysteriously, and this may precipitate an investigation.

MARION.—By the arrest of Misses Lulu Mehaffy, of Bucyrus, and Lewis, of Nevada, a damage suit is likely to be caused. The young ladies hired a rig at a Bucyrus liver stable, and not returning when expected, their arrest was ordered They claim they simply extended their journey further than anticipated.

FOUR KILLED.

Another Bloody Kentucky Vendetta Reported.

IN WHICH FOUR MEN ARE KILLED AND OTHERS WOUNDED.

Twenty-five Men Arrayed Against Eighteen, All Armed with Forty-four Calibre Winchester Rifles.

LOUISVILLE, KY., July 21.—Another outbreak of the Smith-Messer feud is reported from Knox county. The battle occurred Thursday evening at Hubbard Mill, on Stinking Creek, one of the most lawless sections in the state. There was a political gathering there, the candidates for the various county offices being advertised as speakers. Both the Smith and Messer factions were on hand, wearing their Winchesters and "forty-fours." It is not known just how the trouble began, but about three o'clock the shooting began and when the smoke had cleared away four men were found to have bitten the dust and the rest had scattered and disappeared. Eighteen men were arrayed on the one side and about twenty-five on the other. Those killed were two of the Mills boys, belonging to the Messer faction, and Bob Burchett and John Howard, belonging to the Smith crowd. More trouble is expected.

Failed to Lower the Record.

NEW YORK, July 21.—William W. Windle attempted to lower the one mile bicycle record of 2 minutes 35 2-5 seconds made by W. A. Rowe, but failed. His time was 2 minutes 36 4-5 seconds. The race was made during the prevalence of a sharp wind, which was directly in the rider's face.

William Shumacher, of the Berkleys, broke the four and five mile records in a five mile spin. Shumacher made the distances in 12 minutes 50 1-5 seconds and 16 minutes 2 1-5 seconds respectively. There was but two timers attending and figures cannot be considered official.

Mysteriously Missing.

WHEELING, W. VA., July 21.—W. M. Brooks, a wealthy merchant of Toronto, Ohio, has mysteriously disappeared. Recently Brooks, who has an estimable wife, became blindly infatuated with Melissa Smith, a handsome mulatto girl, and beat his wife when she objected to their intimacy. A few days ago neighbors warned Brooks to forsake the colored girl. He promised to do so, but secretly sold out his store, mortgaged his farm and fled. The girl is missing and it is believed they are together. The Brooks family is destitute.

Glass Blowers Adjourn.

BALTIMORE, MD., July 21.—The green glass blowers have finished their work and adjourned. Saturday was occupied with the all important matter of the adjustment of prices prior to the beginning of work in the fall. Committees from all the different associations will meet the manufacturers' committee and adjust the matter of prices and all that pertains to it. The flint glass blowers union completed their labors last night and adjourned. The price list was agreed upon but not made public.

More Bonds to be Bought.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—Secretary Windam has issued a call for 4 and 4½ per cent. bonds, proposals to be received at the department at noon on Thursday July 24. The case is put out for the purpose of supplying in part, the requirements of the sinking fund for the current fiscal year. The proposals, the circular says, should state the specific character of the bonds offered, whether coupon or registered and must be for the sale of the bonds with accrued interest to and including the day of the sale.

STRUCK BY LIGHTNING.

A Passenger Train Shattered, But No One Killed.

LONDON, July 21.—While a passenger train was approaching Frankfort during a severe storm, one of the coaches was struck and badly shattered by lightning. The passengers were terrified and many were painfully shocked, but no one was killed, and after a stop to ascertain the condition of the rolling stock, the train proceeded to its destination.

In a Bad Light.

SOUTH BEND, IND., July 21.—Dr. Robert Harris, president of the Board of Health and the oldest practicing physician in the state, was arrested, charged with having performed criminal abortion on Maude Johnson, a sixteen-year-old daughter of a widow. The girl made an ante mortem statement when she thought she was dying, charging Harris with the crime. The arrest has caused a sensation.

Found Dead in Bed.

NEWARK, O., July 21.—Felix Evans, an honored and respected farmer of McKean township, was found dead in his bed by his wife when she went to awake him in the morning. He was well and hearty when he retired last night. It is presumed he died without a struggle, as his wife knew nothing of his death until she awoke and found his corpse beside her. Mr. Evans was about 60 years of age.

Struck for Their Fellow.

CHICAGO, July 21.—The switchmen employed in the freight yards of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific railroad in this city have gone on a strike, because of the discharge of one of their number. The strikers number from 150 to 200. They have appointed a committee to wait upon General Manager St. John and demand the discharge of Yardmaster Carey.

Leslie P. Farmer Honored.

NEW YORK, July 21.—The passenger commissionship was unanimously offered to Leslie P. Farmer, the western passenger agent of the Erie road, at a meeting of the trunk line passenger agents held on Thursday last. Mr. Farmer was formerly the general passenger agent of the Pennsylvania road. He has not yet accepted.

Brother Against Brother.

CHICAGO, July 21.—Charles Ehret, a brother of the principal suspect in the United States Express robbery case, is said to have made a confession fixing the guilt upon his brother John and a chum named Hanley.

Bond Purchases.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—The treasury department has purchased $312,200 four per cents. at 121 and $10,600 four and a halfs at 103.

COMMISSIONERS' NOTICE.

You Take No Risk.

In buying Hood's Sarsaparilla, for it is everywhere recognized as the standard building-up medicine and blood purifier. It has won its way to the front by its own intrinsic merit, and has the largest sale of any preparation of its kind Any honest druggist will confirm this statement. If you decide to take Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to buy anything else instead. Be sure to get Hood's.

What Does It Mean?

"100 Doses One Dollar" means simply that Hood's Sarsaparilla is the most economical medicine to buy, because it gives more for the money than any other preparation. Each bottle contains 100 doses and will average to last a month, while other preparations taken according to directions, are gone in a week. Therefore, be sure to get Hood's Sarsaparilla, the best blood purifier.

RAISIN RACKET.

Jesse Stretch lost a horse Monday.

Mrs. James Cook of Jackson, is visiting her old friends in the Valley.

Misses Nettie Southworth and Satis Comfort spent the Sabbath with friends in the Valley.

Rain is very much needed in these parts as corn and potatoes are suffering for the want of it.

The congregation at the Valley church seem to be continually on the increase, under the preaching of their new minister, Rev. David Lewis.

Friends Quarterly meeting will be held this week Saturday and Sunday at Raisin Center church. Sunday P.M, will be a missionary meeting.

On Friday of last week was held a Demorest medal contest, at the Valley Church, under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. Miss Nellie Bowerman, of Raisin Center, was given the prize in a class of eight.

Saturday P. M. is one long to be remembered by the little folks in the Valley, and the old folks too, it being the annual meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary meeting and the opening of the children's mite boxes. Following the literary exercises, ice cream and a picnic supper was served to all in attendance.

The 25th annual reunion will be held at the Seminary Aug. 8th. Miss Celia Jones, orator, and the reunion historian, Townsend I. Sutton, are persons that it would be hard to find better fitted to fill these places. Following the literary exercises will be an experience meeting, in which each one it is hoped will relate some of their former school day experiences. It is hoped that as many as can will be present, that it may be a day long to be remembered. Exercises to begin at 2:30, followed by a picnic supper in the grove.

NORTH EAST FRANKLIN.

[Delayed Letter.]

Nathen Spencer was up from Holloway last week, attending to some insurance business.

Fred Devenport and family have been entertaining his sister, Blanche Green of Jackson, for a few days.

Mary Cummins visited at Clark Payne's the first of the week, and also called on others of her friends. Mary's visits are too rare and brief to suit her former neighbors.

Mrs. Ida Spencer came up to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Spaulding, Saturday, bringing with her Gracie, who had been spending a few days at Mrs. Spencer's home in Holloway.

Mrs. Munger went to Coldwater Saturday, having heard that their grandfather, old Mr. Hunt, was too feeble to make his customary summer visit here this season.

The Patrons of Industry of Tipton occasionally have a debate in place of Literary exercises. On Tuesday evening the 15th. they discussed the question whether or not the Patrons should take separate political action this fall. The speakers present were Hollis Taylor & C. H. Bramble on the affirmative and S. W. Munger and L E. Taylor on the negative. The affirmative won.

The association appointed delegates to the county convention (to be held in Adrian Friday, July 25th.) which in its turn will send delegates to the State Convention at Lansing, where the question will be finally decided.

No Trace Left.

Mr. and Mrs. Litell, of Huntingburg, Ind., say: "That about one year ago, their little girl was entirely cured of an annoying eruption of the skin and a local blood disorder by the use of S. S. S. There is no trace of the skin disease left, and the blood has been in perfect order ever since, and the general health of the child was never so good as now. They will take pleasure in answering any letters regarding the child's case." Treatise on blood and skin diseases mailed free. Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.

TECUMSEH, THURSDAY, JULY 31

Speaker Reed may own the House of Representatives but he does'nt own James G. Blaine—at least, not yet.

There is a fly in the McKinley tariff ointment which seems likely to turn the whole dish sour. Blaine's reciprocity is the name of it.

The State Agricultural Society of Alabama, met at Birmingham last week and passed resolutions strongly denouncing the Lodge bill infamy. And so it goes.

Baby McKee has not yet accepted a gift house at any fashionable summer resort. Baby McKee is not doing his share to keep up the credit of the administration.

The tariff debate in the Senate has fairly begun. The Democrats intend to discuss the bill sufficiently to disclose its character, but there will be no obstructive tactics used to delay its passage.

The opposition to the federal election bill, even in the republican ranks, is increasing daily. It seems hardly possible that the Senate will defy public sentiment by passing such an infamous measure.

The Farmers' Alliance is likely to split the Democratic party in South Carolina and the Republican party in Minnesota. The dominant party in both these States is sadly in need of purification. Let the good work go on.

Major McKinley is becoming ironical. In commenting upon Blaine's criticism of his tariff bill, he said: "The race for the democratic nomination for President in 1892 seems to be narrowing down to Grover Cleveland and James G. Blaine."

Hamilton Disston, a leading merchant of Philadelphia and a life long Republican, is strongly opposed to the federal election bill. He has three millions invested in Southern railroads and has no desire to paralize the business interests of that section.

There is more method in Tom Reed's madness than some people may suppose. The only hope the Republicans have of holding their strength in the North is to keep the South solid; to effect this latter purpose is the prime object of the federal election bill.

The Valley Virginian, the leading Republican paper of Virginia, has this to say about the federal election bill; "If there had been a deliberate and avowed purpose to crush the life out of the Republicans of the South, and to arrest the healthy growth of the party, and pave the way for an emphatic public rebuke, we do not know what more effective means could have been devised than have been put in force and are now proposed to accomplish that object."

The Chicago Times thus states the essence of Blaine's reciprocity scheme:

There was a contest once upon a time between Cleveland and Blaine, and the record has it that the latter was worsted. Blaine would like hemispherical reciprocity. Cleveland is broader. If reciprocity is good in principle—and it ought to be, for it underlies all commerce, which consists in picking up a thing in one place, and setting it down in another for the benefit of both places—its application ought not to be restricted within narrow limits. Let us go to the largest as well as the smallest markets with reciprocity. The half loaf may be better than no bread, but the country would prefer, it has preferred, a whole loaf Cleveland to a fractional-loaf Blaine.

The Louisiana Chamber of Commerce which is the largest commercial organization in the South, speaks with no uncertain sound in regard to the federal election bill. It says:

"It is our opinion that the commercial South should at once meet in convention to deliberate and decide upon the course it will adopt in the event that our Northern fellow-countrymen should elect to dissolve the brotherly ties which have grown up between us during a quarter of a century of profound peace and to establish a Poland or an Ireland on this Western Hemisphere in the place of the prosperous land now extending a hearty welcome to Northern capital and Northern muscle. Should any considerable number of the commercial bodies of the South share our views we shall at once appoint delegates to attend any convention which may be called to consider the situation."

TENDENCY OF REPUBLICAN RULE.

Below is an extract from the speech of Samuel J. Tilden upon accepting the nomination for governor of New York in 1874. His words are as true now as they were then, and seem prophetic in the light of the outragous legislation which the present Republican Congress is imposing upon the country;

"These tendencies must be stopped, or before we know it the whole character of our government will be changed; the simple and free institutions of our fathers will not only have become the worst Government that has ever ruled over a civilized people, but it will also be the most ignorant. A distinguished Republican statesman, I mean Senator Conkling—lately told me that more than five thousand bills were before Congress at its last session. In a little time, as we are going on, there will be twenty thousand. Nobody can know what is in them.

We have a country eighteen times as large as France, with a population of forty-three millions, doubling every thirty years, and full of activities and interests. A centralized Government, meddling with everything and attempting to manage everything, could not know the wants or wishes of the people of the localities; it would be felt only in its blunders and its wrongs. It would be the most irresponsible, and therefore not only the most oppressive, but also the most corrupt with which any people have been cursed.

Thoughtful men are turning their minds to the means of escape from these overshadowing evils. The Republican party cannot save the country. Ideas of governmental meddling and centralism dominate it. A change of men is necessary to secure a change of measures. The Democracy, with the traditions of its best days, will form the nucleus of the opposition. It embraces vastly the larger body of men of sound ideas and sound practices in political life. It must remove every taint which has touched it in evil times. It must become a compact and homogeneous mass. It must gather to its alliance all who think the same things concerning the interests of our republic.

And now, in your name and in the name of five hundred thousand voters we represent, we declare that in this great work we will tread no step backward. Come weal or come woe, we will go forward until a political revolution shall be worked out, and the principles of Jefferson and Jackson shall rule in the administration of the Federal Government."

TO DO NOTHING.

In reply to the question what the majority propose to do about the tariff during the present session a prominent republican congressman is quoted as saying: "We propose to do nothing—but talk about it. With the republican manufacturers of New England clamoring for free raw materials and the farmers of the west howling for reduced duties we can not afford to make a record."

This is encouraging. It means that republican congressmen have heard the demand for less instead of more tariff, and are frightened. They think they "can not afford to make a record," because they were swept back into power upon a promise of more tariff. But from what they recently learned they see that they cannot redeem that promise without dangerously offending the republican manufacturers of New England and the republican farmers of the west. On the other hand they see that they can not respond to the demand for less tariff without offending the tariff beneficiaries, who must supply the "fat" which is indispensable to republican success when it comes to the election of congressmen next fall. Hence they conclude they "can not afford to make a record."

But their troubles multiply. The Philadelphia Telegraph, a republican organ, commenting upon the language above quoted, says emphatically that the republicans can not afford not to make a record this season, "and one which will be more or less satisfactory to this country." The Telegraph tells them that the evidences of the unpopularity of the present tariff are multiplying, and that if they do not make a serious effort to revise on the lines of justice "the chances of a republican majority in the Fifty-second congress will not be great." It tells them that if they do not respond in some measure to the popular demand "it is confidently believed that not only New York will be a doubtful state in 1892, but Illinois, Iowa, Ohio, and Massachusetts also. The defection in the latter state with respect to free raw materials is serious, and it must be offset by gaining the favor of the masses for a tariff law which, while fully protecting capital and labor, shall not gorge the pockets of an over protected class. The western farmers who want lower duties must be considered; and all duties which are a hair's breadth above the point of real protection should be reduced." The Telegraph's article is copied bodily by the senior organ of the tariff boodlers in Chicago.

But this only adds to the perplexity of the tariff-boodle congressmen. It only serves to make it more plain that they can not do nothing with any more safety than they can do something. It is about equally dangerous to advance, to retreat, or to stand still.—Chicago Times.

REPUBLICAN SARCASM.

The following article, taken from the Omaha Bee, a staunch Republican paper, looks, as Artemus Ward would say, a "leetle sarcastical."

The tariff bill that is to be discussed in the Senate this week, when carefully analyzed, shows that some commodities are given the preference. The main feature of the bill as it is now presented seems to be to increase the duty on almost every article of food and clothing used by the people. In doing this the result is a "revision of the tariff," but the revision appears to be on the wrong articles. For instance, the duty on tin plate is to be increased from one to 2,2 cents a pound. With this increased duty on tin, half the canning factories in this country, it is claimed, must close. But the fact that the tin soldier is to be subdued is well worth the sacrifice. The bill appeals to all kinds of people. Cabbages are taxes 3 cents each in order to decrease the consumption of sauer kraut. The pauper hen of Europe is to have her product protected by a duty of 5 per cent. on eggs. The egg market is now open to the world, but prohibitionists want a stale article to heave at high-license debaters. Cheese is taxed 6 cents per pound, while diamonds are free. This is done to appease the wrath of the aristocrats who would rather wear diamonds than carry Limburger cheese in their pockets. Potatoes are taxed 25 cents a bushel, but ivory is free. A hungry man who cannot afford to pay 25 cents tax on his potatoes can pick his teeth with an elephant's tusk and imagine that he has been to dinner. Butter is taxed 6 cents per pound, but as human hair is free smugglers may be able to get in their work and escape the duty on butter.

The fact that most all luxuries are free shows the wisdom of the bill. But few people can afford luxuries unless they are free, while we all must have the necessaries of life.

TRUSTS AND THE TARIFF.

1. The steel rail trust, buttressed by a tariff of $17 per ton.
2. The nail trust, by a tariff tax of $1.25 per hundred pounds.
3. The iron nut and washer trust, by a tax of $2 per 100 pounds.
4. The barbed fence wire trust, by a tax of 60 cents per 100 pounds.
5. The copper trust, by a tax of $2.50 per 100 pounds.
6. The lead trust, by a tax of $1 50 per 100 pounds.
7. The slate pencil trust, by a tax of 30 per cent.
8. The nickel trust, by a tax of $15 per 100 pounds.
9. The zinc trust, by a tax of $2 50 per 100 pounds.
11. The oil cloth trust, by a tax of 40 per cent.
12. The jute bag trust, by a tax of 40 per cent.
13. The cordage trust, by a tax of 30 per cent.
14. The paper envelope trust, by a tax of 25 per cent.
15. The gutta percha trust, by a tax of 35 per cent.
16. The castor oil trust, by a tax of 80 cents per gallon.
17. The linseed oil trust, by a tax of 25 cents per gallon.
18. The cotton seed oil trust, by a tax of 25 cents a gallon.
19. The borax trust, by a tax of $5 per 100 pounds.
20. The ultramarine trust, by a tax of $5 per 100 pounds.—Philadelphia Justice.

THE LODGE INFAMY.

The passage of the Lodge election bill is precisely what was to be expected of a House which has been from the very first thoroughly dominated by partisanship. More than any other Congress since the republic began this body which Reed holds in the hollow of his hand has had an eye single to the perpetuation of party supremacy. There has been no important measure passed or even proposed that has not had its root in the idea of strengthening the party. To that idea every consideration has been compelled to give way. The force bill is a fitting and infamous crown of the partisan work to which the session has been devoted.

That it will pass the Senate is more than probable. While that body is still deliberative—as one of Reed's supporters recently thanked God the House was not—it is quite capable of carrying out the partisan infamy laid out for it by the House. Whether the act will meet party expectations is another matter. It cannot be forgotten that the Republican party still staggers under the load of odium it brought on itself by the carpet bag legislation which this new scheme so much resembles in its worst features; and a Republican Congressman from Tennessee has put himself on record with the prediction that if the bill is passed "not a corporal's guard of southern Republicans will be on the floor in the Fifty-second Congress." It is quite within the possibilities, therefore, that the party in power may find itself "hoist with its own petard."—Detroit Free Press.

THE FORCE BILL OUTRAGE.

It was only yesterday that we gave the expressions of three of the most intelligent and respected colored citizens of Philadelphia on the Force Election bill, and all of them profoundly deprecated it.

The Republicans of Birmingham, Ala., have held a public meeting to protest against the Force Election bill, and among the signers to the call are Ex Governor Smith, Postmaster Houston and other influential leaders.

Ex Governor Bullock, the only Republican Governor ever elected in Georgia, and who is still a sincere Republican and one of President Harrison's Pacific Railroad Commissioners, publicly protests against the Force Election bill.

Truly, the Republican leaders have line upon line and precept upon precept against the monstrous infamy of a Force Election bill a quarter of a century after peace, and they must now choose between the abandonment of the measure or overwhelming defeat with dishonor.—Philadelphia Times.

What a Leading Physician says.

Dr. R. S. Gorden, a leading physician of Mt. Carmel, Ill., writes the following under date March 10, 1890:

"I cheerfully recommend Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) as a tonic and general health restorer' also in case of Blood Poison it always gives satisfaction."

Years of Suffering.

"For years I have been troubled with a blood taint that has baffled the skill of the best physicians of Ohio and Ind. The disease finally effected my eyes to such an extent that I was almost blind I was then induced to take a course of Swift's Specific. (S. S. S.) and am thankful to say that after taking a few bottles I was entirely cured. My eye sight is entirly restored, and my general health is better than it has been for years, and there is no trace of the disease left. I consider S. S. S. the best blood purifier and general health tonic to-day on the market."

FAILING WOOLEN MILLS.

MANY OF THEM IDLE AND SOME FOR SALE.

A Case Where Protection Has Been a Burden to the Manufacturers Without Bringing Prosperity to the Wool Growers—The Present Price of Wool.

Our woolen industry is by no means in a prosperous condition, and the high wool duties of the McKinley bill hold out a still gloomier prospect for the manufacturers.

The following items from the late numbers of The New York Dry Goods Economist will show what a state of depression prevails in this important industry:

"The Brown Manufacturing company, of Dover, Me., woolen manufacturers, are running on half time."

"The Standard Woolen company, of Beacon Falls, Conn., has decided to run out this season's goods, and if business prospects are no brighter will close up its business in a few weeks."

"Owing to the unsatisfactory condition of the woolen business the Faulkner Colony Manufacturing company, of Keene, N. H., and the Cheshire Mills company, of Harrisville, will stop their machinery for the present."

"Owing to the shut down of Rhodes & Brothers' mills at Ashton, N. J., the town of Llewellyn, which had a population of 1,500 at the time of the shut down two months ago, has lost about one-half of its inhabitants."

"The woolen mill of J. S. Collins, at Gilsum, N. H., is running on short time, four days a week. The poor condition of the market has necessitated curtailing production."

"The Angora mill of Sellers Hoffman, Angora, West Philadelphia, Pa., which shut down May 1, still continues closed, with no prospect of an agreement being made between the strikers and their employer. This throws out about seventy-five hands. Cotton shirtings, dress goods and cottonades are made in this plant. It is said that the weavers were formerly paid one cent per yard, and were cut down seven-eighths of a cent."

"Manayunk, Pa.—The five-story stone mill known as the Enterprise Worsted mill, with machinery, has been sold at auction for the assigned estate of Hutchinson, Ogden & Co., and was bought for $11,100, subject to mortgages of $17,000, by Frederick Brown."

"Philadelphia, Pa.—The mill and machinery of the Albany Manufacturing company were recently put up at auction. About 150 manufacturers from all parts of the country attended the sale. The plant was first offered, but was withdrawn on a bid of $60,000, as the purchase price would not satisfy the mortgage held by Powers & Weightman, which is for $80,000."

These facts tell their own story and explain the growing sentiment among the manufacturers in favor of free wool. Some of the high tariff politicians have begun to take note of that growing sentiment. Senator Aldrich, of Rhode Island, is reported to have said recently that if he did not vote for lower duties on wool, or for free wool, his state would send someone to the senate who would.

The effect of free wool, both upon manufacturing and upon wool growing, is thus set forth by The Dry Goods Economist:

"With free wool America would enter as a buyer in the wool markets of the world on the same basis as any other nation, and her demands for wools would advance the prices to other purchasers so as to maintain the value of domestic wools at greater evenness than has ever been known, and at very little, if any, below the average of prices that wool growers have received for several years. This is the manufacturers' view of the operation of free wool upon domestic wools. It is not that they desire cheap wool that they ask for free wool, but because on such a basis they can enter the markets of the world and secure qualities that will enable them to diversify their output and supply the market with goods that are now imported in large quantities. The demand would be quickened, every set of woolen machinery in the country would be set in motion, and the demand for American wools be in excess of the largest clip that has ever been produced."

The opposition of the noisy little band of Ohio political wool growers to the removal of the wool duty is the only thing which stands in the way of wise action in the matter. This little band of political shepherds, with Delano, Lawrence and Harpster at its head, is the moving spirit of the National Wool Growers' association. This association recently met in convention at Galveston, Tex., and adopted a resolution deprecating the decimation of ewe flocks west of the Mississippi by killing them for market instead of holding them for breeders. That is, after bleeding the wool manufacturers till they have left little purchasing power these worthies scold the farmer for making the most profitable disposition of his wool producing animals. Even with the present high duties on wool, and the prospect of still higher protection held out to them by McKinley, the wool growers find it more profitable to kill their ewes for mutton rather than to keep them for producing wool and enlarging their flocks. That is certainly a situation for the political shepherds to "view with alarm," and is a dismal result after twenty-three years of high protection on wool.

Moreover, the duty on wool has not succeeded in keeping prices up to the figure at which they stood in 1867, when the present era of high wool tariffs began. In 1867 the prices of the cheaper wools in New York ranged from 25 to 37 cents a pound, in 1868 from 34 to 37. But the prices, according to the latest reports from New York and Philadelphia, are now much lower than those figures, wool in the grease bringing only 17 to 23 cents a pound.

The medicine which the wool growers have been taking in such copious doses has failed to work a cure, and they still cry aloud for larger and larger doses!

THE SHODDY MEN WANT IT.

They Clamor for the Passage of the McKinley Bill Owing to High Wool Duties.

While the manufacturers of woolen goods look upon the wool schedules of the McKinley bill as threatening their already oppressed industry with still heavier burdens, the makers of shoddy cloth and clothing are supremely happy in anticipation of its passage. The shoddy men know that the effect of the bill will be to increase the demand for their humbug stuff, and therefore they clamor for its passage like all other good patriots whose pockets will be replenished by it.

The attitude of the regular legitimate manufacturers and of the shoddy men is thus pointed out by The Dry Goods Economist: "The tariff measure now before congress, or such portion of it as applies to wool and its manufactures, has been opposed by a greater number of wool manufacturers and more practical logic than has ever been submitted against any previous customs revenue measure. The wool manufacturing industry has been waiting for eighteen months for congressional relief which at this moment appears further off than ever. Manufacturers of goods from wool substitutes applaud the measure before congress and are championing its proponents and abettors. The manufacturers are suffering, inasmuch as their mills are partly or wholly idle, and their output barely reimburses the cost of manufacture. Free wool is wanted to employ the woolen goods machinery of the country, for until that can be started up both the manufacturing and the wool growing interest must languish. When will representatives be placed in congress who will execute the wishes of the masses? From this summary it will be seen how the woolen goods interest is handicapped."

The most curious part of the whole matter, however, is that while the tariff bill largely increases the duties on pure wool it actually makes a slight reduction on wool adulterants. This is another reason why the shoddy men are in favor of the bill. The past few years have witnessed a very great advance in the use of shoddy in this country. According to the census of 1870 our shoddy mills used 19,000,000 pounds of raw shoddy. In 1880 they used 52,000,000 pounds, and the census just taken will show an amazing increase for the past ten years. There are now more than 100 shoddy mills in the United States, and about $50,000,000 is invested in handling and manufacturing shoddy.

The use of shoddy in clothing has increased enormously of late. The census of 1880 shows that 108 pounds of shoddy are mixed with 118 pounds of pure wool to make our so called woolen goods. But it is in carpets that shoddy has made the greatest strides in displacing wool. In 1870 carpets were made of 80 parts of wool to 20 of shoddy; in 1880 there were 68 parts of wool to 32 parts of shoddy. A later estimate is made by the Dobsons, a large firm of carpet makers in Philadelphia. According to this firm, in 55,000,000 pounds of carpet materials there are 10,000,000 pounds of clean wool, 20,000,000 pounds of shoddy and 25,000,000 pounds of other mixtures.

Those are alarming figures, but the invasion of shoddy is still advancing. The manufacturers have recently scored a point by introducing what is called an "improved" style of machinery, which makes it possible to spin a wretched kind of stuff which heretofore could not be used.

The attitude of the shoddy men with reference to the McKinley bill offers a sharp contrast to their attitude on the Mills bill, which proposed to make wool free. Two years ago they submitted a report to the senate committee attacking the Mills bill with all possible vigor. During the last presidential campaign the Republican national committee sent out a circular signed by seventeen shoddy firms attacking the free wool clause of the Mills bill.

"This bill," they said, "as far as it affects the industry in which we are engaged, is a free trade measure, and as such we are decidedly opposed to it. We have determined in the coming election to support the candidates of the protection party, Harrison and Morton. Their election we consider to be indispensable to the maintenance of our business."

Evidently the shoddy men know who their friends are and who are their enemies.

Their Reasons.

When Senator Plumb offered his resolution requiring the senate finance committee to give in detail their reasons for the changes made in the tariff bill it was supposed that we were to have a serious piece of work, which would throw some light upon the dark places in tariff making. But the mountain has brought forth a mouse; never was there a more perfunctory piece of work done. Many changes are left unexplained, and the reasons are given in a line or two and are stated in the most general terms.

We have a rigmarole of phrases like "constantly increasing importations," "to encourage domestic production," "the necessity of protecting this important domestic manufacture," "to check importations," and so on to the point where one's mind rebels from further dwelling on the pitiable business.

When the committee reaches the duty on corn it becomes positively amusing. The corn duty, it will be remembered, is raised from 10 cents to 15 cents a bushel.

In explaining this advance the committee groups a half dozen paragraphs—buckwheat, corn, corn meal, macaroni, oats and oatmeal—and dismisses them all with the single remark, "The same as preceding." Looking back several paragraphs we found that "preceding" refers to barley, and the reason there given is in these words: "This is a large increase in duty, made necessary to protect domestic growers." On the same page of the bill the quantities of each article imported during the fiscal year 1889 are given. Under "corn" we read 2,388 bushels. When these grave senators assign the above high-sounding reason to this little drop-in-the-bucket matter is it not difficult to believe in their sincerity? Do our senators indorse the McKinley attempt to pull the wool over the eyes of the farmers? Senators are often all, as Vance, of North Carolina, says, "not poor critters."

Eupepsy.

W. D. Sult, Druggist, Bippus, Ind. testifies: "I can recommend Electric Bitters as the very best remedy. Every bottle sold has given relief in every case. One man took six bottles, and was cured of Rheumatism of 10 years' standing." Abraham Hare, druggist, Bellville, Ohio affirms: "The best selling medicine I have ever handled in my 20 years experience, is Electric Bitters." Thousands of others have added their testimony, so that the verdict is unanimous that Electric Bitters do cure all diseases of the Liver, Kidneys or Blood. Only a half dollar a bottle at.

DON'T GIVE UP

The use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. One bottle may not cure "right off" a complaint of years; persist until a cure is effected. As a general rule, improvement follows shortly after beginning the use of this medicine. With many people, the effect is immediately noticeable; but some constitutions are less susceptible to medicinal influences than others, and the curative process may, therefore, in such cases, be less prompt. Perseverance in using this remedy is sure of its reward at last. Sooner or later, the most stubborn blood diseases yield to

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

"For several years, in the spring months, I used to be troubled with a drowsy, tired feeling, and a dull pain in the small of my back, so bad, at times, as to prevent my being able to walk the least sudden motion causing me severe distress. Frequently, boils and rashes would break out on various parts of the body. By the advice of friends and my family physician, I began the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla and continued it till the poison in my blood was thoroughly eradicated."—L. W. English, Montgomery City, Mo.

"My system was all run down; my skin rough and of yellowish hue. I tried various remedies, and while some of them gave me temporary relief, none of them did any permanent good. At last I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla, continuing it exclusively for a considerable time, and am pleased to say that it completely

Cured Me.

I presume my liver was very much out of order, and the blood impure in consequence. I feel that I cannot too highly recommend Ayer's Sarsaparilla, to any one afflicted as I was."—Mrs. N. A. Smith, Glover, Vt.

"For years I suffered from scrofula and blood diseases. The doctors' prescriptions and several so-called blood-purifiers being of no avail, I was at last advised by a friend to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I did so, and now feel like a new man, being fully restored to health."—C. N. Flink, Decorah, Iowa.

The figure 9 in our dates will make a long stay. No man or woman now living will ever date a document without using the figure 9. It stands in the third place in 1890, where it will remain ten years and then move up to second place in 1900 where it will rest for one hundred years.

There is another "9" which has also come to stay. It is unlike the figure 9 in our dates in the respect that it has already moved up to first place, where it will permanently remain. It is called the "No 9" High Arm Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine.

The "No. 9" was endorsed for first place by the experts of Europe at the Paris Exposition of 1889 where, after a severe contest with the leading machines of the world, it was awarded the only Grand Prize given to family sewing machines, all others on exhibit having received lower awards of gold medals, etc. The French Government also recognized its superiority by the decoration of Mr. Nathaniel Wheeler, President of the company, with the Cross of the Legion of Honor.

The "No. 9" is not an old machine improved upon, but is an entirely new machine, and the Grand Prize at Paris was awarded it as the grandest advance in sewing machine mechanism of the age. Those who buy it can rest assured, therefore, of having the very latest and best.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with Inflammation.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years.

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

THE GREAT BLUE RIBBON MEETING.

A Brief Account of the Important Turf Event In Michigan's Metropolis.

DETROIT, July 28th, '90.

The great Blue Ribbon trotting meeting which closed last Friday, was the most successful ever held in the history of that organization. The program was of four days duration—commencing Tuesday, and some of the fastest horses in the country were on hand to show their metal. The city was filled to overflowing with horsemen and admirers of the sport, and the hotel accommodations were taxed to their utmost capacity. Hundreds of excursionists came from the interior of the state, nearly every town helping to swell the crowd. Tecumseh was well represented by a number of her citizens interested in turf matters, who come to see the sport, and the village also contributed one of the actors on the track. Among the entries in the great M. & M. trot—2:24 class—was C. D. Bills' bay gelding, Stickfast. Although not winning the race, he performed well on the track. Mr. Bills also had his celebrated Banker horse there, and the handsome equine excited universal admiration.

The driving club last year inaugurated the practice of having the opening day free to every one, and, as one would imagine, Tuesday's crowd was enormous. Nearly 20,000 people rode out Jefferson avenue, about three and a half miles to the driving park. The city railway company had between 50 and 100 extra cars in service and carried nearly 10,000 people. The river route was also well patronized. The weather was all that could be asked, the track in first-class condition, and the time made surprised the oldest habitues of the turf. Liberati's famous band rendered a fine musical program each day.

Forty-seven heats were trotted and paced during the meeting, eighteen of which were made in 2:20 or better. The fastest heat was trotted by Palo Alto, a California horse, in 2:15½, and the slowest, 2:23¾, in the 2:24 class.

There were three races on Tuesday's program—the first, 2:30 class for a purse of $2,000 was taken by Leopard Rose, owned by Wm. Branigan of Mt. Vernon, O., the fastest time being 3:19¾. Cricket, from the Pleasonton stock farm of California, took the first money in the second race—2:24 pacing, purse $2,000, the fastest heat being made in 2:14¼. In the third race—2:22, McDouel, a Chicago horse, carried off first money, time 2:19.

The great event on Wednesday's program was the $10,000 Merchants and Manufacturers stake race. There were eleven starters, and when President Campau gave them the word to go, they made a magnificent race. Seven heats were necessary to decide the contest, and the bay gelding, Walter E., owned by Robt. Stewart of Kansas City was the winner, time 2:23¾. Almont, owned by John Dickenson of Kankakee, Ill., took the 2:20 trot, and Maggie R., owned by Rooney & Bentley, Chicago, won the 2:17 pace.

Thursday afternoon, the great California beauty, Simol, gave an exhibition trot going a half mile in 1:02½. The 2:18 pacing race was easily captured by Alfred S., a San Francisco horse. The horseman's great expectation stake for 4 year olds—purse $9,500, was a race that surprised them all. There were five starters, with Margaret S., a California horse, and Allerton, a Missouri horse—the favorites in the pool box. In the first heat Market S., distanced all with the exception of Allerton, who just saved himself. Allerton took the next two heats, and Margart S., the fourth and fifth, distancing Allerton in the fifth heat, which gave Margaret the entire stake of $9,500.

The last day of the meeting—Friday—was as big a success as any of the preceeding. It started to rain just before the program was opened which put the track in bad shape, until the sun came out and dried up the mud, and put the track in good condition for the afternoon's sport. The opening event was the free-for-all pace, $2,000 purse, which was won by a San Francisco horse, Adonis, in three straight heats. The 2:27 trot for a purse of $2,000 was started with nine horses in the field. The chestnut horse, Alvin, owned by A. D. Merrill, Tilsonburg, Ont., took the race in three straight heats. The free-for-all trot for $3,000 was won by Palo Alto, of Menlo Park, Cal., and the 2:30 pace for $2,000 was taken by Cricket, of Pleasonton stock farm of California. This closed the meeting and the general verdict was that it was the most enjoyable turf event in the history of the Detroit Driving Club.

President Campau received congratulations from all sides on the fair and impartial manner in which he performed the duties of starter, and was presented on the last day, with an elegant cut-glass and gold lamp, a gold horse-shoe studded with diamonds and a beautiful floral piece, by his numerous friends and admirers.

AN OPEN LETTER.

E. P. ALLEN, M. C.:—

DEAR SIR—Yours at hand, contents carefully noted. It seems by your decision relative to postoffice appointment that I have been weighed in the balance and found wanting. My bitter disappointment is only equalled by my opinion of you, as you seem not only content to add insult to injury, but to uphold those who have misled you, and berated my character in relation to my family and to my political strength if you appointed me.

You say it is paiuful to you to write disappointing news to me, and then follow with a statement that you do not know the politics or postoffice of one-tenth of the signers of my petition. Do you for one moment intend to insinuate that I have tried to palm off on you names of parties that do not get their mail here? You insult me by such an inference. I say to you without fear of contradiction that every man on my petition of over 215 names is a Republican, and their postoffice address is Tecumseh, and I dare you to give me the name of your confidential friend in whom you impose such confidence. As we understand, all the petitions have been trailed over the route from Washington here some three times, until you have thro' your agency cut and slashed them until you have finally got your best friend in the minority, and in so doing you believe your work is exactly right. Yes, you can hold the letters, papers and petitions for your protection, but I say the coming contest will decide whether you have gained confidence with your constituents. How very consistent you are in saying that the changes from my petition are very small, when you only credit me with 72 out of 215 names or over. I have your word of personal preference in many letters, but you betray them all when only the majority of eight names on the petitions has caused you so much trouble and anxiety, even weighing so heavily on your mind as to cause your "own preference" to be set aside.

As to Captain Lawrence's military record compared with my own, I have but little to say. Any Union soldier who passed through Andersonville deserves not only a pension, but the honor and respect of the nation. I did not have that experience, but go to the pension examiners; see the report they give in my case. While I do not draw a pension, there are just as deserving ones outside of those who slept in prison pens and whose health is broken now in consequence of loyalty to their country.

The feeling existing between Capt. Lawrence and myself is Fraternity, Charity and Loyalty on my part, but when you ask the privilege of throwing on my comrade the services of my daughter for his chief clerk, I will not allow a comrade to be thus imposed upon; thus adding insult to injury again in my own family. Therefore, you need not for one moment consider that plan. You are not misapprehended in this matter, and I most respectfully decline the offer.

You say if you have treated me other than in the right manner it has been through ignorance. You have not failed in that respect in the least, not alone in this postoffice, but all through this Second Congressional District. I do not need to point you to Ann Arbor or Hillsdale, but your ignorance has spread all over old Lenawee—at Adrian, Morenci and Blissfield, and still a good supply is left for Hudson. And now it seems time to call a halt. Come down, my erring brother! Say to your constituents, "I leave this field for him who may come after." For I tell you, there will come a political cyclone that will bury you so deep that a Johnstown flood will not reveal your political remains on the 4th day of next November.

Very truly yours,
H. W. STEVENS.

P. S.—I will enclose your election slips I had left over, which I bought and paid for with my own money. H. W. S.

Deafness Can't be Cured.

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be distroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surface.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that we cannot cure by taking Hall's Catarrh cure. Send for circulars free.

A DAY AT DEVILS LAKE.

We took a trip to Devils Lake on the last excursion day, and spent a half day, very pleasantly in wandering about the lake of the evil name.

We found Allen's hotel at the Mackinaw station the same old stand by, a good place to get a square meal or a comfortable lodging. Hope Welch and all the rest of the old employes are still on deck. Fred Deuel makes his headquarters there and the G. A. R. is one of the favorite boats on the lake. We went over to the South side with Fred. The G. A. R. now takes the middle passage across the bar.

Beardsell has made some improvements in his grounds bordering on the lake, which makes them much more attractive. He is preparing for the usual crowd on the big picnic day.

We found Uncle Charley Spafford at his cottage at Manitou prepared to furnish warm meals, summer drinks, confectionery etc. He is glad to meet his old Tecumseh friends.

Henry Jones, having rented his cottage which he built last year, is now erecting a second one which is nearly completed. It is a beauty and occupies a fine location.

Just accross the street, on one of the best lots in Manitou, is Wm. Bresie's new cottage. He has a flue view of the railroad dock and the lake from the front porch. We found most of Mr. Bresie's family at home and had a very pleasant visit with them.

On the return we halted at Cedar Point, the site of Justice Burridge's cottage. We consider this the finest location on the lake and he has a beautiful summer residence there. We found Mr. and Mrs. Burridge at home and the latch string was out as it always is to his Tecumseh friends. More next time.

BUSINESS EDUCATION.

The Fayette Normal University from the Stand Point of a Student.

The time has come when every young person is anxious to obtain a better education.

Naturally the first question to arise is, Where can I do the best?

I believe that the answer to this question is, "At the Fayette Normal University Fayette Ohio." I say this after a personal experience in several good schools and a one year's attendance at the Fayette Normal.

The University building at Fayette is a fine one, large roomy, and convenient; equipped with all the necessary apparatus for the pursuance of any branch.

It is heated and ventilated by Smeads celebrated system, which supplies plenty of good pure air of the right temperature at all times.

The character of the faculty is above reproach, being thoroughly christians in every act and deed: and let me say right here that they are prepared to teach the "Why" as well as the "how." The interest maintained in each recitation is truly wonderful showing the amount of work that can be done when teachers and student work together. This great interest and enthusiasm is due largely to the very latest and best methods being used in all work.

To those desiring a business course let me say that the Fayette Normal is second to none. The very best system of Penmanship is taught (G. W. Michaels), Short Hand and Typewriting are presented by the most approved methods, and the Commercial advantages are unrivalled. The business students use four large rooms instead of being crowded into one as it is often the case. Convenient desks, beautiful offices, and office books of the very best works and binding are found in the Actual Business Department.

The student is surprised at the warm reception he receives from the citizens on entering Fayette, and he is sure of the same kind as long as he stays if he is deserving of it.

The people of Fayette do not tolerate saloons and the influence and associations are uplifting and ennobling.

I think all students will agree with me that the expenses at this excellent institution are very low, for ninety-six dollars pays tuition board and room rent for a year of forty weeks. As to the board it is first class in every particular and gives entire satisfaction.

The growth of the school is very rapid, and new features are being added every year for the comfort and benefit of students.

Many other things might be said about the F. N. U. but I will call your attention to but one point more and that is; it matters not whether you want Normal Literary, Musical, Commercial or special lines of study or work, you will be sure to find your wants supplied. I have taught several schools, and I am fully convinced that the Favette Normal University stands at the front in culture, comfort, and progress that it assures to students.

Hoping that I may have said something that will lead some one to be benefitted.

I remain, Yours Truly
FRED A. HARVEY.

THE MECHANIC'S HOLIDAY

WHAT INVENTION HAS DONE FOR THE TOILING WORK PEOPLE.

How Machinery and the Factory Have Affected All the Old Handicrafts—A Magnificent Exhibition of Machinery, Tools and Implements That All Mechanics Should Study.

"A good mechanic is master of his tools." The wisdom of our ancestors is in the old maxim; but, alas! much of the wisdom of our ancestors was buried with their bones. Now-a-days the tool is rapidly becoming master of the mechanic. Modern invention is continually making the tools more important, and the mechanic less important. The workman is becoming, everywhere and in all the trades, more and more a mere attendant upon special machine tools that do the work—particularly the nice work—automatically and with machine regularity and precision, while the man merely supplies and handles the material. The race of mechanics that our fathers knew, who could do anything and everything in their respective trades by deft hand work, are almost gone. In fact some entire trades are gone, and more are on the verge of going. The majority of the boys of to-day never saw a stage driver, formerly

THE PRIDE OF THE ROAD.

The railroads have driven him out of existence. And the boys will do well to take a good look at the expert street car driver. In twenty years from now—probably in ten years—there will not one be left, unless he still lingers in some back village of the effete despotisms of Europe where it takes two generations for a new idea to sprout. Electricity will have taken the place of horses. The old fashioned hatter, who used to measure your grandfather's head with a tape, and make a hat complete from beaver fur, and later from silk, is now invisible as a ghost. Hats are made by machinery, in factories, and purchased at a store warranted to fit, in accurate sizes. The old style shoemaker, who made foot wear complete from beginning to end, from a lady's slipper to a heavy boot, is nearly gone. You can find him barely lingering here and there in some small shop on a back street. The factory has taken his place. The old-style blacksmith, celebrated by the past, who could is a tradition now. In his stead you shall find a putter together of parts made in a factory. He puts the ready-made irons on your carriage—he does not iron it. He puts shoes on your horse—he does not make them.

Tailors are nearly out of fashion. You shall hnnt long to find one such as every village could once boast—a man who measured, cut, and sewed all kinds of garments from a shirt to a dress coat. Now there are cutters, and some sewers; but the latter are growing few. A little longer and the factory will have beaten them all from the field.

THE OLD FASHIONED CARPENTER, who could build an entire house with his chest of tools, making the winding stairs with neevels, posts, and carved rails, and who cut the cornices, beading, moulding and panel work and made the doors, sash and blinds by hand—where is he? Gone forever. Yet a little while, and all houses will be altogether made at the factory, and only be put together in sites, as they already are mostly.

Still there are handicrafts that seem perpetual, But don't be too sure. "Machinery cannot touch our trades," say the bricklayer, the type-setter, the painter, the stone-cutter. They are mistaken. Already a large part of stone cutting is done by machinery. Already machines have been devised to construct brick walls. Already type setting machines have appeared. Already painting machines have been invented. Be sure that invention will not cease until all these things have been accomplished and are common.

The old cooper's trade is dying, too. Immense factories now turn out machine-made barrels by the hundred thousand, cheaper and better than hand work can accomplish. The wagon and carriage builder has also given place to the factory. And so through all crafts—the tendency is the same. In the factory

THE TOOL DOMINATES THE WORKMAN.

He obeys the machine, instead of the tool obeying him. He becomes part of the machinery. He makes just so many motions per minute, governed by the incessant speed of the machine upon whose movement he attends. The results are cheaper products, in the main better products, and immensely greater production. There is less individual skill, but a higher average grade of work. There is more leisure and less hours of labor per day for the workingman. There is less crudeness and better finish. The world is more comfortable at less cost. In some things working hardship, on the whole invention has proved a great blessing to all classes of people. If the farmer has forgotten the skill of his fathers, and no longer reaps, mows, sows or plants in the old, slow, hand way, see how much better off he is, and how much better he lives, freed from the necessity of toiling fourteen hours per day. The mechanic no longer works from early sunrise to late sunset. And wages are much higher than they used to be in those old days. However poverty may pinch, or skill be idle in occasional places, for all who are able to live there is continually increasing comfort at continually decreasing cost. The workman of to-day is better dressed, better housed and better fed, and enjoys more of the graces of life, than the employer of our fathers' times.

There is no better recreation or lesson for mechanics and workingmen than to inspect and study the inventions, and machines, and tools whose shining bodies are over the forces of nature, and whose cunning operations make modern civilization possible. In one sense it is studying his masters; in another it may be learning to become a master. For man can make no tool that is master of man—no machine that is equal to the mind that conceived or the intelligence that must use it. Skill is still king of labor, though it finds new occupations. Every mechanic and workingman should attend carefully upon such a great exhibition of tools, machines and implements, as will be shown at the Detroit International Fair and Exposition Aug. 26 to Sept. 5 inclusive, where he can see and study not only the newest tools and inventions for use in his own trade, but in all other trades also and gather new ideas that may be of value to him, together with the pleasure that every true mechanic feels in inspecting tools and machinery of the latest and best styles and patterns, and the choicest products of the various handicrafts, factories, homes and workshops. For such a fair is an apotheosis of the industrial world. Moreover it is a season of instructive delights, in music, games, spectacles, fine animals, art, and everything that can amuse and please in the best sense a mechanics' holiday and show of products on a magnificent scale.

OUR NEW POSTMASTER.

On Monday last Congressman Allen sent in the name of Capt. A. D. Lawrence as the new postmaster at Tecumseh, and his confirmation will speedily follow without doubt. In regard to the merits of the controversy which has terminated in this appointment we have nothing to say. We had no personal objections to any of the candidates. They are all honorable men and worthy citizens either of whom is fully qualified to fill the place to good acceptance. From a political standpoint, we should have preferred that the present incumbent might remain, but we are aware that "politics are politics," and we accept the situation gracefully, without one word of fault finding. The full term of four years, to which the late Judge Stacy was appointed, expires to-morrow, Aug 1st, and the family relinquishes all political claims to the office after that date.

The new appointee, Capt. Lawrence, came to Tecumseh with his father's family, from Syracuse N. Y. when only five years old, and Tecumseh has since been his residence. He obtained a good education in our public schools, and before attaining his majority, had mastered the tinsmith's trade, and he has followed this trade nearly twenty years, in all, both before and after the war. In 1862 he enlisted in Co. B. 9th, Mich. Cav. and served with credit until the close of the war. He served in the west, mostly in Kentucky, Tennessee, and Georgia. He was a prisioner at Andersonville between six and seven months, being among the last of the federal prisoners released at the close of the war, and was mustered out of service on the 12th, of July 1865. He organized the Tecumseh Guard, now Co. C. 1st Reg. M. S. T. and was Captain of that company nearly seven years. During his incumbency of that office he placed the company upon a firm footing which it has ever since maintained. He has a fine residence on Chicago street and occupies a first class position in the community, both in his social and business relations. The HERALD extends to the Captain its congratulations and trusts that the new arrangement may be mutually agreeable, both to the appointee and to the patrons of the office.

A DESERVED COMPLIMENT

The Detroit Evening News, during the camp at Battle Creek, published personal sketches of all the Captains in the Michigan Brigade of State Troops. The following is the notice it gave of Capt. Fred B. Wood of Co. C. All who have the pleasure of a personal acquaintance with Capt. Wood will second the motion, with three cheers and a tiger.

The Tecumseh Guard, Co. C, First regiment, is one of the oldest militia companies in the state, having been mustered into the service 20 years ago. It was organized by Capt. A. D. Lawrence, a survivor of Andersonville, and is now commanded by Capt. Fred B. Wood, who is the senior captain of the brigade. That is, he has served the longest in the state militia, knows more than any of 'em, is the handsomest officer in the state, and entitled to promotion to the lieutenant colonelcy of the First regiment, which he declined recently. His company is composed of superior material, most of the best young blood of the village having enlisted. As an officer, Capt. Wood possesses a natural military talent, quick perception, energetic execution, and is a thorough disciplinarian, and ranks among the first of the younger members of the Lenawee bar. Tecumseh has reason to be proud of her splendid military company and its popular and efficient captain.

The Clinton Local began business, in bare feet, short pants and one suspender, and led a life as jolly as a boot black's being managed at arm's end, by our esteemed brother Blosser, of the Manchester Enterprise. The Local lately passed to the ownership of J. R. Blanchard, who took it to a tailor and had it measured for a new suit of clothes larger than the old and it now comes to us in a plug hat and Prince Albert, as it were. It is a faithful gatherer of home news and we predict its prosperity.—Adrian Press.

The August Magazine of American History is filled with a pleasing variety of able and popular papers. To the end of time this magazine, as now edited, bringing constantly to light fresh and invaluable material and leading in every important branch of history, will be prized in bound form on library shelves, above any other periodical of the century. The opening illustrated paper this month, "Historic Houses and Revolutionary Letters," is written in felicious style by Mr. Robert Ludlow Fowler. It contains extracts from hitherto unpublished letters and documents relating to stormy scenes in the most exciting period of our country's annals.

The August number of The Forum will contain a remarkable essay, by Prince P. Kropotkin, on "The Possibilities of Agriculture." He has made a thorough investigation of the fabulous results of the scientific cultivation of land in the most densely populated portions of Europe, and he shows the ease with which the number of acres now cultivated in the civilized parts of the world can be made to yield sustenance for many times the number of people now alive. Scientific and intensive agriculture in the United States, for instance, can be made to sustain in plenty, and with much greater cheapness than now, a population at least ten times as dense.

As there is no royal road to learning so there is no magical cure for disease. The effect, however, of taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla for blood disorders comes as near magic as can be expected of any mere human agency. This is due to its purity and strength.

The Great Benefit.

Which people in run down state of health derive from Hood's Sarsaparilla conclusively proves that this medicine "makes the weak strong." It does not act like a stimulant imparting fictitious strength, but Hood's Sarsaparilla builds up in a perfectly natural way all the weakened parts, purifies the blood and assists to healthy action those important organs, the kidneys and liver

REVOLT RAISED

In Guatemala and State of Siege Declared.

Ringleaders Arrested and Put in Prison.

Fear that the Military Will Revolt.

CONSTITUTIONAL GUARANTEES SUSPENDED.

Salvadorians Said to be Within Sixty Miles of Guatemala City—Foreign Powers Acknowledge Ezeta's Government—Civil War's Hoary Head.

GUATEMALA, July 28. REVOLT has broken out here directed against President Barillas and his cabinet. The revolution is under the leadership of General Manuel Beteta and Colonel Salvador Selvals. At 11 a. m. a regular mob paraded the streets, shouting "Muera Barillas" (Death to Barillas). The ringleaders were arrested and carried off to prison. There is much dissatisfaction among the military, and the great fear now is that the latter will make common cause with the revolutionists. The president's house is strongly guarded, no one being allowed in the vicinity except well-known persons. The revolutionists are gaining more power every moment and it is likely that business will be suspended before many days, or even hours elapse.

The members of President Barillas' cabinet have counseled him to suspend hostilities with Salvador and turn his attention to the situation in Guatemala. President Barillas held a council of war, and troops are being daily conscripted to carry on the war with Salvador. President Barillas wanted to assume the leadership of the troops against Salvador, but owing to the unsettled condition of affairs here he has abandoned the idea of leaving the capital. Troops are arriving here from the west coast and from Quezaltenango. A proclamation has been issued warning all natives of Salvador to leave the territory of Guatemala within forty-eight hours. President Barillas has issued a decree declaring the whole republic in a state of siege, and suspending the constitutional guarantees.

There is considerable excitement in the Capital as it is said that the Salvador troops are within sixty miles of Guatemala City, and are constantly being re-inforced. There are two sections of the Salvador army in Guatemala, one in the department of Jutiapa and the other in the department of Santa Rosa. All payments by the Guatemalan National treasury have been peremptorily stopped, and a subscription list for a forced loan has been copiously circulated. The military are forty-five days in arrears of pay, and funds are sadly needed. Several of the foreign and native merchants have advanced sums of money to the government, receiving in exchange custom-house receipts, which are to be accepted in payment of fifty per cent. of import duties on foreign merchandise.

It is said that the Guatemalan government has cables to the United States, through Minister Mizner, in Guatemala, asking that the United States step in and prevent Mexico from interfering with Central American affairs. The American minister here is very much annoyed at the treatment of the steamer Colima, which was boarded by Guatemala and searched, and has cabled to Secretary Blaine.

Advices from Salvador say that all the foreign powers, except the United States, having delegations there, have acknowledged Ezeta as provincial ruler of Salvador. It is not yet known just what instruction in this respect Minister Mizner has received from Washington. A letter has been received here from Salvador in which it is said that General Ezeta had declared that he was first going to march onto Guatemala, depose President Barillas, and then turn his attention to the re-establishment of the constitutional regime in Salvador.

The United States man-of-war Ranger, long expected here from San Francisco, has at last arrived. The Ranger only stopped at Acapulco for coal. Word has been received here from Paris that the French syndicate which was to have loaned Guatemala $20,000,000 have positively refused to negotiate with this country.

Rout of the Salvadorian Army.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 28.—Domingo Estrada, consul general for Guatemala in this city, has received the following telegram from the Guatemalan minister at the City of Mexico, dated July 25:

"Guatemala accepts the war provoked by Salvador. Salvadorian army rounted on the 23d. The arms on the steamer Colema were seized with the consent of the agent of the company and of the American minister, by virtue of an article of contract with the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, which reads:

"'This company binds itself not to permit troops nor munitions of war to be carried on board any of its steamers from any of the ports of call to ports of, or adjacent to Guatemala, if there is reason to believe these materials are to be used against Guatemala, or if war or pillage is intended.'"

Senor Estrada thinks hostilities will be of short duration, owing to the heavy costs, which neither country is able to bear, and the fact that this is the rainy season in that latitude, which would make it impassible for armies, on account of the swollen rivers and bad roads.

Preparing for War.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., July 28.—The Pacific Mail steamer San Jose, has arrived from Panama. Captain J. W. Russell says he has spent the greater part of the last six months in Guatemala City, and that immense quantities of rifles, guns and ammunition has been shipped into Guatemala from England, France, the United States and other countries, and that there are enough rifles in that country to arm 100,000 men. Captain Russell says what Guatemalans lack is a disciplined army, and in war times they have to go out and catch recruits.

OHIO'S CENSUS.

Additional Returns on the Buckeye Cities, Towns and Counties.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—Superintendent Porter gives out the following census data: Cincinnati has 296,769, Hamilton county 372,326.

Gains in Mansfield.

MANSFIELD, O., July 28.—The population of Mansfield, as gleaned from the returns now being counted by Superintendent Beer, at Ashland, is 13,035, a gain in the decade of but 3,926. This is a sore disappointment to the citizens, who hoped it would reach 16,000. The population of Richland county is given as 24,125, as compared with 26,445 in 1880, a decrease of 2,329 in the county outside of the city.

Coshocton County Census.

COSHOCTON, O., July 28.—A private dispatch from Superintendent Wood, of the census department, states that the enumeration places the population of this county at 26,866. In 1880 the population was 26,642, showing a net gain of 213. The result also discloses the fact that the corporation of Coshocton has gained 588 during the past ten years, while the county outside of the corporation has lost 375.

CONGRESSIONAL.

FORECAST FORESHADOWED FOR THIS WEEK'S WORK.

The Senate to Try Its Hand on Tinkering the Tariff—The Federal Election Bill—Other Measures to be Brought Up in Both Branches—About the Adjournment.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—The Senate has finally set about the discussion of the tariff bill in earnest, having disposed of all of the appropriation bills with the exception of the deficiency bill which has not yet come from the House. All of the appropriation bills have gone to the president with the exception of the Indian bill which passed the Senate and now goes into conference, the fortifications bill which this week is in conference, the sundry civil bill which has passed both houses and will go into conference this week, and the deficiency bill which is now on the House calendar. There is very little to interfere with the continuous discussion of the tariff bill, therefore except the river and harbor bill, if it should be taken up and the reports of the conference committees which have right of way. No determination has been reached about taking up the river and harbor bill, and during the early part of the coming week the consideration of the tariff bill will proceed regularly each day with the understanding that there will be an adjournment at 5:30 o'clock, the Senate meeting each day at 11 o'clock. The Republican members of the committee on privileges and elections have almost completed the consideration of the Federal election bill, and they will be prepared to report to a caucus in the near future. If this caucus is held before the end of this week, an order of business may be agreed upon which will displace the tariff bill for the river and harbor bill. It is estimated that this bill can be disposed of in three or four days.

In the morning hour, Mr. Gray will insist upon the consideration of the bill for the transfer of the revenue marine to the naval department, with the chances in favor of passing the bill before the end of the week. Other miscellaneous business will be considered in the morning hours during the week.

Reports on election cases are matters of privilege in the House, and may be called up at any time. For several weeks past the elections committee has had three cases ready for settlement, but although anxious to have them disposed of, the committee has deferred to the wishes of the committee on rules and allowed other matters to intervene. This week, however, the committee has decided to have its innings, and it will call up the first of its cases on Tuesday, or as soon as the sundry civil bill is out of the way. This is the case of Chalmers (Republican) against Morgan (Democrat). It will take but two or three hours to dispose of this case, as the committee's report is in favor of Mr. Morgan, the sitting member. The case could be disposed of in shorter time, but General Chalmers wishes to make a speech in his own behalf.

The agricultural committee wants to dispose of some bills during the week, and it may call upon to oppose the elections committee concerning the arrangement of time. The compound lard bill and the bill taxing meat products are the measures that the agricultural committee want to dispose of, and as these affect the farmer, the elections committee may be defeated in its endeavor to secure consideration of its business, provided, of course, that the agriculture committee decides to oppose it. If the elections committee is granted right of way it will bring up also the cases of Miller (Republican) against Elliott (Democrat) from South Carolina, and of Langston (Republican) against Venable (Democrat) from Virginia. There is a possibility that the deficiency bill may be brought up for discussion.

A Horrible Accident.

IRONWOOD, MICH., July 28.—A horrible accident occurred at the outing of the Grand Lodge of the Sons of St. George, of Michigan, at this place. About 600 were in the pavilion, a structure raised fifteen feet above the ground, when without warning it fell precipitating the mass of human beings to the ground. For a moment there was stillness and then a cry of terror was sent up by the struggling victims. Willing hands went to their relief at once. The major portion were more scared than hurt. These were extricated and made as comfortable as possible.

Death of an Old Congressman.

MCLEANSBORO, ILL., July 28.—Judge Samuel S. Marsh died at his residence here in the morning, aged 68 years. His death was due to a general breaking down of his nervous system. He represented the Nineteenth district in Congress from 1854 to 1868.

Poisoned by Ice Cream.

GAINESVILLE, TEX., July 28.—At a picnic given at Pilot Point a large number of people were poisoned with ice cream made poisonous by staying too long in the cans. Fifteen persons will die. No names are obtainable.

TO BE RECOUNTED.

Another Census to be Taken in St. Paul and Minneapolis.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—Secretary Noble, acting upon the recommendation of Superintendent Porter, has ordered a recount of the population of St. Paul and Minneapolis. The recount will be made as soon as practicable, and will be conducted by James H. Wardle, assistant chief clerk of the census bureau.

Superintendent Porter in his letter to the secretary, upon which this important action is based states that, in view of the complaints and evidence before the bureau of systematic efforts to pad the census of these cities, nothing short of a recount of the entire population of both of these cities, conducted by special agents of the census bureau, will satisfy the people of Minnesota.

CAMPBELL VERY ILL.

THE GOVERNOR SERIOUSLY SICK AT DEER PARK, MD.

A Telegram to His Executive Clerk Conveys the Information that He Has Fallen Victim to a Complication of Physical Troubles Which Superinduces a Bad Abcess and His Condition is Alarming.

COLUMBUS, O., July 28.

Governor Campbell is confined to his bed at Deer Park, Maryland.

He has fallen victim to an attack of sickness which has assumed an alarming form.

The telegraph wires flashed the intelligence to the city that the chief executive lies in a most distressing if not dangerous condition.

He is suffering from a complication of physical troubles, and is racked by terrible pain from an abcess which has formed upon his body.

The governor has been at Deer Park at intervals during a great portion of the summer, but it was supposed that his presence there was more for the purpose of securing rest from official duties and being in the society of his wife, who went there early in the season, than because of bad health. It now develops that the governor has been a great sufferer for some weeks, and has sought the bracing breeze of that far eastern resort in the hope that the change of air and surroundings would prevent the severe sickness with which he has been threatened. Assistant Executive Clerk Creighton, received a telegram from the governor, stating that he is confined to his bed with a severe abcess and can not expect to be up again for some time. The message related to the funeral of Hon. George W. Meeker Sunday and was in response to a telegram from Private Secretary Meeker to the governor, notifying him of the death of his father and requesting his presence at the obsequies. It stated the facts concerning the governor's condition and instructs Mr. Creighton to make it known to the relations of Mr. Meeker in order that they would know it to be impossible for the governor to be in attendance at the funeral. An attempt was made by this paper as soon as the intelligence reached the city to reach the governor by telegraph to ascertain the full extent of his illness, but he could not be disturbed.

An effort has been made to keep the knowledge of the governor's condition from the public, as he shrank from the accompanying wide publicity and excitement.

THE FATAL CYCLONE.

SIX PERSONS KILLED AND FIFTY INJURED.

Further Particulars From the Scene of Devastation in Lawrence, Mass.—Over a Hundred Houses Destroyed—A Fire Alarm Adds to the General Panic.

LAWRENCE, MASS., July 28.—Further details from the devastated cyclone district in Lawrence show that at least one hundred on Springfield, Salem and Portland streets were wrecked. Six people were killed outright and fifty injured. The cyclone took a northeasterly course.

After the storm the sight was a terrible one. Looking up Springfield street could be seen wrecks of many houses and from them cames cries for help. The houses were all of wood and the wreck was all the worse therefor. As soon as the terrified survivors recovered from the shock an alarm was run in and a part of the fire aparatus and police ambulances responded.

Hundreds began the work of rescue, and were still at it. From the ruins of their houses were taken out the following dead: Mrs. O'Connell, 19 Springfield, crushed; Mamie O'Connell, neck broken; Mary Lyons, aged 40, crushed, Mrs. Collins, Portland street, crushed; her child, 4 years ago, crushed; child of Julia Beatty, which is buried in the ruins, has not yet been found.

Of the injured, some, especially those of the family of Martin McLaughlin, are seriously if not fatally hurt. The damage to property is over $100,000.

The greatest destruction was on Springfield, Salem and Portland streets. The cyclone is described as having arrived without warning, accompanied by a heavy black cloud and a severe rain.

Nine Killed.

LAWRENCE, MASS., July 28.—The latest authentic report from the South Lawrence disaster is that nine persons were killed, fifteen or twenty seriously injured, and at least twenty more slightly injured. Five hundred people are homeless.

The World's Fair.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—The commissioners of the world's fair, during their recent trip to this city, tendered Robert P. Porter, now superintendent of the census, the position of chief of the bureau of awards, and to Professor G. Brown Goode, now assistant secretary of the Smithsonian Institution and in charge of the national museum, the position of chief of the bureau of classification and catalogue for the forthcoming exhibition.

Crushed by a Train.

FOREST, O., July 28.—In the morning at 1 o'clock, Mart Inman, age 21, of Kirby, Ohio, while under the influence of liquor, went to sleep on the railroad track, a quarter of a mile east of town, and the west-bound P., Ft. W. & C. freight run over him, cutting off both his legs. His condition is serious.

Gutted by Fire.

CINCINNATI, July 28.—Putnam & Robert's chairback factory, at Third and Wood streets, was gutted by fire. Loss $30,000, insurance $10,000. Several firemen were injured, but none seriously.

DODD'S CATARRH CURE. LOCAL AND INTERNAL TREATMENT.

In order to cure catarrh it is necessarry to allay the inflammation of the irritated membranes with a soothing application, cleanse the head of the plugging mucous secretions, and heal the discharging ulcers. For cold in the head and nasal catarrh Dodds' local treatment does this without the aid of snuff, douches or fumes. If the disease has extended downwards affecting the bronchial tubes or lungs, digestion and blood, the internal treatment both removes from the system the scattered poison, and by its building-up properties assists nature in restoring the impaired parts. Send for our book treating on catarrh. FOSTER, MILBURN & CO., proprietors, Buffalo, N. Y. Sold in Tecumseh, Mich., by C. A. Wright & Co., druggists.

SINGLE TAX DEPARTMENT.

THE LIGHT OF CONTRAST.

African Slave Trade and The Convict Mines of Kara.

Some of the most important lessons of life are learned in the light of contrast. We know the sweet joy of health, as we never did before, after days of pain and suffering. We paint our pictures on a dark background, and appreciate the beautiful only so far as seen in contrast with the deformity, and the good as revealed by the shadowy form of evil ready to touch us with its gaunt fingers.

In this way we may perhaps more vividly catch a glimpse of some forms of inhumanity that now gives us no uneasiness because they are so common. A succession of pictures will help to focus the thought now in our mind. The first is taken from a sketch of the African slave trade, as recently seen by Mr. H. F. Moir, of New York. We give it as nearly in his words as space will permit. When slaves are captured, a yoke is placed upon their necks and is allowed to remain day and night. The yoke is the forked branch of a young tree, and is generally about five or six feet long and weighs about 28 pounds. Refractory slaves are often placed in yokes of more than 50 pounds. The end of the yoke is lashed to the corresponding end of another yoke that holds another slave. They are then started to the East coast traders, marching all day and all night, and the slaves that fail to keep up are dealt a terrible blow on the nape of the necks that ends their life. Children are often torn from the arms of their parents at the slightest sign of fatigue and their brains dashed out against a tree.

The second picture is taken from Mr. George Kennan's description of the Convict Mines of Kara, in a recent number of the Century. Speaking of the place where the Czar works his State prisoners, he says: "A person who has once inhaled that odor can never forget it; it is so unlike any other bad smell in the world, that I hardly know with what to compare it. I can ask you to imagine cellar air, every atom of which has been half a dozen times through human lungs, and is heavy with carbonic acid; to imagine that air still further vitiated by foul, pungent, slightly ammoniacal exhalations from long unwashed human bodies; to imagine that it has a suggestion of damp, decaying wood, and more than a suggestion of human excrement—and still you have no adequate idea of it." In this black hole, in the cold Siberian winter, men and women are compelled to live and sleep on rough benches without blankets or fire, packed in rows and fed on the coarsest food. The first picture is a glimpse of an industry now carried on in the wilds of Africa, and the second, a peep into a Russian State prison. Well, of what value can such a vision of woe and wretchedness be to us? No such evils would be tolerated for a day in our happy land.

Wait a moment. It is true these pictures are taken from a region far away and from a social system now happily fast becoming obsolete, but there are other pictures that show what is taking place under our social system, that considering our relative position are quite as painful to contemplate. Here is one: A little ragged urchin is timidly watching a number of well-dressed boys playing ball. A kind gentleman approaches and says: "You seem to be enjoying the fun; would you not like to take a part?" "They won't have me, sir. The good man what preaches in the little old church behind the livery stable, said last Sunday, we are all brethren. See, sir, these boys have nice clothes and I am in rags; they have plenty to eat and I am always hungry. It don't look like it, sir, it don't look like it." And yet there are thousands of boys in all our large cities that are being educated in that school of poverty and wretchedness. If they grow up atheists in religion and anarchists in politics, would it be strange?

Here is another. The scene is laid in New York, but may be duplicated anywhere. A workingwoman tells us how she and her daughter manage to live engaged in making clothes:

How do we live? It's all in this little book. It's foolish to put it down, and yet I always liked to see how the money went, even when I had plenty, and it's second nature to put down every cent. Take last month. It had 27 working days—$22.95. Out of that we took first the $10 for rent. I've been here 11 years, and they've raised a dollar on me twice. That leaves $12.95 a month for provisions and coal and light and clothes. 'Tisn't much for two people, is it? You wouldn't think it could be done, would you? Well, it is, and here's the expense for one week and for what we eat:

Sugar, 23; tomatoes, 7; potatoes, 5	$0 35
Tea, 15; butter, 30; bread, 12	0 57
Coal, 12; milk, 15; clams, 10	0 37
Oil, 15; paper, 1; clams, 10; potatoes, 5	0 31
Cabbage, 5; bread, 7; flour, 15; rolls, 3	0 30
Total	$1 90

You see there's no meat. We like it, but we only get a bit on Sundays sometimes. The coal ought not to be in with the food, ought it, unless it stays because I have to use it in cooking; we oughtn't to spend so much on food, but I can't seem to make it less. Really when you take out the coal and oil and the paper—and we do want to see a paper sometimes—it is only $1.62 for us both, 81 cents apiece, almost 12 cents a day. If it weren't for Emmy's missing me, it would be better for me to die, for I'm no use, you see, and times get no better, but worse. But I can't, and we must get along somehow. Lord help us all!

Now what are we to say of an industrial system that permits women to work 14 hours and live on 12 cents per day? Do not tell us these are exceptional cases, that the average is far better. God help us all if this were not so. But that is a pitiable philosophy that consoles itself with averages. These extremes are possible because we have a system that says "get all you can and pay as little as you can for it," a speck of the old brutality that still clings to our civilization in spite of our splendid progress—a state of things that shows that the gray dawn of the millennium is not yet on the sky and can not be painted there by any leveling process of paternalism of government, but only so far as we all come into earnest fellowship with the idea that all are children of one common Father and bound to one common destiny.—Pacific Rural Press.

THE TAX FOR THE WORKER.

How Every Laborer May Learn What It Is.

To every man interested in the subject of taxation, and in these hard times there are but few who are not so pressed by the pinch of poverty as to find any taxes a heavy burden, I have a word or two to say. You may be a regular subscriber to and attentive reader of this paper, or it may have fallen into your hands casually. If the first, let me urge you to read the "Single Tax Department" attentively every week, and if the system of imposing taxes advocated therein meets with your approval, write to the editor about it, calling his attention to the way unimproved land in your neighborhood escapes its proper share of the public burdens, thus making heavier the load that the improved land has to bear. You will find plenty of striking instances all around you, and maybe your paper will stir up the tax assessor to do his duty. If you are not fully satisfied about the single tax from what you see in your paper, write to me and I will send you some tracts explaining the whole subject.

If you have merely happened to pick up this paper and become interested in knowing more about the single tax, and if your own paper is not publishing a Single Tax Department, write to your editor and request him to do it. The Memphis Single Tax Association has made arrangements whereby all papers published in the West and Northwest can get their articles from the houses that supply "patent outsides," and at no extra cost to the paper. The editor of your home paper is not only willing, but anxious to print what his subscribers want, and if you write to him that you and others want to know what the Single Tax means and how it will affect you, you may depend on it that he will supply the demand. If he don't, then subscribe for a paper that will. We have sent out circulars to nearly all the country papers published in the West and Northwest offering our articles to them, and the "Single Tax Department" is now being published in about seven hundred of them. If the readers want information on this topic, which is the burning question of the day all over the civilized world, if they want to know the true relations between land, labor and capital, if they are interested in the question why it is, that in the midst of greatly increasing wealth throughout the United States, there is so much poverty and suffering among the people, and why it is that the lot of the toiler is so much harder than it was in former years, then the remedy is in their own hands. We think we have solved the problem; we think we have discovered the seat of the trouble to be the monopoly of the land by the few, thereby compelling the many to labor for a bare sustenance; and we are satisfied that we have found the remedy in the single tax, which will force all holders of land, mineral, forest, ore and agricultural land to use it or to let it be used by other men. The single tax will not be a burden upon any man who uses land; but it would make all the land grabbers, syndicates and "investors holding for a rise," let go their holdings. In short it would kill speculation in land, give a farm to every farmer's boy, and homes to the millions of homeless men, who can not now lay claim to a place to lay their heads.

The following letter, written to the New York Standard, shows how ready the papers are to give space to our articles, and if the readers of the rural press want to know about the Single Tax and will take the trouble to write to their local journals, the Single Tax Department can in a short time be found in seven thousand papers.

H. C. Niles, Denver.—After the article by R. G. Brown, of Memphis, Tenn., appeared in the Standard, explaining their method of supplying country newspapers with single tax matter, our club here got the Memphis club to circularize the State of Colorado and adjacent Territories.

I called a few days ago at the office of the Western Newspaper Union to learn as to the success or failure of our efforts. The replies they had received were twenty-four, twenty-one asking for single tax matter and three declineing to have any thing of the kind published in their papers.

N. D. Dresser, Independent, Rock Springs, Wyo., wrote: "Am glad to learn you have taken up this matter, and hope you will get numerous orders." Miss Carrie Byrd, Journal, Lyons, Col., says: "I shall be pleased to have single tax matter published in our Journal." The Dillon Enterprise (?) said: "I don't want any of this truck in my paper." The State Herald, Holyoke: "Don't want it. Want your republicanism in my paper."

The papers already taking the matter are well distributed all over the State, and we are much encouraged with the result and expect to see an evidence of a change of heart in our "pagans" toward the single tax. Write to your paper.

R. G. BROWN.

Why Do We Tax Industry?

We tax dogs for no other purpose in the world except to discourage the raising of them. Why do we tax buildings, manufactories and industries? Is it to discourage the building of houses, the building of manufactories, and the development of our industries?—Bloomington, Ill., Leader.

THE interest that farmers are taking in the single tax is being made manifest by the way in which the farmers' papers are opening their columns to the discussion of the question. From all parts of the country come journals of that class with letters from our friends explaining our ideas. The latest is the Orchard and Farm, printed at San Francisco, which has a letter from Joseph Leggett on the single tax, in which he states our doctrine in a sentence, as follows: "The object of the single tax is to encourage the use of land and to put a premium on the best use of land."

THE PRODIGAL SON.

LESSON V, THIRD QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, AUG. 3.

Text of the Lesson, Luke xv, 11-24—Commit Verses, 17-20—Golden Text, Luke xv, 18—Commentary by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

(Compiled from Lesson Helper Quarterly by permission of H. S. Hoffman, publisher, Philadelphia.)

11. "And he said, A certain man had two sons." This is the beginning of the third section of this parable, which is a continuation of the lesson of last week. The whole parable teaches the great love of God, the Father, Son and Holy Spirit, for lost, and helpless, and erring humanity; and the sympathy of the angels with God in His joy over the salvation of the lost.

12. "And the younger of them said to his father, Father, give me the portion of goods that falleth to me. And he divided unto them his living." The sin is seen in the son's desire for the things of his father rather than for the father and his love. The desire also for independence of the father and separation from him indicates the ingratitude of his heart and his insensibility to the father's love and care.

13. "And not many days after, the younger son gathered all together, and took his journey into a far country, and there wasted his substance with riotous living." The first illustration of this rebellious nature in man is seen in Cain, who would not submit to the kind requirements of a loving God; but preferring his own way "went out from the presence of the Lord" (Gen. iv, 16) to do as he pleased. It is seen in Esau, who preferred a mess of pottage to his God given birthright (Gen. xxv, 32-34).

14. "And when he had spent all, there arose a mighty famine in that land; and he began to be in want." When we turn away from God, who is the fountain of living waters, and seek to satisfy ourselves with aught else, even with the gifts of God, we are hewing out cisterns, broken cisterns, that can hold no water (Jer. ii, 13), and sooner or later we shall surely come to want.

15. "And he went and joined himself to a citizen of that country; and he sent him into his fields to feed swine." The far country into which he went from his own father's house and plenty is all about us. It is this present evil world which lieth in the wicked one (Gal. i, 4; I John v, 19), and which allures us away from God. All who are unsaved are said to be "far off," and because of their sinful and unclean natures are compared to dogs and swine (Eph. ii, 13; II Pet. ii, 22).

16. "And he would fain have filled his belly with the husks that the swine did eat; and no man gave unto him." First want then worldly helps, and now a beastly appetite.

17. "And when he came to himself, he said, How many hired servants of my father's have bread enough and to spare, and I perish with hunger!" He had been so full of self and self seeking that the Father's house had not been much in his thoughts, except perhaps as the recollection of a restraint which he could not submit to. But by having his desires granted he has been led to see somewhat of the leanness of his soul (Ps. cvi, 15). We read in I Cor. v, 5, of one being delivered unto Satan for the destruction of the flesh, that the spirit may be saved in the day of the Lord Jesus. And in Job xxxiii, 14-30, we read of dreams, visions, sickness and afflictions as means used by God with men to bring back their souls from the pit, to be enlightened with the sight of the living.

18. "I will arise and go to my father, and will say unto him, Father, I have sinned against heaven and before thee." In the story of the lost sheep and lost piece of money we saw the seeking shepherd and woman with the light. The sheep and the money did nothing, the shepherd and woman did all. But here is a responsible human being who has gone astray like a lost sheep, and has been as insensible to his father's love as a piece of metal.

19. "And am no more worthy to be called thy son: make me as one of thy hired servants." He was unworthy to be called the son of such a father when he had plenty and was living riotously, or even when he left that father's home, or when he demanded his share of the goods. But he did not know it, and could not, under those circumstances, be made to see it. The only way to humble him and bring him to his senses was the way he was allowed to take. Now he sees his sinfulness and unworthiness as he could not otherwise have been made to see it.

20. "And he arose and came to his father." All his conviction, and sense of unworthiness, and good resolutions, would have gone for nothing had he failed to take this step. He might have remained in the far country and died there full of conviction and good resolutions. But here is the saving point, "He arose and came." And now we shall see the result.

"But when he was yet a great way off, his father saw him, and had compassion, and ran, and fell on his neck, and kissed him." Here is the Love of God which said to one poor sinner, "Thy sins are forgiven; thy faith hath saved thee; go in peace." And to another, "Neither do I condemn thee; go and sin no more," and which says to all, "Him that cometh unto me I will in no wise cast out" (Luke vii, 48, 50; John viii, 11; vi, 37).

21. "And the son said unto him, Father, I have sinned against heaven, and in thy sight, and am no more worthy to be called thy son." This was not all he had intended to say (see verse 19), but it seems to have been as far as he got. It is a high honor to be a servant of God, but He makes us His children, children of God and joint heirs with Christ, when in true penitence we come to Him (John i, 12; Rom. viii, 17; John xv, 15). If we confess our sins He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness (I John i, 9).

22. "But the father said to his servants, Bring forth the best robe, and put it on him; and put a ring on his hand, and shoes on his feet." Think of Adam and Eve having lost their fellowship with God and hiding from Him because of their sin; and see God clothing them with coats of skins which He had made (Gen. iii, 21). See the robe of righteousness, and garments of salvation of Isa. lxi, 10; II Cor. v, 21.

23. "And bring hither the fatted calf, and kill it; and let us eat and be merry." If, in the previous verse, we have forgiveness of sins, and righteousness, and full restoration to position and inheritance and authority, here we have true fellowship and great joy. The foretaste is enjoyed here when He comes in to sup with us and we with him (Rev. iii, 20); but the full joy will be when we eat and drink with Him at His table in His kingdom (Luke xxii, 30). See in Mordecai's exaltation, apparel, adorning, and in the joy and gladness of the people, a foreshadowing of kingdom joys (Esth. viii, 15-17.)

24. "For this my son was dead, and is alive again: he was lost, and is found. And they began to be merry." For the third time in the parable He tells us of the joy over the lost when found. And again in verse 32. Surely that which gives such joy to Father, Son and Holy Spirit, should give great joy to every child of God. But is it not to be feared that the spirit of the elder brother might be still manifest if we should make much ado over the conversion of some poor publican or harlot? Let us pray to be filled with the Spirit of Him who receiveth sinners and eateth with them.

A Woman's Discovery.

"Another wonderful discovery has been made and that too by a lady in this country. Disease fastened its clutches upon her and for seven years she withstood its severest tests, but her vital organs were undermined and death seemed imminent. For three months she coughed incessantly and could not sleep. She bought of us a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption and was so much relieved on taking first dose that she slept all night and with one bottle has been miraculously cured. Marion Ettinger, who has been working for Frank McClure in the harness shop for a long time, left for South Bend, Ind., Thursday.

D. S. Goodrich, son of G. W. Goodrich, has been appointed shipping clerk in the malleable iron works of the Walkerville Co., Ontario.

Hamilton Niblack, who is engaged with an agricultural implement company in Montpelier, Ohio, drove to Clinton Saturday for a short stay.

Rev. Mr. Fries preached his farewell sermon at the Baptist church Sunday. The attendance was very large. Mr. Fries went to Spring Lake Thursday, where he is engaged.

Miss Octavine Walters, who has for the past five years been afflicted with rheumatism, sprained her knee while getting out of a carriage at Mrs. Rickerson's residence, Saturday night.

P. J. and H. S. Rogers, who have been in the barber business here for a year past, have concluded to move to Grand Rapids, where they are in hopes of getting the standard prices for tonsorial work. They have not suffered for the want of patronage since their stay in Clinton, but the prices which their competitor fixes are not "let live" prices and are subject to a raise as soon as only one barber shop adorns Clinton. If you get your hair cut for 10 cents you don't get a 25 cent cut by any means. A good barber who will locate in Clinton will receive the popular prices for his work in the future.

PATRONS IN COUNCIL.

Delegates representing thirty-eight of the forty-two lodges, Patrons of Industry in Lenawee County, met in their hall, over Lochner's drug store, Friday and talked matters and things over in a secret convention.

The object of the meeting was to elect delegates to attend the state convention, to be held at Lansing on the 29th, and decide to instruct the delegates to vote against or for the proposition to place a ticket in the field this fall.

The following delegates were chosen:
First District—L. W. Chase.
Second District—J. S. Rind.
Third District—A. W. Rice.

On the question whether the Patrons should put a ticket in the field or not, the decision was made, by a vote of 23 to 15, not to do so.—The Times.

REPARATION

Demanded of Turkey by the Servians

FOR THE MURDER OF THE SERVIAN CONSUL AT PRESTINA.

The Demand Causes Grave Fears of Further Trouble, as Russia is Backing the Servians—Graphic Description by a European Diplomat—The African Exploring Expedition of Much Importance.

LONDON, July 28.—The second note of the Servian government to the Porte, strongly insisting that Turkey shall make reparation for the murder of M. Marinkovitch, the Servian consul at Pristina, has caused much anxiety in diplomatic circles, especially as it is known that Russia is behind the Servian note, and also owing to the justice of the demand.

A leading diplomat, who has served many years in the east, in an interview regarding the matter said: The murder of M. Marinkovitch had as little cause for it as had the eviction and massacre of Servian villagers by which it was preceded. Very definite and very strong reasons have been assigned for both outrages. And as I myself narrowly escaped assassination in that very market place where M. Marinkovitch was struck down, and during the politically very stormy days of my stay at Pristina had opportunities for becoming intimately acquainted with the conflicting ideas and aspirations of its inhabitants—Ottoman, Albanian and Servian—I may perhaps be able to throw some light on incidents which have been preliminary skirmishes in a coming war rather than crimes of the unfortunate Gypsies of whom the Ottoman authorities are endeavoring to make scape goats.

The political situation will hardly, however, be understood without some prefatory remarks on the geographical situation. One reaches Pristina from Glodobar, a station on the Salonica-Mitrovitza railway, and Globodar is on the verge of the great platau and historic battlefield of Kossovo (1389), and within an hour's distance by rail of the frontier of Bosnia and the land of the Servians.

The Albanians so determinedly resisted the proposal to bring the railway, and hence Servian or Austrian troops, within easy distance of Pristina, that one has an hour's ride on horseback or jolt in an Arabah from the station to the town. As one approaches Pristina the most conspicuous feature of the view is afforded by the minarets of the Eleven Mosques, erected, as they say, by the Ottoman women whose husbands fell in the great battle on the adjoining platau—the battle that shattered the short-lived Servian empire (1350–1389) of Stephen Dathan, and laid its subjects prostrate at the feet of the Sultan Murad.

Now, it is true that the battle of the Kossovo is an old story, and it is true also that the Servian empire endured very little more than a single generation; and yet, incredible as it may seem to those who believe in material forces, the fact is that the memory of that empire and the shame of that defeat are to this day among the most powerful political forces in southeastern Europe. If, however, the vanquished passionately desire that the great mountain-ringed plateau of Kossovo, with the rolling downs that adjoin it, should be included in the Servian realm, no less passionately do the victors of Kossovo desire to retain in their possession the battlefield of, for them, glorious memories. The tomb of Sultan Murad, the conqueror of Kossovo, now stands where stood his tent on the battlefield. Four years ago an important though provisional compact was entered into, sounded on that affair of five hundred years ago. Servians, Bulgarians and Greeks came to a sort of provisional understanding that not only Kossovo and Pristina, but Uskup, and all the Albanian country down to Ochrida should go to Servia, and a new map of the "Future of the Balkan Peninsula" is now in my hands, in which this and further suggested arrangements opposed to Albanian national aspirations, and particularly a partition of Albia, giving the southern half to Greece, are set forth in literally vivid colors.

The announcement in the Siecle that a French expedition to explore Central Africa is being organized is more important than appears on the surface. The convient principle of "Hinterland" invented by the Germans, is taken up by the French and applied to the rich country between the Niger and Lake Tchad. M. Leroy Beaullau told the academy of moral and political sciences the other day that the principle gave France a right to the territory in question. Apparently it is to be regarded as the Hinterland of Algeria, and the fact that it is some thousands of miles from that colony is immaterial. The view is of some practical importance, as it has given a new turn to the French project for a trans-Saharan railway. Hitherto the plan has been to connect Algeria with Timbuctoo. At present all French writers on the subject agree that Timbuctoo is worthless, that the great bend of the Niger is to be avoided, and that the true goal of French effort is Lake Tchad. General Philibert and M. Rolland, the engineer, have just published a pamphlet to that effect which is being much discussed in France and has resulted in the formation of the Central African expedition. There is already a railroad as far as Biskra. The proposal is to carry this on by way of Tongourt and Wargia to Timassinim and Amguid.

Congressional.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—In the House a resolution was agreed to for a special committee of five to investigate the pension office. The Senate amendments to the sundry civil bill were considered and many of them were non-concurred in. Without finishing the bill, the House adjourned.

In the Senate a resolution was agreed to calling on the president for the correspondence concerning the attempt to obtain a repeal of the French decree prohibiting importation of American pork. The tariff bill was discussed further, speeches being made by Senators Colquitt and Morgan. Bills were passed to pension the widows of General Crook, General Fremont and General McClellan.

REVOLUTION.

Desperate Fighting in Buenos Ayres.

The Republic in a State of Awful Siege.

Revolt Started by Part of the Garrison.

LARGE NUMBER OF SOLDIERS AND CITIZENS KILLED.

General Campos Awaiting Trial as a Conspirator Released From Prison—President Celman Escapes to a Foreign Sloop in the Harbor—The Manifesto of the Revolutionists.

BUENOS AYRES (VIA GALVETON), July 28.

AT four o'clock in the morning a revolution was commenced by the Union Civics, assisted by two battalions of the garrison. President Celman has declared the whole republic in a state of elege. The National Guard has been called to arms.

LATER.—Reports are that five more battalions of the marine arsenal and part of the artillery have declared in favor of the revolutionists. The postal and telegraph offices are surrounded by soldiers.

The revolutionists are reported to have completely triumphed. The governor of Buenos Byres is seriously wounded. President Celman has just embarked from the Catalinas Mole, taking refuge on board of a foreign ship. The governor of Cordova, brother of the president, has also escaped.

The revolutionary party has issued a manifesto signed by Alejandro M. Alem, a Del Valle; M. De Maria, M. Goyena, Juan Jose Romero and Lucio V. Lopez.

The revolutionists have liberated General Manuel J. Campos, who was awaiting trial as a conspirator, and who has now placed himself at the head of the revolutionary party.

Desperate fighting occurred. Many killed on both sides.

Further Details.

BUENOS AYRES, July 28.—A revolution has broken out. A portion of the troops in the garrison have rebelled and joined the revolutionists. Firing is still in progress. Business is entirely suspended and great excitement and confusion prevail. The minister of finance, Garcia, is a prisoner.

LATER—The fighting is of the most desperate character, many being killed and wounded on both sides. The insurgents are advancing toward the Plaza de la Victoria, where the president's palace and the town hall are situated. The president has escaped to Rosario.

3 p. m.—The revolutionists claim the victory and have announced a new government with Arem as President and Romero as Minister of Finance. The regular authorities are, however, are still in partial possession and declare themselves able to suppress the uprising.

The Effect at London.

LONDON, July 28.—The news of the Argentine revolution reached London Saturday too late to produce any effect upon the stock exchange, but it is expected that a crash in credules and other securities of the Argentine Republic will occur as soon as the exchange is opened today. The slump will be all the greater doubtless, because of the fact that Argentine bonds have lately been strongly bulled by speculators, enormous purchases being made by parties who believed that the reported crisis in the affairs of the republic would prove to be a mere temporary flutter. It is rumored thet the Barrings were among the sellers who accommodated the bulls with all the Argentine bonds. The Barrings, it is true offered a new loan to the Argentine a few days ago, but on terms which in themselves proved that the bonds representing existing loans were being quoted at a high figure. There is much regret expressed here in all circles at the news of the disorder in Buenos Ayres, for the lover of good government and those who hoped to see the Spanish American prove their capacity for self government has long pointed with satisfaction to the peaceful and prosperous southern republics as a shining example of both prosperity and promise.

The Fighting Going On.

LONDON, July 28.—No advices have been received from Buenos Ayres since noon, at which hour the fighting continued, and many of the combattants had been killed or wounded.

A G. R. & I. refrigerator car, packed with butter and eggs for New York, was backed off an open switch down an embankment into the creek at Kalamazoo.

Will Schunk, aged 32 years, was jammed by a car of logs at Freesoil, and so badly injured that he died soon afterward. Schunk leaves a widow and two children.

Charles M. Rippey, formerly of Muskegon, is to take the editorial management of the Saginaw Globe, the new daily exponent of Saginaw Valley Democracy.

As president of the national world's fair commission our T. W. Palmer has the appointing of abount 300 committeemen to take charge of the various parts of the work.

Rev. Dr. Van Antwerp, of Grace Episcopal church, Charlotte, has accepted a call to Marshall, and Rev. Dickie, of New York, will accept a call to the Charlotte Baptist society.

At Durand two men named Mann and Bandger fought with knives about a woman, and Pandger will probably die as a result of his injuries. The row was caused by whisky.

A large amount of logs belonging to R. G. Peters, of Manistee, are being sawed in Bay City. They come from Georgian Bay and are the best logs being sawed on the river this season.

S. S. Olds, of Lansing, Senator Stockbridge's private secretary, may come back from Washington to run the campaign for the Republicans this summer, as chairman of the state central committee.

Harry Wilburn, who married Miss Brooks, a Hastings girl, about a year ago, and has since resided at Kalamazoo, is now in jail there because another wife in Missouri has preferred a charge of bigamy.

A horse ran away with Miss Jessie Beach, aged 18, at Battle Creek. The horse ran into a cellar, throwing her upon his heels, when he kicked her in the head, breaking her skull. She died Sunday.

The Toledo and Ann Arbor railroad thinks it has a direct connection at Howell with the bottomless pit. Over 500 car loads of gravel were dumped into a hole last week, and still the top is below the level of the track.

Washing Clothes

or cleaning house with ordinary soap is like rolling a heavy stone up hill; it takes main strength and a good deal of it. The same work done with Pearline is like rolling the stone down hill—it's easy; quick; true; goes right to the mark; and with very little labor. All dirt must go before PEARLINE. It robs woman's hardest work of its drudgery—(a praiseworthy theft, by the way). The question is—does it or does it not hurt the hands, clothes or paint? We tell you it don't—but we are interested (as well as you)—so ask your friends who use it; you'll find most of them do; the annual consumption is equal to about three packages a year for every family in the land. But better yet—get a package (it costs but a few pennies, and every grocer keeps it), and try it for yourself—your gain will be larger than ours.

Beware Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers are offering imitations which they claim to be Pearline, or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—they are not, and besides are dangerous. 148 JAMES PYLE, New York.

MATRIMONIAL.

From the Sierra Madre, (Cal) Vista of July 17th, we clip the following wedding notice in which George E. Marshall a former Tecumseh boy is one of the interested parties. George's old friends here will congratulate him upon his good luck.

It is our pleasure to chronicle another happy wedding this week. The contracting parties were Mr. George E. Marshall, the popular clerk at J. B. Wilson's store, and Miss Maud Vanderlip, the accomplished daughter of Judge and Mrs. F. M. Vanderlip, all of Lamanda Park. The important ceremony was performed at 12 o'clock noon on Tuesday, at the residence of the bride's parents, Judge Vanderlip officiating. Only a few immediate friends were present and no display was made. It was a quiet but very happy wedding and the many friends of the bridal couple wish them long life and much joy in their new relation. Mr. and Mrs. Marshall will soon commence housekeeping in a neat little cottage over the Y.

ABOUT BASSWOOD LUMBER.

A. W. Slayton's reputation is extending, as the following item taken from the Northwestern Lumberman shows:

The operations of A. W. Slayton, of Tecumseh, Mich., in basswood have attracted a good deal of attention. He started a retail business at that place in 1866, after serving three years and seven months in the army. Later he built a planing mill and sash door and blind factory, which he operated 12 years, then added the manufacture of furniture. In 1885 he conceived the idea of making a specialty of basswood lumber, and made contracts with the owners of three mills to take their output. That year he handled about 100,000 feet, and the business continued to grow until this year Mr. Slayton has contracts with 75 mill men to furnish basswood lumber, in all parts of Michigan. He now contracts about 4,000,000 feet a year, buys all grades, pays cash, and sends a man to the station or mill to measure and inspect the lumber when put on a car. For over a year he has had an office in Detroit.

EIGHTH POINT

You should read THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS because everybody likes it—it will not disappoint your needs. It takes into its purpose the farmer and mechanic, as well as the merchant, and professional man. Every farmer can now have daily market reports instead of weekly, and at little more than the old-time price of his weekly. The mechanic can now afford both price and the time for his daily paper. The poor may now be as well informed on current affairs as the rich. Intelligence is within the reach of all. THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS—independent, non-partisan, fair to all—is everybody's paper.

Remember—Its circulation is 220,000 a day—over a million a week—and it costs by mail 25 cts. a month, four months $1.00,—one cent a day.

REUNION OF THE 18th MICH. INFANTRY.

The 23d Annual Reunion of the 18th Mich. Vol. Infantry will be held at Clinton, Mich., Aug. 26, 1890. Business meeting 12:30 P. M.

Close connection at Lenawee Junction with morning trains.

Gen. Geo. Spalding and others will be present and address the comrades. A general good time is expected.

Comrades: We marched to the same music; we touched elbows in the same ranks; we bivouacked under the same unsheltering sky. Let us come together on the 26th and renew that tie which was forged amid the clanging of sabers, the rattle of musketry and the thundering of cannon. Comrades of other regiments are cordially invited to meet with us.

H. B. Hathaway, President; D. H. Warren, Secretary.

More Pensions and Bounty.

A gentleman representing Milo B. Stevens & Co., of Washington, D. C., and Detroit, Mich., can be seen during the day and evening at the Tilley House, Tecumseh, Monday, Aug. 18th, and at the Lawrence House, Adrian, Tuesday, Aug. 19th, by persons desiring information concerning pensions, bounties, etc., or having claims which they desire to have prosecuted by said attorneys. The new law gives pensions to a great many not heretofore entitled.

FRANKLIN FACTS.

The much-wished-for rain did not materialize in large quantities Monday.

A letter bearing date of July 27th, from Seward county, Neb., says that corn is a failure there this year.

Frank Lambkin went to Washington last Monday to begin his new work in the Civil Service department. Mrs. Lambkin, we understand, will remain with her father-in law's family until strong enough to join her husband.

Mrs. Nellie Alexander and two children, of Seattle, Washington, are visiting at Ed. Wisner's this week. Mrs. Alexander's mother, Mrs. Caroline Hathaway, of Hudson, was prevented from accompanying her daughter here by reason of the feeble state of her health; a great disappointment to her friends here.

We can't help saying "right out loud in meeting," as it were, that we think politics horrid. To think we must lose our postmistress, one of the best, whose administration in that department could not possibly be improved, all because—oh, vanity and vexation of spirit!—because—well, we do wonder why, anyway.

E. J. Whelan has begun work on his new barn.

DEVILS LAKE DOINGS.

The rain Monday and Tuesday was needed very much here.

Al. Bedell lost a new milch cow valued at sixty dollars last week.

Hope Welch has an order for eighty carloads of stone, to go to Toledo from this place. They will begin shipping next week.

Three boys arrived in this burg a short time ago; one a son of Will Sanford's, weighing all of three pounds; another, Tom Marr's, weight twelve pounds, and the third belongs to James Horton and wife.

Everybody that is not threshing is going huckleberrying. They go to the Blue Ridge, about five miles south of Jackson, and bring from three to five bushels of berries back with them at night.

Mrs. Frank Crosby and family, of Charlotte, have been visiting friends in this vicinity for a few weeks past. They expect to move to Jackson next week.

TIPTON TOPICS.

Edith Burns has resumed her position in the depot.

A little rain is better than none, but more would be acceptable.

Mrs. Stout, of Tecumseh, sister of James Hunter, was buried last week.

Bessie Preston is in Tecumseh taking care of her grandmother, who is very ill.

The M. E. Sunday School picnic was well attended last Friday and all report a pleasant time.

Mrs. Eugene Camburn and Mrs. Mason Camburn spent Saturday and Sunday at Devils Lake.

The ice cream social at Uncle Harrison Daniels' last week drew forth a large crowd and everyone reports a pleasant evening.

The P. of I. Association will hold their anniversary meeting in the near future and a program fitting the occasion will be presented.

County Officers' Association.

At a meeting of the officers of Supervisors and County Officers' Association of Lenawee Co., held at the city of Adrian July 29th, 1890, it was unanimously resolved, that owing to the fact that a great number of public meetings will be held in said county the latter part of the present summer, it will not be advisable to hold a reunion the present season, but that said association should reorganize the present season, so as to hold a reunion each succeeding year hereafter.

Therefore, Notice is hereby given that there will be a convention of said society at Beardsell's Landing, August 28th, 1890, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, for the election of officers for the ensuing year and the transaction of other business.

All supervisors, ex-supervisors and all county officers and ex-county officers are entitled to a seat in said convention

Dated Adrian, July 30th, 1890.

SELAH RAYMOND, President.

D. D. SINCLAIR, Sec. pro tem.

What It Does.

MACON MUSIC.

There are symptoms of our meat market changing hands.

B. S. Scudder has decorated his team with a new harness and nets.

There was no service at the M. E Church last Sunday. The pastor was still in the east.

Mrs. Ace Smith went to Grand Ledge last Friday to visit her daughter, Mrs. Horace Brown.

Jesse Hendershot, who has been in Chicago for a couple of months, is on our streets again as smiling as ever.

Calus Triplett, who is special pension examiner, stationed at Logansport, Ind., was calling around Monday.

Mrs. Mamie Philips, daughter of Willard Gay, of St. Louis, Gratiot county, was visiting friends here the first of the week.

The much needed rain came at last Sunday night and Monday. The corn and potatoes in this vicinity are pretty badly dried up.

Mrs. Acel Sanford, who has been living on nearly thirty years of borrowed time, died last Monday afternoon, in the ninetieth year of her age.

A dog fight took place Monday evening, consisting of about six dogs and one man. The man came off victorious. He was the only profane one in the lot.

That Pearl street threshing machine had an overhauling the other night. One more such overhauling will rid the street of its nuisance. Later in the week will do just as well, boys.

We were sorry to learn that Henry Stevens did not get the postoffice at Tecumseh. As he was once a resident of Macon we feel for his interest and were very much disappointed. Henry, make him buy his own slips next time.

The phenomenal success of Ayer's Sarsaparilla started into existence a host of competitors. This, of course was to be expected; but the effect has been to demonstrate the superior merits of Dr. Ayer,s prepration by a constantly increasing demand for it.

BRITTON BUDGET.

Jim Underwood has put up a windmill at his barn.

Kniffin & Co's saw dust burner is a complete success.

Fred. Chappel from Morenci, is clerking in the drug store.

We are going to have a grain elevator at Britton in the near future.

The rain of the first of the week was greeted with joy by the farmers.

The entertainment given by the Good Templar's, last Saturday night, was well attended.

Charles Lenardson came over from Blissfield and took in the excursion to Devils Lake, last Sunday.

Miss Eunice Hause went over to Palmyra last Sunday to visit Miss Mamie Bowerman for a week.

Rev. James Wright returned from Genesee Co. Mich., the first of the week. His wife is still there visiting her brother.

Our drug store seems to change hands quite often. The last change being made last week, when Will Babcock bought B. J. Coller out.

The Band will give an ice cream social, on Britton's lawn, Friday evening, Aug. 8th. The Milan band will be present. All are invited to attend.

Our streets were enlivened one day last week, by the runaway of Ed. Bachman's horse, caused by the bolt coming out of the thill, and letting it fall on the horses heels. The occupants, Will Britton and Ed. Bachman, were thrown out, Will receiving a sprained wrist which laid him up for a few days.

CENSUS OF ADRIAN CITY.

Through the courtesy of Supervisor Sharp we are enabled to give the official count of the population of the city, as taken by the census enumerators. The figures of the Third ward include the college count—62—but the count of the Industrial Home—264—is not included in the figures at all, as the institution is located just outside the city limits:

First Ward	2055
Second Ward	2972
Third Ward	1715
Fourth Ward	2015
Total	8757

The Michigan Manual gives the census of 1880, by wards, as follows:

First Ward	1888
Second Ward	2626
Third Ward	1514
Fourth Ward	1821
Total	7849

The same authority gives the population as per the state census, June 1, 1884 at 9319. The population by wards does not appear to be set forth. Adrian Times.

Why it Is Popular.

Because it has proven its absolute merit over and over again, because it has an unequalled record of cures, because its business is conducted in a thoroughly honest manner and because it combines economy and strength, being the only medicine of which "100 Doses One Dollar" is true—these strong points have made Hood's Sarsaparilla the most successful medicine of the pay.

TOURISTS,

TECUMSEH, THURSDAY, AUG 7.

Did the Prohibs swallow the Patrons or did the Patrons swallow the Prohibs at Lansing last week?

The Republican party is no longer worried over the dangers of a surplus. The administration is already threatened with a deficit for the next fiscal year.

The business men of the country, both North and South, want peace in the South and not a race war, and hence they are unanimously opposed to a force bill.

The tariff debate is progressing in the Senate. Senator Plumb, a Republican member from Kansas has been asking some very ugly questions about the McKinley bill.

James G. Blaine is a good deal more likely to lead the Republican party two years hence, on a platform of Reciprocity, than Tom Reed is on a platform of the Force bill and the McKinley bill.

Blaine's Reciprocity means absolute free trade, not merely a tariff for revenue only. But Blaine can see that the war tariff is doomed and he proposes to get in out of the wet as soon as possible.

Secretary Blaine hit the nail on the head when he said that "there is not a section or line in the entire (McKinley) bill that will open a market for another bushel of wheat or another barrel of pork."

Speaker Reed's tyranical rules were adopted to "facilitate business," yet August is here, and with the exception of the silver and pension bills, not a single important measure has become a law. Many of the regular appropriation bills are still hanging fire.

A Government "of the people, by the people, for the people," as Abraham Lincoln put it, does not contemplate Federal supervisors backed by bayonets and deputy marshals armed with clubs and bulldog revolvers. Mr. Reed's Red Republicanism seems to be a different thing from the Republicanism of Abraham Lincoln.

Nothing could have been more seasonable than Mr. Wanamaker's gift of the Cape May cottage (twenty rooms) to Mrs. Harrison. In these sweltering days it ought to make a cool streak run down the Republican back every time it is remembered how comfortable the Harrisons are among the sea breezes at Cape May, thanks to Saint Wanamaker's pious generosity.

A dealer in Portland cement writes to a New York importer to inquire whether the proposed increase in duty would come out of the pockets of the dealers. "If ever dis tail pull out," said the darky outside of the bear's hole to the darky inside, "you'll find out what shut off the light." If ever the Mckinley bill shall pass the innocent who buys Portland cement will find out who will pay the tax.

An exchange says: If President Harrison had kicked down stairs the people who offered his wife a cottage at Cape May Point, he would have done a creditable act. And if he had distroyed his boots in administering to them so useful a lesson, plenty of people would be willing to subscribe for a pair of new boots for the President. His great mistake was in not bringing his right leg into action.

Reciprocity in trade is a theory growing in favor. There is this to be said for it, that it is a step in the right direction. Our dispatches say that a canvass of the house shows the warmest advocates there of reciprocity are the representatives from middle and western states. It is a matter of record that high tariff robbery has always had its strongest defence in the east, and that these doctrines are becoming abnoxious to manufacturers only because the inevitable momentum of increasing taxes, in the vain effort to adjust them satisfactorily, has at last made them oppressive to the very class for whom they were created. The middle and western states, and certainly the southern states also, are ready for such legislation as will insure commercial relations with the countries to the south of us. And this tendency to broaden trade relations will continue until the people stand upon the democratic platform of a tariff for revenue only.—Toledo Bee.

SUBLIMEST TRAGEDY.

AWFULEST SCENE IN HUMAN HISTORY REPRODUCED.

Destruction of Pompeii and Herculaneum by Volcanic Eruption—Story of That Awful Tragedy—How the Buried Cities Were Dug Out After Sixteen Hundred Years.

Pompeii was destroyed by an eruption of the volcano Vesuvius, in the year 79 after Christ. The city was very old and very rich. It was situated at the base of Vesuvius, within less than a mile of the present crater, upon the beautiful bay of Naples and the river Sarno. Herculaneum, a smaller place, was the seaport. Pompeii was surrounded by a wall with many towers, except toward the sea, where the wall was removed to allow the city to grow. At the time of its destruction Vesuvius for many centuries had been quiet. It was covered with vineyards, and its slopes were dotted with villas and cottages The mountain bloomed with flowers. In the year 63 there was an earthquake that broke the pillars of the temples and so injured the public buildings that many were rebuilt, and some were still being repaired when the doom fell. But the earthquake was general all along the mountainous coast, and gave no sign. Nevertheless there were omens. For several months before the eruption now and then the river mysteriously boiled in places; cracks showed in the rocks of the mountains, some springs disappeared; some gave sulphurous smells; in the depths of a cave were heard mutterings in the earth; and a crevice showed fire and smoke. But all nature seemed so serene that none took alarm. In the amphitheater Christians were given to the wild beasts, and there were gladiatorial combats.

The city was small, but rich with public buildings. On the forum were the temple of Jupiter, partly ruined by the earthquake of 63; the Pantheon, or temple of the twelve gods; the Curia, or city senate hall; the Basilica, the largest building in the city. Four other temples were inside the walls. There were two theaters near together, and an amphitheater, 430x335 feet, with quarters for gladiators, etc.

Cassius writes that masses of people were in the theaters attending the plays and games. It was a lovely afternoon or early evening. Suddenly there was a horrible convulsion, attended by an awful roar. The whole top of Mt. Vesuvius heaved upward and broke off. The atmosphere seemed filled with fire. Buildings shook, and some crumbled. Everybody started to fly. The people ran out of the theaters, because no bones are found in them. There poured up from Vesuvius a mile high, that spread out at the top like a palm tree. In a moment the most impenetrable darkness fell, broken only by fearful flashes of lightning with incessant thunders. The river boiled, the sea heaved, the earth rocked, the heavens were blotted out, violent gusts and eddies of wind rushed fearfully about. The terrified multitudes rushed for the sea, hoping to escape in the shipping, or poured out of the gateways to fly, they knew not where. But now, all in another moment, stones and ashes fell out of the sky, and the city was buried 18 to 20 feet deep by small, hot stones, dust and ashes. Herculaneum was buried still deeper under tuff (lava cooled into light pumice in the air) and ashes. This was so sudden that the process of uncovering the ruins has found the skeletons of victims in all shapes—the miser, buried just as he was flying out of his door with a bag of gold; the servant maid who lingered a moment to rob her mistress' room of a jewel that she died clutching. The destruction on the mountain slopes was still swifter. In one villa were found 17 skeletons still inside the building. But most of outside of the city walls. After the fall of ashes came the flow of lava. So vast was the mass that the sea was filled, and the shore is now a mile distant from the ancient wharves, and the bed of the river is two miles from where it then flowed. Ships fifty miles away, writes Pliny, had their decks covered with three inches of sand and ashes. Sixty miles away, the sun the next morning was totally hidden by dust. Vesuvius changed its shape.

For several days the mountain and vicinity were unapproachable. When, at last, the dense and terrible clouds blew away, and the earth ceased shaking, and the surface cooled, and the mountain fires cease to spout high in the air, and men could approach, the cities of Pompeii and Herculaneum, the flower and vine-blooming mountain, the rich villas, the temples and palaces were all buried, and the scene so changed that none could tell where their graves were.

So for over sixteen centuries the lost cities lay forgotten and unknown. Then, in 1748, in digging a well, some peasants broke through the chamber of a palace. Their find excited much attention; and it was at once suspected that they had discovered the site of the buried cities that the learned Cluverius had vainly searched for the previous century. In 1755 systematic operations were begun to dig out the buried cities. This has continued ever since.

In 1861 the Italian government took up the work; and, under Signor Florelli, it has been reduced to a system. The ashes of Pompeii packed close about their victims and preserved everything, even the most fragile articles. The picks of the excavators often broke into the moulds of men and animals. Plaster of paris was poured in and thus casts were taken of men, women and children, cats, dogs, rats, etc., just as they died. But the grandest figure of all is that of still standing erect at his post, with grimly resolute features. If this devotion was merely discipline, it would not be so admirable. Strong and armed, he might have escaped, and could do no good, guarding a prison, a temple, or a post. But, probably, the brave fellow was heroically trying to save the people by keeping order and crying out at the gate, so as to give the women and children and all an equal chance to find and get through the narrow space, when a great mountain of ashes fell upon him.

At the Detroit International Fair and Exposition, the greatest pyrotechnic drama ever produced, The Last Days of Pompeii, with an immense quantity of fireworks, will be produced nightly as a free exhibition. Its cost is over $2,000 per night. It has a complete dramatic company, and shows the gladiators in the amphitheater, the thronged palaces and temples, and the sudden overwhelming by the mountain, which is part of the scene, and the mad rush to escape. Be sure and see this sublimest and most exciting spectacular play ever exhibited.

THE CAMPAIGN OPENED.

The prohibition and Industrial parties held their State conventions at Lansing last week, and nominated full state tickets. We give below the platforms in full adopted by each convention:

PROHIBITION PLATFORM.

The Prohibition party of Michigan, in state convention assembled, acknowledging the Almighty God as a source of all moral power in government, and recognizing in the political and industrial affairs of the nation a crying demand for reform, proposes to assert now, as always, its determination to advocate such reforms as will relieve the people from the gross burdens imposed upon them. Foremost in these reforms to which we pledge ourselves are the following:

1. The prohibition of the manufacture, importation, transportation and sale of intoxicating beverages in state and nation.

2. The recent decision of the United States Supreme Court declaring that a state cannot prohibit the importation of intoxicating liquors in original packages, because the United States Constitution vests in Congress alone the power to regulate inter-state commerce, forces the prohibition question into national politics and emphasizes the necessity of a national Prohibition party.

3. All money to be issued by the general government direct to the people in sufficient quantities to meet the business demands of the country, the same to be full legal tender; the free and unlimited coinage of silver and the establishment by the national government of postal savings banks.

4. A readjustment of the tariff so as to tax luxuries and exempt the necessaries of life. The increase of specific taxes, so that the corporate wealth of this state shall bear as high a rate of taxation as that of the private citizen.

5. A service per diem pension to all honorably discharged soldiers.

6. The adoption throughout Michigan of the Australian ballot system.

7. The governmental control of the means of transportation and communication.

8. A perfected and enforced system of the civil service laws.

9. Equal suffrage, without distinction of sex, but with an educational qualification.

10. Speculations in margins, the cornering of markets, the formation of trusts and combinations for the purpose of arbitrarily forcing up prices, are an outrage upon the people and should be prohibited.

11. The relation of capital and labor is a pressing political issue to be solved only by a party which regards polities as "morals applied to public offices." We favor legislation that will insure to the laborer a just return for his labor, and will check the tendency to divert the wealth of the country from the hands of the many into the hands of the few.

12 The prohibition of alien land ownership by domestic corporations and by individuals; that all unearned land grants be declared forfeited, and that all government lands be held for actual settlers only.

13. That we believe that Congress should provide for the loan of legal tender notes upon real estate as security at 2 per cent in such sums as would be safe.

With full faith in our cause, as embodied in the foregoing platform, we invite the co-operation of all voters of this state in securing such reforms, especially the farming and laboring classes, whose financial, moral and social interests will be greatly advanced by the success of the Prohibition party and its principles.

INDUSTRIAL PLATFORM.

Whereas, The Democratic and Republican parties have been in control of the municipal, state and national government of this country since the civil war, and

Whereas, During that time through the criminal and negligent abuse of power intrusted to the leaders of said parties, our public domain has been alienated to corporations, wealth has been centralized, in the hands of the few and the masses proportionately impoverished; corporations have been created which oppress the people, unjust discriminations have been made in the distribution of taxes, so that the aggregate wealth of millionaires and corporations does not bear the same rate of burdens of taxation as that of the small holders; the balance has been corrupted; our system of currency has been manipulated in the interest of the bondholder: and

Whereas, Rings and political tricksters control said parties so that the voice of the people has become powerless to correct abuses through the agency of said parties, and

Whereas, The object of the various reform organizations is essentially the same, and the abuses to be removed are so alarming as to demand the laying aside of minor differences for the greater good; therefore we, citizens of Michigan, for the love of our country and our homes, in harmony with the general uprising of the reform elements throughout the country, and especially in the northwest, do under this constitution and declaration of principles merge ourselves into one united body for political action.

1. We demand the abolition of national banks, and the substitution of legal tender treasury notes in lieu of national bank notes, issued in sufficient volume to do the business of the country on the cash system, regulating the amount needed on a per capita basis as the business interests of the country expand, and that all money issued by the government shall be a legal tender in payment of all debts, both public and private.

2. That we demand the free and unlimited coinage of silver.

3. We demand that taxation, national or state, shall not be used to build up one interest or class at the expense of another.

4. That means of communication and transportation shall be owned and operated in the interests of the people, as is the United States postal system.

5. We demand that eight hours shall constitute a legal day's work in all factories, mines and workshops.

6. We demand a law permitting the farmer to deduct his mortgage from his assessment, similar to the law now in force in California.

7. We demand a graduated tax, thereby placing the burden of taxation on those most able to bear it.

8. We demand a government loan to the people on real estate security at the same rate money is now loaned to the banks.

9. We demand a strictly secret ballot, better known as the Australian ballot system.

10. We demand a homestead exemption of $1,000 on improvements and personal property.

11. We demand the election of the President of the United States and United States Senators by a direct vote of the people, and a reduction of the salaries af all public officers to a strict economical basis proportioned to the wages of labor.

12. We are opposed to any fusion.

His Son Cured.

Mr. W. H. HINMAN, a prominent and influential citizen of Mont Vernon, Ill., writes as follows, under date of March 11, 1890: "One bottle of Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) cured my son permanently of a stubborn case of Blood Poison that defied the best medical treatment available. I have recommended S. S. S. to others for blood troubles and diseases of the skin, and have never known it to fail to cure in any case.

Blood Poison Cured.

I was troubled for years with a Blood Poison in its very worst form. I was treated by the very best physicians of Louisville Ky., and Evansville, Ind., but to no avail to benefit me in any way. A few bottles of swift's Specific (S. S. S.) cured me sound and well. This was over four years ago, and there has been no return of the disease since, or any symptoms of it. I have recommended it to others for blood poison, and in every case they were permanently cured."

Peculiar

Many peculiar points make Hood's Sarsaparilla superior to all other medicines. Peculiar in combination, proportion, and preparation of ingredients, Hood's Sarsaparilla possesses the full curative value of the best known remedies of the vegetable kingdom. Peculiar in its strength and economy—Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine of which can truly be said, "One Hundred Doses One Dollar." Medicines in larger and smaller bottles require larger doses, and do not produce as good results as Hood's. Peculiar in its medicinal merits, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures hitherto unknown, and has won for itself the title of "The greatest blood purifier ever discovered." Peculiar in its "good name at home,"—there is now more of Hood's Sarsaparilla sold in Lowell, where it is made, than of all other blood purifiers. Peculiar in its phenomenal record of sales abroad, no other preparation has ever attained such popularity in so short a time, and retained its popularity and confidence among all classes of people so steadfastly. Do not be induced to buy other preparations, but be sure to get the Peculiar Medicine,

PEARLINE IS THE FRIEND OF THE WORKINGMAN

With Pearline, he can make his face and hands as white as a woman's.

His wife can make his finest linen or coarsest overalls as clean and sweet as the linen of a gentleman of leisure.

She can keep the home as clean and sweet as any palace; and more besides, it saves her one-half the time required by ordinary soap; and by doing away with most of the rubbing it does away with the worst of the wear and tear on the woman, the clothes—in fact Pearline makes a paying saving all around; it's economical no matter how you look at it.

Beware Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers are offering imitations which they claim to be Pearline, or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—they are not, and besides are dangerous. 159 JAMES PYLE, New York.

PICTORIAL PROOF.

THE FACTS ABOUT "EXPORT DISCOUNTS" CLEARLY PROVEN.

The Protectionists Try in Vain to Wriggle Out, but the Fact Remains That Manufacturers Sell Cheaper to Foreigners Than in the Home Market.

When the facts as to export discounts were first brought to public attention through the Reform club's pamphlet, and the discussion caused by it in congress, the protectionists were very much annoyed. It was exceedingly unpleasant to them to see the proofs that many of our protected manufacturers are selling to foreigners cheaper than to Americans.

But matters could not be left in that state; the facts had to be denied in some way.

During the tariff debate in the house, when Congressman Maneur, of Missouri, called attention to the facts contained in the pamphlet, Mr. Smyser, of Ohio, was ready with a denial, which he backed up with childlike innocence by quoting The Cleveland Leader.

More recently a copy of the foreign edition of The American Mail and Export Journal has been secured by Mr. Lindquist, the tariff expert of the Reform club. This foreign edition contains a foreign price list which no American is allowed to see. After waiting three months and exhausting every means at his command, Mr. Lindquist sent to South America for a copy, and obtained, through the courtesy of a Spanish firm, the "Spanish supplement" for April. It is headed in large type "Illustrated Current Price List of American Productions and Manufactures for Exportation."

This supplement contains forty-eight wide columns. The first of the columns here given is reproduced from cuts made for the weekly edition of The New York World. As these cuts appeared in The World they were made by photographic process from the above mentioned "Spanish supplement," and are reduced in size simply to make them fit an ordinary newspaper column.

The second column contains cuts reproduced by The World from the advertisement of the Ann Arbor Agricultural company, printed in the American edition of The American Mail and Export Journal.

The following table gives the result of the comparison:

	Spanish price.	American price.
Advance plow	$6 00	$15 00
Advance plow	4 00	8 00

"In the summer of 1864 I was sent to the Annapolis hospital, suffering with chronic diarrhea. While there, I became so reduced in strength that I could not speak and was compelled to write everything I wanted to say. I was then having some 25 or 30 stools per day. The doctors ordered a medicine that I was satisfied would be of no benefit to me. I did not take it, but persuaded my nurse to get me some of Dr. Ayer's Pills. About two o'clock in the afternoon I took six of these pills, and by midnight began to feel better. In the morning the doctors came again, and after deciding that my symptoms were more favorable, gave me a different medicine, which I did not use, but took four more of the pills instead. The next day the doctors came to see me, and thought I was doing nicely, (and so did I). I then took one pill a day for a week. At the end of that time, I considered myself cured and that Ayer's Pills had saved my life. I was then weak, but had no return of the disease, and gained in strength as fast as could be expected."—F. C. Luce, Late Lieut. 56th Regt. Mass. Vol. Infantry.

Failures in Life.

People fail in many ways. In business, in morality, in religion, in happiness, and in health. A weak heart is often an unsuspected cause of failure in life. If the blood does not circulate properly in the lungs, there is shortness of breath, asthma, etc.; in the brain, dizziness, headache, etc.; in the stomach, wind, pain, indigeston, faint spells, etc.; in the liver, torpidity, congeston, etc.; heart strain. For all these maladies Dr. Miles' New Cure for the heart and lungs is the best remedy. Sold, garanteed and recommended by Baker & Hall. Treatise free.

How I Saved My Life

I was taken sick while at the dinner table with terrible distress in my stomach. Before this I had been hearty and strong. For fourteen days I kept getting worse, despite the efforts of two doctors. I lost forty pounds, and was satisfied that I could live but a few days. My trouble was resulting in an attack of bilious colic. At this time I saw Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, of Rondout, N. Y., advertised, and sent for a bottle. I also sent for my physician, and told him that I was going to try the Favorite Remedy. He examined it and told me to use it three days and let him know the result. In the three days I walked four miles. Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy has saved my life.—W. S. Bitzer, Shatepillis, Ross co., Ohio.

The figure 9 in our dates will make a long stay. No man or woman now living will ever date a document without using the figure 9. It stand in the third place in 1890, where it will remain 10 years and then move up to second place in 1900 where it will rest for one hundred years.

There is another "9" which has also come to stay. It is unlike the figure 9 in our dates in the respect that it has already moved up to first place, where it will permanently remain. It is called the "No 9" High Arm Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine.

The "No. 9" was endorsed for first place by the experts of Europe at the Paris Exposition of 1889 where, after a severe contest with the leading machines of the world, it was awarded the only Grand Prize given to family sewing machines, all others on exhibit having received lower award of gold medals, etc. The French Government also recognized its superiority by the decoration of Mr. Nathaniel Wheeler, President of the company, with the Cross of the Legion of Honor.

The "No. 9" is not an old machine improved upon, but is an entirely new machine, and the Grand Prize at Paris was awarded it as the grandest advance in sewing machine mechanism of the age. Those who buy it can rest assured, therefore, of having the very latest and best.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with Inflammation.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years,

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Price 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

CO. C. IN CAMP.

How the Boys Enjoyed Military Life Durin their Week's Encampment at Battle Creek.

As the HERALD reporter was with Co. C. in camp and did not return till Tuesday, and as we were short of help in the composing room last week owing to sickness, we were reluctantly compelled to defer our report of the Battle Creek encampment until this week.

The regular annual encampment is looked forward to by all the militia companies with the keenest anticipations. It not only affords them an outing and change from the humdrum of every day life, but gives them an insight into actual military life in camp such as they can not possibly obtain at home.

On Monday and Tuesday of camp week the "advance guard" comprising the quartermaster, cooks and a few who were detailed for special service, went to Battle Creek. The company itself followed on Wednesday. Co. B., of Adrian, also went up on the same train over the Mackinaw road, arriving at camp about three o'clock Wednesday afternoon. The tents were pitched on the same grounds as last year. The 1st regiment occupied the west side of the grounds, Co. C. being on the third street from the west. As the boys were not called upon for regular duty Wednesday afternoon, it gave them plenty of time to fix up their tents as convenient as possible.

The tents for each company were ten in number and at the north end of the row stood the mess tent and cook shanty.

Commencing at the south end of the street and numbering toward the north we give a list of the messes occupying each tent as follows:—

No. 1—Orderly Serg't, Zimmerman, Corps. Luther and Sam McClure, Privates Crossman, Barager and Joslyn.

No 2—Serg't Farley, privates Brown Norcross, McKinney, Heidenrich, and Dunn.

No 3—Musicians Prof. and Will Skinner, privates Buckley and Lowry.

4—Privates Hughes, Hardenburg, Chase, Caldwell, Rob. McClure and Southworth.

5—Serg't Will Bidwell, Corps. Packard and Macham, privates Green, Tefft and Gamble.

6—Serg's Patterson and Field, Co'ps Waldron, Walker, Levi Hayden and T. McClure.

7—Privates Tiffany, Marvin Hayden Bowen, Moore, Howard, and Chas Bidwell.

8—Privates Tremaine, Miller, Keyser, Copp, Chidester and Boyd.

9—Privates Blessing, McNeil, Harkness, Westcott and Stacy.

10—Serg't Marks, privates Sheldon, Hendershott, Russell and G. Tansley.

All of the tents had good floors and some were carpeted and variously decorated with flags, bunting, etc. Each had a gun rack and mattresses, while some were furnished with cot beds. The company officers' quarters were located at the south of the streets, in a line at right angles to them.

Regular camp duty began Thursday morning and closed on the Tuesday morning following. The daily routine was as follows:

Reveille, musicians call—5:30.
Reveille, bands and field music 5:45.
Setting-up drill by each company.
Breakfast call—6:30.
Sick call—7:00.
Guard mount, Assembly—8:00.
Battallion drill, Assembly—9:00.
Recall—11:30.
Dinner call—12:00.
Battallion drill, Assembly—2:30.
Recall—5:00.
Supper call—5:30.
Dress parade, assembly—6:40.
Tattoo—9:30
Taps—10:00.

A brigade drill was held Friday and Saturday. Sunday there was the usual inspection in the forenoon and religious services in the afternoon. Tuesday morning the Brigade broke camp and the boys arrived home that afternoon on the Mackinaw train.

There was no lack of band music on the ground. Taggart's band accompanied Co. B., of Adrian, and acted as 1st Reg. band. The Flint and Quincy bands were present and also the 4th Reg. band and the 19th U. S. Inf. band. All of them gave concerts at different times.

Co. C. never appeared to better advantage since its organization. The camp was much quieter than last year and the general drilling smoother and more nearly correct. Co. C. turned out a goodly number for all drills and parades notwithstanding a large number of officers and privates were detailed for special duty. Among the noticable improvments in camp discipline and duty was the zeal displayed in guard duty, by every militiaman, from officer of the day to private. This was stimulated by the award of a medal each day to the sentinel who displayed the greatest excellence in guard duty. The guard service of the entire camp would have done credit to a command of the best disciplined regulars.

Quartermaster Patterson proved to be the right man to take charge of the "Culindary" department, and in cooks Hodges and Jordan he had two able assistants.

Lieut. Will McNair was with Co. C. during the entire camp and took command of the campany during the sham battle.

A large number of Tecumseh people were present on Sunday. Co. C. fed about one hundred guests that day.

Surgeon Woodward took his wife and daughters with him, and they remained until camp broke up.

Capt. Fred B. Wood gained new plandits. He was more popular than ever this year.

A number of Co. C. members were selected for special duty. Private Barager was orderly for Gov. Luce, Monday. Serg't Marks was appointed color sergeant, Sergt Bidwell general right guide of the regiment, Harry Tansley on the hospital corps, and several on the provost guard.

The street occupied by companies C. and G. was the handsomest one in the whole camp. From sticks extending from the front end of the ridge-pole of each tent were hung colored lanterns, alternating red and blue, while flags were fastened on the ends of the sticks. At one end of the street was a high pole on the top of which was fastened a cluster of different colored lanterns.

The boys returned from their week's outing more loyal than ever to Co. C. and the citizens of Tecumseh are prouder than ever of their military company.

HANDLING THE WORD OF GOD DECEITFULLY

Battle Creek July 21st. '90.

EDITOR HERALD.—This is the title of an article that appeared in your paper July 10th. It is to correct if possible some of the misleading statements made by your correspondent that I ask space in your columns for these few remarks.

Is. 41: 21. saith, "Produce your cause saith the Lord, bring forth your strong reason, saith the King of Jacob." This the writer of that article has failed to do.

In place of "reasons" and proofs for condemming the book called "Bible Reading" he brings forth only insinuations and charges that prove nothing. It is easy to make charges; but quite another thing to prove them.

He asserts the book is not orthodox. Does he fix the standard of orthodoxy for Franklin? If so, many more "Bible Readings" are needed there than I sold. In condemning this book he also relegates the scripture to the background: for in it is the Bible pure and simple.

He further says the book is unsafe for young people to read, not uplifting in tendency, and might unsettle the faith of some. These are grave charges against a book made up almost entirely of scriptural texts, and are charges in which no intellegent person who has the book will let pass without an investigation of its contents to see if these things be so. Charges which may lead people to see that his warnings are not what he would have people to believe them to be, an honest advertisment for the good of all.

I query has this man read "Bible Readings" at all. If he had why did he not give subject and page where some of this "deadly poison" of which he speaks is so "cunningly concealed" It seems to me where error glistens so plainly as he sees it, he ought to have been able to show some of it for the benefit of those whom he terms victims, as well for those who might become such. But no, this is not the style of your correspondent.

He would accuse and insinuate, and there is nothing so deadly as an insinuator in the absence of people; but Mr. Editor insinuations are not proof, and never will be accepted as such by honest minded people.

The writers name in good honest letters might have carried some weight, and helped to accomplish that which he sought, the downfall of the agent, and broken up to a considerable extent my delivery July 14th. in the "vicinity." But as it was his advertisment only helped one to make a good and speedy delivery. Out of eighty-one subscriptions in and around Tecumseh I lost only four, a remarkably delivery; and made too in the face of the strong opposition he has created by his timely warning.

And so ever will be the result, where prejudice takes the place of "common sense" and to those who have the work, I would ask in justice to myself, (who he charges with having "done Franklin.") and for the reputation of the book I canvass for, a candid perusal of its pages a fair comparison with Scripture before condemning "Bible Readings" and accepting as truth all that this man says.

Yours for Truth.

GONE TO REST.

When a prominent man in the community is gathered to his fathers, the people chant his praises and the press chronicles his good deeds and character. When a "Mother in Israel" has completed the allotted time of three score and ten, and during all these years has faithfully performed the duties of wife and mother, in the humble station to which Providence has assigned her, her good deeds are none the less deserving of commemoration.

The subject of this humble tribute, Mrs. Sarah Stout, whose maiden name was Sarah Hunter, was born in Seneca Co., N. Y., Dec. 26th, 1820. In the year 1844, having previously married Wilson H. Stout, she and her husband came to Michigan and settled on a farm in the town of Franklin. After a few years residence there they removed to this village which has since been the home of the family. Mr. Stout engaged in various occupations while residing in the village. He departed this life in 1861, leaving a widow with four children, two sons and two daughters. Wilson H., the eldest son enlisted in the army and Herbert E. found employment in the village and thus assisted their mother to support the family. Three of the children have since gone to meet the father, and the mother has now joined the circle on the other shore, leaving Herbert E. the sole survivor of the family. The deceased united with the Presbyterian church when only 17 years old, and was a consistent follower of that faith until her death. She was a woman of untiring industry and perseverance, and her daily life was a constant sacrifice to promote the welfare and happiness of husband and children. Misfortunes and trials finally shattered her health and for the past 13 years she has been an invalid. About three weeks since she was taken worse, and on Thursday, July 23d. she obeyed the summons and left this earthly tabernacle.

The funeral services were held at the family residence on Sunday afternoon, July 27th, and were largely attended by personal friends in Tecumseh and Franklin. The floral offerings were beautiful and tasty. The services were conducted by her Pastor Rev. W. H. Babbitt, assisted by Rev. J. Phelps, who was a personal friend of the family. The Presbyterian choir furnished appropriate music. The employees of Brewer's foundry, as a mark of respect and sympathy for Mr. Stout, a member of the firm, attended the funeral in a body.

The grief of the only surviving son can be assuaged by the reflection that the mother's heavenly home is far better than her earthly one, and that in a few short years he will himself join the reunited circle on the other shore.

OBITUARY

James Orson Zeluff, and William Oscar Zeluff were twins. Oscar died of scarlet fever aged 17 months. The deceased was born December 13th, 1853, at Utica, McComb County Michigan; and when eight years old, he lost the sense of hearing from an attack of brain fever. While walking upon the track of the C. J. & M. R. R. between the bridge, and the Tecumseh depot, on Thursday evening July 10th. 1890, at 7-30 p. m. he was struck, by the locomotive of an extra freight, running west, when his head was badly fractured, and a limb terribly broken, thus leaving the unfortunate man in an unconsious state, until four hours later, when death claimed its victim. It is said of James Orson Zeluff, that he was particularily careful, to avoid accidents, or coming in contact with the cars. The friends of the deceased charge no blame upon the engineer of the train, who blew his whistle furiously for brakes, but impossible to stop the train, ere it struck the man. The only surviving brother John Zeluff, residing in Ridgeway, who with his wife was at his parents in Tecumseh, remembering as he heard that more than usual whistle from the cars, that James had gone to turn his horses in the pasture, immediately started with the thought of danger, and ran to where the unfortunate brother lay with halters grasped in his hands. Here was a horrid sight, to behold, and especially to an aged father mother and sister, who were leaning upon the main prop in the home; and the great problem to solve why James should be taken just where and in the way he was: it never can be known! No. "not now but thou shalt know hereafter." The mother could say "James had no bad habits, he was always in at an early hour, and was interested in doing his work well, and he had a recognition of God." It was the mother's prayer, that she might live to see James cared for, and true that mother has lived to see her son cared for. Two years ago a lot was purchased in Tecumseh cemetery, as a family lot. James fitted it up, and when friends would visit the family, he was anxious first to have them go and see his lot, as he called it; and how true it has proved to be his, for he is the first to be laid in it; aged 36 years 6 months and 27 days. While he leaves a father mother brother and three sisters to mourn his loss, with many relatives, a goodly number of whom were present on Sunday July 13th, at 10 30 a. m. where citizens and acquaintances gathered at the old home in Tecumseh, to pay their last sad tribute to one of whom it is universally said he was a good fellow. There were many flowers, rich and beautifully grand, furnished by Seaton Anderson and wife, John Orr and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Spaulding of Tecumseh, also from Jackson, Marshall, Toledo and elsewhere, as offerings expressive of the esteem the deceased was held in. The funeral services were conducted by Elder James Wright of Britton, Michigan.

KNIGHTS TEMPLAR IN CAMP.

The regular annual encampment of Adrian Commandery, No. 4, for the year 1890, has come and gone. The camp was in Putnam's grove on the shores of Sand Lake, which proved to be a beautiful location.

The camp opened on Thursday morning and closed on Sunday evening. Regular drills were held each day both forenoon and afternoon, and dress parade between 5 and 6 P. M. every day. The Tecumseh city band was in attendance and furnished music throughout the four days. There was a band concert daily between 8 and 10 o'clock A. M. and between 7 and 8 o'clock P. M.

On Saturday afternoon about five o'clock, Prof. Jacobs made a very successful balloon ascension.

Religious services were held Sunday forenoon in the grove, conducted by Rev. Dr. McElroy.

The dress parade on Sunday was participated in by the Adrian Light Guard and the Tecumseh company, as guests of the Commandery. Sergeant Major Hoag, of the First Regiment, M. S. T., very creditably filled the position of adjutant, and Maj. Seymour Howell, as commanding officer through courtesy of Emminent Commander W. F. King. In the general orders, the visiting bodies were congratulated and made to feel at home, and Rev. Dr. McElroy was thanked for his sermon and the Tecumseh band for the excellence of their music, and their readiness to respond on all occasions.

The members of the Commandery who reside in Tecumseh, Ridgeway and Cambridge were all in attendance.

Taken all in all, it was the most successful Knights Templar camp that has yet been held.

THE LEADING MICHIGAN CITIES.

The reports of the population of Michigan cities continue to come into the census office. It is stated at the bureau that Michigan has seventy cities of more than 10,000 inhabitants, which is a remarkable increase. There are nearly seventy cities and towns in Michigan having over 2,500 population:

Detroit	208,000
Grand Rapids	61,000
Saginaw	54,000
Bay City	32,000
Jackson	22,000

Card of Thanks.

I wish to extend my sincere thanks to all those that have assisted me, in my endeavor to secure the appointment for postmaster, whether by signing a petition or by personal effort. Our congressman informed me by letter of the 25th ult. that my majority over Mr. Lawrence is forty-five. Had I received credit for all the names that changed in my favor, the majority would be "one hundred" and over, which can be corroborated by the papers now in Mr. Allen's possession. By the plan adopted, and agreed upon by our congressman. the writer was the winer and that by a large majority, which can be fully substantiated by his word, letters, and the petitions.

Very truly yours,

A Correction.

We were a little off on the yield of that wheat being 43 bushels per acre, and in justice to everyone would like to make a correction. John Richards, Jr., was down and measured the land Friday and instead of there being six acres in the field he made it only 4.98 acres. Dividing the yield, 254 bushels, by that, it makes about 51 bushels to the acre and the rakings are not threshed yet. L. B. SPENCER

A SILVER WEDDING.

On Saturday last, Aug. 2d., Mr. and Mrs. Wm. C. Jordan had traveled the matrimonial path together for just twenty-five years. It seemed a fitting time to invite their friends to participate with them in celebrating the event. At seven o'clock, the appointed hour, the guests began to assemble, and their residence was soon filled with a jolly company that overflowed upon the lawn outside. About fifty guests were present in all, several being in attendance from the township of Rome, where Mrs. Jordan formerly resided. Between eight and nine o'clock a bountiful supper was served to which all did ample justice, and the remainder of the evening until a late hour was spent in social enjoyment.

The collection of wedding gifts was very valuable, comprising many elegant pieces, which showed, better than words can express, the esteem in which the host and hostess are held by those who know them best. The guests took their departure at a late hour, with many wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Jordan, that they might live to celebrate their golden wedding.

LIST OF PRESENTS.

Set Silver Nut Picks—Mr and Mrs. S. W. Teachout, Rome Center.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL EXCURSION.

The Union Sunday School Excursion to Devil's Lake last Friday was well attended, and both young and old who attended had a most delightful time. There were 440 passengers on a train of five coaches, and to say that the cars were packed would be drawing it rather mild. The train arrived at Manitou Beach about ten o'clock, and the most of the crowd boarded the steamer 'City of Hudson,' and went to Beardsell's grove. After a sumptuous picnic dinner the crowd scattered, and the afternoon was enjoyed in various ways as the inclination of each one prompted. The G. A. R. and Flora made three trips into Round Lake, and they were loaded down every time. Joe Everett handled the wheel of Fred's boat all day and did it successfully. Many of the excursionists visited the Tecumseh cottages at Manitou Beach, and many visited Cedar Point and the North end. At five o'clock the train started on the homeward trip, and people were at home in time for supper. Not an accident of any kind occurred to mar the harmony of the day and all who participated, voted it a most jolly time.

THE TECUMSEH HERALD

TECUMSEH, MICH., AUG. 7, 1890

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

Henry Lovejoy of Adrian was in town last Tuesday.

Heck Bros. have just filled an order for 400 sacks of flour to be sent to Glasgow, Scotland.

Miss Milla Pennock has charge of the greenhouse during Mrs. Spalding's recreation.

Don't forget the Temperance Tea at Mrs. Will Grey's on Logan street, Friday, Aug. 8th.

J. R. Blanchard, of the Clinton Local was in town Saturday and favored the HERALD with a brief call.

The 23d. annual reunion of the 18th Reg Mich. Inf. will be held this year at Clinton, on Tuesday, Aug. 26th

Mr. J. B. Whelan and family of Detroit, are enjoying a week's vacation among their Tecumseh and Franklin friends.

Macham Bros. have put incandescent lights in their barber shop. They have five lights. It is an elegant light to shave by.

Between camps and excursions, hot weather and sickness, our office force has been pretty badly demoralized for the past month.

Miss Gillily of Kansas, a relative of Mrs. D. W. Clark and Mrs. John J. Freeman, is visiting friends in Tecumseh and vicinity.

Will J. Kies of Elkhart, was in town Tuesday. He has bought out his brother George and is now running the Elkhart store alone.

A large number of Tecumseh people attended the Sand Lake picnic yesterday. We shall have a report of the affair in next week's paper.

Married at the residence of Rev. J. M. Getchell, on Union street, July 23d. '90, Mr. Alfred A. Kelley and Miss Mary Marks, both of Clinton, Lenawee county, Mich.

Mrs. Lyman Abbott, wife of the successor to Henry Ward Beecher as pastor of Plymouth Church, is to become one of the editors of the Ladies' Home Journal, on September 1st next.

Mr. Eugene Case of Franklin has lately procured a magnificent oil portrait of his father. It was executed by a N. Y. city artist, and was ordered through Mr. Fred Brown of this village.

Mrs. D. T. Hall, who has been seriously ill for several weeks, is slowly failing, and her friends have about given up hopes of her recovery. It is a sad case, and Mr. Hall has the sympathy of every one in his affliction.

"Don't be a numskull." "Learn to use your thinkers." To incite to independent thought and to develop the ability to think correctly is the main object in all lines of work in the Fayette Normal University. Fayette, O.

Mrs. John Crowell and children, go to Cleveland, Ohio, to-morrow, where she will remain to educate her boys. The girls have secured situations. Their many friends wish them prosperity and will sadly miss their generosity. Brownville will indeed be lonesome.

Theodore Roosevelt will contribute to Harper's Bazar, published July 25th, a review of Mrs. Custer's new book "Following the Guidon." The same number of the Bazar will contain Miss Elizabeth Bisland's second paper on "An American Woman's First Season in London."

Grand Excursion to Devils Lake on Sunday, Aug. 10th, the C. J. & M. R. R. will run a special excursion to Devils Lake and return, on account of the various attractions on that date. Trains leave Tecumseh at 9:32 a. m. standard time. Fare 40 cents.
T. C. M. SCHINDLER, G. P. A.

The Democratic electors of Tecumseh will meet in caucus at the Council Building on Friday, Aug. 15, 1890, at 7 30 P. M., to choose six delegates to attend the County Convention Aug. 18th, and six delegates to attend the district convention yet to be called. By order Town Com.

Mrs. Jno. F. Hicks and Mrs. Dr. Woodward, entertained a number of their friends at a tea party, at the Hicks residence on Union street last Saturday afternoon. Notwithstanding the intense heat it proved to be a very enjoyable gathering. Among the guests were Wm. H. Osborn, Jr., of Milwaukee, Mr. and Mrs. Rufus T. Bush of Brooklyn, N. Y.; also Mr. and Mrs. W. L Jones and Miss Ella Hall of Ridgeway.

At the residence of the bride's parents in Tecumseh, on July 30th, Mr. Chas. E. Burns was united in marriage to Miss Allie B. Gray. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. Phelps, in the presence of family relatives and a few intimate friends and the happy pair left for Detroit where they will make their future home. The grooms former home was in Franklin where he was brought up. The bride has long been a favorite in the social circles of Tecumseh, and her departure will be regretted by a large circle of friends. But their regrets will be accompanied by their hearty congratulations.

Regular meeting of the P. of I. at Cheever's Hall this evening.

Lt. Elliott Gray has our thanks for late copies of the Edinburgh Scotsman.

Joe Everett is at work for Fred Deuel, at Devils Lake, on the G. A. R. Steamer.

The new flume at the Globe mill has has been completed, and the pond is again filled.

Remember the Alumni Reunion at Raisin Valley Seminary to-morrow, Friday afternoon.

The Table Co. made several shipments last week, and they are receiving orders almost daily.

A thermometer at B. L. Baxter's residence marked 104° in the shade last Sunday afternoon.

The State Teachers' Institute for Lenawee Co., will begin at Adrian next Monday, Aug. 11th.

M. S. Hendershot and family are enjoying a week's recreation this week with relatives and friends at Brooklyn.

A night blooming cereus belonging to Mrs. S. W. Bordine, unfolded two large blossoms last Saturday evening. Mrs. Bordine had a large number of uninvited guests that evening.

The death of Mrs. A. J. Coddington last week, although not unexpected, was a sad blow to her husband and other friends. The funeral services held last Saturday afternoon were largely attended. A suitable obituary will appear next week.

We call attention to the prospectus of the Christian HERALD, which appears in another column. It is a first class religious and home newspaper and should find it's way into every Baptist family in the State.

The incandescent lamps were lighted Saturday evening in the store of Geo. Heeson & Son. They have six lights in all and the store was finely lighted. The incandescent system will be used in several other stores.

We doubt if Tecumseh ever saw three hotter days than last Friday, Saturday and Sunday. We think Sunday was the most oppressive day we ever experienced in this latitude. The mercury stood above 100° all the afternoon. It was 96° at ten a. m.

Capt. Ansel P. Coddington of Tecumseh, was honored with the nomination for State Treasurer on the Prohibition state ticket. This is a first-class nomination. We can congratulate the Prohibition party upon the wisdom of their action, at least in this instance.

The rush of entries to the Detroit Exposition this year is unprecedented, and the large buildings and grounds are going to be filled to their utmost capacity. The Northern Pacific Railroad Company makes one of the biggest entries, to show the attractions of the country they traverse.

Daniel T. Hall was originally one of the candidates for postmaster at Tecumseh, but several weeks ago he withdrew in favor of Capt. Lawrence. It was not known at the time, but has lately become public property. Mr. Hall's act was a very honorable one, and will add to the esteem with which his friends and party associates already regard him.

The officers and directors of the Lenawee and Hillsdale Farmers' Picnic Association met at Lake View on the 24th inst., and decided upon the 28th of August as the time, and Beardsell's landing as the place of holding the annual picnic. The usual committees were appointed and this monster gathering will likely lose none of its bigness this year.

Mr. Richard Wilson, formerly of this place, left yesterday for Toledo, where he is engaged in the employ of Allen & Parkhurst, painters.

Mrs. D. T. Hall died at eight o'clock this morning. The funeral will be held at the family residence at one o'clock next Saturday afternoon.

Misses Allie Warren and Lizzie Smith left this forenoon for a few days' visit with friends at Grand Rapids.

At the Republican Caucus Tuesday evening the following persons were elected as delegates to the County Convention to be held in Adrian Saturday, Aug. 9, 1890: Lucius Lilley, John D. Shull, J. W. Wightman, O. P. Bills, Chas. Bidwell and B. P. Anderson. The following persons were elected delegates to the First District Representative Convention, which will be held at Blissfield on Monday, Sept. 1st.: George Howell, H. W. Stevens, Albert Waring, James Elliott, Wm. J. Waldron, M. E. Conklin.

Dr. Bennett will be at the Lilley House Aug. 13th. All those who are sick and seem to have no power to do anything; tonics cannot recuperate them; discouraged and no hope to get well, go and see Dr. Bennett. Talk with him. Learn how one power alone moves this little machine—the body—and this power is impaired. Remove this condition and you are well. Go talk with him when here. Costs you nothing. He gets them well and no mistake. Results show it. What more do you wish?

The McKinley Bill to be Up in the Senate.

FORECAST OF CONGRESS' WORK FOR THIS WEEK.

Lodge's Federal Election Act—Other Matters for Discussion and Action—What the National Solons Will Do During the Hot Days—The Breckenridge Arkansas Election Case.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—The Senate will continue the consideration of the tariff bill until Friday of this week when Mr. Frye, the chairman of the commerce committee has given notice that he will ask that the river and harbor bill be taken up and disposed of. The river and harbor bill will not take less than two days debate and the debate may extend over a week, particularly if the Democratic policy of obstruction is carried out. The consideration of the tariff bill may be interupted early in the week by the presentation of the conference report on the land grant forfeiture bill or the conference report on original package bill either of these may lead to extended debate so the prospects of making much progress with the tariff bill this week are not very good.

SENATOR HOAR.

It may be that the Republican caucus will get together during the week in view of the slowness of debate on the bill thus far, and agree to put before the Senate the proposition for adopting a rule on which the previous question can be called. This is not thought probable by those (and they are in the majority), who think that the federal election bill is to be shelved by adjournment until the next session of congress.

The business that may be transacted in the house this week will depend largely upon the presence and maintenance of a quorum during the week.

There are a number of matters waiting and claiming the attention of the House, but just which particular matter will receive attention first it is difficult to predict. There is a disposition on the part of the majority to dispose of the conference report on the "original package" bill, the "compound lard" lard bill and several contested election cases. The general deficiency bill and the Indian appriation bill with Senate amendments are awaiting action of the House, and either of these or some other matters not likely to arouse party feeling are likely to be considered during the week even in the absence of a quorum. The probability is that the original package bill will be acted upon early in the week, and that the general deficiency bill which when brought before the House, will occupy its time for several days, will be disposed of during the week.

Majority Committee Report in the Great Arkansas Clayton-Breckenridge Contested Case.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—The majority report of the House committee on elections upon the Clayton-Breckenridge contested case and the murder of the Republican contestant, is completed and ready for submission to the House. No earnest attempt, the report says, to aid in bringing Clayton's murderers to justice was ever made by the local authorities. Refering to the killing of the negro detective, Smith, who was investigating the ballot box theft, and of George Bentley, a brother of O. T. Bentley, who was suspected of being one of the thieves, it says that George Bentley at the time was negotiating with the Pinkertons to give evidence and expose the guilty parties when he was said to have been accidentally shot by his rother. While there was no direct evidence to crimination in the killing of Bently, it was very unfortunate, the report says that these two killings occurred while the victims were about to give evidence to Pinkerton's detectives. Continuing, the majority says no reasonable explanations of the murder appears, except that some of the ballot box thieves, finding the taking of testimony progressing, killed Colonel Clayton to suppress the investigation. No other motive is possible. The necessity, the report says, for the enactment of some laws which will prevent ballot box stealing and murder from conferring a prima facie title to a seat in congress, is evident from the result in this contest. "Had such laws been in force," the report says "as would have prevented the contestee from taking his seat with such a title, no one would have attempted to confer such title by stealing the ballot box. Evidently ballot box stealing was looked upon as a joke in that community until the awful consequences that have resulted have appalled the good people of the country. No doubt some of these men would have been deterred from taking the first step in the crime if they had realized that the murder would be the end. Breckenridge got the seat in congress and one crime followed in the footsteps of the other. The least guilty of the criminals dare not expose the more guilty, lest the fate of Clayton should overtake them.

"That the nominee of a great political party should accept a certificate of election to a seat to which he was clearly not elected and at the same time aid in the payment of a fine imposed upon another violater of the law and that such conduct should not be met with anything but commendation and approval by his followers shows a state of disregard for the principles of popular government which may well make the future of the country be looked upon with apprehension. That men may be found lawless enough to commit these crimes is to be deplored; but when men of high character and standing complacently avail themselves of the fruits of such crime, and the control of the national house of Republicans is made to turn upon such methods, it no longer remains a mere matter of local concern, but arises to the magnitude of a national calamity.

The present case, the report says, has attracted attention not because it stands alone as a startling and striking incident of dangers ahead to our form of government, but because it appears to be one of a very bad kind. In the old days of the code of honor political antagonists often met face to face and eye to eye and sought their adversaries' life. This method of settling political differences has become obsolete, and we frequently congratulate ourselves on the improved moral tone of our day and generation. But never before has a contest for a seat in congress been terminated by the bullet of an assassin. If such methods are submitted to in silence, the party benefitted by the crime of its partisans quietly and without dispute retaining the benefits of the death his competitor, a new element would be introduced in our form of government. A resolution will accompany the report declaring the seat now held by Mr. Breckenridge vacant.

WAR IN UTAH.

Desperate Shooting Growing Out of an Exciting Election.

OGDEN, UTAH, Aug. 4.—Political excitement is running high in Ogden and vicinity. As a result of the bitter feeling engendered a serious affray occurred in which C. E. Emerson, John Hamer, a brother of the candidate for county recorder, and James Griffin were shot, Griffin and Hamer fatally. The men met in a well known summer resort where heavy bets were being made on the coming election. Several thousand dollars had been staked when a quarrel arose over a bet that had been made. Griffin attempted to shoot Washburn, an employe in the county clerk's office, but Hamer interfered, when Griffin shot him twice. Griffin was shot in the abdomen and Emerson caught a bullet in the foot. No one knows who fired the last two shots, but it is supposed to have been the negro porter who fired indiscriminately into the crowd when the affray commenced. He has been arrested.

THE CROPS.

GOVERNMENT BULLETIN OF THE PRESENT CONDITION

Of the Harvested and Growing Crops in the United States—Changes Since Last Week.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—The signal office weather crop bulletin for the past week reports unfavorable weather for growing crops generally throughout the entire corn belt, extending from Ohio and Michigan westward to Kansas and Nebraska, and the continued drought, in connection with the hot, dry winds west of the Mississippi, has permanently injured the corn crop, especially in Kansas, Nebraska and Missouri, and lowered the prospects of this crop in the states of the central valleys. In Minnesota and the Dakotas, the weather was favorable for harvesting, which is well advanced, but the hot, dry winds were unfavorable for wheat. The week closes with showers and cooler weather in this section, conditions which will prove favorable for the wheat crop in the northern portions.

All crops need rain in Kentucky, Tennessee and Arkansas, although the cotton crop continues in good condition in these states. Reports from the South Atlantic and Gulf States indicate that the weather during the past week has been generally favorable for cotton in Eastern Louisiana, and thence eastward over South Carolina, although in some sections of Alabama and North Carolina cotton is shedding badly and some slight injury is reported from black rust. South Carolina reports all crops benefitted, and cotton uninjured by rain. In portions of Texas and Louisiana the crop is suffering from drought, and in the latter state the cane and rice crops continue in excellent condition.

From Virginia northward over western New York, recent showers have improved the crop conditions, but corn, tobacco and potates are in need of more rain. In New Jersey, all crops were improved by rains and warm weather, except the grape crop, which has been permanently injured by black rot. The weather was very favorable for farm work in New York, where a large hay crop has been secured.

The drought has been broken in New England, and all crops, especially corn, tobacco and potatoes were very much improved. On the Pacific coast the weather was very favorable for harvesting in Oregon and Washington, and the yield of wheat and oats is reported better than was expected. In California, some slight injury to fruit resulted from hot, dry winds, otherwise the weather was favorable for harvesting and fruit gathering. The hop prospect is excellent. The general feature of fruit crops in the east have increased the demand for California fruit, and prices are reported better than in many years.

A Deep Plot.

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 4.—Secret police have unearthed another Nihilist plot against the life of the czar. A conspiracy is reported to be one of the most desperate and widespread of any that have yet come to light, its danger lying in the prominent positions held by the foremost men in the plot. A professor in the imperial university and two officers of the army are known to have been among them. The former is under arrest, and the police are making other arrests of students and persons prominent in social and military life here, and in other cities of the empire. The suspected officers above mentioned fled to Moscow and there both committed suicide to avoid capture by detectives on their track.

The imperial family is reported to be deeply affected by the revelations already made of the extent of the plot, as many of the suspected persons have held most confidential relations with the court.

Struck by Lightning.

BUCKFIELD, ME., Aug. 4.—During a thunder storm Thursday afternoon, lightning struck the residence of H. N. Chase, instantly killing James Briggs, a young unmarried farm hand, and seriously injuring Mr. Chase's son, a bright lad aged 7.

Theft of $40,000.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 4.—J. L. Mayer, who lives at 1523 Washington avenue, had stolen from his room $40,000 worth of mining stocks and a small amount of cash. Negotiations on the stocks will be stopped.

Another British Purchase.

DENVER, COL., Aug., 4.—A strong English company has just completed the purchase of the Elkhorn mine in Jefferson county, Montana. The price is $180,000.

Father Pendergast.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Father Peter J. Pendergast virtually assumed the pastorship of the Church of the Ephany in the morning, over which Dr. Burtsell has been pastor for many years.

Mrs. Charity V. Wilson, a resident of Crawfordsville, since 1836, is dead.

Turkish Tyranny.

Terrible Discoveries by a Newsman

IN THE USKUB PRISON, A TOWN IN MACEDONIA.

Prisoners Panting for Air and Starving for Food—A Criminal's Neck Pressed and Broken by an Iron Collar—30,000 Spaniards Witness the Girl's Execution.

LONDON, Aug. 4. SPECIAL correspondent of the Daily News has succeeded in obtaining admission to the Turkish prison at Uskub, Macedonia, a town of European Turkey. He found that the building contained 149 cells which were occupied by 1,811 prisoners, or over twelve to a cell. As a rule the unfortunate victims are sent there to be confined from one to ten years each, but so great are their sufferings arising from the barbarity of their keepers and the total disregard of the latter for all sanitary laws, that one rarely outlives five years.

In one cell, two and a half yards square, the correspondent discovered nearly a score of wretches panting for air and starving to death, having in the way of the latter nothing but bread and water. The greater number were stark naked and chained by the ankles and wrists.

As if the jailors were unable to inflict tortures enough on their victims in the dens already described, the correspondent found a series of underground cells, said to be reserved for the worst prisoners, where, reeking in total darkness, were those whom Turkish tyranny had singled out for especial barbarity.

In order to force confessions, where confessions would have proved useful to those in power, the use of the ant is called in. These insects are kept in small boxes for the purpose, and fifty of them are placed at one time on the naked body of the prisoner whom it is desired to torture. It is also customary to chain men all day in the scorching sun in such a way that they are unable to move.

A Horrible Method of Execution in Spain.

LONDON, Aug., 4.—Madrid was the scene the other day of a sensational execution, a servant girl being put to death in public for the murder of her mistress. About thirty thousand persons attended the spectacle, the criminal sitting on a wooden bench before a post, against which the neck was pressed and broken by an iron collar. Perhaps as severe as death was the preliminary requirement of Spanish law, by which the convict was shut up for thirty hours before death with friars and priests saying masses and prayers. The woman was half insensible when taken to the scaffold.

Nihilists Again.

PARIS, Aug., 4.—The Siecle and Figaro print reports that a fresh Nihilist plot against the Czar has been discovered in St. Petersburg. According to these reports Prof. Corlowski, of the University of St. Petersburg, and a number of the students at that institution have been arrested, and many persons have been taken into custody at Moscow. Two officers of high rank in tee Russian army have committed suicide. It is supposed that they were found to have been implicated.

BOONE'S BREAK.

A COLORED PREACHER AND WIFE POISON TEN PERSONS,

Two of Whom Are Dead and Three More are Dying—The Tactics of a Georgia Negro Minister to Obtain the Crop of One of His Parishioners.

CALHOUN, Aug. 4.—William Boone and his wife, Emily, negroes, were put in jail Friday night for poisoning Joe Tallis' family of ten negroes, two of whom are dead and three more of whom are dying. They put rat poison on meat and flour intended for the Tallis family to eat. Emily says Boone did it to get Tallis' crop. Boone is a light mulatto about 50 years old and a preacher.

DODD'S CATARRH CURE.

LOCAL AND INTERNAL TREATMENT.

In order to cure catarrh it is necessarry to allay the inflammation of the irritated membranes with a soothing application, cleanse the head of the plugging mucous secretions, and heal the discharging ulcers. For cold in the head and nasal catarrh Dodds' local treatment does this without the aid of snuff, douches or fumes. If the disease has extended downwards affecting the bronchial tubes or lungs, digestion and blood, the internal treatment both removes from the system the scattered poison, and by its building-up properties assists nature in restoring the impaired parts. SINGLE TAX DEPARTMENT.

SINGLE TAX THE INSTRUMENT.

Address of William Lloyd Garrison Before the Unitarian Ministerial Union at Channing Hall, Boston, April 28, 1890.

It was Madame De Stael who said to a British statesman, "Tell me all about the British constitution in ten minutes," but my friend, Rev. Mr. Barrows, proposed a harder task when he asked me one day to explain to him the single tax in a sentence. If I should say in reply, "The single tax means equal and exact justice for all," or "to secure the earth for the use of all its inhabitants," or "to yield to the laborer the fruits of his toil," or "the exemplification of true Christianity," I am afraid I should be charged with uttering "glittering generalities." To be illuminating I shall be forced to use many sentences and yet fail to be understood at my conclusion. For how can one in forty minutes express what has taken him years to comprehend? The very brevity and conciseness required for a concrete presentation of the subject will permit only an outline of the great theme.

The single tax was deliberately chosen as the name of a reform which is based upon the most solid ethical foundation. It describes the instrument to bring about a result and not the object to be attained. It is the method to be pursued in the solution of the labor problem. The reason for adopting the name is this: It has a clear, specific, practical meaning. It is not nebulous or indefinite. A single tax is intelligible to the common understanding. Its aim is to abolish all taxes on property and to raise the entire revenue of the country by a single tax on land values.

It is necessary to understand terms clearly. The single tax is not a tax on land, but a tax on the value of land. If land is worthless because undesirable or remote, it would not be taxed. If of small value, then the tax would be small. All value is given to land by the presence of people who require it for use. Remove the people of Boston and place them on a spot where the land can be had for nothing and the land values of Boston will fade away and on the new sight spring up full-armed, like Minerva, from the brain of Jove. Therefore remember that not land but site value is to be taxed. It is a value made by the community, and justly belongs to the community. "Economic rent" is its scientific appellation, and "ground rent" the familiar term.

What wonderful change can this simple process bring to society? The variation of a tax, a mere fiscal measure, is all that there is to the much vaunted movement? Is it for this that volumes have been written and newspapers established? Is it upon such a device that the abatement of poverty and the equality of opportunity is predicated? Even so. Let us get beneath the surface.

I wonder how many of you are familiar with the ninth chapter of Herbert Spencer's "Social Statics," that famous chapter on "The right to the use of the earth." For the moral statement of the cause we advocate, it leaves nothing to be desired. It is complete and it seems to me irrefutable. You have doubtless seen the recent controversy between Spencer, Huxley and others on the very chapter, which Mr. Spencer, shrinking from the application of his teaching, suppressed in later editions. Even had he recanted his philosophy, which he did not, the philosophy would still remain to be judged on its merits, regardless of his altered opinion. To alter a little Arthur Clough's lines:

"It fortifies my soul to know
That, though men perish, Truth is so,
That, howsoe'er they stray and range,
Whate'er they do, Truth does not change."

Mr. Spencer stood by his proclamation, but shrank from the war that logically followed, and his critics improved their chance to "heckle" him for his inconsistency. But the right of mankind to the use of the earth stands impregnable.

It is upon this right that the single tax plants itself. Its advocates hold with Spencer that every human being born into the world has an equal right to the use of the earth upon which he must subsist, but it is imperative that no one shall use it in such a way as to prevent others from enjoying a similar use. Equity, therefore, forbids property in land. "For if one portion of the earth's surface may justly become the possession of an individual, * * * then other portions of the earth's surface may be so held; and eventually the whole * * * may be so held; and our planet lapse altogether into private hands." It follows, logically, from this, "that if the land owners have a valid right to its surface, all who are not land owners have no valid right at all to its surface," and they can exist by sufferance only. "They are all trespasser." They exercise their faculties and can exist only by consent of the land owners, and consequently exclusive possession is an infringement on the law of equal freedom.

Mr. Spencer finds further reason to deny the rectitude of property in land on account of defective title and refers the doubter to the chronicles. "Violence, fraud, the prerogative of force, the claims of superior cunning—those are sources to which those titles may be traced. The original deeds were written with the sword rather than with the pen; not lawyers, but soldiers, were the conveyancers, blows were the current coin given in payment; and for seals, blood was used in preference to wax. Could valid claims be thus constituted?" And he denies that "Time is a great legalizer;" or that immemorial possession can constitute a legitimate claim. "This is the verdict given by pure equity in the matter;" he says, "and dictates the assertion that the right of mankind at large to the earth's surface is still valid, all deed, customs and laws notwithstanding." It reminds one of the New Hampshire judge who declined to deliver up the fugitive slave unless the claimant master could show a bill of sale from the Almighty.

All subdivision is of course impossible, not only because of the variation in the value and adaptation of the land, but because subdivision implies ownership, which we are endeavoring to prove an injustice. Spencer insists that "either men have a right to make the soil private property or they have not. There is no medium. We must choose one of the two positions. There can be no half-and-half opinion. In the nature of things the fact must be either one way or the other.

"If men have not such a right, we are at once delivered from the several predicaments already pointed out. If they have such a right, then is that right absolutely sacred, not on any pretense to be violated. If they have such a right then is his grace of Leeds justified in warning off tourists from Ben Mac Duhi, the Duke of Atholl in closing Glen Tilt, the duke of Buccleugh in denying sites to the Free church, and the duke of Sutherland in banishing the highlanders to make room for sheep walks. If they have such a right, then it would be proper for the sole proprietor of any kingdom—a Jersey or Guernsey, for example—to impose just what regulations he might choose on its inhabitants—to tell them that they should not live on his property unless they professed a certain religion, spoke a particular language, paid him a specified reverence, adopted an authorized dress and conformed to all other conditions he might see fit to make. If they have such a right, then is there truth in that tenet of the ultra tory school, that the land owners are the only legitimate rulers of a country—that the people at large remain in it only by the land owner's permission, and ought consequently to submit to the land-owner's rule, and respect whatever institution the land owners set up. There is no escape from these inferences. They are necessary corollaries to the theory that the earth can become individual property. And they can only be repudiated by denying that theory."

I leave the strictly moral consideration here, with an expression of my inability to answer the reasoning or escape from its conclusions. In the discussion of the single tax its critics, judging from my own experience, waste no words on the ethical side. They brush it away as all right enough in theory or principle, but what has that to do with practical things? Personal ownership is established in all civilized countries. Laws, custom, prejudices are in its favor. As Boss Tweed remarked: "What are you going to do about it?"

Consider the problem which confronts us and forces us to answer it at the peril of relapsing into barbarism. The Malthusian bug-bear which alarmed our fathers and attributed to the Creator of the world a blindness which brought forth human beings with such inadequate provision that the population was destined to outrun subsistence, no longer scares us. It painted a future of misery and starvation, when hungry and naked human beings would curse existence and perish miserably. It championed a hopeless and fatalistic creed.

Since Malthus was laid away with his philosophy and his fathers, the population of the globe has steadily increased, and the fear he generated has vanished, for subsistence and production have multiplied in a greater ratio. The present embarrassment is the embarrassment of riches, and the surplus of food and clothing is made responsible for poor trade and hard times. With accumulating wealth we find a greater inequality of condition, and vice and poverty more than keep pace with palaces and millionaires. How is it that the producers of wealth are prevented from sharing equally its enormous growth? "Could a man of the last century," says Henry George, "a Franklin or a Priestly, have seen in a vision of the future the wonders that we are so familiar with, what would he have inferred as to the social condition of mankind?" And he answers, "It would not have seemed like an inference, further than the vision went; it would have seemed, as though he saw, and his heart would have leaped and his nerves would have thrilled, as one from a height beholds just ahead of the thirst-stricken caravan the living gleam of rustling woods and the glint of laughing waters. Plainly, in the sight of imagination, he would have beheld these new forces elevating society from its very foundations, lifting the very poorest above the possibility of want, exempting the very lowest from anxiety for the material needs of life; he would have seen these slaves of the lamp of knowledge taking on themselves the traditional curse, these muscles of iron and sinews of steel making the poorest laborer's life a holiday, in which every high quality and noble impulse could have scope to grow."

But the fact remains quite otherwise than the vision. "Some get an infinitely better and easier living, but others find it hard to get a living at all. The 'tramp' comes with the locomotive, and almshouses and prisons are as surely the marks of 'material progress' as are the costly dwellings, rich warehouses and magnificent churches." What is it which associates poverty with progress and increases want with advancing wealth? "This is the riddle," says Mr. George, "which the sphinx of fate puts to our civilization, and which not to answer is to be destroyed."

The trouble is not to be laid to the parsimony of nature; it has to be accounted for by human interference with the natural distribution of wealth which is the product of labor and capital applied to land. Partial laws, privileges and protective tariffs account for much of the existing social confusion, but abolishing all those, the fountain head of misery will still be left untouched.

In his recent address at San Francisco Mr. George, after referring feelingly to his California life, went on to speak of his journeying across the continent before the railway was completed, and said: "When in the streets of New York, for the first time I realized the contrasts of wealth and want that are to be found in a great city, saw those sights that to the man who comes from the West affright and appeal, the problem grew upon me. I said to myself there must be some reason for this; there must be some remedy for this, and I will not rest until I have found the one and discovered the other. At last it came clear as the stars of a bright midnight. I saw what was the cause; I saw what was the cure; I saw nothing that was new. Truth is never new."

DIVES AND LAZARUS.

LESSON VI, THIRD QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, AUG. 10.

Text of the Lesson, Luke xvi, 19-31—Commit Verses, 25-26—Golden Text, Mark x, 24—Commentary by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Compiled from Lesson Helper Quarterly by permission of H. S. Hoffman, publisher, Philadelphia.]

19. "There was a certain rich man, which was clothed in purple and fine linen, and fared sumptuously every day." In the margin of the R. V. "faring sumptuously" is translated as "living in mirth and splendor." So that we have before us one who had all that heart could wish, as far as this world is concerned, and he made the most of it, and was no doubt envied and sought after by many. An invitation to his house was something desirable, and perhaps never refused. But in all the wealth and mirth and splendor of his home there was nothing pleasing to God.

20, 21. "And there was a certain beggar named Lazarus, which was laid at his gate, full of sores, and desiring to be fed with the crumbs which fell from the rich man's table; moreover the dogs came and licked his sores." Perhaps there could not be a greater contrast than the rich man in his luxury and this poor beggar in his poverty and affliction, and no ordinary person would hesitate a moment if asked to choose for themselves the position of one or the other.

But when we consider the whole lesson in the light of here and hereafter, we shall see that it might well be called "The story of the two beggars." The one was a beggar during the short time of his earthly pilgrimage, the other became a beggar for all eternity.

22. "And it came to pass that the beggar died and was carried by the angels into Abraham's bosom." Those who call this parable take it upon themselves to assume the responsibility of so doing. I am not willing to do so, having no authority, and prefer to accept it as a plain statement of facts by one who knew whereof He affirmed, and was capable of giving us a glimpse of the unseen, with which He was perfectly familiar.

"The rich man also died, and was buried." His wealth could not prolong his life, nor could his many friends and admirers detain him. He, too, has gone from present things, leaving all his mirth and splendor behind him.

23. "And in hell (R. V., hades) he lifts up his eyes, being in torments, and seeth Abraham afar off, and Lazarus in his bosom." No escort of holy angels awaited him, nor does he find himself in rest and peace, much less in mirth and splendor. Even while they are weeping over his body, and tenderly caring for it, he is in torment, in that portion of Hades, or the place of departed spirits, where the lost await the resurrection of the body, the great white throne, and their everlasting punishment in the lake of fire (Rev. xx, 5, 11-15; xxi, 8). The word "hell" is found in the New Testament about twenty-three times; twelve times it is Gehenna, or the place of everlasting burnings, and eleven times it is Hades, or the place of departed spirits between death and resurrection. The R. V. makes the distinction. This is a difficult lesson for those who believe that there is no consciousness between death and resurrection, for the facts as stated by the Lord Jesus completely upset such a notion.

25. "Son, remember." Does not this seem to imply that at least part of the agony of the lost will be the unceasing remembrance of past sins, past opportunities forever gone, past ingratitude to God which can never be remedied? Those who in this life give themselves up to pleasure, saying unto God, "Depart from us; for we desire not the knowledge of Thy ways," will in due time know the meaning of these words, "Woe unto you that are rich! for ye have received your consolation" (Job xxi, 13; Luke vi, 24).

26. "Between us and you there is a great gulf fixed." Taking this verse as we find it, the doctrine of probation after death is swept away; for according to this there is no passing from the place of the lost to the place of the blest. Heaven is above all fear, hell is below all hope. Jesus said to the unbelieving of His day, "Ye shall die in your sins! whither I go, ye cannot come" (John viii, 21). "These shall go away into everlasting punishment; but the righteous into life eternal" (Matt. xxv, 46). The punishment is the same length as the life; for it is precisely the same word in the Greek which is applied to each.

27, 28. "Send him to my father's house, for I have five brethren; that he may testify unto them lest they also come into this place of torment." Here is a lost soul anxious for the salvation of those on earth who are, like he was, indifferent to their eternal welfare. What a wonder this is when saved souls on earth manifest so little anxiety for the salvation of others. Or is it a wonder when we consider that this lost soul knew what it meant to be lost, for he was experiencing their torment; while saved ones on earth too often seem not to believe that it means anything very bad not to be saved.

29. "Abraham saith unto him, They have Moses and the prophets; let them hear them." The word of God, even the Scriptures of the Old Testament, are all sufficient to guide us into the way of peace, for there is but one way of salvation revealed in the whole Word of God, and that is salvation by a substitute, the innocent taking the place of the guilty. Whether we consider the coats of skins for Adam and Eve, or Abel's sacrifice, or the ram offered in the stead of Isaac, or the constant sacrifices of Israel, all point to him who was led as a lamb to the slaughter, on whom the Lord laid the iniquity of us all, who was wounded for our transgressions, bruised for our iniquities, on whom was laid the chastisement which purchased our peace, and with whose stripes we are healed (Isa. liii, 1-7). For further light on salvation in the Old Testament see the ark of Noah, the Passover Lamb in Egypt, the cities of refuge, and such passages as Isa. i, 18; xliii, 25; Mic. vi, 8; Zech. iii, etc.

30. "And he said, Nay, father Abraham: but if one went unto them from the dead, they will repent." So many think today and say, How do we know? What evidence have we? Has any one ever come back to tell us? All who talk thus set aside these words of our Lord as of no value, and despise Him who came from Heaven to Calvary to redeem us. The words of Moses and the prophets are the words of the Holy Spirit of God through Moses and the prophets, yea, the words of God Himself (Acts xxviii, 25; Heb. i, 1). So that if any think they would be convinced by one from the dead rather than by the Word of God, it requires no argument to prove that all such are guilty of despising the Word of God.

31. "And he said unto him, If they hear not Moses and the prophets, neither will they be persuaded though one rose from the dead." We are apt to think that seeing is believing, but Jesus says, "Blessed are they that have not seen, yet have believed" (John xx, 29). And Peter says by the Spirit, "Whom having not seen, ye love; in whom, though now ye see Him not, yet believing, ye rejoice with joy unspeakable and full of glory" (1 Peter i, 8). We have no proof that this rich man was a murderer or a blasphemer, a drunkard or a dishonest man; he may have been moral, upright and a good citizen; but he evidently was an unbeliever, a rejecter of God and His word, and this caused him to become a lost man.

Merit Wins.

We desire to say to our citizens, that for years we have been selling Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Dr. King's New Life Pills, Bucklen's Arnica Salve and Electric Bitters, and have never handled remedies that sell as well, or that have given such universal satisfaction. We do not hesitate to guarantee them every time, and we stand ready to refun the purchase price, it satisfactory results do not follow their use. These remedies have won their great popularity purely on their merits. For sale by

"Oh, if I had only taken this medicine earlier in life, what years of suffering it would have saved me!" was the touching exclamation of one who had been cured of rheumatism by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Scores of such cases are on record.

That distention of the stomach which many people feel after eating, may be due to improper mastication of the food; but in most cases, it indicates a weakness of the digestive organs, the best remedy for which is one of Ayer's Pills, to be taken after dinner.

THE YESTERDAYS OF LIFE.

From out each yesterday of life,
I hold we all glean precious store,
Some golden ray, some dazzling beam,
To gild our pathway o'er and o'er,
And make the heavy burdens less,
That ever round us crowd and press.

Thrice dark that day whose setting sun
Descends and leaves no parting gleam
Of purpling glory there to tinge
The radiance of its dying beam;
No holy dew distilled and sweet
To cool the path for blistered feet.

Thrice blest the heart that fondly gloats
Each night o'er some dear treasure won,
That counts its little store of wealth,
And hugs its blessings one by one;
And hoards them with unconscious greed
Against the darkening time of need.

Each yesterday should consecrate
Some loving token from a heart;
Mayhap some trifle lightly held
By those who careless did their part
To tinge with roseate glow the night,
And wreath each shadow with God's light.

And when the swiftly gliding hours
Shall all be numbered in their place,
Each treasure bright shall be our own
To hold with sweet undying grace,
Some hours by sweetest incense fed,
Some days bright marked in letters red.

Experience of a Pine Creek Man with a Pet Bear.

It Is No Trouble to Raise Them, But Don't—How Bruin Delivered Over to the Enemy His Foster Mother and Her Children.

"I don't know what other people might do under the circumstances," said Lewis Shaffer, of the Pine creek country, "but if I should come across a bear cub in the woods that I thought was an orphan and likely to perish for lack of a mother's care, I wouldn't take it home and become a parent to it, but would kill it then and there. There is no difficulty in raising a bear cub, I don't care how young it may be when it falls into your hands. And you can train it as it grows so it will be as docile and tractable as a dog. But you can't make it honest. You can't make it incapable of base ingratitude. It may not bite or scratch you, but it will be sure to wound you in a way that will pain you more than a dig with its claws or a snap with its teeth possibly could. I know, for I have had proof of it.

"A year ago last March I was going through the woods up along Pine creek, the day after we had had a terrible wind-storm, which had tumbled a good many trees on a lumber lot I own. I heard a peculiar whining cry among some down timber, and, going to the spot, found a large pine tree lying across the dead body of a bear. It was a big she bear, and, cuddled up close to the dead animal was a cub not more than a week old. It was doing the whining I had heard. The tree had blown down and crushed the old bear to death as it was passing the spot, and the cub would have remained at its dead mother's side and starved to death if I hadn't happened along just at that time. I took the little orphan bear home with me intending to raise it by hand. That night an old sow of mine that had a two days' old litter of pigs laid on one of the pigs and killed it. That left a vacant place at her side, and the idea occurred to me that perhaps the old pig would not object to the little bear cub occupying it. I concluded to try the experiment, any how, and while the sow was lying in sleepy contentment, nursing her litter, I sat the cub down among the pigs. It went to feeding with them as naturally as if it were suckling its own shaggy mother in some hollow tree or hole in the rocks. The cub was twice as big as the pigs, but they did not offer any objection to its sharing in their sustenance, and the old pig paid no more attention to the presence of the bear than if it had been there from the start. As a foster mother she was a success, and the cub grew up right along with her own offspring, and, except in looks, was as much a pig as a bear. In fact, before the cub was two months old he had captured the heart of his foster mother and held a place there that none of the old pig's own litter held. How the bear discovered it I don't know, but he found out that the mother of the family, like all pigs, would miss a meal to have her back scratched, and that imp of a bear used to humor this weakness of her's and scratch her back by the hour, while she lay and grunted her appreciation. From what I know now, I believe that the cub was establishing himself in the entire confidence of the sow as a part of the scheme he was even then planning. The little pigs grew rapidly, but not more rapidly than their foster brother.

"At the age of three months the pigs were fat and chubby fellows, and the bear was almost as big as the old sow. He had begun early with his tricks on the pigs, as he had on their mother, and they had come to regard his favorite pastime of snatching one of them up, tucking it under his arm and lugging it around here and there about the premises, as a piece of rare fun for them, as well as for the bear, although at the start the bear was obliged to cuff them roundly to induce them to submit to it without squealing or kicking. We used to think that pig-carrying trick of the bear's was just the cutest thing imaginable, and we always took pride in exhibiting our pet bear in his act of carrying one or the other of his pig brothers about the farm.

"There were seven of the pigs, and the family, bear and all, were shut up at night in a high enclosure to which there was a door that was fastened by a rude wooden latch, that could be raised either on the inside or outside by pulling a leather string. This enclosure was made on purpose to keep pig-stealing bears out of the pen, bears having been numerous and bold at the time the pen was built.

"One morning in July I went out to feed my pigs, and what was my surprise to find two of the young pigs missing. The bear was lying in one corner of the pen scratching the old sow's back, but came out yawning and stretching himself to get his breakfast. I had discharged a man a couple of days before who had worked for me a year or so, because I had detected him in stealing some money of another man in my employ, and I at once suspected him of stealing my two pigs. A stranger couldn't have gone in and got the pigs without their making a fuss that would have aroused some one in the house. It was out of the question, too, that a bear could have got in and carried off the pigs. The discharged hired man had stolen them, I was sure. I found out where he was, and determined to set an investigation going. The very next morning, when I went out to feed my pigs, I was made wild almost by the discovery that two more of them were missing. I was at first inclined to have the suspected thief arrested forthwith, but on second thought concluded to wait and set a watch over the pen that night. My barn is only a few feet from the pen, and the haymow overlooks it. About eight o'clock that evening I went up in the haymow and took a position where I could look out into the pig pen without danger of my being discovered by any one who might come into the pen. The moon was shining bright, and every thing could be seen in the enclosure almost as plain as day. I lay there more than two hours without any thing suspicious occurring, and not a sound had been heard except the contented grunting of the pigs. It must have been nearly eleven o'clock when I saw a movement among the pigs, and the bear got up and walked quietly around for a minute or two, stopping now and then as if listening.

"'Aha!' said I to myself. 'Some one is coming, and the quick-witted bear hears him.'

"I was thinking that in a minute more I would undoubtedly have the dastardly thief in my clutches, when I saw the bear step over to where a couple of the pigs were sleeping, pick them both up, and tuck one under each arm. The pigs merely grunted good-naturedly, and evidently kept right on sleeping. The bear walked to the door, pulled the latch string with his teeth, passed out, and pushed the door gently to again. I was so dumbfounded that I couldn't move nor speak. I was actually momentarily paralyzed by this sudden and startling clearing up of the mystery surrounding the disappearance of my pigs. When I recovered myself I hurried down from the mow and out of the barn. I could see the bear half way across a field, striding at the top of his speed toward a piece of woods about an eighth of a mile distant. I had no idea what disposition the bear intended to make of the pigs, and I ran as fast as I could and reached the shadow of the woods by a short cut, and hurried along their edge, hoping to head off the conscienceless robber and rescue his unsuspecting victims if possible. But the bear had too much the start of me, and even if it had been possible for me to get there in time the chances are that I would not have done so, for when the bear had got within a few yards of the woods two other bears, tremendous big fellows, stepped out from the edge of the timber and hurried toward him. My bear handed the pigs over to the two wild bears. The three bears stood a moment together as if in consultation, and then the two returned to the woods and my bear trotted deliberately back home. When I got there he was just pulling the latch-string at the pen. He went in and shut the door behind him.

"My first impulse was to get my gun and blow the brains out of this petted protege of mine, but after deliberation I made up my mind that I might not only deal out terrible vengeance to him but to his accomplices at the same time. I could hardly contain myself, though, when I went out to feed my pigs next morning to see the one lone member of the family come to the trough, and the hypocritical and villainous bear lying there scratching the back of the mother whose offspring he had delivered over to be torn to pieces and devoured in the depths of the wilderness. That night I got two neighbors and we took our guns and hid in the woods near the spot where my treacherous bear had handed the two pigs over to the wild bears. I was sure that the bear would fetch the last pig to them that night, but I was not prepared for the unheard-of heartlessness and ingratitude that he exhibited. We had been in the woods an hour or more when the two wild bears came slouching along and lay down not more than thirty feet from where we were hidden. They remained very quiet, and at about the same hour as my bear walked out of the pen with the two pigs the night before I saw him coming across the field this night. As he drew near I saw that he not only had the last young pig under his arm, but that he was leading the old sow herself, coaxing her along by scratching her back as she trotted innocently at his side. You can imagine my feelings then. The two bears arose to go and get the plunder brought thus freely to their hands, but they never got it. My two neighbors emptied their guns into the old marauders, and they fell dead in their tracks. Before my ungrateful bear had recovered from his surprise I was out and confronting him. He recognized me, dropped the pig, and made a break for the woods. I had the small satisfaction of killing him at the first shot. You can raise and domesticate bears, but you can't make 'em reputable. They will always be bears."—N. Y. Sun.

—The other day an old woman entered one of the savings banks and when her turn in the line came extracted a number of gold and silver coins from her reticule, and said she wanted to deposit them. She was about to sign her name in the book when she remarked: "I want you to keep this money so that I may get the identical pieces whenever I care to. I have the date of each coin here," and she displayed a paper on which was a list of the dates. The clerk at first thought she was joking, but was soon convinced that she was in dead earnest. He politely told her that it would be impossible to do as she requested. "Well, all right," responded the woman, "if I can't get the same coins back again I won't deposit 'em." Then she went out.—Albany Journal.

CHOLERA CASES.

400 Deaths Sunday at City of Mecca.

THE CONTAGION SPREADING ALL OVER SPAIN.

The Guatamala and San Salvador Situation in Statu Quo—The Argentine Republic Still in a Disturbed State—Foreign Flashes.

THE cholera has appeared in the Spanish provence of Badajoz, on the Portuguese frontier. A rigorous cordon has been established on the frontier by the Portuguese authorities.

LISBON, Aug. 4.

CAIRO, Aug. 4.—The cholera is increasing at Mecca. In one day there were over four hundred deaths from the disease. The number of Turkish pilgrims to the shrine of Mecca this year is estimated at 300,000.

MADRID, Aug. 4.—The cholera is increasing in Valencia. Several cases of the disease are reported in Llerena, in the province of Badjos.

Statu Quo.

CITY OF MEXICO, Aug. 4.—General Molina Guirola, minister of war for Salvador, has telegraphed to Senor Geronimo Pou, Salvadorian consul here, that affairs with Guatemala are in statu quo.

Special dispatches received here from Guatemala state that there is no revolution there, and that President Barillas is firm in the belief that the difficulty with San Salvador is soon to be settled satisfactorily to Guatemalan interests.

President Diaz reiterates his denial of the reports that he would interfere in the Guatemalan-San Salvadorian difficulty.

A French Faster.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—Jacques, a French soldier, has completed his fast of forty-two days. He has been on exhibition at the Aquarium during the fast.

Argentine Negotiations for a Loan.

BUENOS AYRES, Aug. 4.—It is expected that the Bourse will reopen on the 15th inst. The government has resumed negotiations with an English syndicate for a new loan.

The political crisis continues. Dr. R. J. Carcano, director general of posts and telegraphs, has resigned.

Matrimonial Tribulations of a Noble Youth.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—"Belle Bilton," or Lady Dunlo, in an interview confirmed a report that Viscount Dunlo had had an interview with her since the recent decision of the divorce case in her favor. She says that the noble youth seemed disposed to "do the proper thing," but that his father refuses to continue his allowances if he lives with his wife. The idea of his supporting her by earning money through his own exertions is, of course, not conceivable. There is little prospect of the couple maintaining domestic relations, therefore until Lord Clancarty dies, or undergoes a change of heart. Lady Dunlo declares, nevertheless, that she will never compromise her rights nor relax her efforts to enforce the recognition. She denies the rumor that the Viscount is going on a hunting trip to Africa.

TEXAS FEVER

Spreading With Frightful Rapidity Among Kansas Cattle.

WICHITA, KAS., Aug. 4.—Texas fever is spreading with alarming rapidity among the cattle in Butler and Elk counties. Some weeks ago about fifty thousand cattle were taken to those two counties and represented to be from Arizona. An investigation has shown that they were brought from Panhandle and Greer counties, Texas, and this fact has greatly enraged the owners of native cattle. Two men were killed two days ago in a dispute over the matter, and more bloodshed is almost certain. So far about one thousand cattle have died.

Protest Against the Federal Election Bill.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 4.—Saturday night 2,500 people assembled at the state house yard to protest against "Lodge's Election Bill," now pending in the Senate. Mayor Bruck presided. Speeches were made by ex-Congressman George L. Converse, Captain Alfred E. Lee, Governor Campbell and M. D. Harter. Resolutions were reported by Allen W. Thurman and adopted. Letters were read from ex-President Cleveland, Senator Brice and others.

A Mysterous Kansas Murder.

LEAVENWORTH, KAS., Aug. 4.—James Isham was murdered Friday night about five miles south of this city. A nephew of the murdered man went to a neighbor's house and said that three masked men had entered his uncle's house and killed the latter and were then searching the house for money. No clew was discovered that would lead to the murderers apprehension, but the nephew has been placed under arrest. He maintains his innocence and sticks to the story of three masked men committing the deed.

RICE FAMINE.

Terrible Suffering in China—First Consignment of Tea.

NEW YORK, Aug., 4.—The British steamship Glenogle, has arrived here from Yokohoma and Amoy, China, with the first consignment of Japan tea from this year's crop. The captain reports the suffering from the rice famine to be upon the increase. The government has come to the assistance of the people however and is importing large cargoes of rice from Siam, Cochin, China and Burmah.

THE CAUCUS WILL TAKE IT.

Senator Blair's Resolution is to go Over.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—It is understood that Senator Blair's "previous question" resolution, referred to the Senate committee on rules, will remain in committee untouched until after the Republican Senators have held a caucus and decided when it should be brought to the notice of the Senate.

FALLING IN.

Patriarchs Militant Arriving at Chicago.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—The advance guard of the Odd Fellows has already arrived, and tomorrow, Monday and Tuesday, thousands of members of the order will arrive. The patriarchs militant, the military branch, have completed arrangements for the most magnificent display ever made by a secret society. General John C. Underwood, the generalissimo, has raised $50,000 to be used in paying prizes and for the expenses of the demonstration. The railroads have contributed between $50,000 and $75,000 in rebates, and cut rates, which should be considered as a part of the capital of the enterprise, since it will enable thousands of Odd Fellows to come to Chicago who would otherwise remain at home.

The grand stand on the lake front park is completed. It is nearly half a mile long and will seat 40,000 people.

By a mechanical arrangement the generalissimo will, at the conclusion of the ceremonies of the decoration of chivalry Wednesday and Thursday evenings, instantly turn out the hundreds of electric lights that will illuminate the park, while at the same instant he will press a spring that will send the electric current through the wires that will fire a magnificent pyrotechnic eruption from the shore of the lake, sending hundreds of bombs into the air. This will be the opening of the finest fire-works display ever seen in Chicago.

TELESCOPED.

TWO PERSONS KILLED AND MANY INJURED.

Collision on the St. Louis and Hannibal Railroad.

HANNIBAL, Mo., Aug. 4.—A crowded passenger coach on the St. Louis and Hannibal railroad was telescoped in a collision with a switch engine yesterday. The baggage car on the passenger train was driven nearly through the coach. Two colored men, David Summers and Harvey Letcher, of New London, were killed outright. Frank Porter, colored, living near New London, had both legs cut off, and has since died. Robert Brothers, a brakeman, had both legs broken. Others injured were as follows: John Leeper, Frankfort right arm broken; William Robinson, colored, New London, badly bruised about the head; Miss Allen, of New London, severe bruises and injured internally. A number of passengers were slightly injured. The engineer of the switch engine, Wm. Tongate, was arrested immediately after the accident charged with criminal carelessness. The passenger train was just stopping at the station when run into with great force by the switch engine.

Smuggling at St. Pierre.

HALIFAX, N. S., Aug. 4.—Referring to the confiscation of the New Foundland schooner Mary, by the French authorities at St. Pierre for smuggling roes, the St. John's Herald says the facts emphasize the necessity of having a British consul at St. Pierre, a privilege which the French have always refused, for the obvious reason that the presence of a British consul would prevent the smuggling on which St. Pierre almost wholly depends. The Herald adds that, while there is no officially recognized French consul in St. Johns, it is an open secret that M. De Isles is the agent of France in the colony and that in his presence France enjoys a valuable privilege which should be discontinued until a British consul or an agent of Newfoundland is permitted to reside in St. Pierre.

THE NEVER-ENDING

Question of Murderer Kemmler's Death.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 4.—C. R. Barnes, of this city, superintendent of the fire alarms, who is to assist Warden Durston in preparing the electric apparatus for the execution of Kemmler says that the attorney-general has advised Warden Durston that if the Westinghouse company enjoins him from using their dynamo for the execution, he should give bonds and then go on and use the dynamo. The operators who are to witness the execution are to be invited to appear at the prison on Tuesday morning but Superintendent Barnes will not tell when the execution is to take place.

DREW THE LINE ON WASHINGTON

$5,000 Refused Rather Than Live in the Place.

WASAINGTON, Aug 4,—The position of assistant United States attorney general has been tendered ex-Assemblyman R. Wayne Parker, of New Jersey, son of Courtland Parker, and declined. The office is an addition to the attorney general's corps of assistants, and carries a salary of $5,000 per year with it. Mr. Parker declined it because the act authorizing the appointment, required him to reside in Washington.

GONE DOWN.

A New Excursion Steamer Strikes a Rock.

FALL RIVER, MASS., Aug. 4.—Word was received here last night that the steamboat Mount Hope, of the Providence and Fall River Steamboat Company, with the regular Saturday excursion from Providence, struck on a rock near Block Island and was badly injured. Assistance was telegraphed for and the steamer Richard Borden left here about 7 o'clock to take off her passengers and convey them to the nearest point. No further particulars have been received here. The Mount Hope is a new boat.

Two Men Murdered About a Woman.

LOUISVILLE, KY., Aug. 4.—Peter Duffy and Henry Knause were fatally cut late last night by A. L. Bush. The three quarreled about a woman with whom Bush was walking, and Bash was greatly angered. He suddenly drew a knife. The other two ran, but Bush overtook them separately and slashed them so severely that neither can recover.

Dreadful Diphtheria.

KINGSTON, N. Y., Aug. 4.—At Darmansville and vicinity there is an epidemic of diphtheria. Upwards of fifty cases have been reported and half a dozen deaths have occurred. Six members of one family were stricken with the disease.

Charged With Embezzlement.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—William W. Chandler, the ex-mrnager of the Erie Transfer Company, who was arrested charged with the embezzlement of about $10,000 of the company's funds, has been held in $5,000 bonds for trial.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee. ss

At a session of the Probate Court for the county of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office in the city of Adrian, on Thursday, the 31st day of July, in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety.

Present, Richard B. Robbins, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of George W. Clark deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Harriet W. Clark, widow of said deceased, praying for the probate of an instrument now on file in this Court, purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased, and that administration of said estate with the will annexed be granted to Willis J. Clark or some other suitable person there being no executor in said instrument named.

It is ordered, That Monday, the First day of September next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the City of Adrian, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of said Petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said Petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee for three successive weeks, previous to said day of hearing.

Mrs. Mamie Phillips of St. Louis returned to Tecumseh last Thursday.

Rev. Chandler and family of Peoria, Ill., are visiting Mrs Chandler's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Day.

Mrs. Lavinia Jackson, who has been visiting in Tecumseh the past two weeks, returned home last Friday.

Shannon Dull of Samaria, has been canvassing in this vicinity for the past week for a paper called the "Industrial News."

Frank Sage had the misfortune to have his leg broken last Friday night. His horse took fright and landed him in the ditch. He is doing well under the care of Dr. Morden.

Mrs. Edwin Howell went to St. Johns last week to attend the marriage of her son Summer Collins, who is practicing law and dealing in real estate in that place.

Milton Kreidler has decided to try something lighter than shoveling clay in the tile yard and is canvassing for a book called "Early Pioneer Life." We wish him success in his new enterprise.

The post office has received a new coat of paint which improves the appearance very much. Post Master Travis has also been making some changes in the office; he will continue to lick stamps at two cents apiece.

The Prohibition party have gone a fishing, but they will get but few bites with that kind of bait. They came out for the Service Pension; if they want to catch the soldier's vote, they must bait with something more than an empty bottle.

County Officers' Association.

At a meeting of the officers of Supervisors and County Officers' Association of Lenawee Co., held at the city of Adrian July 29th, 1890, it was unanimously resolved, that owing to the fact that a great number of public meetings will be held in said county the latter part of the present summer, it will not be advisable to hold a reunion the present season, but that said association should reorganize the present season, so as to hold a reunion each succeeding year hereafter.

Therefore, Notice is hereby given that there will be a convention of said society at Beardsell's Landing, August 28th, 1890, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, for the election of officers for the ensuing year and the transaction of other business.

All supervisors, ex-supervisors and all county officers and ex-county officers are entitled to a seat in said convention

Dated Adrian, July 30th, 1890.

FRANKLIN FACTS.

Everybody and his friends took in the union picnic at Sand Lake Wednesday.

A good many of our people also went to the show Saturday and enjoyed it immensely.

John Whelan, wife and son of Detroit spent last week with his parents Mr. and Mrs Alvinza Whelan.

A letter dated Aug. 1st., from Mrs Addie Taggett, sister of G. W. Allen of Caro Tuscola Co, says they are having lots of rain and lots of berries. It also says that Mrs. Taggett and family will very soon visit her Franklin friends.

Fisk Beebe has gone to Nebraska to visit his brothers and sisters living there. His departure was hastened by letter from his sister Mrs. Haight stating that their brother Bank who broke his leg last spring was not improving; the leg has never knit and is in a bad state.

Mrs. May Wisner learns through her friends at Mackinac that they have lots of rain at that point with plenty of thunder and lightening thrown in free gratis. Mrs. Wisner already feels the insidious approach of hay fever; she has decided to brave it out at home this year.

Geo. Poucher was kicked in the face and nearly killed by a yearling colt last Thursday; he was found lying unconscious in his barn yard by Dan Hanford, with broken nose, right brow and eye badly bruised; he remained in an unconscious condition until Friday evening. He held a fork in his hand when found and it is thought that he pricked the colt with it while trying to drive it out of the way. Mr. Poucher has had very poor health for some time but was feeling much better before this accident occured. At last accounts Dr. North felt very hopeful of his recovery.

TIPTON TOPICS.

Bert Smith has moved in his new house.

Thrashing seems to be the main occupation of the farmers at present.

Miss Nellie, daughter of John T. Smith, is very ill with typhoid fever.

Mrs. J. B. Smith of Nebraska, sister of Rev. Palmer, is visiting here at present.

J. Fridd and wife have returned from their northern trip, having been gone about four weeks.

C. Vedder had the misfortune of having four sheep killed by the train running over them one night last week.

The young people of the M. E. Church held an ice cream social at Lorenzo Daniels last Wednesday evening.

A large crowd gathered at Sand Lake last Wednesday to celebrate the Farmer's Club and Patron picnic, and every one seemed to enjoy themselves hugely.

Frank Lambkin, having obtained a position in Washington, started for that city last week. We understand that his wife and children are soon to follow him.

Geo. Poucher sustained a very serious accident one day last week. He was in the yard with a colt which was frisking around and in some way got near enough to receive a very hard blow from the colts heels, it striking him full in the face, inflicting a serious if not fatal injury. At present he is considered as very little better.

Wabash Railroad Special Rates.

For the National Encampment, G. A. R., at Boston, tickets will be sold August 8th, 9th and 10th at rate of $17.75 for the round trip, good returning up to August 20th. This return limit will be extended up to September 30th, upon application to the joint agent of terminal lines at Boston, August 12th to 19th, inclusive. The Wabash offers five routes for this excursion, viz.:

1st via Mich. Central, N. Y. C. & H. R. and B. & A. Rys. via Niagara Falls. This is the route by which the Michigan Department special train will run from Detroit.

2d via Mich. Central, West Shore & Hoosac Tunnel line via Niagara Falls. Through sleeper from Adrian by this route.

3d via Grand Trunk, West Shore and Hoosac Tunnel line via Niagara Falls.

4th via Canadian Pacific and B. & M. Rys. via Montreal. Through cars from Adrian to Montreal.

5th via Grand Trunk and B. & M. Rys. via Montreal.

Have we any truly great men at the present day? Some doubt it and ask to be shown the modern Washington Franklin, or Webster. However this may be, of one thing we are sure, there never was a greater blood-purifier than Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

STATE NORMAL SCHOOL.

Tuesday, September 2, will be the opening day of the Michigan State Normal School, a date which is being anticipated and prepared for by hundreds of Michigan's present and prospective young school teachers. The fact may not have presented itself to all our readers, but nevertheless it is a fact, that the State Normal School of Michigan, at Ypsilanti, is acknowledged to be at the very head of American Normal Schools, an additional reason for pride in our state and its institutions. The State Normal school has at present a faculty composed of twenty-nine expert Normal teachers, many of them being noted specialists in their particular lines of instruction.

This school is the only educational institution in the state possessing the privilege of granting limited and life certificates to its graduates to teach in any of the public schools of the state. The Normal School has but a single purpose—it bends all its ample energies to preparing teachers for their work. The fact that text books are furnished free to all pupils is another peculiar advantage possessed by the State Normal School. Tuition at the Normal is free to residents of Michigan, and the entrance fees amount to but ten dollars per year, to students not holding legislative certificates.

All high school graduates are admitted to the Normal, upon diploma, without examination, and credited with studies already completed.

Students graduating in any of the Normal courses are entitled to a certificate of qualification to teach in the public schools of Michigan. The three-years' courses lead to such a certificate, good for five years. The four-years' courses lead to a life-certificate and a diploma. The six-years' courses and the course for college graduates lead to the degree of Bachelor of Pedagogy.

If any of the readers of this paper wish further definite information concerning the Normal School, a letter or postal addressed to J. M. B. Sill, Principal, Ypsilanti, Mich., will receive prompt and willing attention. A copy of the Normal School Register will also be sent to all persons who will send their names to Principal Sill.

THE NEW ELECTION LAW.

The Jonesville Independent says: "The election tickets for all the different parties this fall must be supplied by the state, and the question arises as to how soon the nominations must be made and names of candidates sent to the secretary of state. In reply to a letter to the state department inquiring how much time is necessary for printing tickets under the new election law, Deputy Egan replies that as the state, congressional, senatorial representatives and county convention nominees (of all parties) will be upon the ticket required to be printed by the secretary of state, the copy should be in his hands at least two weeks previous to the time for filing a copy with the county clerk, which is ten days prior to the election."

Chatauqua Excursions.

The Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Ry. is the all-rail route to Chautauqua Lake. Five east bound trains of the Lake Shore connect at Brocton with the W. N. Y. & P. R. R for all points on the Lake.

Round trip tickets good to return until October 31st, are now on sale via the the Lake Shore Route at greatly reduced rates.

Why it is Popular.

Because it has proven its absolute merit over and over again, because it has an unequalled record of cures, because its business is conducted in a thoroughly honest manner and because it combines economy and strength, being the only medicine of which "100 Doses One Dollar" is true—these strong points have made Hood's Sarsaparilla the most successful medicine of the pay.

TOURISTS,

Whether on pleasure bent or business, should take on every trip a bottle of Syrup of Figs, as it acts most pleasantly and effectually on the kidneys liver and bowels, preventing fevers, headaches and other forms of sickness For sale in 50c and $1.00 bottles by all leading druggists.

Merit wins, as the marvelous success of Hood's Sarsaparilla shows. It possesses true medicinal merit. Sold by all druggists.

TECUMSEH, THURSDAY, AUG 14.

Don't stop at sugar, Mr. Blaine; don't stop at sugar. You are on the right track at last; now go straight ahead.

The Farmers' Alliance of the third Kansas district have nominated a man named "Clover" for Congress. A very appropriate selection.

Free trade and reciprocity! Reciprocity and free trade! These words are spelled differently and they look very unlike, but they mean the same thing.

If Blaine can knock the McKinley bill in the head with his reciprocity hatchet, he may not help the Republican party any, but he will be doing the country a valuable service.

Kentucky went Democratic last Monday by 45,000 majority, an increase of 16,000 over Cleveland's majority in 1888. The Force bill is doing some excellent work for the Democracy this fall.

Why do nearly all the independent papers support the cause of tariff reform? Because it appeals to the common sense and good judgment of independent voters. That tells the whole story.

The Senate debate on the tariff bill proves that the measure needed thorough discussion. Some of the Republican Senators are throwing considerable light upon the iniquitous character of the bill.

The efforts of the Reed revolutionists to coerce the Senate into passing the Force bill is likely to prove a failure. Blaine's reciprocity bomb is playing havoc with Czar Reed's plans in more more directions than one.

The St. Louis Republic censures the obstinate granger for growing poorer and poorer when the Republican party has been protecting him all these years, and the country is full of millionaires. It is rank ingratitude.

The Force bill has worked one beneficence—it has driven Southern Wheels and Alliances back into the Democratic camp, while out in Kansas the Alliance continues to tear down Republican fences and trample down Republican crops.

The federal election bill is already having its effect in the South. Alabama elects a Democratic governor by an overwhelming majority. Chattanooga county, Tenn., elects a clean democratic ticket for the first time since the war.

Hon. E. B. Winans and Judge Allen B. Morse are either of them strong candidates for the governorship. But would'nt it be the best policy to leave Judge Morse where he is now doing valiant service for the people, and elect Mr. Winans governor of Michigan next fall?

The Rochester Union says it has never been an admirer of Mr. Blaine, but it is bound to admit that the more he is contrasted with such bullies as "Tom" Reed and such pickpocket protectionists as McKinley, the brighter he appears.

"It is a condition, not a theory, which confronts us," said Grover Cleveland. It is a condition, not a theory, which confronts the present Administration, but the difference in the conditions is the difference between a mountain and a hole in the ground. One year from a surplus to a deficit!

Republican "principles" are very nicely exemplified in the admission of Idaho and Wyoming. In Idaho the Mormons are disfranchised for their religious belief, even when they do not practice polygamy. In Wyoming the Mormons are allowed to vote and their wives also. It is scarcely necessary to add that in Wyoming the Mormons vote the Republican ticket.

General Master Workman Powderly says of the Fraud and Force Election bill: "There is more intimidation in four lines of that law than in all the Southern outrages that have taken place since the War." Mr. Powderly is one of several distinguished labor leaders who have given expression to their faith that in free local suffrage is found the greatest security of the industrial masses.

A POINT FOR OUR FARMERS.

The prime minister of Austria Count Kalnoky, announces that European nations—the only consumers of the surplus products of our farms—will take concerted retaliatory action against the United States if the McKinley bill shall become a law.

Is it not high time for the agricultural people of this country to calmly consider the situation? The farmers of the United States are vitally interested in foreign commerce, which the ignorant politicians are legislating to destroy. They can raise enough on their farms to prevent starvation, but without European markets for their surplus, as they can have no other, they will be obsolutely impoverished.

The New York World presents the condition, and the theory which actually confronts them: Of our $730,000,000 of exports in 1889, $503,000,000 were agricultural products. About 21 per cent of our wheat goes abroad. Ten years ago more than 40 per cent of the crop was exported. Two-thirds of our cotten supplies foreign mills. Provisions, corn, flour, animals and other outputs make up the balance of the merchandise in which our foreign trade is done."

It is plain that the proposed concerted action of European nations will be against our farmers, as in that way they can injure us the most. Protective tariff laws—the McKinley bill is one of the very worst of its class—are always intended to injure trade. It is not strange that they should provoke retaliation. Our tariff was completely revised in 1883. It was more hostile to trade than its predecessor. Germany, France and some other countries at once excluded our pork from their markets. The price soon fell, and has been from five to six dollars a barrel lower since then than it was for the preceding seven years.

Do our farmers want any more of this sort of hostility to their products? Pass the McKinley bill and they will get it. True a majority of them voted in favor of such a measure at the presidental election of 1888, but it is a great deal better to abandon a ruinous policy than to persist in upholding it.

Here is an important fact: As the foreign demand for our agricultural products declines times grow harder for our farmers. Our exports of wheat are falling off. They were smaller in 1889 than for any other year since 1877. Our farmers need markets. The better the demand for their products the better it will be for them. If Europe shall further discriminate against them in retaliation for our tariff the result must be disastrous to them.

We cannot afford to strike at the commerce of the world such a severe blow as is contained in the McKinley bill. A protective tax on eggs and cabbages will not compensate the farmers for the foreign attack it invites and will react against their interests, so long as we legislate against trade with us, and they can act much more promptly and effectively than we can.

Look out for harder times than ever if the McKinley bill becomes a law, for they will surely come—as surely as effect follows an adequate cause.—Jackson Patriot.

THE BOGUS SILVER BILL.

It is called a Silver bill by courtesy. It is not what the people asked for; it is not in any sense a coinage bill. While it repeals a law which requires a minimum coinage per month of $2,000,000 worth of bullion, with authority to increase the quantity to $4,000,000 worth, the new law does not even require the purchase of any specific quantity of bullion, nor does it require any particular amount of coinage after July 1, 1891. It is an instruction to the Secretary of the Treasury to so manage the work of redemption as to maintain the gold standard. The bullion is purchased on the open market, like wheat, and paid for in notes that may be redeemed in coin on the "ratio" plan, which means that inasmuch as no advantage can be gained by that kind of redemption, there will not be any redemption, and therefore there will be no further silver coinage, leaving gold coin the sole standard as before.

This is not all, however. It will be observed that the notes are to be a legal tender in payment of all debts, public and private, except where otherwise expressly stipulated in the contract. It is otherwise expressly stipulated in every one of our Government bonds; it is otherwise expressly stipulated in many of our municipal bonds; it is otherwise expressly stipulated in many private notes, which are secured by mortgage on homesteads, and it will be doubtless be otherwise expressly stipulated in many of the notes hereafter executed. The intention is to make as many of the people's debts as possible payable in gold coin and to have as little silver coin in the country as possible to pay debts which are payable in coin of either metal. The bill is cunningly drawn; it is carefully worded so as to preserve the gold standard and to defeat the free and unlimited coinage of silver.—Kansas Farmer.

PROTECTION FOR HOME EXTORTION.

The daily Democrat, published in Huntington, Indiana, asserted that farmers of this country paid larger prices for agricultural implements manufactured here than did the farmers of Canada and Great Britain. A local republican organ contradicted the assertion, whereupon the editor of the Democrat wrote to Hon. A. B. Farquhar Manufacturing Co., at York, Penn., and received the following decisive reply:

Dear Sir: In reply to your favor of July 1, would say we do sell goods for export at lower prices than we sell at home; there is no doubt about that. Again, since we do manufacture and sell our wares throughout the world, we could only want protection to enable us to charge home consumers more. The fact is, however, that the manufacturers of America do not need protection; the effect has been to encourage monopolies and trusts and to concentrate wealth. The whole system of protection is cruelly hard upon the farmer, interfering with the export trade for his goods, and it is the price in London that regulates the price here, and makes him pay more for all his supplies.

Mr. Farquhar goes on to say that he was a republican so long as his party stood for freedom and justice. But he can no more travel with a party, wrong now, because it went right once than he could travel in a stage coach for the sake of fealty to old times. He takes Secretary Rusk to task for promising the whole weight of his official position in favor of the bill which Secretary Blaine has said will not benefit the farmer one whit. The president of a large manufacturing company is in a position to know whereof he speaks, and what he says is so well worthy the attention of manufacturers and farmers alike, the following extended quotation is made:

"Many manufacturers—myself among the number—every year export large amounts of goods, in the face of the world's competition; and no sophist, I think, is clever enough to persuade you that we can compete with foreign manufacturers abroad without any point in our favor, and yet cannot compete at home unprotected, when we have all the advantages of nearness to the consumer, ability to study his wants, and lower freights to pay. So that none of us making goods for export need any help from the tariff; and more than that there is not one of us to whom it is not a great deal in the way. To find how much our manufacturing is in that condition see the number of manufactured articles on which there is a steady export trade. Besides agcultural implements, there are sewing machines and clocks, engines and dredging machinery, and saws and axes, flour and vegetable oils, of course, and some boots and shoes and unbleached cotton goods. That makes a considerable list (which might be greatly extended) of manufacturing enterprises that are more hurt than helped by protection; so that when you come to count up the aggregate effect the balance leans to the unfavorable side. If you wish a test by the figures compare the growth of manufactures between 1850 and 1860, 10 years of low tariff, during which the value nearly doubled, with that between 1870 and 1880, 10 years of very high tariffs, when the total value produced (allowance being made for the fact that values af the 1870 census were given in 80-cent dollars) increased hardly 60 per cent. I need not tell you that if the duties were as necessary to success in manufacturing as their advocates pretend, our rate of growth ought to have been greater instead of less, when those duties were higher. If, therefore, you are benefitted by having manufacturies so established in this country, it does not at all follow that you ought to keep the tariff high. You get quite as much benefit from the prosperity of those manufacturers to which it is a drag and a nuisance as from those which are helped by it.

Why, then, you will ask, are so many manufacturers of the very goods I have been speaking of—farming implements and other exportable goods—among the loudest clamorers for protection? For two reasons, neither, I am sorry to say, very creditable to them. One is an application of the homely but incontested principle that 'No calf ever weaned itself;' they have been taught so to depend on legislative milk that they do not themselves see that growth is possible on other food. It costs something, moreover, as I know from personal experience, for a manufacturer to turn or to look as though he were turning against the profession.

The other reason is that the duties enable and encourage manufacturers, by combining, to extort higher prices from home than foreign customers. In the case of wood screws, of sewing machines and some other goods the abuse is a quite flagrant one, the price charged you being nearly that paid by the foreigner for the same goods, with the large duty added; in that of most agricultural implements the difference is small, 10 per cent. or less. Some combination is necessary to enable manufacturers to play this game; but it need not be anything so elaborate as a trust, when a simple trade understanding will in most cases suffice. For my part I abhor this parasitic plan for deriving profits; and I cannot believe that you will continue, now that your attention is turned to the matter, to encourage other manufacturers in pursuing a course at the same time so disastrous to you and so demoralizing to them."

A DRAWN BATTLE.

The fight over silver in congress was really a drawn battle. Wall street has again cheated the people through the servile subserviency of the republican party. What a shame it is that not a republican from Michigan in either house of congress gave a single vote for the people against the money sharks. And yet Michigan is almost unanimous for free silver coinage. Speaker Reed represents the money power of the East, he decreed the death of free coinage, and not a Republican from Michigan had the courto vote for Michigan and the west. But the silver bill is at least half a loaf. It will put $60,000,000 of silver certificates in circulation and will send silver a long way toward par. And when it reaches par the silver question is settled. The agitation for free silver coinage should be begun at once. Every candidate for congress from this state should be made to declare himself on the question; and no man should be elected who is not squarely and strongly for free silver coinage.—Hillsdale Democrat.

Dyspepsia

Makes the lives of many people miserable, and often leads to self-destruction. Distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, a faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularity of the bowels, are some of the more common symptoms. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful, persistent attention, and a remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts gently, yet surely and efficiently. It tones the stomach and other organs, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, and by thus overcoming the local symptoms removes the sympathetic effects of the disease, banishes the headache, and refreshes the tired mind.

Distress After Eating

Sick Headache

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat distressed me, or did me little good. In an hour after eating I would experience a faintness, or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. My trouble, I think, was aggravated by my business, which is that of a painter, and from being more or less shut up in a room with fresh paint. Last spring I took Hood's Sarsaparilla—took three bottles. It did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced." THE PAUPER LABOR ROT.

TWO EMINENT REPUBLICAN LEADERS EXPOSE ITS HOLLOWNESS.

High Republican Testimony to the Folly of the Pauper Labor Cry—Statesmen Blaine and Evarts Puncture Their Party's Humbug Efforts.

The Republican tariff makers in congress have not neglected to use the stale arguments again about the "pauper labor of Europe," and the protected manufacturers came before the McKinley committee with their accustomed tables of comparative wages in Europe and America. And then they pointed despairingly to these tables of wages and whined out the usual rot about not being able to compete with European pauper labor.

But how much fact is there in this everlasting chatter about pauper labor? Is that labor really dangerous to us? Have our laborers anything at all to fear from competition from that source?

Fortunately we have the very highest Republican authority for believing that American labor is so efficient as compared with that of Europe that we have absolutely nothing to fear from foreign labor competition.

During President Hayes' administration Hon. William M. Evarts, his secretary of state, made a report on the "State of Labor in Europe." This report bears date of May 17, 1879.

The American consuls in Europe were directed to examine into the condition and character of European labor, and to report their observations to the department of state at Washington. Their reports were so striking that Secretary Evarts made liberal extracts from them, introducing these extracts with the following strong assertion:

"The average American workman performs from one and one-half to twice as much work in a given time as the average European workman. This is so important a point in connection with our ability to compete with the cheap labor manufacturers of Europe, and it seems at first thought so strange, that I will trouble you with somewhat lengthy quotations from the reports in support thereof."

The secretary then gave a number of extracts from the reports of the consuls, a few of which are worthy of reproduction here. They are as follows:

Denmark—Another evil is the diminished worth of wages, the descending quantity and quality of work now obtained by employers for wages higher than those paid ten years ago.—From the Report of the Consul at Copenhagen.

France—At his work the French laborer or mechanic lacks the energy of the American of the same class, and the amount of work executed by him is much less in the same number of hours. The hours of labor are from eleven to twelve, but an average American workman will accomplish as much in nine hours.—From the Report of the Consul at Bordeaux.

Germany—I am satisfied that an ordinary workingman in the United States will do as much again as will one in this district in the same time.—From the Report of the Consul at Chemnitz, Saxony.

An active American workman will do as much work in a given time, at any employment, as two or three German workmen.—From the Report of the Consul at Leipsic.

There can be no question that, speaking in general terms, the quality as well as the quantity of the work of the German artisans is inferior to that produced by the Americans. The workman here is inclined to be sluggish, and what he accomplishes is relatively small.—From the Report of the Consul at Sonneberg.

These were all good Republican consuls, be it remembered, and appointed by Republican presidents. This was eleven years ago, and the Republican party would do well to remember the words of its secretary of state at that time.

The facts brought out by the consuls led Mr. Evarts to remark: "For the first time our manufactures are now assuming international proportions. At a time of universal depression we have met those nations which hold a monopoly of the world's markets—met them in their strongholds, and established the fact that American manufactures are second to the manufactures of no other nation; and that with a proper and patriotic understanding between a capitalist and laborer we can command a fair share of the buying world's patronage, and command that patronage with larger profits to the capitalist and higher wages to the laborer than can be made or paid in any other country."

And he adds: "Within the last fifteen years we have demonstrated our ability, by the brilliant development of our own resources, to exclude by honest competition foreign manufactures to a large extent from our shores. The question which now peremptorily challenges all thinking minds is how to create a foreign demand for those manufactures which are left after supplying our home demands."

But Mr. Evarts was not the only Republican secretary of state who found out something about European labor. When James G. Blaine was secretary during the brief administration of Garfield he made a report on the cotton goods trade of the world. Here are some extracts from pages 98 and 99 of that report:

"The wages of spinners and weavers in Lancashire and in Massachusetts, according to the foregoing statements, were as follows per week: Spinners, English, $7.20 to $8.40 (master spinners running as high as $12); American, $7.07 to $10.30.

"Weavers, English, $3.84 to $8.64, subject, at the date on which these rates were given, to a reduction of 10 per cent.; American, $4.82 to $8.78.

"The average wages of employes in the Massachusetts mills are as follows, according to the official returns: Men $8.80, women $5.62, male children $3.11, female children $3.08. According to Consul Shaw's report, the average wages of the men employed in the Lancashire mills on the 1st of January, 1880, was about $3 per week, subject to a reduction of 10 per cent.; women from $3.40 to $4.30, subject to a reduction of 10 per cent.

"The hours of labor in the Lancashire mills are fifty-six, in the Massachusetts sixty, per week. The hours of labor in the mills in the other New England States, where the wages are generally less than in Massachusetts, are usually sixty-six to sixty-nine per week. Undoubtedly the inequalities in the wages of English and American operatives are more than equalized by the greater efficiency of the latter and their longer hours of labor. If this should prove to be a fact in practice, as it seems to me to be proven from official statistics, it would be a very important element in the establishment of our ability to compete with England for our share of the cotton goods trade of the world."

With such statements from their leaders is it not time for Republican politicians to quit prating about pauper labor?

The Needlessness of Subsidies.

The scheme in congress to grant subsidies to ships in order to build up an American merchant marine has not yet been abandoned, notwithstanding the rapid rate at which the surplus has been melting before the extravagant legislation of the Republican majority.

It is pretended by the friends of the subsidy measure that there is a lack of steam communication between our ports and South America and Central America. This, they say, is the reason why our trade with those parts of the world does not flourish, for they are fast set in their determination not to admit that a little thing like a tariff can hinder trade. The people who are hungry for bounties out of the public treasury have all along been saying, "It is for lack of shipping; pay us a big sum and we will build the ships."

But is there a lack of shipping? A single New York firm has recently chartered six Norwegian steamers to run between New York and Central American ports—and these steamers have no subsidies whatever. In order to ascertain how far it is true that our trade with countries south of us is crippled for lack of shipping The New York Evening Post has made an examination into the matter and has secured a list of the foreign built steamers running during May and June of this year from ports in the United States to West Indian, Central American and South American ports under charter to merchants in the United States. It has in this way catalogued 92 such steamers, of which 45 are Norwegian, 43 British, 2 German, 1 Spanish and 1 Russian, all running without any subsidy from any government whatever, and there are probably others of which no record exists in New York.

This inquiry brought out the further fact that twelve fast steamers, each of about 700 tons register, had been built at Bergen, Norway, and with Norwegian capital, the past year, from designs made in this country under orders from American merchants, who have chartered them for three years' continuous service to run between New York, Boston and Philadelphia and the West Indies. All these steamers are making handsome profits both for their owners and their employers, and the business is constantly increasing.

But here are a number of steamers running profitably without subsidies. True they are only chartered by Americans; but a charter serves the same purpose as ownership, and these are practically American ships. They would carry the American flag if it were not for our stupid navigation laws, which forbid an American citizen from floating the Stars and Stripes on a foreign built vessel. The laws do not forbid the purchase of these vessels; only they shall not be called American vessels.

American citizens do, in fact, own a large number of ships which sail under foreign flags. A single firm in New York is said to own or control a foreign fleet of forty vessels—all upon the high seas without subsidies.

Capt. John M. Forbes, of Boston, has bought a number of such vessels, and says that he buys them abroad because he can get them cheaper than at home, and for no other reason.

Our navigation laws are a twin stupidity to our high tariff itself.

Blaine Touches the Weak Spot.

The principal point of value in Mr. Blaine's letter on reciprocity is its recognition of the value to our farmers of a foreign market for their products. It is from this standpoint that Blaine makes his sweeping arraignment of the McKinley bill: "There is not a section or a line in the entire bill that will open a market for another bushel of wheat or another barrel of pork."

The necessity of a foreign market for our farm products is absolute, provided our agriculture is to prosper. But, as Blaine sees, "our foreign market for breadstuffs grows narrower." It is not only true, as he points out, that Great Britain is exerting every nerve to secure her bread supplies from India, but it is also true that England is turning her attention to the Argentine Republic for her grain supply.

Let the farmer here note one all important fact, viz., that a nation buys most readily from those to whom it can also sell. The McKinley idea of selling to foreign countries without buying from them is in the long run impossible. Trade between nations is barter, and the more widely we open our ports to foreign goods the greater will be the demand for our farm products with which to make payment for these foreign goods.

Under this view Blaine's condemnation of the McKinley bill does not go far enough. Not only does that bill fail to open a "market for another bushel of wheat or another barrel of pork," but it actually tends to close the foreign market by driving away foreign trade from our shores. There is the fatal objection to the bill.

A Sound Legal Opinion.

PUBLIC SAFETY DEMANDS
That only honest and reliable medicines should be placed upon the market. It cannot, therefore, be stated too emphatically, nor repeated too often, that all who are in need of a genuine Blood-purifier should be sure and ask for
Ayer's
Sarsaparilla. Your life, or that of some one near and dear to you, may depend on the use of this well-approved remedy in preference to any other preparation of similar name. It is compounded of Honduras sarsaparilla (the variety most rich in curative properties), stillingia, mandrake, yellow dock, and the iodides. The process of manufacture is original, skilful, scrupulously clean, and such as to secure the very best medicinal qualities of each ingredient. This medicine is not boiled nor heated, and is, therefore, not a decoction; but it is a compound extract, obtained by a method exclusively our own, of the best and most powerful alteratives, tonics, and diuretics known to pharmacy. For the last forty years, Ayer's
Sarsaparilla
has been the standard blood-purifier of the world—no other approaching it in popular confidence or universal demand. Its formula is approved by the leading physicians and druggists. Being pure and highly concentrated, it is the most economical of any possible blood medicine. Every purchaser of Sarsaparilla should insist upon having this preparation and see that each bottle bears the well-known name of

The narrow escape of Mrs. B. M. Searles, of Elkhart, Ind., from a premature death is wonderful. She states that "for twenty years my heart troubled me greatly. I became worse. Had smothering spells, short breath, fluttering; could not sleep on my left side, had much Pain in Breast, shoulder and stomach. Ankles swelled. Had much headache and dizziness. Treatment did me no good, until I tried Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure and Restorative Nervine. The first bottle helped me, and I was soon virtually cured. For sale at Baker & Hall's drug store. HAPPY RECOVERY
There is nothing I now enjoy that I do not owe to having used Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, of Rondout, N. Y., at a time when I was suffering all that a human being could endure. My troubles began in my kidneys, from which I never expected to recover. My physicians said I had
Bright's Disease,
Later I had a bad attack of Gravel. Six years ago last June—how well I remember that day—I saw Dr Kennedy's Favorite Remedy advertised in our paper. After using three bottles I was well. I have never had a return of the disease, and though I am over 60 years of age I am vigorous and strong as I was in my prime. What physicians and the many remedies I had taken could not do Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy did. It stayed the disease and made me a well woman.—Mrs. Emiline P. Mizner, Burg Hill, O.

The figure 9 in our dates will make a long stay. No man or woman now living will ever date a document without using the figure 9. It stands in the third place in 1890, where it will remain ten years and then move up to second place in 1900 where it will rest for one hundred years.
There is another "9" which has also come to stay. It is unlike the figure 9 in our dates in the respect that it has already moved up to first place, where it will permanently remain. It is called the "No 9" High Arm Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine.
The "No. 9" was endorsed for first place by the experts of Europe at the Paris Exposition of 1889, where, after a severe contest with the leading machines of the world, it was awarded the only Grand Prize given to family sewing machines, all others on exhibit having received lower awards of gold medals, etc. The French Government also recognized its superiority by the decoration of Mr. Nathaniel Wheeler, President of the company, with the Cross of the Legion of Honor.
The "No. 9" is not an old machine improved upon, but is an entirely new machine, and the Grand Prize at Paris was awarded it as the grandest advance in sewing machine mechanism of the age. Those who buy it can rest assured, therefore, of having the very latest and best.

THE UNION PICNIC.

THE STURDY YEOMANRY OF NORTHERN LENAWEE GATHER IN FORCE AT SAND LAKE FOR THEIR ANNUAL JUBILEE.

The Fourth Annual Meeting of the Union Picnic Association held on Wednesday, Aug 6th. A Beautiful Day, a Large Crowd and a Fine Program Presented.

The Union Picnic Association has become one of the fixtures of Northern Lenawee County. No one who attended their fourth annual gathering on Wednesday of last week can dispute that fact. The clerk of the weather was in his most gracious mood that morning. The thermometer had taken a tumble from the torrid point of the preceding days. The atmosphere was cool, balmy and bracing. The farmers were through with the hurry of harvest and having, and had both the time and the inclination to take a holiday. All the townships in this section turned out in force and a most successful meeting was the result.

"The early bird" seemed to be the motto of many who attended. Teams passed through Tecumseh village, bound for Sand Lake, as early as six o'clock in the morning and for three hours thereafter there was almost a continual procession of teams going West. We arrived at Putnam's at exactly nine o'clock, and fully one hundred teams had entered the grounds at that early hour. The officers were on hand early, and the plan was adopted of charging a small fee for the admission of teams to the picnic grove. This was an excellent idea. The sum charged was a mere trifle for each team, and it enabled the treasurer to collect a sufficient sum to liquidate all expenses and leave a small fund on hand. The plan worked worked so well that it will undoubtedly be followed hereafter. Picknickers came pouring into the grounds during the entire forenoon and when the dinner hour arrived Putnam's grove contained a larger crowd than had ever assembled within its borders before. The tables proved inadequate to accommodate all, but the greensward, carriages and wagons were utilized for family groups, and thus all were well provided for and braced up for an afternoon's enjoyment.

The Britton band arrived early in the morning and discoursed some of their best music during the day. Promptly at one o'clock President Wilson called the assemblage to order at the band stand and the literary program was presented in the following order:

PROGRAM.

Music by the Britton band—Overture Scraps.

Seth Simmons, of Franklin, gave a fine violin solo, Mrs. Witherall accompanying on the organ.

Rev. H. Palmer, of Tipton, followed in Prayer.

The Secretary, L. M. Waldron, presented a verbal report, showing the present condition and membership of the Association.

The election of officers for the coming year then took place with the following result:

President—Horace B. Eaton, Farmers' Union.

Vice Pres.—A. D. English, Southern Washtenaw Club.

Secretary—C. H. Bramble, Patrons of Industry.

Treasurer—W. B. Keyser, Northern Lenawee Club.

The Britton band then gave another selection.

S. C. Stacy followed with ten minutes of "Random Shots."

A. D. English, of Manchester, read a poem entitled, "Rhymes of the Times." It contained many good hits and was very finely delivered. The paper displayed considerable poetical ability and was listened to with the closest attention by the audience.

The Britton band favored the crowd with another rousing piece.

Frank M. Fogg, of Lansing, was then introduced and gave the audience a red-hot speech of at least one hour and a half's duration. Mr. Fogg is a rapid, earnest talker, well posted upon the economic questions which affect the farmers, and he poured the grape and canister into the monopolies and trusts in a way which challenged the attention of his hearers. His address was given from the standpoint of a Patron. Although we are not prepared to accept all of his conclusions he told a great deal of truth which will set the farmers to thinking. His remarks were wholly impromptu and hence we are unable to reproduce them. He held the large crowd throughout and was frequently interrupted with applause during its delivery. His speech evidently gave the best of satisfaction to the farmers present.

Seth Simmons and Mrs. Witherall gave another instrumental duet, which closed the literary exercises of the day.

Most of the crowd tarried until nearly sundown, a large proportion taking a picnic supper in the grove. The afternoon was spent in boat-riding upon the Manitou, rowing about the lake, strolling around the grove, and visiting the cottages on the South shore.

The attendance was far in excess of any previous year. About four hundred teams were on the grounds and 3,000 would be a very modest estimate of the total attendance. Many good judges placed it at 4,000 or upwards. Not an accident of any kind occurred during the day. Mr. Putnam afforded the guests every facility within his power to enjoy themselves and the officers of the Association were unremitting in their efforts to promote the success of the affair. That they fulfilled their wishes admirably was the verdict of every man, woman and child in attendance. From first to last it was a grand farmers' gathering.

The clubs and societies now belonging to the Association are twelve in number. We append a brief sketch of each, with a list of their present officers.

FARMERS' SOCIAL CLUB.

This is the Pioneer club of Northern Lenawee. It was organized Dec. 1st, 1880. F. C. Rector was the first President for three years. Israel H. Schreder was then President until December, 1888. Mrs. F. C. Rector was Secretary for six years. Its members reside mostly in the central portions of Tecumseh and Clinton townships, between the two villages.

President—A. P. Coddington.
Vice Pres.—R. B. Gillespie.
Sec. and Treas.—Mrs. A. P. Coddington.

TECUMSEH AND FRANKLIN CLUB.

This Club was organized in December, 1884, and its name indicates the territory which its membership embraces.

President—George Swartz.
Vice Pres.—Will Waldron.
Sec.—Mrs. B. Hurry.
Treas.—Chas. Matthews.

FARMERS' UNION.

The Union was organized in February, 1887, and its membership embraces residents of the eastern part of Tecumseh township and the contiguous portions of Macon, Ridgeway and Raisin.

President—Minor Davidson.
Vice Pres.—Wm. Raymond.
Sec. and Treas.—Eunice Davidson.

NORTHERN LENAWEE CLUB.

This Club was organized in January, 1887, and covers the territory in the "Newburg" neighborhood and the western portions of Tecumseh and Clinton townships.

President—W. B. Keyser.
Vice Pres.—Chas. McNeil.
Sec. and Treas.—J. F. N. Bowen.

COMMERCIAL TELEGRAPH CO.

The C. T. Co. was organized in the spring of 1882. There was about a mile of line in the western part of the township, connecting four farm residences. The first work of the Company was to extend that line about 3 miles into the village and connect it with a line extending from Sutton's hardware store to the L. S. & M. S. depot. The line was then about four miles long. It has been extended from time to time since till it is now nearly 50 miles long with some 88 instruments. It has instruments in the city of Adrian and in the villages of Tecumseh, Clinton, Holloway and Tipton. Its officers are as follows:

President—W. B. Keyser.
Vice Pres.—D. T. Hall.
Treas.—O. P. Bills.
Sec.—L. G. North.
Manager—R. J. W. Bowen.

TECUMSEH & MACON TELEGRAPH CO.

About seven years ago the first mile of wire was put up, connecting the residences of J. B. Garlinghouse, C. W. Benedict and J. W. Benedict. About two years later two miles more of wire were strung, leaving the north end of wire at Thos. Boyce's. About four years ago the necessity of being connected with Tecumseh became apparent, and by the aid of some of the business men it was constructed, leaving the end of the wire at Marks & Russell's. Two years ago the circuit was extended to Macon, leaving the northern terminus at W. Harruigh's. About the same time the south end was continued from Marks and Russell's to Mr. E. L. Russell's and from there to Mr. Alanson Bangs', which is the southern terminal point at present, making about seventeen miles of wire and thirty-six instruments. The officers are:

President—J. T. Boyce.
Vice Pres.—V. Wood.
Sec.—S. W. Boyce.
Treas.—L. G. North.
Manager—C. W. Benedict.
Board directors—J. T. Boyce, V. Wood, S. W. Boyce, L. G. North, C. W. Benedict, E. L. Russell.

TIPTON GRANGE.

Tipton Grange No. 165 was organized in 1872 or 1873 and continued in a flourishing condition until the burning of the hall in 1876. Meetings were then held at private houses for a while, but were finally discontinued. In the winter of 1888-89 the Grange was reorganized and meetings are now held on the first and third Saturday evenings of each month, with increasing interest. The officers are:

Master—E. C. Cook.
Overseer—S. N. Munger.
Chaplain—B. Hurry.
Lecturer—Mrs. B. Hurry.
Sec.—Tina VanValkenburg.
Treas.—James E. Kimball.
Steward—Andrew Wilson, Jr.
Ass't Steward—John Osborn.
Lady Ass't Steward—Mrs. W. J. Hampton.
Flora—Mrs. R. Langdon.
Ceres—Rose Pawson.
Pomona—Mrs. S. N. Munger.
Gate keeper—Frank Erskine.

MACON GRANGE.

This was organized in December, 1873. The lodge owns a hall of its own and is one of the most flourishing granges in Lenawee county. Its officers are as follows:

Master—J. W. Osborn.
Overseer—Wm. R. Wilson.
Lecturer—Louise Rogers.
Steward—C. V. Skinner.
Ass't Steward—Robert Bailey.
Chaplain—J. W. Baker.
Treas.—Richard Clarkson.
Sec.—Cyrus Mead.
Pomona—Georgiana Baker.
Flora—Anna Osborn.
Ceres—Nelia Russell.
Lady Ass't Steward—Susie Osgood.

CAMBRIDGE CLUB.

This Club was organized at Wm. B. White's, March 13, 1890, with a membership of twenty-two. It has now seventy-five members and is in a flourishing condition.

President—W. F. Raven.
Vice Pres.—Anna White.
Sec.—A. J. Case.
Treas.—Anna Vaughan.
Chaplain—Albert Dewey.

ONSTED GRANGE.

Springville Grange was organized February 13, 1874, at Springville, with sixty-three charter members. The meetings were held in Mosher's Hall until October, 1876, when, by vote of the members, the place of meeting was transferred to the Cambridge cheese factory. By an appeal to the National Grange for a change of name the title, "Springville Grange," was changed to Onsted Grange, its present name, Dec. 7, 1888. At present the order numbers sixty-one live members. The following are its officers:

Master—A. F. Maxwell.
Overseer—N. J. Morey.
Lecturer—Marshall Reed.
Treas.—J. O. Maxwell.
Sec.—Sylvia Maxwell.
Steward—Warren Shepherd.
Ass't Steward—Frank Darling.
Chaplain—Emily Wimple.
Gate keeper—Walter Wimple.
Ceres—Lena Read.
Pomona—Nina Feller.
Flora—Nellie Kinney.
Lady Ass't Steward—Franc Maxwell.

UNION LITERARY AND LYCEUM.

This organization is located in the central portion of the town of Franklin and has been well kept up since it was started in September, 1883. The officers are as follows:

Pres.—S. N. Munger.
Vice Pres.—Mrs. A. B. Wisner.
Sec.—Alma Whelan.
Treas.—Hollis Taylor.
Reporter—Ed. Spalding.

SOUTHERN WASHTENAW CLUB.

The Southern Washtenaw Farmers' Club was organized in March, 1879, and holds its meetings on the first Friday of each month, July and August excepted. The meetings are held at the homes of the members and it takes about two years to get around to all the places. There are 56 names on the roll call and the Club may be considered a very successful organization.

President—S. M. Merithew.

The breath of a chronic catarrh patient is often so offensive that he becomes an object of disgust. After a time ulceration sets in, the spongy bones are attacked and frequently entirely destroyed. A constant source of discomfort is the dripping of the purulent secretions into the throat, sometimes producing inveterate bronchitis, which in its turn has been the exciting cause of pulmonary disease. The brilliant results which have attended its use for years past properly designate Ely's Cream Balm as by far the best and only cure.

"Don't Care to Eat."

It is with the greatest confidence that Hood's Sarsaparilla is recomended for loss of appetite, indigestion, sick headache, and similar troubles. This medicine gently tones the stomach, assists digestion, and make one "real hungry. Persons in delicate health after taking Hood's Sarsaparilla a few days, find themselves longer for and eating the plainest food with unexpected relish.

THROUGH THE DARK VALLEY.

At her mother's home in this village, on the 31st day of July, 1890, of consumption, Helen F., beloved wife of Alva J. Coddington, entered into eternal rest.

Helen F. Church was born in Tecumseh January 4th, 1863, and with the exception of two brief intervals her whole earthly life was passed in this village. Her infancy and girlhood were spent at home and she completed a course in our High School, graduating in the class of '82. On the 14th day of February, 1884, she became the wife of Alva J. Coddington and the couple soon after moved to Shelby, Oceana county, Mich., where they resided two years. The family then returned to Tecumseh where they made their home until the fall of 1889, when the husband obtained a position as express messenger between Orrville and Monroeville, Ohio, and in November she joined him, they making their home at Orrville. That climate, however, did not agree with her, and her health, which had been quite feeble for several months, continued to fail. Early in June last she was brought back to Tecumseh, in the hope that the change might benefit her, or at least prolong her earthly journey for a few short months. In spite of all that medical skill and careful nursing could accomplish she sank rapidly and at ten o'clock Thursday night, July 31st, her poor frail body gave up the unequal struggle, and her spirit passed quietly away.

The funeral services were held on Saturday afternoon, August 2d, at four o'clock, and were largely attended. Rev. F. Adkins officiated and spoke a few tender words of consolation to the broken hearted family. The remains were then borne to their final resting place in our beautiful evergreen cemetery.

The deceased was a young woman of bright intellect, of religious inclinations and of a sweet-tempered, amiable disposition. Her whole heart was wrapped up in her husband, children and home, and until her failing health had wasted her ambition she filled the position of an ideal wife and mother. She had been for a long time a faithful member of the Episcopal church. Although her sufferings were great during the last few weeks of her illness she bore them with Christian resignation and fortitude, grieving that she must leave her children, yet ready to heed her Saviour's call. A husband and three little children, the youngest but four months old, have lost the dearest and nearest friend they had on earth. It is hard for one who suffers such a loss to be reconciled, but the afflicted ones can find consolation in the thought that she has gone to a brighter and happier home.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Dora A. Hall, wife of Mr. D. T. Hall, of Tecumseh, died Aug. 7, 1890, after a lingering and painful illness from cancer, aged 36 years, 11 months and 10 days.

She was born in Milan, Monroe Co. Mich., Aug. 28, 1853, the daughter of William and Elizabeth Dorlell. Her father died May 5th 1859, leaving her mother with four small children to support. The family being in humble circumstances, Dora from necessity early learned to do for herself, in a large degree making her own way in life from the age of twelve years onward, thus developing a spirit of personal independence and a strength of character which were prominently displayed in after life. She was married July 27, 1873, to Mr. D. T. Hall, at Tecumseh where they have since made their home. She was the mother of three children, two of whom, Alfred D. and Oscar S. survive. Clare D. died March 13, 1888. The disease which brought this fatal issue was probably of some years standing, though its real nature and seriousness were not known till within a few months. Her sufferings were often intense, yet she bore them with patience and cheerfulness.

Under the faithful religious training of a pious mother, when but a mere child she expressed a hope in Christ, and earnestly desired at that time to profess her faith in baptism. She was not encouraged in this on account of her extreme youth. This profession was never made, and subsequently she ceased to rely on this early hope. But in recent months since the death of Clare, chastened by affliction, struggling herself with declining health, and facing the inevitable end, her heart turned to her Savior with submission and trust. She found comfort in the word of God, rested on the atonement of Christ, and died in the testimony of a triumphant faith, and singing hymns of praise to Christ as her Savior. She was of an extremely sensitive spirit, but cherished profound regard for truth, a hatred of all shams, and had a brave and cheerful heart. She was a member and an officer of the order of the Eastern Star, and appreciated the kind and sympathetic attentions of her associates and many friends, and of the sisters in the church with whose congregation she was identified. A large concourse of these friends were present to testify their respect at the funeral services which were conducted by her late pastor, Rev. F. Adkins. The afflicted husband and the motherless boys have the profound sympathy of the whole community in their great trial.

THE TIFFANY IRON WORKS.

We paid a brief visit yesterday to the site of the new foundry, and were surprised to see how rapidly the work of erecting their building is already progressing. Their lot consists of about three acres of land on the corner of the Bills farm next the Lake Shore railroad and adjoining the corporation line. They have also bought a portion of a village lot on the north, in the shape of an L, which gives them an outlet to the Mackinaw railroad track. Their main building will be 50x196 feet in size, built of brick with good stone foundations. The trenches for the foundation walls are already dug, a drive well has been put in and several thousand brick are now on the grounds. A spur is now being constructed from the Mackinaw track across the east end of the lot to the site of the building. The stone for the foundation walls have been bought near Devil's Lake, and will be delivered this week. Comfort will furnish the brick, and these will be drawn in wagons. The work will be pushed as rapidly as possible with the view of opening the shop before cold weather sets in.

LENAWEE CO. G. A. R. REUNION.

The first meeting of this Association met on the fair grounds at Adrian on Tuesday, August 12, and was a grand success, although the national encampment at Boston took quite a number of the most active G. A. R. men of the county away. About 250 joined the organization. Owing to unlooked for delays the meeting was not called till after the picnic dinner. At 1 p. m. President Cole called to order, and after martial music by the band, and "America" led by the Bey family, and in which all joined, an earnest prayer was given by Rev. Mr. Palmer, of Franklin. Next came the "Flag of the Free," finely sung by the Bey family of Ogden. Welcome address by the President, followed by "Marching through Georgia," led by Comrade French, of Blissfield. The Constitution and By-Laws were read by the Secretary and unanimously adopted by the Association. Then came very interesting reports from Commanders of the G A R posts of the county, and most excellent reports from Mrs. Camburn, President of Woodbury Relief Corps of Adrian, and from Mrs J. D. Shull, President of Beers Corps of Tecumseh. Commander Coddington's report was among the best. Rattling patriotic speeches were made by Comrades Carpenter, of Ogden, Reynolds and Stearns, of Adrian, Warren of Clayton, Shull of Tecumseh, and Bey of Ogden. The programme lasted about three hours, and interspersed was much very fine music by the Bey family and others. At the close the Treasurer's report showed all expenses paid and $11 remaining in the treasury. The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows: Pres., J. D. Shull, of Tecumseh; Vice-pres., W. Stearns, of Adrian; Sec., D. H. Warren, Clayton; Treas., H. F. Yarrick, Clayton. All united in saying, "We have had a grand time."

THE TECUMSEH HERALD

TECUMSEH, MICH., AUG. 14, 1890.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Coller returned last week from a visit to Petoskey.

Dave Macham and family were visiting friends in Holloway most of last week.

A large Tecumseh contingent went to Adrian Saturday to see Barnum's show.

Mr. and Mrs. R. J. W. Bowen have been spending a few days with Chicago friends.

Frank Snedecor has put incandescent lights into his barber shop. Who will be the next?

The Globe Mills started last week on a forty carload order for flour to be shipped to Sligo, Ireland.

Anderson & Co. had six arc lights in their triple store, and they have added 13 more incandescent lights.

Rev. C. E. Conley filled the Baptist pulpit last Sabbath and preached to a large congregation, both morning and evening.

E. L. Hough, of Ypsilanti, came over on his bicycle Sunday and returned Monday. Ed is becoming an expert on the wheel.

C. E. Williamson has been re elected president of the Michigan Egg and Poultry Dealers' Association. The right man in the right place.

Levi B. Stevens was called to Tecumseh last Thursday by the death of his infant child. He returned on Friday but his wife will remain for several days.

Prof. D. A. Hammond, of Charlotte, was shaking hands with his Tecumseh friends last Friday. He made rather too short a stay, however—only one day.

Rev. Frank Arnold, of Ypsilanti, has accepted a unanimous call from the Baptist church of Tecumseh and will begin his ministerial duties the first of September next.

Miss Edith Phelps, daughter of Rev. J Phelps, is spending a couple of weeks with her father's family here. Next week she will go to Marquette and thence back to Chicago, where she has a business position.

A cablegram received in Adrian last Sunday announced the sudden death of Dr. Robt. Stevenson at Berlin where he had gone to attend the International Medical Association. His death was caused by apoplexy.

John McConnell's residence was the scene of a large and happy reception party on Thursday evening last. It was given in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Will McConnell of Pratt, Kansas. It was a most enjoyable evening for the favored ones who attended.

The Tecumseh Table Co. are erecting on their premises a steam kiln or sweat box. The lumber is first treated to a dose of live steam in this kiln and then transferred to the regular dry kiln. Their business is constantly growing. They now have 28 names on the pay roll.

The Democratic electors of Tecumseh will meet in caucus at the Council building on Friday, Aug. 15, 1890, at 7 30 P. M., to choose six delegates to attend the County Convention, Aug. 18th, and six delegates to attend the district convention yet to be called. By order of Town Com.

The Democratic electors of the town of Macon are requested to meet at Grange Hall on Friday evening, Aug. 15th, at 7:30 P. M., to choose six delegates to attend the County Convention to be held Aug. 18th, and six delegates to the district convention, hereafter to be called. By order of Town Com.

Editor Schermerhorn, of the Hudson Gazette, and Editress Clough, of the Brooklyn Exponent, went down in a mine together, up north, while on the recent editorial jaunt. They were the only two members of the large party who had the temerity to make the descent. There was no parson in attendance, and they came back to the upper strata again as free and untrammeled as ever.—Adrian Press.

On account of the large number of advance orders received for Mrs. Custer's new book, Following the Guidon, the publishers have been compelled to postpone its publication until Aug 22d. Theodore Roosevelt says of this work: "It is a book which is not only interesting, but which possesses real and lasting value as a faithful portrayal of a characteristically American phase of life which has now almost passed away."

The Lenawee County Pioneer Society will hold the 17th annual meeting at the Village of Blissfield, Wednesday, Aug. 20th, at 10 o'clock A. M. There will be several speakers, with a wish that a number more will assist, with reminiscences of former times. A cordial invitation is given to all, both of younger and senior years. Tables will be prepared for a basket picnic at noon. Election of officers will take place during the day.
FRANCIS A. DEWEY, President.

Co. C. Attention! There will be a drill next Tuesday evening.

James Elliott's new house on Railroad street is nearly ready for occupancy.

This is the month for picnics and excursions and there are plenty of them.

Miss Lizzie Thompson, of Jackson, made a brief visit in Tecumseh last Tuesday.

Thanks to Wm. Totten for late copies of the Daily Resorter published at Petoskey.

Will Ingersoll returned from his outing at Devil's Lake last Wednesday afternoon.

The Republican Congressional Convention will be held at Adrian on Tuesday, Sep. 2.

Eugene Clarkson, of Detroit, has been spending a few day's vacation with Tecumseh and Macon friends.

A Farmer's Picnic and free harvest dance will be held at Recreation Park Hotel, Sand Lake, to-morrow, Aug. 15.

The Republican Representative Convention for this, the first district, will be held at Blissfield on Monday, Sep. 1.

Mrs. W. H. Zinn and daughters, of Lafayette, Ind., are spending a couple of weeks with Mrs. Abbie Fisher.

Will H. Hayden is again busy buying wheat for the Globe Mill, the old reliable. He says, "Wheat is worth 92c to-day."

Mrs. Julia Knight, of Franklin, has secured two very beautiful oil portraits. The work was done by the best artists of New York City, and obtained through Fred Brown, of this village.

The premium list of the Lenawee County Agricultural Society is at hand. This season's fair will be held on Sept. 22-26, and competition will be open to all. The officers look forward to a fine exhibition.

The Republican county convention and Barnum's show both struck the county seat on the same day. It is wonderful how many Republicans from this vicinity concluded at the last moment to attend the convention.

The old McCaughn blacksmith shop located between Wm. Hayden's residence lot and the Silvers property on Railroad-st., has been torn down. This building was one of the "ancient landmarks." It was one of the first buildings erected in that part of the village, about the year 1840, and was used for many years by Dougal McCaughn as a blacksmith shop.

It is said that there are not rooms enough for the students who desire to attend the Fayette Normal University the coming year. This is a mistake, however, as the accommodations are ample. If those who are planning to attend will write to Pres. Dodds or visit him personally, they will soon be pleasantly located. The next term begins Tuesday, Aug. 26th.

Abner and Henry Wilson have now the boss Artesian well on their celery farm in Franklin twp. The well was drilled in one and one-half days to the depth of 31 feet, when a vein was reached of sufficient force to raise the water fourteen feet above the ground The well runs a stream filling a two-inch pipe with sufficient force to wash celery. Its utility for irrigation is of great value to the farm.

At 2 o'clock yesterday, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs P. H. Rouse, occurred the marriage of their daughter, Myrtle B., to Prof F. J. Hendershot. Fully eighty friends and relatives of the family, a number of them from a distance, witnessed the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. DePuy, of Saranac, an uncle of the groom After the matrimonial knot had been tied in due form, a bounteous supper was served, after which Mr. and Mrs. Hendershot started on a brief tour to Benton Harbor, by way of Tecumseh, where they stop to visit relatives. The list of presents was large, including many useful and ornamental articles.—Saline Observer.

The Odd Fellows of Lenawee and Hillsdale Counties will hold a picnic at Devils Lake on Saturday Sept. 6th. The Tecumseh Lodge has voted to attend and an excursion train will be run from here. Full particulars later.

While at the Sand Lake picnic last week Wednesday we took time to call upon our Tecumseh cottagers. We found Mr. Dewolf and his family at home enjoying the hot weather and they will remain there for some time yet. He is entertaining several guests at his cottage now. Mrs. Geo. S. Tiffany was at home, but Mr. Tiffany was in town. He is spending but little time at the lake this summer as his new business enterprise here is engrossing so much of his time and attention. Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hayden were at home and the latch string was out as usual. A portion of the family have been occupying the cottage since the first of July and they will probably remain through this month.

Scove Walker received a telegram last evening, calling him to Norvell on account of an accident to his sister, Mrs. Frank Coder. Mrs. Coder, with her little daughter, was driving to her father's yesterday afternoon with a horse and buggy and when crossing the Ypsilanti road at Fay's crossing, a train came along from the West unperceived by her. The engine struck the buggy, just as it crossed the tract, hurling it several rods distant. Mrs. Coder was seriously hurt and little Ida, about five years old, was instantly killed. The train halted and conveyed the injured lady to Manchester and thence she went home on the night train. News received this morning indicates that she is not as badly hurt as was feared yesterday. She had a collar bone broken and was otherwise bruised. Her escape from death seems marvellous.

A BAD BELT.

Why the First Shock Did Not Kill Kemmler.

A NEW ONE HAD JUST BEEN PUT ON THE DYNAMO,

And the Lacing of it was Irregulaar—Statement Made by Superintendent Barnes.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 12.—In an interview with a Post Express reporter Superintendent Barnes revealed some secrets of the dynamo room in the Auburn prison. When Kemmler was killed he said the belt used was a new one and had not been stretched. The lacing of the belt cause the dynamo to revolve irregularly, and when the current was turned on to kill, the resistance of Kemmler and the chair was such that it caused the belt to slip and it came near running off the pulley. It was three-fourths off the pulley and only that a man held a board against it, the belt would have come off and there would have been an awful scene. There should have been a resistance current through until it was to be turned on to Kemmler and changed from the resistance box by the same move that turned it on to him."

WANAMAKER'S CLERK

Held for Attempting to Blackmail a Lady.

PHILADELPHIA, PA., Aug. 11.—Gideon Gagnon, a ten dollar a week clerk at Wanamaker's, was held in $1,000 bail by Magistrate Smith for attempting to blackmail Mrs. Sarah Waterman, of New York, who is stopping in Philadelphia temporarily. Mrs. Waterman is short, stout, dark and wears eye glasses. Gideon is a slender blonde with a pretty face. They met at the bargain counter. Gagnon said he took Mrs. Waterman to the opera, escorted her to hotels at different times, and on one occasion loaned her $110 to pay for some goods she expected. He took her gold watch and diamond ring as security. Mrs. Waterman's story was somewhat different. She was exhibiting a patent iron at Wanamaker's, she said, and having need of some dry goods went to the counter where Gagnon was standing. She left her address with him and requested that the goods be sent to her hotel. That evening while she was absent, he called at the hotel in an endeavor to see her. She made other purchases from him and asked to have the goods sent to her home in New York. A few days later she says, he demanded $50 from her, and wrote her a letter threatening to expose her to her husband and Mr. Wanamaker if she did not give it to him. She was absent in Baltimore at the time and upon returning found a letter from a lawyer advising her to call at his office. No attention was paid to it and the next morning she was arrested and taken to the lawyer's office but soon released. More demands for from $50 to $110 were made, she said, and finally discovering that Gargon had told reporters of her alleged misconduct, she had him arrested for attempted blackmail. The court, after hearing both stories, gave Gagnon a severe lecture. "You must be a mean man," said he; "God help the poor woman who falls into your clutches. You had no right to resort to blackmail even if the woman did owe you money. You are held in $1,000 bail for trial."

DASTARDLY.

A Passenger Train Thrown from the Track by Design.

SAG HARBOR, L. I., Aug. 11.—The 3:20 express to Sag Harbor from Long Island City last night met with an accident when about two miles from this station, the entire train being thrown from the track. The train which is engineered by William Booth, with Stepnen J. Swaysee as conductor, was about five minutes late and was trying to make up for lost time.

When it reached what is called Long Pond, some bricks or some other obstructions threw the engine and cars over on their sides. The train consisted of two parlor cars, two passenger coaches, a baggage car and a smoker. There were about twenty passengers on the train, among whom were a few women. As soon as the cars began to topple over there were shrieks and the hissing of escaping steam, accompanying cries for help suggested that loss of life was certain. No one was badly injured, however. M. L. Maley, of Auburn, N. Y., received several scalp wounds and was attended by Dr. Taylor, of Sag Harbor.

About three hundred feet of the track was torn up, and the engine and cars are lying on the west side of the rails while on the eastern side is a ravine about 50 feet deep. It will take about a day to repair the track for the running of trains. No trains can be run west of Bridgehampton until tomorrow night. Conductor Swaysee said to a Press News Association reporter that the accident was a lucky one as no lives were lost. He would not go so far as to say that the train was wrecked intentionally by malicious persons, but said they all had an exceedingly narrow escape.

A Queer Case.

DETROIT, Aug. 11.—Pleasanton has a queer case. Fourteen years ago Daniel Clark bought a lot of land and moved there from Canada. Three years later, Mrs. Daniel Clark settled down on a lot near by, but did not seem to know Mr. Clark, who it appears had deserted her some years before. For nine years husband and wife lived within gun shot of each other without exchanging a word. Last week Clark went to his wife's house and in less than half an hour the two went back to the husband's residence and have been living together since. They are seventy years old and seem to be very happy over their reconciliation.

Massachusetts Population.

BOSTON, Aug. 11.—The census of the state of Massachusetts, with one city and three towns estimated, gives the total population as 2,194,586. While the state has not fallen behind in its ratio of growth, the number of congressmen will be the same as at present.

A TWIN RELIC.

Evils of Child Marriage In India.

GIVING WAY TO AN ADVANCING AGE OF REASON.

The Form Known as "Marrying Girls to the Gods" Means a Slavery of Body and Soul—A Movement on Foot to Stop a the Evils of the Barbarous Custom.

[Copyright, 1890, by the United Press.]

LONDON, Aug. 11.

CHILD marriage, as the custom prevails in India, has been the subject of polemic from philanthropist from time immemorial. It will be welcome knowledge to the world that a powerful movement is now on foot among the more intelligent of the population to put a stop to its evils. One of the worst forms of girl marriage in India is known as "Marrying girls to the Gods," which means slavery of body and soul to the priests, great numbers of whom live upon the immorality of their girl wives. Hundreds of thousands of children of the ages of twelve and thirteen are wives and mothers in India. The educated and intelligent natives of Madras are in favor of fixing the age of marriage at fourteen years.

Barbers have not usually been noted as reformers: but in Bombay, India, the barbers have solemnly joined in a pledge not to shave the heads of widows. This means a great deal, for the shaved head is the sign of the woman doomed to perpetual widowhood. Her "husband" may have died when she was a babe in arms, for infants are pledged in marriage in that country, but she must remain a widow all her life, and the shorn poll is the evidence of her condition. The barbers refusal to shave the heads of females under such circumstances is therefore a protest against an inhuman and cruel custom, upheld by the strongest prejudices, and the wielders of the razor have therefore been subjected to much persecution, but they hold their own, nevertheless, with a fortitude that deserves to be commended.

A BUSY WEEK.

OUTLINE OF THE PRESENT WEEK IN CONGRSESSIONAL WORK.

Night Sessions Probable in the Senate—Many Republicans Absent in the House Will Cause Slow and Careful Work in that Branch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—Tariff discussion will predominate in the Senate during this week, until Friday, when Mr. Frye in accordance with the notice he gave last Thursday, will call up the river and harbor bill. There are several conference reports that may be submitted and break in on the tariff discussion almost any day; so the prospect for making much progress with the tariff bill this week is not very good. The Senate starts in today with about half of the metal schedule finished, and with thirty pages of the bill out of the way. Mr. Hoar's resolution to hasten the close of the bill, offered Saturday and referred to the committee on rules, is likely to be considered in caucus before the week ends. Another proposition, that of holding night sessions of the Senate, in order to hasten final consideration of the tariff bill, is also talked of by some Republican senators; but thus far has not found many enthusiassic supporters.

The grand Army Reunion at Boston has disarranged the plans of the House commitee on rules for this week. It was the intentention of the committee on rules to set apart the week for the consideration of the compound lard bill, the bill to extend the act in regard to experiment stations at agricultural colleges and the meat inspection bill: but so many of the Republican members will be absent, that it is considered dangerous to call up these measures. The probabilities are that the House will do very little work, some conference reports being the only matters that have a chance for consideration. The absence of the Republican members will probably leave a Democratic majority in the House.

INCREASE IN LUNACY.

Startling Statistics From England—How Pauperism is Managed There.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—The department of state has received an interesting report from Mr. Wm. P. Smith, commercial agent of the United States at Huddersfield, England, on pauperism in that country. The most remarkable feature of the report made by the poor law inspector of Lancashire county, Mr. Smith says, is that while the march of pauperism is held pretty well in check, the progress of lunacy appears to be spreading with startling rapidity. In 1880 there were 6,800 lunatics in Lancashire county, while in 1890 the number had increased to 9,000. In England and Wales in 1880 there werg 61,000 lunatics, while the report of 1890 shows an increase of 14,000. The total cost to the county of Lancashire for maintaining its paupers during 1889 was nearly $1,900,000. In England and Wales the cost during the same period was $21,000,000. During the years from 1880 the cost of pauperism in these two countries had increased $84,000,000. Tramps although classified as paupers are not included in the above figures. Mr. Smith says that is characteristic of the English tramp, when driven to the necessity of choosing between the poor house and starvation, to compromise, if possible, by simulating lunacy and becoming an inmate of an insane asylum. In 1880 there were 5,347 tramps paupers in England, while in 1890 the number increased to 5,434.

A Fatal Shot.

BELLEFONTAINE, O., Aug. 11.—Lincoln Spencer, aged 24, shot himself in the right eye and through the right lung this morning with a revolver. His eye was torn out and the other ball went entirely through his body. He is still alive, but can not survive.

NEWARK CRIME.

A VIGILANT POLICE OFFICER WORKS UP A CASE

Which Seems to Develop a System of Murders of Infants—A Woman Arrested—She Denies But Breaks Down.

NEWARK, O., Aug. 11.—It has just come to light that another dark page has undoubtedly been added to the annals of crime in this city. Last month a woman named Mrs. Maloney came in on the Shawnee train carrying an infant in her arms. She remained all night in the depot, and towards morning was noticed to go into the water closet where she remained a considerable length of time. When she returned to the waiting room, instead of the infant, she carried two small bundles, and soon boarded the east bound passenger. Her actions appeared strange, and Depot Masier Brooke notified Lieutenant of Police Overturf, who began working up the case. He soon received some valuable information from Dillon's Falls, where two men, while fishing, had discovered the body of a three weeks old infant. The officer filed an affidavit before Prosecuting Attorney John M. Swartz, and armed with a warrant for the arrest of Mrs. Maloney, went on the noon train yesterday to Zanesville after the woman.

The officer claims to have the evidence of the crime so completely sifted that a clear case can be made against the woman for committing one of the most horrible of crimes.

LATER.—Lieutenant Overturf returned at 9 p. m. with Mrs. Elizabeth Hoanellee, charged with infanticide, from Norwich. The evidence seems conclusive that the second infant was killed and the first strangled at birth. The baby born at Jacksontown was smothered at the B. & O. depot in this city and the body thrown in the Muskingum river at Dillon's Falls. She was interviewed and denied the crime and broke down and cried when locked up. Her preliminary hearing will probably occur Monday.

AFTER FLEISCHMAN.

The Eastern Bakers to Boycott his Yeast.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—The Bakers' Union of the States of New York, Pennsylvaia, New Jersey, Massachusetts and Connecticut, held a special convention here Sunday for the purpose of considering the boycotting of Fleischmans Yeast. Twenty-five unions were represented and Frederick Packer of Philadelphia, presided. An agreement was reached that none of the members of the unions represented should use the yeast until the firm has settled with the New York bakers. An organization was also perfected for the purpose of thoroughly organizing the unions in the different states.

Determined Strikers.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—The railway strikers in Wales are as determined as ever. They have handed in the company's uniforms and received the wages due them. So far there are no signs of yielding, and but few of the men have gone back to work. Expressions of sympathy have been received from all parts of the kingdom; the Sailors' Union has resolved to prevent Cardiff ship owners from getting men at British ports, and notices have been sent everywhere giving warning that the strike is still on, and that people in search of work should go elsewhere.

A Priestly Rascal.

COLUMBUS, IND., Aug. 11.—Rev. James Campbell, the Methodist preacher placed under $1,000 bond Thursday for seducing and producing an abortion on Emma Huntsman, a sixteen-year-old girl member of his flock, was surrendered by his bondsmen and lodged in jail. He spent Sunday behind the bars with the murderer Pettilliott and other jail birds, instead of facing his congregation in the pulpit.

Child's Horrible Death.

FONTANET, IND., Aug. 11.—Eddie McKenna, a six-year-old boy, who was seated under some flat cars watching a game of foot-ball at 5 o'clock in the evening, was instantly killed by a switch engine pulling the flats out of the yard, his neck being broken and his body terribly bruised.

THE WORLD'S FAIR.

The great excitement caused by this great event is scarcely equaled by that produced by the great discovery of Dr. Miles' The Restorative Nervine. It speedily cures nervous prostration, change of life, pain, dullness and confusion in head, fits, sleeplessness, the blues, and neuralgia, palpitation, monthly pains, etc. C. W. Stow & Co., of Syracuse, N. Y.; Talbott and Moss, of Greensburg, Ind., and A. W. Blackburn, of Wooster, O., says that "The Nervine sells better than anything we ever sold and gives universal satisfaction." Dr. Miles' new illustrated treatise on the Nerves and Heart and a trial bottle free at Baker and Hall's drug store.

Fortunate Father and Son.

"I am as certain as I now live," says C. E. Bartholomew, of Kalkaska Mich "that Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, of Rondout, N. Y., saved my life when I was a victim of that terrible renal disorder—Brights Disease. My son had a fever sore on his leg. He, too, used Favorite Remedy, and is now well. But for this medicine I am sure both father and son would have been six feet under the sod.

General Debility.

"Seeing is Believing."

And the best lamp ever made, like Aladdin's of old, a "wonderful lamp!" A lamp absolutely non-explosive and unbreakable, which gives a clear, soft, brilliant white light of 85 candle power! Purer and brighter than gas light, softer than electric light, more cheerful than either! That lamp is

"The Rochester."

And with it there is no smoke, no smell, no broken chimneys, no flickering, no sweating, no climbing up of the flame, no "tantrums" nor annoyance of any kind, and it never needs trimming. Its founts (oil reservoirs) being tough rolled seamless brass, with central draft, it is absolutely unbreakable, and as safe as a tallow candle.

Only five years old, and over two million of these lamps in use. It must be a GOOD lamp to make such a telling success. Indeed it is, for lamps may come and lamps may go, but the "Rochester" shines on forever! We make over 2,000 artistic varieties,—Hanging and Table Lamps, Banquet, Study, Vase and Piano Lamps,—every kind, in Bronze, Porcelain, Brass, Nickel and Black Wrought Iron.

Ask the lamp dealer for it. Look for the trade-mark stamp: "THE ROCHESTER." If he hasn't the genuine Rochester and the style you want, or if no lamp-store is near, send to us for free illustrated catalogue (and reduced price-list), and we will box and send you any lamp safely by express, right to your door.

DODD'S CATARRH CURE. LOCAL AND INTERNAL TREATMENT.

In order to cure catarrh it is necessarry to allay the inflammation of the irritated membranes with a soothing application, cleanse the head of the plugging mucous secretions, and heal the discharging ulcers. For cold in the head and nasal catarrh Dodds' local treatment does this without the aid of snuff, douches or fumes. If the disease has extended downwards affecting the bronchial tubes or lungs, digestion and blood, the internal treatment both removes from the system the scattered poison, and by its building-up properties assists nature in restoring the impaired parts. Send for our book treating on catarrh. FOSTER, MILBURN & CO., proprietors, Buffalo, N. Y. Sold in Tecumseh, Mich. by C. A. Wright & Co., druggists.

The Man Without a Stomach

May exist as a museum freak, but most of us recognize the stomach as necessary to life and comfort. Most of us experience a little trouble from this source occasionally, wrong action of the stomach causing dyspepsia, etc., and often the trouble extends, involving the liver and bowels whence we find biliousness and constipation. We find also that the bowels and kidneys (nature's sewage system) become clogged with effete matter, from which comes impure blood, boils, blotches, pimples, scrofula, scrofulous swellings and cancerous complaints. The Burdock Blood Bitters taken at the beginning of any disorder arrests the trouble, restores the disordered organ to activity, thereby removing every vestige of disease. B. B. B. is an absolutely pure extract of roots and herbs, which cannot injure even the most delicate constitution, and as a cure for Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Constipation, Bad Blood, etc., succeeds in 99 cases out of 100.

SINGLE TAX DEPARTMENT.

SINGLE TAX THE INSTRUMENT.

Address of William Lloyd Garrison Before the Unitarian Ministerial Union at Channing Hall, Boston, April 28, 1890.

The cause he saw was the ownership and monopoly of land. The remedy he discovered was the single tax, to the practical examination of which I shall now address myself. The question of taxation is a broad one. Granted the necessity of government, and the wherewithal to sustain it must be granted also. The methods of levying tributes in the form of taxes are innumerable, yet human ingenuity or avarice or tyranny or wisdom has never yet formulated a plan for a just and equal distribution of the burden of taxation. In every civilized community of the world the question is a burning one, and a sense of wrong underlies the popular complaint. The reason is that a tax on property diminishes wealth and decreases its production, subtracts from the earnings of labor, and, with a very few exceptions, taxes decline to stay where they are put.

One of the objections most frequently urged against single tax is that capital will thereby escape taxation. But capital laughs at the idea of being taxed. It gladly pays the tax because it can be easily shifted to the consumer. A more unequal arrangement than obtains today in the collection of revenues, direct or indirect, would be hard to devise. I sat beside a distinguished woolen manufacturer of Providence the other day while Judge Lawrence, of Ohio, in advocating the protection of the wool grower, intimated that the manufacturers of Rhode Island were amply able to pay the tariff tax on raw material. "Does the dunce suppose that I stand the tax of ten cents a pound on my Australian wool?" whispered my neighbor. "I add it to the price of my cloth with interest and profit, and sell my goods to the Chicago Jews. They make it into clothing and add the tax and profit and interest and sell their goods to Judge Lawrence's constituents—the farmers, wool growers and mechanics—who bear the entire burden. What does he take us for?" This is merely an example. As a rule a rich man sheds taxes as a duck's back does water, and they fall upon the weakest shoulders.

All wealth comes primarily from the earth by the application of labor. A denial of access to land prevents the production of wealth and diminishes the opportunity of the worker. Yet we see land owners grow rich, in utter idleness, by simply taking from the land they hold the value given to it by others. Long John Wentworth, of Chicago, understood and practiced the scheme. His advice to a young man was to buy a farm on the outskirts of a city. "Grow cabbage upon it," he said, "and the assessor will tax it lightly." By and by the city will envelop your acres and you can sell house lots by the front foot and at a great price." This is the secret of the Astors' fortune. All the time land is held for a rise in value those who would use it to advantage are denied the chance. The owner declines to sell and refuses to improve it, knowing that the growing community is increasing the value of his possession without causing him expense or effort. And the present custom of assessing land favors this kind of speculation. If two men own adjoining city lots of equal value and one improves his by a useful building, the tax on his lot is immediately raised. He is fined for adding to the wealth of the city, and his neighbor is rewarded for preventing the addition of wealth by holding his lot idle for speculation. Under the single tax the vacant lot would pay as high a tax as the improved lot, and the holder would find it to his advantage to build upon it or allow some one else to do so. It would, therefore, make building lots plenty, and multiply stores and dwellings. For then buildings would not be taxed. Personal property would not have to hide itself away in dark corners and tax payers would have no temptation to perjure themselves or move to Nahant or Lancaster. There would be no tax dodging. The land can not be hidden.

"This might answer in the city," you say; "but how about the poor farmer whose chief possession is land? You would exterminate him." This was the assertion of the chairman of the committee on taxation this year from the town of Barnstable, anxiously concerned for the fate of his farmer constituents. Look around to-day under the present vaunted system. Is the farmer's lot a desirable one? On the contrary, of all the great industries of the countries, what is there which compares in depression with agriculture? The farmer is taxed on every thing he has, for the assessor can usually enumerate his property to a sheep or a hog. For the staple product of the farm he has to accept a price based on the world's value of his surplus in London or Liverpool. It is to him, of all men, that the single tax would come as an angel of relief.

No improvements would be levied upon; only the bare land would be taxed, just as if no spade or plow had ever turned up the surface. The house and tools and machines and stock would be freed. The indirect tax on his lumber and hardware, and glass, and blankets, and carpets, and stoves, and crockery, and clothing would vanish. Unless his farm was more valuable for other purposes, like the one on the outskirts of the city, the relief would be immense. Instead of refraining from improvement and enterprise as now, for fear of higher taxes, the stimulus of hope would come to the tiller of the soil. Doubtless the single tax would diminish farms of excessive extent of which only part are cultivated, for the reason that use alone would be profitable. Unused tracts of land now held out of reach would seek cultivators. As buildings would increase in cities to the great advantage of masons and carpenters and mechanics generally, so in the country farming would be encouraged, and on account of accessibility, farms would multiply.

You tell me this is unlikely, as there is a surplus of farm products now. To this I answer, that gluts must exist as long as governments make it a punishable offense for people to exchange their grain and fruits and cattle where it shall profit them most. As long as human beings anywhere on the globe hunger and starve there is congestion and bad distribution, but no real surplus of food. By value a farmer is much less a land owner than he is a capitalist and laborer. But the owner of the small lot on the corner of Washington and Court streets, upon which Sears' building stands, is a land owner indeed. Just try and estimate the number of farms he could get in exchange for that diminutive piece of land. I know no better illustration of land values. Boundless acres weighed in the balance of one city lot, and the acres kick the beam.

The twenty-five cities of Massachusetts, while they cover less than 5 per cent. of the area, contain 77 per cent. of the land values of the State. Boston alone contains 45 per cent. of the land values of Massachusetts, and only 20-47ths of 1 per cent. of the area. Under the single tax Boston would pay at the present valuation 46 per cent. of all the taxes raised in the State. At present it pays 35 per cent. Three-quarters of an average acre along Washington street is worth as much as all the land in Southboro. The owner of the $19,500 building at the corner of Washington and Winter streets, standing on a $122,500 lot, would have his tax increased heavily and find it profitable to erect a better building, but Fred L. Ames would probably pay a less tax on the corner of Court and Washington streets than will be levied under the present system. (For these facts I am indebted to Mr. S. H. Howes, of Southboro, Mass.)

I grant that under the system we advocate speculation in land would cease, as no one would desire to possess it except to use it, nor would it profit any one to do so. It would cease to be an investment. No capital would be locked up in it, and a vast sum now imprisoned would be set free for productive purposes.

Imagine that land ownership had never existed in Boston. That all land was accessible to him who wished to use it by simply paying its yearly rental value. That no landlord, as now, stood ready to gobble up in rent the profits of labor. That each tenant were secured legally in his possession as he possibly can be now in ownership, had no fear of taxes, direct or indirect, and that no barbarous custom houses interposed an unnatural barrier to free trade. That the wage earner, allowed free access to the opportunity of land at present locked up from him, instead of begging for work as now, were free to employ himself. Would not Boston be better than Bellamy's dream of it, and that without the sacrifice of individual independence? Then there could be no excuse for idleness or poverty, except through personal fault or misfortune, and not as now enforced by cruel laws which breed evil conditions. To able bodied people seeking work or charity, we would say, "Go and employ yourselves." Human wants are illimitable. Opportunity is opened for all who will use it. The profits of labor can not then be filched from the laborer. No armies of officials will interfere with our exchanging freely what we raise or make for something else that we want. Universal interchange means increased human satisfaction and an unending demand for workers. Therefore, the more workers the more wealth.

No wonder that Mr. George, seeing what may be wrought with no miracle, simply by striking off the fetters of law and custom, gained new reverence for the Creator of the earth, and looked upon the "unearned increment" of land as the divinely appointed source of revenue from which a perfect society could support itself in peace and prosperity.

Supposing we compare the three partners which produce all wealth—Land, Capital and Labor—and see what sort of equality exists in the partnership. Labor struggles and is in chains; Capital grumbles at the small returns it gets for investments, but the landlord, who neither works nor risks, gathers in the profits and is cheerful, like

The smiling young lady of Niger
Who rode on the back of a tiger;
The return from the ride
Found the lady inside,
And the smile on the face of the tiger.

The landlord is the tiger, and he who rides with him eventually takes the inside seat and loses the power to smile. Of course, in this sense, landlord does not mean the man who owns the buildings, but the man who owns the land, which is a privilege other men must get permission from him to use and on his terms.

Perhaps no better illustration of the land owner's power can be seen than at Killarney in Ireland, that beautiful spot where lake and mountain unite to make a perfect region of natural delight. Here the tourist goes to rest his mind and give activity to his imagination, and here in the midst of earth's beauty he finds degraded poverty and hordes of beggars. Did the kind power that made the one produce also the other? If yes, then welcome atheism, for the universe is a failure and the devil is at the fore.

But before you reach this terrible verdict look further. True, if you ask the idle villagers who is responsible for their misery they will say "the Lord," but they mean the lord of the manor, like the Earl of Kenmare and Herbert of Muckross, who are the owners of the enchanting landscape and delightful waters. They own also the wretched hovels and neglected farms. Not one of these people can raise a potato or ply a trade unless he gets permission and pays a tribute in the way of rent to these two favored mortals of Killarney. What service have those landlords rendered to mankind? They produce nothing. They live luxuriously and with profligacy on money wrung from their tenants. In fact, both had been spendthrifts to the verge of bankruptcy, and when I was there last summer, were away seeking fresh means to bolster up their failing fortunes and redeem their mortgaged estates. Their tenants were discouraged because the rent took all. The more they earned and saved the more the landlord raised the rent, content only when he left a bare livelihood. No wonder despair came to them and beggary or exile was accepted.

THE TEN LEPERS.

LESSON VII, THIRD QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, AUG. 17.

Text of the Lesson, Luke xvii, 11-19. Commit Verses, 15-17—Golden Text, Luke xvii, 17—Commentary by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

11. "And it came to pass, as He went to Jerusalem." The time draws nigh for Him to be offered up, and "to Jerusalem" is His daily thought, for He Himself said, "It cannot be that a prophet perish out of Jerusalem" (chap. xiii, 33). "When the time was come that He should be received up He steadfastly set His face to go to Jerusalem;" "He went through the cities and villages, teaching and journeying toward Jerusalem;" "Behold, we go up to Jerusalem, and all things that are written by the prophets concerning the Son of Man shall be accomplished" (chap. ix, 51; xiii, 22; xviii, 31). At Jerusalem He was to finish the work which the Father had given him to do, and He was pressing on to finish that work. His grand and faithful follower, the apostle Paul, had the same spirit when he said concerning bonds and afflictions, "None of these things move me, neither count I my life dear unto myself, so that I might finish my course with joy" (Acts xx, 24). We do not know just where our work shall end, nor when it shall be finished, so that the only safe way is to be always found doing unto Him, and with our might, what our hands find to do.

12. "And as He entered into a certain village, there met Him ten men that were lepers, which stood afar off." Utterly unclean, dwelling alone, without the camp (or village, or city), how sad was the condition of these poor men (Lev. xiii., 44-46). Afar off from human help, and sympathy, and friendship; living and yet dead to all the ordinary relationships of life. Consider the leprosy of Miriam, Naaman, Gehazi, Uzziah and the four men at the gate of Samaria (Num. xii; II Kings v, 7; xv, 5). Perhaps there is no more forcible representation of sin and the sinner in the whole Bible than that of the leper and his leprosy. Let the teacher who would, with the greatest profit, present this lesson study carefully Lev. xiii and xiv and read Mackintosh's notes on the same.

13. "And they lifted up their voices, and said, Jesus, Master, have mercy on us!" They made no profession; they made no promises; they knew they had nothing but leprosy, and as poor, unclean, cast out lepers they could only beg for mercy, and this they did. What a happy day it was for them when Jesus came their way. They had heard of Him; they heard of the healing of other lepers by His gracious powers. This was their opportunity, and they seize it. How wise they were. What a contrast to the man in our lesson who, like many today, believed in a larger hope—a possibility of salvation after death—and so after he died cried, "Father Abraham, have mercy on me!" How vain was his cry.

14. "Go shew yourselves unto the priests. And it came to pass that as they went, they were cleansed." Thus He spake unto them, not disregarding nor setting aside the law, for He came not to destroy but to fulfill the law, but told them to do as commanded in the law (Lev. xiii, 2; xiv, 3). They might have reasoned and argued and have said: Master, the priests cannot help us, the law cannot heal us; we do not need to find out whether we are lepers or not; we know we are; it is mercy we ask for from Thee, who alone canst heal us. But they did not argue, they obeyed and went; His word was sufficient; and as they went they were cleansed. Reasoning and arguing would have only hindered; obedience brought the blessing.

15. "And one of them, when he saw that he was healed, turned back, and with a loud voice glorified God." As obediently he went at the Lord's command, he finds himself a new man as to his body; he is clean, he is whole, he is no longer a leper; no longer shall he be cut off from home and friends; that very day he becomes a part of the world again, with its pleasures and employments, instead of being an outcast. And what is now his first thought? Gratitude to the Lord who healed him. The goodness of God has led him to repentance (Rom. ii, 4), and with a loud voice he makes it known. His heart is full, and with his voice he utters its abundance. He seems to believe that Jesus is God, and he gives God the glory. He is neither afraid nor ashamed to make it known with a loud voice that God has wrought a great work on him.

16. "And fell down on his face at His feet, giving Him thanks: and he was a Samaritan." Here is humility, gratitude, reverence and worship. Here is the proper place for every penitent sinner—"on his face, at Jesus' feet." And the proper place for every saved sinner who is teachable is "at the feet of Jesus, hearing His word" (chap. x, 39). The fact that this man was a Samaritan reminds us of the statement that "The Jews have no dealings with the Samaritans" (John iv, 9). But that, no doubt, refers to self righteous, moral, clean Jews. When a Jew found himself a leper, he saw himself no better than a Samaritan leper; they were all in the same sad case, with nothing to boast of but their leprosy, nothing to make one think himself better than another. A deep conviction of sin is one of the grandest things to take away all pride, and makes us see that in God's sight all are sinners together.

17. "And Jesus answering said, Were there not ten cleansed? but where are the nine?" Is it possible that with returning health there came also old prejudices and Jewish pride of birth, and as they saw this poor Samaritan glorifying God did they despise him as they kept on their way to their priests? it certainly looks that way.

18. "There are not found that returned to give glory to God, save this stranger." He came unto His own, and His own received Him not, but as many as received Him to them gave He the right or privilege to become the sons of God (John i, 11, 12). Out of all the multitudes upon whom He conferred healing of the body we are not told how many or how few truly received Him and gave glory to God, but when we remember that only about 120 of all those gathered in Jerusalem at the passover waited together for the baptism of the Holy Ghost (Acts i, 15) we are compelled to think that not even one in ten of the multitudes He healed ever became His true disciples. And as we read of "this stranger" alone returning to glorify God, are we not reminded of the Roman centurion of whom Jesus said, "Verily, I say unto you, I have not found so great faith, no, not in Israel." And of the woman of Tyre and Sidon to whom He said, "O woman, great is thy faith" (Matt. viii, 10; xv, 28).

19. "And He said unto him, Arise, go thy way; thy faith hath made thee whole." Or, as in the margin of the R. V., "Thy faith hath saved thee." Happy man! He has now not only a clean body, but a clean, blood washed soul. Oh! how much the others missed by their ingratitude.

Their Business Booming.

Probably no one thing has caused such a general revival of trade at C. A. Wright & Co's Drug Store as their giving away to their customers of so many free trial bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. Their trade is simply enormous in this very valuable article from the fact that it always cures and never disappoints. Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Croup, and all throat and lung diseases quickly cured. You can test it before buying by getting a trial bottle free, large size $1. Every bottle warranted.

Hints That are Better Than Gold.

If you have bad breath, sluggish bowels, pain in the small of your back, nervousness, or giddiness, your vital organs are sadly out of condition. A mere "dose of physic" will not help you. Your only course is to take Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy of Rondout, N. Y., and cleans your system of the impurities. It regulates the Liver and Kidneys.

Ladies Have Tried It.

A number of my lady customers have tried "Mother's Friend," and would not be without it for many times its cost. They recommend it to all who are to become mothers. R. A. Payne, Druggist, Greenville, Ala. Write Bradfield Reg. Co., Atlanta Ga. for particulars.

OHIO MINERS.

A Leading Industry of The Buckeye State.

AS TREATED IN THE MINE INSPECTOR'S ANNUAL REPORT.

The Pamphlet of Former Years has Grown to be a Book of Large Proportions Replete With Valuable Statistics.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 11.

PERHAPS no one specific class of the world's great army of laborers commands a larger share of the public attention than the coal miners. This may be because without the product of their pick and shovel the wonderful strides of modern applied science could not have been made; or it may be because of the dangerous nature of their tasks—or yet because of the mighty struggle they are making for fair treatment and ultimate justice at the hands of capital.

Whatever the reason may be news of mines and miners is always read with interest, and for that reason this paper takes occasion to give a few of the salient features from the fortcoming report of State Inspector of Mines Hazeltine. The report states by way of introduction that the general improvement in the condition of the mines of the state has been encouraging, notwithstanding the depressed condition of the coal trade. Perry county still maintains the lead among the coal producing counties of the state, although it finds active rivals in Athens, Jackson and Stark—the latter showing the greatest gain of any during the year, and having advanced from sixth to fourth place in the list. Jackson has advanced from fourth to third position, while Athens retains its position of second.

There 683 mines in operation during the year, a gain of 22 over the year preceding. The average number of weeks worked was 751. Reports from the various mines show that 20,323 coal miners found employment during the year, and the average time worked is 167 days. The total capacity of the Ohio mines is 20,438,211 tons. Coal is mined by machinery in seven counties of the state, and although the number and variety of the machines is constantly increasnig, they are not displacing the pick miner to any alarming extent. It is estimated that all the coal mined by machinery during the year is equal to the work of 1560 men for the average time the mines were employed.

The report says that one of the most serious question confronting the mine inspector is that the condition of many mines is such that to properly remedy its defects would require considerable outlay of time as well as money, and to literally enforce the mining law would necessitate the suspension of the mine's work. This would throw out of employment the miners who have only been working part of the time, and whose families need every dollar they can earn, thus compelling them to suffer for the misfortune of the operator. The department has taken a discretionary view of the matter, and has applied such temporary relief as was possible, to proceed to permanently remedy the evil as quickly as might be and without unnecessary expense and delay of an appeal to the courts.

During the year 46 new mines have been opened, 26 have remained suspended and 28 have either been worked out or abandoned.

REORGANIZED.

The Coates Thread Company in a New State.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 11.—It is now certain that the great thread manufacturing firm of J. & P. Coates has been reorganized and incorporated as the J. & P. Coates (limited) Fergushe Thread Works, of Paisley, Scotland, with a capital of $18,250,000 and four and a half per cent debenture stock amounting to $9,733,333.34, or $27,983,333.34 all told. Of this vast capital the Coates family will hold one-third, the largest amount permitted by the rules of the London Stock Exchange. In its new form the company will be managed by the same people as heretofore, and the American agency, with Auchincloss Brothers, will remain unchanged. This company has been formed for the purpose of working the cotton thread business of J. & P. Coates at Paisley, Scotland, at Pawtuckett, R. I., and elsewhere. The business was originally founded at Paisley in 1830 and in America in 1842, and was carried on as a private firm until 1884, when it was converted into a private unlimited company, the whole of the shares belonging to the Messrs. Coates. The Messrs. Coates, whose names appear as directors, have managed the business for many years, and they have agreed that at least four of their number will be on the board of directors of the new company for a period of five years from the date of its incorporation. Archibald Coates will be the chairman. The total number of hands employed by this company is over six thousand.

Happy Congressman

WASHINGTON, Aug 11.—Throughout the monotonous proceedings of the House today there was one man whose face was wreathed in a constant smile. He seemed to be in the best of humor with himself and the whole world. The happy gentleman is Congressman James O'Donnell, who represents the Third congressional district of Michigan. Mr O'Donnell has received a cablegram informing him that he has fallen heir to a fortune of $2,000,000 in Spain and that $700,000 had been placed at his immediate disposal in order that he might go to Spain and take the necessary legal steps to secure control of his heritage.

Tried to Burn His wife.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 11.—Jerome Swet, who poured kerosene upon his wife's clothing and then set it on fire, has acknowledged his guilt. He intended to burn his wife alive because she would not get him something to eat. He made up his mind to pour the kerosene over her clothing and set it on fire and then to perform the same act for his own destruction. He succeeded in burning his wife, but his courage failed when he thought of experiencing the same suffering.

DEAD BY HIS DOG'S SIDE.

A Strange Story Coming From Down in Alabama.

ANNISON, ALA., Aug. 11.—About the middle of June Robert Edwards disappeared from home and grave fears were entertained that he had either committed suicide or had been killed. Vigilant but fruitless search was made for him. He had just returned from the agricultural and mechanical college at Auburn, Ala., where he made a very poor mark on account of his peculiar devotion to a pet dog. When he came home his dog was locked up for a day or two. He became very despondent and refused all food until his dog was restored to him. As soon as this was done Edwards took his gun and disappeared. Thursday night two young men while out hunting on the mountain two miles southwest of the city, ran across a human skeleton and that of a dog. The man's left arm was clasped around the dog's neck. A bullet hole was found in the boy's and dog's head. It was Edwards and his dog which he had killed and then himself. Robert Edwards was the son of O. E. Edwards, manager of the Annison Street Railway Co., and a prominent man in financial circles. He came to Annison about two years ago from New York City. It is rumored that there was also a love affair connected with Roberts' self destruction.

NEWSPAPER MEN

FOLLOW AND ANNOY THE PRESIDENTIAL PARTY

On Its Way to Boston—They Are Put From a Tug at the President's Orders and the Party Proceeds to the Bean City

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—The presidential party arrived at the Pennsylvania railroad station in Jersey City on their way to the G. A. R. encampment in Boston Saturday afternoon. The party arrived in private car No. 60, which was attached to the regular Washington express. Senator Evarts accompanied them, but left the party at Jersey City and came to New York. The president and party were met by Lieutenant Hughes, of the Baltimore, who had been detailed by Admiral Gherardi to receive the distinguished guests. The lieutenant escorted the party to the government tug Catalpa which lay at the end the pier. The members of the party quickly stepped aboard the tug, with the exception of Secretary Halford, who was stopped and nearly pushed off into the water from the gang plank by Lieutenant Hughes, who mistook him for a reporter. The order was then given to cast off and the tug started away from the pier. At this juncture two of the reporters sprang aboard the Catalpa in the face of strict orders that none but the members of the presidential party were allowed on board. This act greatly incensed Lieutenat Hughes, who ordered that the newspaper men be put in irons. In the meantime they had made their way to the wheel house where the president was. They were received very courteously by the President and invited to take some cigars. He subsequently ordered that they be put ashore, which was done. The tug then steamed out to the Baltimore, which lay at mid-stream. When the President and party stepped aboard the cruiser Admiral Gherhardi and his staff were at the gangway to receive them. The Presidents' flag was unfurled at the main truck and the guns forward belched forth the National salute. The cruiser then got under way and steamed up the east river on her way to Boston.

GROWING SERIOUS.

Strike on the New York Central Becoming Alarming.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Aug. 11.—The first train started here last night was a freight that came over the Auburn road, taking from here Syracuse passenger track No. 9, which is the track for east-bound passenger trains. Another freight train followed in about an hour on the same track.

Passenger train No. 28, which is due here at 10:25 p. m. from the east, arrived at midnight with three passengers. It was held at the station. Another passenger train that was said to have been made up at Albany reached here about half an hour afterwards. It was blocked by the first. It carried four passengers. These two trains were permitted to make the run to Syracuse at 2 o'clock this morning.

Passenger track No. 1 for east-bound trains remained blocked through the night with the two freight trains. At about 8:30 o'clock this morning a train consisting of four mail cars, a baggage car and three ordinary passenger cars, well filled, and six drawing room cars, also well filled, drew in from Syracuse on track No. 2, which is intended only for west-bound trains.

It was permitted to enter the yard, and at the station it crossed to No. 1 and went on its way. In a few minutes another passenger train also on track No. 2 came from the west and stopped at the bridge before reaching the yard. It had thirteen passenger cars, crowded with passengers. With the aid of the military it went on its way, as did also a third train from Syracuse on the same track, consisting of six passenger cars all well filled. A fourth train on the same track also from the west consisted of six vestibuled coaches, which were about half filled with passengers. It was held here. These trains came in at intervals of a few minutes. The first freight train that came here from the Auburn road over track No. 1, was moved under the escort of the military eastward into the freight yard after the mail and the two passenger trains had gone east in the morning, and it was side tracked at 5 o'clock.

It was regarding the moving of this train that a struggle took place between soldiers and strikers. The other freight train still remains on track No. 1, though at some distance west of its position last night, blocking the eastbound track as the train of the vestibule cars blocks the westbound track.

A coal train that reached here from Lyons at one o'clock was not permitted to enter the yard. It stands on one of the freight tracks west of the entrance to the yard. At the moving of the freight train under the military escort, there was a narrow escape from bloodshed in an encounter with the strikers. The movement of the train was resisted by striking railroad men and a call was made for the militia's protection. At one time a conflict seemed imminent. Deputy sheriff Kratts had his pistol at one time pointing into the face of a striker and four or five of the soldiers were surrounded by about thirty strikers who pressed them into quarters so close that that they could not use their bayonets. The trains were finally moved up into the yard under the state soldiers.

Walter and Ethel Gripton of Britton have been enjoying several days of their vacation at the home of their grandparents during the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Pocklington were called to Perrysburgh, Ohio, the latter part of last week to attend the funeral servies of her father, Israel Thornton.

Several Tecumseh friends were in attendance at the surprise given Mr. Bush on Tuesday evening, at the home of Mrs. Hall. A full account of the entertainment will be found in the columns of this issue.

Rev. Oscar Willitts, a returned missionary from China, was the guest of Rev. J. A. Lowry Monday. Mr. Willits has been a missionary in China for seven years and stationed near Mr. Lowry's brother, who is a missionary there at present.

During the rain Tuesday lightning struck one of Sidney Hathaway's barns and set it on fire. Several tons of hay and seven hogs were consumed in a short time. One-third interest in the hay and hogs belonged to Nelson Palmer, who is working the place.

The committee which was chosen to purchase an organ for the Sabbath School submitted a report of its work Sunday to the School with the following resolution: Resolved, that the School extend a vote of thanks to Mr. R. T. Bush for his many kind acts and gifts to the School, the last being a beautiful Chicago cottage organ.

A Demorest silver medal contest, under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. will be held in the audience room of the M. E. Church, Ridgeway, on Wednesday evening, Aug., 27th. The following ladies are preparing recitations which indicate that the contest will be one of the best: Fern DePuy, Mattie Rappleye, Stella Pilbeam, Minnie Barrett, Lena Swick, Mollie Rappleye, Lottie Arner, Fannie Miller. Hundreds of these contests are being held every week before crowded houses with increasing interest, proving not only instructive and educational, but both entertaining to the audience and profitable to those who take part. The literary part of the program will be interspersed with vocal solos and choruses. Instead of a collection an admission fee of 5 cents will be charged to cover expenses and for the benefit of the local union. Commence 7:30.

BRITTON BUDGET.

Gripton Bros. have been putting new and improved machinery into their sorghum mill, and enlarging the capacity of the same, and will be better prepared than ever to make a superior article of sorghum molasses this season. They will be in readiness to begin work as soon as the cane is fit to harvest. Their mill is located on the old Gripton farm one mile east of Britton.

Why it is Popular.

Because it has proven its absolute merit over and over again, because it has an unequalled record of cures, because its business is conducted in a thoroughly honest manner and because it combines economy and strength, being the only medicine of which "100 Doses One Dollar" is true—these strong points have made Hood's Sarsaparilla the most successful medicine of the pay.

LAKE RIDGE LACONICS

Mrs. J. G. Miller is on the sick list.

Ed Miller of Midland County is out on a visit.

Henry Karcher has been laid up the last week with "Job's comforters."

Abe Harrington is putting in 80 rods of 6 inch tile in an old open ditch for an outlet.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Spaulding and daughter Lena of Franklin visited at A. Easlicks Saturday and Sunday.

"Hank Stevens takes his medicine hard." The spectacle of 5 or 6 able-bodied men, well versed in business, conspiring to take advantage from a defenceless woman deprived of political power.—"Civil Service Reform."

There is a hitch in letting the building of our town hall. On opening the bids Saturday it was found that they were all too high, though below an eight hundred limit." Come down, gentlemen." The tariff cheapens material and carpenters that can't work for $1,50 a day and board themselves have got to lie idle or strike.

If people were as cautious in voting appropriations for the general government as they are in home expenses, there would be more general prosperity and fewer office seekers. A Congressman's clerk don't get only $1,000 a year. An average city post-office wont cost over $3,000.000, and the government expenses for the current year will not exceed $500,000-000 and the liquor expenses will be much over $1 000,000,000. "Gold is money, but money is not gold."

Will Stewart formerly of Lake Ridge but now of Oklahoma, arrived here the 28th, and has been doing some lively visiting the past two weeks, spending a portion of the time in fixing up things around the old home, and providing his mother with wood and other comforts for the coming winter. He started on the return trip the 15th, by the way of the Wabash route, taking the 11 p. m. train at Britton. Mr. Stewart owns 3 lots in Guthrie, a city of 10,000 inhabitants and the present Capital of the territory, also a claim of 160 acres 6 miles from the city. He is occupied most of his time in book-keeping for a Texas cattle ranch, at $60, per month and expenses when on the road, with headquarters at Henrietta. He bought 40 "Easlick's Perpetual Calendars" to take with him as an introduction in those Western wilds.

TIPTON TOPICS.

Thanks for a little rain.

Nellie Smith, who has been seriously ill with typhoid fever is slowly recovering.

A large crowd and a pleasant time at the ice cream social at Lorenzo Daniels last week.

Geo. Poucher who was seriously kicked by a colt a short time since, is on the gain, but hereafter will carry a reminder of the accident.

Dr. R. H. Satterlee who has been among us for the past year has returned to New York and Dr. M. Armstrong will succeed him. We wish them both well.

Bessie Preston attended the teacher's Institute last week.

P. of I's held an interesting meeting last Tuesday evening, and a good programme was presented.

County Officers' Association.

At a meeting of the officers of Supervisors and County Officers' Association of Lenawee Co., held at the city of Adrian July 29th, 1890, it was unanimously resolved, that owing to the fact that a great number of public meetings will be held in said county the latter part of the present summer, it will not be advisable to hold a reunion the present season, but that said association should reorganize the present season, so as to hold a reunion each succeeding year hereafter.

Therefore, Notice is hereby given that there will be a convention of said society at Beardsell's Landing, August 28th, 1890, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, for the election of officers for the ensuing year and the transaction of other business.

All supervisors, ex-supervisors and all county officers and ex-county officers are entitled to a seat in said convention

Alvinza Whelan expects to leave for Mackinac via Detroit and the lakes Thursday.

Threshing and hauling manure is the business of the day. Little else is possible at present.

The rain of Sunday laid the dust and freshened up the air so that existence is tolerable once more.

George Allen gave us an apple the other day that grew in 1889. It was as sound as when picked from the tree and of good flavor. Variety unknown.

Tipton loses Dr. Satterlee this week, but gets a new M. D. to fill his place. Dr. Satterlee has built up a good practice and won many friends during his brief stay who will regret his loss.

Mrs. Addie Taggett and children, Lena and George, are visiting at G. W. Allen's and Mrs. A. B. Wisner's this week. Mrs. Taggett, who 25 years ago paid weekly visits to our market place, speaks with unstinted praise of the growth and beauty of Tecumseh, especially admiring its lovely shade trees.

The wildest dissipation we have indulged in this season was sitting on the soft side of a pine board at Tipton waiting for the 8 o'clock train, which never was known by any possible accident to get there before midnight,—more or less. The exhilarating effect of the society of the switch light on the human system is immense; and then there is a refreshing suggestion of tramps in the dark elevator and locked station house. The climax is reached when the train rolls in with a derisive screech, and goes thundering by with its finger on its nose, leaving you to the melancholy reflections of the night.

MACON MUSIC.

Mrs. Sarah Austin, of Tecumseh visited friends here last week.

Parker Allen has raised his house and is preparing to build a cellar.

William Thomas will run the meat market the balance of the season.

The P's. of I. will hold a social at the "Dewdrop," Saturday, Aug. 23d.

Rev. Mawhester of Samaria preached at the Baptist Church last Sunday evening.

Sylvester Thomas threshed fourteen hundred bushels of grain, last Saturday, and set four times.

Andrew Murphy and wife of Clinton, visited Mrs. Murphy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Will Frost last Sunday.

M. V. Sickley returned last week from his eastern trip. He reports corn, oats, and potatoes a slim crop there.

Miss Minta Jackson visited at Charles Davis' in Franklin last week, returning to the Rev. A. W. Stalker's in Clinton, where she will assist Mrs. Stalker in her household affairs until after conference.

That cultivator that was taken out of a corn crib without permission, will be looked after by an officer if it is not returned to its place and acknowledgements made. A word to the wise is sufficent.

Rev. Chandler and wife left Friday for Coldwater, where they will visit friends a week, from there they will go to Chicago and spend a few days, then proceed to their home at Peoria, Ill., where Mr. Chandler has charge of a Congregational Church. Mr. and Mrs. Chandler have many warm friends here.

Wabash Railroad Special Rates.

For the National Encampment, G. A. R., at Boston, tickets will be sold August 8th, 9th and 10th at rate of $17.75 for the round trip, good returning up to August 20th. This return limit will be extended up to September 30th, upon application to the joint agent of terminal lines at Boston, August 12th to 19th, inclusive. The Wabash offers five routes for this excursion, viz:

1st via Mich. Central, N. Y. C. & H. R. and B. & A. Rys. via Niagara Falls. This is the route by which the Michigan Department special train will run from Detroit.

2d via Mich. Central, West Shore & Hoosac Tunnel line via Niagara Falls. Through sleeper from Adrian by this route.

3d via Grand Trunk, West Shore and Hoosac Tunnel line via Niagara Falls.

4th via Canadian Pacific and B. & M. Rys. via Montreal. Through cars from Adrian to Montreal.

5th via Grand Trunk and B. & M. Rys. via Montreal.

NORTH EAST FRANKLIN.

Nellie Smith was somewhat better Sunday.

Hay balers are at work on the Van-Doren farm.

We understand that Dr. Satterlee leaves for New York sometime this week.

Mr. Poucher is thought to be improving a little, but his condition is still critical.

Ella Munger visited last week at her aunt's, Mrs. Geo. Knapp's, in Tecumseh.

Misses Celia and Mary Brewster of Clinton, visited at Horace Bunn's, Thursday.

Quite a number of the teachers of this town are attending the Institute at Adrian this week.

Martha Miner, of Bridgewater, spent three or four days of last week with her sister, Mrs. Abe Hunt.

Euzell Wheelan and sister, Mrs. Allen Wells returned Saturday, from a visit with relatives in Jackson.

Seth Simmons and Bert Billington have gone to Adrian with Simmon's trotting stock (five head) getting ready for the fair.

Riding to Adrian Monday morning, we found it quite a relief to be free from the clouds of dust which have been such unwelcome attendants all the season. Wonder if Aquarius hasn't another shower to spare.

Phinney Hunt is visiting his uncle and cousins in Franklin. He made his trip from his home in Grand Rapids on a bicycle, taking a circuitous route through Kalamazoo and Coldwater. When he reached here the bicycle registered one hundred and ninety-three miles.

A youth of this neighborhood announced Monday that there were radishes in the garden nearly as large as his arm. Seeing an incredulous look on the faces of his hearers he proved his assertion by bringing in several bouncers, one of which measured ten and one-half inches in circumference. Understand, these were not of the winter variety, but the common long red summer radish. Tested at the dinner table they were found to be all that could be desired in quality; sweet, crisp and tender.

TECUMSEH, THURSDAY, AUG 21.

The Fraud and Force bill is evidently dead and patriots will have no tears to shed over its demise.

The U. S. Senate is proving itself to be the citadel of free speech and popular rights during the present session.

With Quay stabbing the Force bill to death, and Blaine knocking the stuffing out of the McKinley crazy-quilt tariff, these are troublous times for Speaker Reed.

Speaker Reed discovered a few days ago that he didn't own James G. Blaine. He has now made the additional discovery that he doesn't own the U. S. Senate.

Senator Quay has a good many sins to answer for, but his action in helping shelve the Election bill should stand to his everlasting credit. We believe in giving even the devil his due.

Perhaps the recent Democratic landslide in Kentucky, Alabama and Tennessee had something to do with the change of front on the Force bill by many Republican senators. Who knows?

The masterful leadership of Senator Gorman is seen in the shelving of the Fraud and Force bill in the Senate. The Democrats made no mistake when they assigned to him the task of defeating this iniquitous measure.

The tariff on tin plate is to be increased. The owners of our solitary American mine will become enormously wealthy, and every American user of tin, in whatever shape, will help pay the tribute. And this is called legislating for the people.

The St. Louis Globe Democrat is not a mugwump journal, but it comes out strongly against the McKinley tariff bill, commends Mr. Plumb's course in the Senate, and warns Republicans that the promised tariff revision meant reduction and not enhancement of taxes, and they are violating their pledges.

Everything indicates that the Hon. Preston Blair Plumb is having a good time. An athletic bull calf turned loose in a four-acre lot could not disport himself more joyously. A bay steer of independent habits couldn't kick with a more rugged heartiness. Plumb has strayed from the herd and up to date he seems glad of it.—N. Y. Sun.

The City of Birmingham, Ala., contains a large and wealthy Republican element. At the recent election in that city the Democratic ticket polled 4,500 votes and the Republican ticket 120. The business Republican element went over to the Democrats almost in a body. It was simply designed as a protest against the Fraud and Force bill infamy.

It is an old story but a very apt illustration of the "home market" theory, now going the rounds: Once upon a time two naughty boys were shut up by their mother in a room by themselves. To relieve the dreariness of their imprisonment they took to swapping jacknives, and kept it up until each of them had made a dollar and a quarter.

The Washington correspondent of the St. Louis Republic says the lobby at Washington swarms with agents of the Louisiana Lottery Company and they attack the political bosses without scruple. It is whispered that Reed has been promised the state of Louisiana for the Republican party in 1892 if he will smother anti-lottery legislation in the House. The situation grows interesting; watch out for the anti-lottery bill.

And this is how the McKinley bill helps our standing in the world's markets: M. Roche, minister of commerce in the French cabinet, has distributed copies of the McKinley bill among the chambers of commerce in French cities, accompanied by a circular pointing out the risks exporters run sending goods to America. In the meantime hurry up the subsidized ships to take charge of our "expanding trade with foreign countries."

SILVER AGAIN DISHONORED.

The report of the congressional conference committee of the silver bill is a surrender of every essential point, so far as the deptor class is concerned, to the advocates of a single gold standard. The interest that triumphed in 1868 when a law was passed that made all government obligations, orginally payable in "lawful money," finally payable in coin; the interest that triumphed 1873 when the silver dollar was abolished and the gold dollar made the unit of value; the interest that triumphed in 1878 when the silver dollar was restored to our coinage, but its restoration as a unit of value prevented—has again triumphed in the silver legislation of this congress.

Every citizen who has paid or who has helped to pay a dollar of public or private indebtedness for many years has been in fact compelled to use one dollar and twenty-five cents worth of labor or the products of labor to liquidate that dollar of debt, in consequence of the legislation in behalf of the gold standard, for which the republican party is responsible. Morally the legislation against silver is not and has not been, one whit better than highway robbery.

Speaker Reed and Vice President Morton represent the gold interest, and they packed the conference committed accordingly. This was expected. As usual, the money kings score a victory. All the republican congressmen from Michigan voted against the free coinage of silver. They voted to maintain the gold standard at all hazards. They voted in favor of the dearest money. If their constituents are satisfied, so much the worse for their constituents. There is no such thing in the universe as saving people from the consequences of their own acts.

For the last twenty-two years the people have been robbed of at least one-quarter of their earnings by the money legislation of the country. Add to this the burdens of unnecessary taxation and it is not surprising that farms have shrunk one-half in value and that debt paying is almost impossible. Republican legislation for nearly a quarter of a century has at every step, robbed the masses for the benefit of the wealthy classes. The outcome of silver legislation by the present congress is on a par with all the rest of congressional action on financial questions for period named. But—although the statement affords poor consolation—people have no reason to expect anything else so long as they send fools and knaves to congress.—Jackson Patriot.

REPUBLICAN REPENTANCE.

The following from the Atchison Champion, for many years one of the leading Republican papers of Kansas, shows that the leaven of tariff reform is working.

"For over 30 years the Champion has advocated and defended the protective-tariff theory. Recently, however, the Champion has discovered certain reasons for very materially changing its mind on this subject and at this writing it has no hesitancy in declaring that, all sentiment and partisan bias aside, while a protective tariff is a decided and almost indispensable benefit to the East, the great manufacturing and financial stronghold of our country, for the West, the great agricultural area of our land, it is a postive injury, a barrier to its progress, insurmountable hindrance to its development, and an effectual estoppel to its true material prosperity."

The Eastern manufacturers and capitalists have increased their accumulations enormously, while the farmers of the West have, during the last period, made no proportionate gain, but, on the contrary, have been reduced to a condition of vassalage, tribute-paying serfs. The Western farmer has no interest whatever in a protective tariff. His interest rather lies in the direction of free trade—of access to all markets wherever his products may be in demand. Sell where he may, and buy at the lowest figure—this, selfish as it may seem, is what most concerns the western farmer. Free trade will give the West the markets of the world and an opportunity to buy what it requires at less than half it now pays for these same articles."

GOOD ADVICE.

Senator Don Cameron, one of the best known of the republicans of the country, said in the senate on Monday that the great and universal decline in the price of farming property had been caused by the demonetizing of silver. This is true, as The State Democrat has frequently stated. But this being true, what can be said by the oppressed farmers in favor of the entire republican representation of Michigan in both houses of congress who opposed the free coinage of silver. Every one of them should be beaten at the polls that has the temerity to run for reelection.—State Democrat.

PROSPERITY OF THE NEW SOUTH.

Just now, while there is a bitter strife being waged in Congress over the passage of a Force election bill intended to be applied chiefly to the Southern States, it may not be amiss to take into account the business interests which are likely to suffer through a renewal of sectional strife—interests in which North and South are alike involved. There is little doubt that the South is at present the most hopeful field for investments—the most rapidly and richly developing part of the Union.

In point of fact, the South should be now considered, not as a separate and distinct part of the country, but as a part of the common country in which the North and West have quite as great an interest as the South itself. The rapid increase of railway mileage, the opening of Southern mines and manufactories, the conversion of Southern forests into lumber and the development of the early fruit and vegetable industries in the Southern States, largely through the medium of Northern capital backed up by the proverbial energy of Northern people, have brought the North and South into harmonious business relations during the last decade. There is more room and opportunity for the extension of these interests in the South than elsewhere, and it is certainly the height of folly to allow a few selfish and hot-headed politicians to check this growth of mutual good feeling and prosperity.

In a new work entitled, "A Manual of Investments," just published by the banking firm of John L. Williams & Son, of Richmond, Va., may be found a very complete collection of statistics showing the remarkable revival the business interests of the South have undergone during the last ten years. This prosperity, while felt in the cotton, rice, tobacco and sugar-growing regions of the South, has been most marked in the opening of mines and manufactories—industries that were both unknown and impossible under the slavery regime. Unlimited deposits of iron and coal, which were either unknown or untouched before the war, have been opened by the building of railroads that have lighter debts in proportion to mileage than the railroads of any other part of the country, North, East or West. All that is required now to make their mines, manufactories and railways the most prosperous in the country is that the people be allowed to carry on their business undisturbed by sectional issues that can bring no gain to anyone except a few selfish partisan leaders.

The railways south of the Ohio and east of the Mississippi, constituting the principal systems, aggregate over 20,000 miles, a total that is being added to by the building of new lines and branches at a very rapid rate. The pig iron production of this section reached 1,566,702 tons in 1889, having nearly doubled in four years. The coal production of these States for the past year was 22,500,000 tons, an increase of 6,000,000 tons in four years. The output of Southern lumber, an industry that has been born since the war, is simply enormous and increasing yearly. These are only a few items which show the growth and prosperity of the New South, and as they are largely the production of Northern capital and energy, and as this growth and prosperity are but in their infancy, it is very evident that the common sense business people of the North should suppress Force bills and bloody shirt politicians with an iron hand. They are enemies to North as well as South and to whites and blacks alike.—Philadelphia Times.

CODFISH AND BAYONETS.

We do not desire to add to the present cark of the venerable Frisible Hoar, but information from him is desirable.

Apparently Senator Hoar still regards the Federal Elections bill as a more important Republican measure than the Tariff bill. Just a fortnight ago he was reported as declaring in a carefully studied speech which he delivered in the Senate caucus:

"While I favor passing the Tariff bill, sooner than that this Congress should not pass the Federal Elections bill, I would prefer to see every manufacturing establishment in Massachusetts burned to ashes and the people of that State required to labor in callings in which they would not make more than fifty cents per day and be reduced to live on codfish."

Nobody doubts the willingness of this venerable philanthropist to sacrifice the manufactories and the appetites of other people to the success of the infamous bill on which he is counting for his future political fortunes; but has he received from his constituents any instructions to pledge their workshops and dinners as above?

Has he authority to represent the mill owners of Massachusetts in this manner? Are they willing to see their mills burned to ashes rather than that this Congress should not pass the Lodge-Hoar bill.

How about the Massachusetts fire insurance companies? Are they willing to pay the losses after a general conflagration rather than that the venerable Hoar should be made ridiculous?

How about the artisans and merchants of the Bay State? For the sake of Mr. Hoar's bill are they prepared to restrict themselves and their families to a codfish diet in Massachuetts, while the Senator continues to stow away terrapin?

The old gentleman is a humbug. Not he but Senator Quay represents the real sentiment of the Massachusetts Republicans concerning the Force bill.—N. Y. Sun.

Eczema Cured by S. S. S.

Mrs. S Renault, Waldo, Fla., writes the following under date of Feb. 11, 1890: "I suffered with Eczema for about two years. About this time I was advised by friends to try your Swift's Specific (S. Be Sure

If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to take any other. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a peculiar medicine, possessing, by virtue of its peculiar combination, proportion, and preparation, curative power superior to any other article. A Boston lady who knew what she wanted, and whose example is worthy imitation, tells her experience below:

To Get

"In one store where I went to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla the clerk tried to induce me buy their own instead of Hood's; he told me their's would last longer; that I might take it on ten days' trial; that if I did not like it I need not pay anything, etc. But he could not prevail on me to change. I told him I knew what Hood's Sarsaparilla was. I had taken it, was satisfied with it, and did not want any other.

Hood's

When I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla I was feeling real miserable, suffering a great deal with dyspepsia, and so weak that at times I could hardly stand. I looked, and had for some time, like a person in consumption. Hood's Sarsaparilla did me so much good that I wonder at myself sometimes, and my friends frequently speak of it." MRS. ELLA A. GOFF, 61 Terrace Street, Boston.

The Clothes Pin is the finishing touch in washing. A fine piece of linen is hung over the line; the clothes pin is jammed down to hold it; the wind blows and a constant wrenching is going on until the article is taken down. A hole appears where the clothes pin was. It is difficult to see how you are going to get rid of the clothes pin; but there are things which make more holes than clothes pins; for instance, the rubbing up and down on a board—a necessity when an article is washed with common soap—will rub more holes into fine clothes on coarse, than can ever be charged to clothes pins. There is a way out of this dilemma,

Use Pearline.

You do not have to rub your clothes; soak them, boil them, rinse them, and the job is done. They will be cleaner, sweeter, whiter in half the time; colors will be brighter, flannels softer, and you have gotten rid of half the labor.

PEARLINE costs no more than common soap. Millions of women are using it. Five cents will buy enough PEARLINE to prove to you that every word we say is true, and if true, a great many times five cents would be cheap for it.

Beware of peddled imitations—Pearline is never peddled. 190 JAMES PYLE, New York.

THE WINDOW GLASS INDUSTRY AS A THRIFTY INFANT.

It Is Flourishing and Extending Itself, and Yet It Pleads for Higher Protection—James Campbell Professes to See Disaster Under Present Duties.

The annual meeting of the National Association of American Window Glass Manufacturers was recently held in New York. During this meeting the general state of the glass trade for the past season was discussed, and it was admitted that the industry is in a healthful and fairly prosperous condition.

It is not singular that this industry should be prosperous if high protection can make it prosperous. The window glass importers have been paying duties averaging 105 per cent.

The rapid extension of our window glass industry is sufficient proof of its flourishing condition. The wage committees of the window glass workers of the northern, eastern and western districts recently met in Washington, and The Philadelphia Ledger, a leading Republican journal, gave the following as a part of its report of their meeting: "At the recent meeting of the wage committees, which was presided over by President Everhart, of L. A. 300, it was reported that the window glass industry is enjoying a degree of prosperity throughout the country never before reached, and in the west alone men will be required for new furnaces and tank factories equal to 200 additional shops. New glass factories are also being erected in the south, and at present it looks as if there will not be enough blowers in the country to supply the demand. This is said to be the case in the eastern district especially, where the starting of several factories in New Jersey is uncertain, owing to the inability of the manufacturers to secure enough blowers to operate them."

The following news items from a recent number of The New York Oil, Paint and Drug Reporter are but specimens of what appear in that paper every week:

"The new window glass factory at Massillon, O., is being rapidly pushed forward to completion."

"A new tank factory for the manufacture of window glass is being erected at Hartford City, Ind."

"A new ten-pot window glass factory is being built at North Baltimore, O. It will be operated by the Enteprise company, whose works at Bellaire will be allowed to remain idle until a supply of fuel that can be depended upon is obtained."

A later number contains the following item: "The third tank furnace at the Chambers & McKee company's glass works at Jeannette has been put into operation by the application of fire and the charging of the tank. They will be ready to blow glass at the new furnace by Sept. 1, and employment will be given to 850 additional glass workers. Some of these new men may be drawn from Europe, but it is expressly stated that they will not come under contract and will have to take their chances of finding employment when they arrive."

The precaution indicated in the last sentence here is due to the recent prosecution of James Campbell, the president of the Window Glass Workers' association, for contracting with Belgian glass blowers to come to these same works at Jeannette, and who escaped conviction, it is believed, solely because of the laxness with which the government prosecuted the case, Campbell being a protectionist orator of some influence among the glass workers.

Campbell was before the McKinley committee last January to ask that congress restore the duties to what they were in 1883, when there was a very slight reduction. He also asked for "an additional bracket;" in other words for a special duty on the larger sizes now being manufactured. McKinley gave the increased duties, but not the "additional bracket." According to the estimate of McKinley's own expert the equivalent ad valorem rate on the larger sizes would be in his bill 138 per cent.

When, however, the senate finance committee took up the bill it unceremoniously cut out McKinley's additional duty, leaving the duties as they are at present, which means an equivalent ad valorem of 132.29 per cent. on the larger sizes.

But Campbell is not a faint hearted man, and he has been tackling the senate committee in defense of McKinley's schedules and painting pictures of blue ruin if the additional duty were not granted. The report says: "Mr. James Campbell, chairman of the glass workers' committee, argued for the maintenance of the schedule of duties on window glass fixed by the McKinley bill. He showed by statistics and the present condition of wages and trade that the reduction made by the senate committee on this line of manufacture would be disastrous. The committee accorded a courteous hearing, but there is no intimation as to whether Mr. Campbell's arguments will prove successful."

This same man Campbell had paraded before the McKinley committee an array of wage rates of glass makers in Pittsburg. These rates were very high, owing to the cast iron rules of Campbell's association, whereby the number of apprentices is rigidly kept very low for the express purpose of increasing wages artificially. In this way he had a very satisfactory exhibition of wages to make before McKinley.

But how is it that Campbell now finds that the continuance of the present duty on glass will prove "disastrous?" His cast iron association has succeeded in shutting off competition from such American labor as it does not choose to admit to the trade and in this way wages has been kept at a high figure under the operation of the existing high tariff. How can disaster result by simply continuing the present duty?

But is not James Campbell simply a cheap tariff demagogue?

CARNEGIE AND STEEL RAILS.

How the Tariff Is Enriching Our Scotch Nabob.

Andrew Carnegie is preparing for another coaching trip in Scotland, and one of the prominent papers of his party has been pointing to an unpleasant fact in Mr. Carnegie's recent business experience. It is The Chicago Tribune, which has grown so restive and unmanageable under what it terms "McKinleyism." It says: "Andrew Carnegie, one of the king bees of the Republican party, who is a strong believer in protection, because he is one of the favored few who derive benefit therefrom, has locked out his employes at Beaver Falls, Pa., because they wanted increased wages."

An interesting commentary on this fact is found in a recent number of that high protectionist paper, The Philadelphia Press. In an article on the steel and iron production in the Pittsburg district during the first six months of the year it says: "The Carnegie firm made alone nearly 325,000 tons, which includes the output of their plant at Beaver Falls; but from their four plants here it was just about 300,000 tons, being a little more than 2,000 tons a day, or altogether one-third of all that was made, and outside of their steel rail output they manufactured in this year about 12,000 tons of railway car supplies and nearly 140,000 tons of structural material."

And in regard to the production of pig iron in Allegheny county, Pa., The Press says: "The production of pig iron in the first ninety days of this year was about 3,400 tons a day, making 306,000 tons. The average output from the Carnegie furnaces was 1,800 tons a day."

According to this report Carnegie's various establishments have produced 325,000 tons of steel rails in six months. The protective duty on steel rails is $17 per ton, which on 325,000 tons amounts to $5,525,000. Of course it cannot be claimed that Carnegie's steel rails were increased in price the full amount of the $17 duty, for just at this time steel rails are higher than usual in England. But what is true is that Carnegie has a $5,525,000 wall behind which he is allowed by law to keep up high prices with exemption from foreign competition. Just how much of the $17 a ton protection the steel rail makers are able to put into their pockets nobody knows or can know, but it is an interesting fact to note that David A. Wells, the greatest statistician of the United States, estimates that the additional cost to this country of steel during the ten years from 1878 to 1887 in consequence of the tariff was $140,000,000.

As stated in the above quotation from The Philadelphia Press, the daily output of Carnegie's steel mills, not including the one at Beaver Falls, was 2,000 tons a day, which means a daily protection of $34,000. If even one-tenth gets into Carnegie's pockets, the sum of $3,400 a day "is not to be sneezed at." A little sum like that dropping into one's pockets every day is not a bad thing to help even a Carnegie to give bridal presents that kings and queens cannot rival. Music halls and public libraries, too, can be built out of this pin money as it accumulates, and the fortunate possessor of these tariff made gains can get himself advertised as a public spirited citizen and a benefactor of unrivaled generosity.

Is Carnegie satisfied with his high protection? No one appeared before McKinley's committee to ask for higher duties on rails, or even to ask that present duties be retained. Possibly it was thought safest to avoid being questioned and trust to the generosity of the committee to continue existing duties.

When, however, the news came out that McKinley had cut steel rails to $13.44 per ton some of the rail men began to wince. At that time a representative of one of Carnegie's mills protested energetically against a reduction. He stated that the present duty of $17 a ton is not high enough to give him ample protection; that the tariff must be raised if he is to have complete protection; and yet that the American rail is superior to the English rail. All that in one breath! He further stated that if the tariff on steel rails were reduced to $15 a ton he might possibly be able to go on.

When the senate cut the steel rail duty still further, making it $11.20 per ton, some of the rail men began to have agonies. Meetings were held and delegations sent off to Washington to protest against further reduction. What will be the outcome of it all is not yet apparent, though Senator Plumb is reported to have been indulging in some vigorous talk, saying that the duty on rails should be reduced to six or seven dollars. Why not? Our rail makers exported 279,470 tons of rails last year, and recently a single shipment of 25,000 was made from Pittsburg to Mexico.

Proving the Discount Charge.

The Engineering and Mining Journal, a reputable trade paper of New York, recently undertook an investigation of the subject of foreign discount, and interviewed a large number of establishments, "all firms of high standing, the largest concerns of their classes," and proved conclusively that these foreign discounts are made.

The article in The Journal was prefaced with the following words:

"We recently received a letter from the head of the chief protection organ in this country asking in the most naive manner whether it is actually true that greater discounts are given to the export trade than to our home buyers, and if so the reasons why. It would seem, therefore, that among the ultra-protectionists there is a large and convenient amount of ignorance on a subject which we had supposed was so well known as to call for no special comment, and which in fact is so well known that the regular monthly publication of the fact, and of the actual export prices of our manufacturers, as given in The Engineering and Mining Journal, have never been questioned or controverted, though we have had frequent letters from some manufacturers objecting to our letting the home trade know the prices and discounts at which they sell 'for export only.'"

Epoch

The transition from long, lingering and painful sickness to robust health marks an epoch in the life of the individual. Such a remarkable event is treasured in the memory and the agency whereby the good health has been attained is greatfully blessed. Hence it is that so much is heard in praise of Electric Bitters. So many feel they owe their restoration to health, to the use of the Great Alterative and Tonic. If you are troubled with any disease of Kidneys, Liver or Stomach, of long or short standing you will surely find relief by use of Electric Bitters. Sold at 50c. and $1 per bottle at

PUBLIC SAFETY DEMANDS

That only honest and reliable medicines should be placed upon the market. It cannot, therefore, be stated too emphatically, nor repeated too often, that all who are in need of a genuine Blood-purifier should be sure and ask for

Ayer's

Sarsaparilla. Your life, or that of some one near and dear to you, may depend on the use of this well-approved remedy in preference to any other preparation of similar name. It is compounded of Honduras sarsaparilla (the variety most rich in curative properties), stillingia, mandrake, yellow dock, and the iodides. The process of manufacture is original, skilful, scrupulously clean, and such as to secure the very best medicinal qualities of each ingredient. This medicine is not boiled nor heated, and is, therefore, not a decoction; but it is a compound extract, obtained by a method exclusively our own, of the best and most powerful alteratives, tonics, and diuretics known to pharmacy. For the last forty years, Ayer's has been the standard blood-purifier of the world—no other approaching it in popular confidence or universal demand. Its formula is approved by the leading physicians and druggists. Being pure and highly concentrated, it is the most economical of any possible blood medicine. Every purchaser of Sarsaparilla should insist upon having this preparation and see that each bottle bears the well-known name of

Sarsaparilla

J. C. Ayer & Co.,
Lowell, Mass.

In every quarter of the globe Ayer's Sarsaparilla is proved to be the best remedy for all diseases of the blood. Lowell druggists unite in testifying to the superior excellence of this medicine and to its great popularity in the city of its manufacture.

Thousands Poisond.

In a recent work on Heart Disease, Dr. Franklin Miles—the noted specialist—gives many new and sterling facts. Thousands of people are slowly poisoning themselves, weakening their hearts by the use of tea, coffee, tobacco and alcohol. These are Heart Whips, causing it to beat rapidly, thus gradually wearing it out, producing shortness of breath when exercising, pains in side and shoulder, hungry and faint spells. Finally heart failure and sudden death. For weakened and irritated hearts the press everywhere highly recomend the New Heart Cure discovered by Dr. Franklin Miles, which is for sale at Baker & Hall's.

HAPPY RECOVERY

There is nothing I now enjoy that I do not owe to having used Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, of Rondout, N. Y., at a time when I was suffering all that a human being could endure. My troubles began in my kidneys, from which I never expected to recover. My physicians said I had

Bright's Disease.

Later I had a bad attack of Gravel. Six years ago last June—how well I remember that day—I saw Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy advertised in our paper. After using three bottles I was well. I have never had a return of the disease, and though I am over 60 years of age I am vigorous and strong as I was in my prime. What physicians and the many remedies I had taken could not do Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy did. It stayed the disease and made me a well woman.—Mrs. Emiline P. Mixner, Burg Hill, O.

The figure 9 in our dates will make a long stay. No man or woman now living will ever date a document without using the figure 9. It stands in the third place in 1890, where it will remain ten years and then move up to second place in 1900 where it will rest for one hundred years.

There is another "9" which has also come to stay. It is unlike the figure 9 in our dates in the respect that it has already moved up to first place, where it will permanently remain. It is called the "No. 9" High Arm Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine. "No. 9" was endorsed for first place by the Europe at the Paris Exposition of 1889 after a severe contest with the leading machines of the world, it was awarded the only Grand Prize given to family sewing machines, all others on exhibit having received lower awards of gold medals, etc. The French Government also recognized its superiority by the decoration of Mr. Nathaniel Wheeler, President of the company, with the Cross of the Legion of Honor.

The "No. 9" is not an old machine improved upon, but is an entirely new machine, and the Grand Prize at Paris was awarded it as the grandest advance in sewing machine mechanism of the age. Those who buy it can rest assured, therefore, of having the very latest and best.

A RIGHT ROYAL EVENING.

A Surprise and Watch Presentation to Rufus T. Bush, Esq., at Mrs. Jonathan Hall's.

The spacious residence of Mrs. Jonathan Hall, at Ridgeway, was the scene of a large and happy gathering last Tuesday evening. The citizens of Ridgeway have long felt themselves under deep obligations to Mr. Bush for his many benefactions and deeds of kindness, both at the time of the erection of the Hall Memorial Library and since. They recently hit upon a plan of expressing in a formal way their respect and gratitude, and the plan culminated in a surprise and presentation to him of a fine gold watch, on Tuesday evening. The affair had been carefully concealed from Mr. Bush himself, but Mr. Jones' family had been let into the secret. Late in the afternoon Dr. Nelson called, and after some persuasion prevailed upon Mr. Bush to take a ride with him three or four miles into the country to visit a patient. Dr. Nelson was mysteriously detained and could not return until after dark. In the meantime the family "hustled around" to put things in readiness to receive the guests of the evening. Chinese lanterns were hung about the trees in the front lawn, and extra chairs were procured for use in the house.

Promptly at half past seven the good people of the village and round about gathered in force at the Library building and marched in a body to Mrs. Hall's home, where they found everything in readiness to receive them. The house was more than filled and the crowd overflowed into the lawn outside. At 8 o'clock Mr. Bush returned, and a more surprised mortal Ridgeway never saw. He could not imagine what the Chinese lanterns meant, and when he entered the house and found nearly all Ridgeway and a part of Macon and Tecumseh assembled there he began to mistrust that some "tribulation" was certainly in store for him.

At 8:30 o'clock the guests were called to order by Rev. Mr. Lowry to listen to a short formal programme.

Miss Loana Davidson appeared with a basket of beautiful roses, which had been arranged by herself, and which she presented to Mr. Bush in a few exceedingly tasty remarks. Mr. Bush accepted the gift and responded in a few happy words.

Misses Ella Hall and Belle Barlow sang a duet entitled "The Swallows." It was beautifully rendered, as their duets always are.

S. C. Stacy made a brief presentation address, in which he took occasion to arraign Mr. Bush as a prisoner at the bar for the many acts of liberality which he had inflicted upon the people of Ridgeway, concluding with a formal presentation of the gift. Mr. B. accepted the gift in a few very appropriate words, considering that he was taken wholly by surprise. Two or three times his voice choked with emotion, but he soon rallied and returned his hearty thanks to the donors for their unexpected kindness.

The Ridgeway lady quartette, consisting of Mrs. W. L. Jones, Mrs. R. S. Houseman, Miss Ella Hall and Miss Belle Barlow sang "Annie Laurie." This is an old song in years, but it will never grow old in harmony, and the manner in which it was sung that evening added a fresh sprig of evergreen to the laurels of the lady quartette.

Refreshments were then announced and for two full hours the guests were filling the chairs in the dining room and filling themselves at the same time. Judging from the number of suppers served, the total number in attendance must have been fully two hundred.

The remainder of the evening was devoted to social enjoyment, music and mirth. Several vocal and instrumental selections were given by Misses Hall and Barlow and Darius Smith, which added much to the entertainment of the visitors. The gift was an elegant gold watch in a plush-lined morocco case. It was purchased at the jewelry house of Wright, Kay & Co., of Detroit, and cost $135. Dr. Loree was responsible for raising the purchase money and arranging for the surprise, and to him the chief credit should be awarded for the successful outcome of the entire affair. It was midnight before the guests had all taken their departure, and it is no idle boast to say that they all departed wishing Mr. Bush and his family many more years of health and happiness. The old Jonathan Hall homestead has witnessed many notable social gatherings during the past 20 years, but we venture to say that none of them ever surpassed in unalloyed enjoyment the Bush surprise and presentation of last Tuesday evening.

CONSTITUTION AND BY-LAWS

Of the Lenawee County G. A. R. Association, Adopted at Adrian, Mich., Aug. 12, 1890.

We, the members of the Grand Army of the Republic, the Woman's Relief Corps and Sons of Veterans, residing in Lenawee county, Mich., being desirous of forming an organization having for its object the maintenance of our best interests and the best interest of our noble orders, do unite and establish a permanent association under the name of "The Lenawee County Grand Army of the Republic Association."

OFFICERS.

The officers of this association shall consist of a President, a Vice President, a Secretary, a Treasurer and a Second Vice President from each G. A. R. Post, Woman's Relief Corps and Sons of Veterans' Camp in Lenawee county. The first four named officers shall be elected by the Association at their annual meeting and neither of them shall be elected to office two terms in succession. The commanders of the several G. A. R. Posts, Presidents of the W. R. Corps and Captains of the S. of V. Camps located in Lenawee county shall be the second Vice Presidents of this Association.

Any member of these three orders, or of their immediate families, may become a member of this Association by signing our roll and paying the annual dues of 25 cents.

The duties of President and Vice President shall be the same as those required of such officers in any deliberative body.

It shall be the duty of the Secretary to make and keep a correct record of proceedings of all meetings, attest by his signature all orders upon the Treasurer for bills that have been audited, conduct all correspondence of the Association, and perform such other duties as the Association may require.

The duties of the Treasurer are to collect all dues, giving a receipt for the same, pay bills duly audited, upon presentation of orders signed by the President and Secretary, render a yearly itemized account of the finances of the Association, and at expiration of term of office turn over all money and other property of the Association to his successor in office.

The duties of each second Vice President is to try to interest all of his or her members and get them to attend, with their families, the annual meeting of the Association, and at each annual meeting said second Vice President is to make a report of deaths and removals from post, corps or camp, amount expended in charities, how Memorial day was observed, and any other useful information and suggestions that can be condensed into a speech of not more than five minutes in length.

AUDITING ACCOUNTS.

The President, Vice President, Secretary and Treasurer of the Associaciation shall constitute the auditing committee.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

The officers of the Association including the second Vice Presidents shall constitute the executive committee and have general control of the Association.

ANNUAL MEETING.

The regular annual meeting of the Association shall be held at such time and place as shall be fixed by the executive committee and this committee shall convene at any time upon calls made by President and Secretary.

No person who has not paid dues for the current year shall vote on any question.

This Constitution and these By-Laws can be changed at any regular annual meeting by a two-thirds vote of the members present and in good standing, provided notice of the intention to make such change was publicly announced and submitted in writing to the Secretary at the previous annual meeting of the Association.

The Polytechnic is the name of a new magazine to be published in Chicago, the initial number of which will be issued next month. Like the London Magazine of that name it will be the organ of a Polytechnic Institute, which in this case has been lately started in Chicago, and will be modeled after the famous London institute of similar name, an interesting account of which was given in the "Century" for June. The first number will be largely descriptive of the work of the Institute, especially its Trade Schools, a peculiar feature of which is that students may earn their expenses while in attendance, and can learn almost any trade. As this promises to solve the vexed apprenticeship question, all Master Associations are warm supporters of the movement. An article on the new Evening Medical College of Chicago is also included in this number. The ladies will be interested in the description of the Cooking, Millinery and Dressmaking schools of the Chicago Polytechnic Institute. Published at the S. E. Corner Madison Street and Fifth Ave., Chicago, Ill. Sample copy, 10 cents.

A HEART-RENDING ACCIDENT.

The last issue of the HERALD contained a brief mention of the accident which occurred the preceding day, whereby Mrs. Frank Coder, of Norvell, was seriously injured, and her little daughter Ida was instantly ushered out of the world, by a moving train of cars. Fuller particulars of the sad and shocking affair, as gathered since that time, are given below.

Mrs. Coder was driving home from her father's, S. J. Walker's, who lives about four miles southwest of Norvell, having her little girl with her, and when at Fay's crossing, on the Ypsilanti and Hillsdale road, the eastern bound train came along. She did not hear the train until it was almost upon her. She then tried to stop the horse but could not, and afterwards whipped the horse to cross the track before the engine reached her, but it was too late. The carriage was struck fairly, hurled into the air and broken to slivers. Neighbors seeing the horse running hastened to the crossing, where a terrible sight met their eyes. Mrs. Coder had been hurled against the fence and lay motionless and helpless; a short distance from her lay the lifeless form of little Ida, and still clasped in her arms lay her favorite doll. The train was stopped and backed to the fatal spot, mother and child placed aboard and the train proceeded to Manchester. Upon arrival at the depot the company's physician, Dr. Conklin, was summoned and Mr. Coder, who is station agent at Norvell, telegraphed. The doctor found her injuries to consist of a broken collar bone and bruises about the face and body. She was conveyed to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Kay, where all that tender hands and soothing words could accomplish was done for her. Early in the evening Mr. Coder, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walker, Dr. Hyndman and others from Norvell arrived and did what they could to ease her pain.

The crossing at Fay's is a very dangerous one, there being high banks and brush to obstruct the sight of the track. It seems that no blame can be attached to any one. It was one of those mysterious, incomprehensible calamities which befall us at times, so fearfully and suddenly, that we can only resign ourselves to Providence and weep and wonder why it should have been.

Last Friday afternoon at four o clock the friends of the family gathered from far and near to witness the farewell rites over little Ida's remains. The white casket was placed where the stricken mother could look upon it through the open bedroom door. Flowers, beautiful flowers, covered the little body, and the casket and the table on which they rested. Rev. Hill spoke a few touching words of consolation to the mourners. Rev. Phelps, their former pastor, invoked the great Giver of all good to look down with pity and compassion upon the afflicted ones. Four girls, members of the Baptist Sunday School, sang two little Sabbath School pieces, which Ida herself had recently learned to sing. The casket was then closed and the hearse conveyed its precious burden to the cemetery. Here loving children's hands, Ida's playmates, had bestrewed the grave and outer coffin with evergreens and flowers and the bearers trod upon a flowery pathway as they tenderly dropped the treasure to its final resting place.

It is hard to find words to convey to the stricken father and mother the consolation which they need in this awful visitation. The jewel of their home is gone; the light of that household is blotted out. No earthly balm can heal the anguish of their hearts. They can obtain comfort alone from Him who doeth all things well. Ida's immortal spirit still liveth and hath gone to meet her Saviour in the Heavenly mansions. Let them know that

"'Tis not a life;
'Tis but a piece of childhood thrown away."

The breath of a chronic catarrh patient is often so offensive that he becomes an object of disgust. After a time ulceration sets in, the spongy bones are attacked and frequently entirely destroyed. A constant course of discomfort is the dripping of the purulent secretions into the throat, sometimes producing inveterate bronchitis, which in its turn has been the exciting cause of pulmonary disease. The brilliant results which have attended its use for years past properly designate Ely's Cream Balm as by far the best and only cure.

"Just as Good,"

Say some dealers who try to sell a substitute preparation when a customer calls for Hood's Sarsaparilla. Do not allow any such false statements as this induce you to buy what you do not want. Remember that the only reason for making it is that a few cents more profit will be made on the substitute. Insist upon having the best medicine—Hood's Sarsaparilla. It is Peculiar to Itself.

RACERS OF THE SKY.

THE MOST ANCIENT AND MOST PRINCELY SPORT IN THE WORLD.

How Homing Pigeons Are Trained to Race Against Each Other—A Famous Trainer Explains His Methods—A Surprising Exhibition of Intelligence and Faithfulness That Everyone Should See.

Probably the most ancient sport in the world is racing various birds, especially falcons and pigeons, in the air. Among the earliest Scriptures is the statement that Noah sent a dove out of the ark, which returned with an olive branch in its beak. This shows that the reliability of the homing pigeon, or dove, to return to its home was known and used by man in the earliest history of the world. Doves were used by kings and princes to carry messages, and also to race, ages ago. It is surmised that carrier pigeons carried to the appalled priests of the Egyptian temples the first news of the overwhelming of Pharaoh's host in the Red Sea.

Pigeon racing in modern time is

THE NATIONAL SPORT OF HOLLAND,

whence are derived the most perfect breeds, called Antwerps, or homing pigeons. Great sums of money are wagered upon their speed. At the Detroit International Fair and Exposition (Aug. 26 to Sept. 5, inclusive) there will be the largest show of these beautiful birds ever collected in America, and several fine races by champion birds at distances varying from 50 to 400 miles. How these birds are trained to race is a puzzle to the general public. They come to the start with muscles as hard as steel, plumage glossier than silk, and looking, all over, like showing that regular exercise must have been used to put them into condition. A horse can be galloped, whether he will or not, and so harden his muscles and improve his wind. But how can a bird be made to fly regularly an hour or two every day? Mr. George W. Burnham, the famous Indianapolis breeder and trainer, tells how it is done. He is now training a basket full of birds for the great Exposition race from Detroit to Indianapolis, 248 miles. At the Exposition he will exhibit 40 birds, and show and explain all his methods of breeding, traveling and training. He says:

"A homing pigeon is one of the most intelligent creatures in the whole animal kingdom. They train themselves, after they once catch on to the idea, which they do with wonderful quickness; and they are as faithful in doing their hour or hour and a half of hard exercise every day, all alone by themselves away up and off in the air, as a horse is with a rider and whip to compel him to do his daily miles on the track."

"But how do you manage it?"

"First we select for the race such birds as have proved not only fast and strong, but reliably industrious in preliminary flights. Some birds will loiter as soon as they get out of sight, or stop and alight in trees or elsewhere. Such birds are no good, and are killed off, if they cannot be broken. After the right birds are selected, they are locked in separate apartments of the loft, away from their mates, and of from an hour to an hour and a half strong flight every day. The loft is divided off by wire screens, with one general exit door, permitting only one bird to pass out or in at a time. But the doors of the apartments can be opened either all together or each separately by the attendant pulling cords or wires. The perch at the main exit door has a spring which rings an electric bell every time a bird passes in or out, and a self recorder of the number of birds passing. Regularly every morning and afternoon, at exactly the same hour and minute by the clock, a little bell rings rapidly in the loft for a few seconds. This is the call to exercise. A few minutes before the time you will see every bird in training getting restless and eager. They keep track of the time more closely than men could in their places. The instant their doors are open they are out like a shot, and as impatient as possible to get out of the main door. When the bell rings again and the exit door opens they fairly tumble over each other trying to see which shall be first to get started. As each goes out the electric bell rings and he is recorded. Each flies at once up into the air and goes to flying his hour of exercise all over the surrounding country as if his life depended upon getting somewhere. An attendant watches outside, and if any bird lingers an instant, or alights anywhere in sight, or returns before the hour is up, he is with a wad of paper or other harmless missile from a blow gun and compelled to take wing. This is rarely necessary, and a bird that shirks in this way a few times is counted out as no good.

"While the birds are out exercising their apartments are cleaned with the utmost nicety, fresh sand and gravel are strewn and the troughs and baths are filled with fresh food and water. At the end of the exercise hour a bell is rung. Then you should see the birds come! They drop down out of the sky. They come at full speed from far away off out of sight. They tumble over each other in the air to see which shall get in again first. The door opens and they enter, one by one, each being recorded with a bell ring.

"Every few days they are

TAKEN IN BASKETS OUT FOR TRIAL FLIGHTS

The first flight may be 20 miles. The next flight is 15 to 20 miles farther; the next 30 miles farther, then 50 or 60 miles farther. The time and condition and conduct of each bird at their flight is carefully noted, and his treatment corresponds with his needs. Out of the trial birds the best are selected for the final race. The best means the ones who do the whole distance quickest. This means the most industrious and reliable birds. One may go 20 or 30 miles like a shot, but let up on 100 miles, or stop for too much rest on 200 miles or over. Others may not cover 20 miles so quickly, but are safe to bet on regular industry for a long distance. Each bird has to be studied by itself. It's the particular bird's character that tells in the betting on a race, even more than power and speed.

"Character means more than industry, too. The intelligent bird that never gets lost in a fog, that flies high or low to get favorable currents of air, that avoids all the dangers of hawks and of being shot by miscreant gunners; the faithful bird that crystal water or a nice grain field or any other temptation cannot seduce to linger, and that can be depended upon every time alike; the plucky bird that never gets scared out of course; the wise and ambitious bird, that seems to know you are betting on him, and keeps an eye out for his competitors, and to get in first—all these traits count and have to be carefully studied.

"But it's the greatest sport in the world, and the pleasantest business," concluded the enthusiastic fancier. "You never heard of any one once taking hold of pigeon breeding and training who ever got tired of it. Its going to be the greatest show ever seen by the American people, and don't you forget it."

The program is unusually attractive, with famous speakers, excellent glee club, etc. Farmers, turn out and help swell the crowd. This picnic has for years been the chief event of the summer season in Southern Michigan, and the management has taken great pains to have the people well entertained at the coming meeting.

THE TECUMSEH HERALD

TECUMSEH, MICH., AUG. 21, 1890.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

Last Sunday's rain, though small in quantity, did much good.

M. P. Brown has a fine lot of Devil's Lake views for sale.

Mrs. N. R. Brown of Morenci was visiting friends in town last week.

C. F. Coller has laid a new sidewalk the entire length of his village lot on the east side.

An elegant new sidewalk has been laid on the Chicago street side of the East Branch school lot.

Mrs. A. F. Church started for Orrville, Ohio, last Friday morning, expecting to be gone several days.

M. P. Brown and family spent last Sunday with Dr. Steinhoff's family at Cedar Point cottage, Devil's Lake.

The work of putting in the Smead heating and ventilating system at the East Branch school has been completed.

The Southwest corner stone of the Tiffany Iron Works building was laid at exactly seven o'clock last Monday morning.

Dr. Steinhoff and family and Wm. Steinhoff and family spent last week at Burridge's Cedar Point cottage at Devil's Lake.

The Detroit Exposition will open on Tuesday, Aug. 26th. The indications are that the show will eclipse last year's one.

Heesen Bros. & Co. have nearly completed their foundry building. It will be ready for occupancy by the first of September.

Co. C. is making a good showing in the Evening Journal vote. It now stands tenth in the list. Save all the tickets to send in.

The Michigan crop report for August indicates that the quality of the new wheat crop is fully up to the average and the yield is also good.

Jas. Glasgow has taken a position as baggage and freight agent at the Mackinaw. We believe he will prove the right man in the right place.

Miss Hettie McClue is spending her summer vacation at the old home in Macon. She will return to her duties at Charlotte the first of September.

We are in receipt of the graduation number of the "Howitzer," the school paper published at the Orchard Lake Academy. It is a spicy little sheet.

Mr. J. C. Hendershot has recently purchased of Fred Brown a magnificent portrait in oil of his father, made by one of the best artists of N. Y. City.

Mr. Philetus Snedecor has the prize sunflower. It is over eight feet tall and six inches in diameter at the base. It has 33 flowers and 27 buds on it.

Walter Heck has covered the skylight of his photo room with a coating of tissue paper to tone down the light. He expects to take better pictures now than ever.

The following persons attended the Democratic County Convention last Monday as delegates from Tecumseh: J. F. N. Bowen, Alfred James, Frank Davidson, John T. Boyce, C. F. Patterson, A. E. Kennedy.

The Democratic caucus held last Friday evening chose the following delegates to attend the representative convention yet to be called: D. McNair, F. W. Gamble, Chas. Benedict, Samuel Catlin, F. A. McNeil, Jas. A. Boyd.

The next issue of Harper's Weekly will contain, among other attractions, a portrait, with biographical notice, of the late Cardinal Newman; also an account of the National Encampment, at Boston, of the Grand Army of the Republic.

The Michigan Egg and Poultry Dealers' Association, at its recent meeting at Jackson, re-elected C. E. Williamson, of Tecumseh, President. Williamson is a rooster well known as the "cock of the walk," in poultry and egg commerce.—Adrian Press.

On Thursday, Aug. 28th, the C. J. & M. R. R. will run a special low rate excursion to Manitou Beach (Devil's Lake), and return, on account of the Farmers' annual picnic at that point. For time of special etc., see hand bills or call on nearest C. J. & M. asent.

T. C. M. SCHINDLER, G. P. A.

The great six days' go-as-you-please contest, which is to be held at the Detroit Rink from August 31 to September 6, promises to be one of the main features of interest for visitors at the Detroit exposition. All the leaders have entered and a great race is promised. The rink record will probably be broken. A good band will furnish music afternoons and evenings.

James Dunnigan has a splendid litter of ten full-blooded Irish setter pups. The mother, named "Duchess of Avondale," is three years old and this is her first litter. The sire is "Kosciusko," owned by Dr. Hyndman of Norvell. The puppies are now three weeks old, all marked exactly alike and all growing finely. Jim intends taking them to the Detroit Exposition. He refused $100 for the Duchess when she was only a year old.

Mrs. M. A. Freeman went to Blissfield yesterday.

The copious rain of last Tuesday was most welcome.

T. D. Strong went to Toledo yesterday on business.

Clem Bramble visited Blissfield yesterday on business.

Miss Helen Powell of Jackson is a guest of Mrs. A. W. Slayton.

Dell Hubbard's wagon took a big load to Adrian this forenoon.

Ed. Holdway has purchased a half interest in Snedicor's barber shop.

Mrs. S. W. Anderson and daughter Nellie spent last week at Sand Lake.

Ray McCauley of Detroit, is visiting his relatives, Mr. and Mrs. R. Morrison.

Miss Riva Hines of Ridgeway was visiting relatives in Tecumseh over Sunday.

The heavy rain of last night has given the farmers water enough for the present.

W. W. Marsh and Baker & Hall will put incandescent lights in their places of business.

John J. Orr will add three incandescent lights to the arc light now in use in his store.

Sixty-five members of the Adrian Commandery took part in the parade at Toledo yesterday.

Misses Belle and Bertha Wooden of Battle Creek are spending a few days with old Tecumseh friends.

John W. Griswold of Monroe county, is spending the present week with his friends in Tecumseh and vivinity.

Mr. Elmer Crego, who has been visiting R. Morrison and family, returned to Chattanooga, Tenn., Monday morning.

The ladies of the Addison W. C. T. U. will serve meals, as usual, at the coming Farmers picnic at Devils Lake, Aug. 28th.

Several Tecumseh people attended the Bush presentation at Ridgeway last Tuesday evening. We were glad to see so many present.

The Tecumseh City Band went to Toledo yesterday with the Knights Templar and they attend the big band tournament at Adrian to-day.

Uncle Charley Spafford and Grace of Manitou were in town the first of the week, having come down to attend Mrs. Geo. Spafford's funeral.

There was a reunion of the Bills family last week. All the daughters, Mrs. Col. Church, Mrs. Col. Saviers and Mrs. Brooks, were at home several days.

The store of Peckmann & Schroeder at Adrian, was robbed of about two hundred dollars worth of clothing, Tuesday night. No arrests have been made as yet.

The sixth annual encampment of the Southeastern G. A. R. Association will be held at Jackson, Michigan, Sept. 2, 3, 4 and 5. Arrangements are making for a big time.

John Allen of the Devils Lake Hotel, says: Our fellow townsman, B. F. Steinhoff and party, caught the finest string of fish taken from the lake this season, last Monday forenoon.

Mrs. E. Rowland, having secured the services of Mr. E. E. Ewing, has reopened the shop and would request that a portion of trade be given her. Mr. Ewing comes highly recommended as a first-class workman in all the lines, and all repairing and shoeing will be promptly and properly attended to. Please give us a call.

We are indebted to the American Health Association for a copy of their prize essay entitled, "Practical Sanitary and Economic Cooking, adapted to Persons of Moderate and Small Means." The book would be of great practical worth to most families in the land, if it could be so placed. The essay has already been translated into German and will soon be translated into other languages.

Geo. Spafford was called to Geneva, Ohio, last week by the news that his wife was failing. She continued to grow worse and he came home the last part of the week to get Maggie and they both went back Saturday morning. Mrs. Spafford dropped away on Sunday and the remains arrived here Monday noon. The funeral was held at the residence Tuesday afternoon at four o'clock. A more extended notice will appear next week.

What funny freaks humanity will perform under excitement. Now, up at Sand lake, Sunday, the grass in the marsh in Monaghan's cove was burning fiercely at one time, and the west side brigade turned out to fight fire. One gentleman, well known in Adrian, grabbed a bucket, filled it with water, and carried it half a mile to the scene, never dreaming there was a lake full of water right alongside of him all the way. He was mad enough to to bite a ten-penny nail in two when brought to his senses. This is all on the quiet.—Times.

The Week's Work

In the Halls of Congress Uncertain.

MUCH DEPENDS ON THE ACTION ON QUAY'S RESOLUTION.

Which That Gentleman Says Will Not Be Called Up Before Tuesday—Republican Caucus May Be Called to Consider Elections Bill—The Committee on Labor Will Probably Get a Day—Other Predictions as to the Week's Business.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—QUITE uncertain is speculation about the Senate business for the coming week—so much depends upon the action to be taken of the resolution of Senator Quay to limit the consideration of pending measures during the rest of the session. Mr. Quay has given notice that he will call this resolution up not before Tuesday. In the meantime a caucus of Republican senators may be held to determine upon concerted action in regard to the elections bill which is the matter in dispute.

The discussion of the tariff will be resumed subject to interruption by the committee on appropriations which will doubtless ask early action on the deficiency bill now on the calendar. If Mr. Quay's resolution should be adopted, the discussion of the tariff bill would still continue, but progress in disposing of the paragraphs would be much more rapid.

Some conference reports will doubtless be offered for consideration this week. The conferees on the land grant forfeiture bill will get together early in the week and try to determine upon a compromise between the House and Senate bills.

The programme of business in the House which the committee on rules had arranged for last week and which the absence of a quorum caused to be abandoned, will probably be carried out during the present week. Monday will be suspension day, and the bill extending the provisions of the act establishing experimental stations at agricultural colleges will be called up, together with other matters. The committee on labor will probably get a day for the disposition of some of the most important bills in its charge. The agricultural committee, if the committee on rules should bring forward its programme for last week, will have the rest of the week. The measures to be discussed and voted on are the bill to tax compound lard and the meat inspection bill.

JERKED TO JUDGMENT

NEBRASKA MURDERER HANGED BY AN ANGRY MOB.

The Son of the Murdered Man Adjusts the Rope to the Assassin's Neck—His Last Words Cut Short by Death.

BLAIR, NEB., Aug. 18.—Charles Pratt was lynched shortly before midnight for the murder of farmer N. R. Town. About 11 o'clock in the evening 75 men came from the country to the town, they were soon joined by two hundred others from the city and marched directly to the jail, and the sheriff, Frank Harman, was there, together with 15 deputies, all of whom were armed. They made no display of their weapons. All the lynchers were armed with guns and revolvers. The sheriff refused to deliver the keys to the jail, but was soon overpowered, the deputies offering no resistance to the invaders. The crowd then quickly made its way to the cell in which Pratt was confined, seized him, carried him to a wagon and took him about a mile from town where his hands and feet were bound. Harry Town, a 22 year old son of the murdered man put a rope around Pratt's neck. He was then asked if he had anything to say and he replied that Towne's had wronged him and he was sorry he did kill them all. While he was speaking some one gave the rope a pull and he died with [illegible]

Crushed by a Wheel.

EVANSVILLE, IND., Aug. 18.—Edward Gillgannon, a machinist, employed in the Louisville & Nashville shops, west of this city, met with an accident which resulted in his death. He was working on an immense drive-wheel when it fell over on him, crushing him in a horrible manner. His remains were shipped to Waverly, Tennessee.

OHIO NEWS.

Items of Interest Gathered From Buckeye Cities and Towns.

WILMINGTON.—Burglars stole a watch and suit of clothes from the residence of Dr. W. E. Shepherd.

CARROLLTON.—Mrs. John Chapner, a widow, aged 60, in a fit of insanity drew a razor across her throat. She will die.

FINDLAY.—William Smith, an undertaker, was bunkoed out of $90 by a man who gave his name as John J. Sullivan, and said his mother had died and wanted to buy a coffin. He had a check for $192 on a Fostoria bank which Smith took and paid him the balance over the price of the coffin. The note was a forgery.

BELLEFONTAINE.—Thomas J. Odor, a farmer, died yesterday of the extremely rare malady known as "Addison's disease." It is so rare that few physicians have ever seen a genuine case. The supra-venal capsules became clogged, and the consequence is that the spleen throws out pigment which colors the skin from yellow to brown and finally black before the patient dies.

CLEVELAND.—A divorce suit began yesterday by Addie M. Turner against Leroy Turner, involves the widow of J. A. Wales, the well known cartoonist, who died several years ago. Mrs. Turner charges that her husband has been too intimate with the gay widow—in fact, has pent his nights at her fashionable house on Case avenue. She has also intercepted letters passing between the guilty pair. Turner is a motor man grip man.

DEPRIVED OF THEIR STARS.

Logansport Policeman Receive Summary Discipline.

LOGANSPORT, IND., Aug. 18.—At 4 o'clock Sunday morning 200 Pennsylvania trackmen arrived here and in forty minutes laid a second track one fourth of a mile on Canal street in the face of the protests of property owners and in violation of a restraining order issued in 1883.

During the operation a property owner attempting to stop the work, three policeman it is alleged seized him and held him. The Mayor in the afternoon called the police board together and the officers were deprived of their stars and dismissed from the force. Superintendent Bennett, trainmaster Green and supervisor Jones were arrested in the evening and gave bond.

Fatal Mine Accident.

MASSILLON, OHIO, Aug. 18—Thomas H. Elser, Superintendent of the Mingleswood Mine at North Lawrence, was probably fatally injured in the mine. He jumped off a car to fix a brake which was out of order, and was caught between the car and a post and had his breast-bone crushed and three ribs broken.

MANCHESTER.—Burglars secured $50 in cash from R. C. McNeil & Sons place last night.

THE HEATHEN CHINEE

And How He Did Up a Telephone Company.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., Aug. 18.—A new instance of Chinese enterprise has just come to light. Herbert F. Dugan, of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company, seized and removed from houses in Chinatown fifteen sets of telephone instruments on the ground that in the use the Chinese were infringing upon the rights of the company he represented. He found that a most complete telephone system existed between the stores of Chinese merchants, lodging houses, offices of the Six Companies warehouses, steamship offices and docks, many of the instruments having been in use for several years. The Chinese had rented telephones, put up lines at their own expense and had a system in operation which answered every need of their business. The various line were connected by an exchange and central office.

CONDITION OF CROPS.

WEEKLY REPORT OF WEATHER CROP BULLETIN.

Drought and Slight Frost in South Dakota—Cotton Crop Good—The Weather Generally Favorable to Good Yield.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—The weather crop bulletin issued for the week ending Saturday says: The drought continues in South Dakota, and the weather during the week has been generally unfavorable, causing permanent injury to crops in some localities. The frost in the early part of the week did little or no damage. The weather conditions were generally favorable and resulted in improvement in the crop conditions from Kansas and Nebraska eastward to Indiana, although more rain is needed. All crops are suffering in Michigan and corn has been seriously injured by continued dry weather.

In Kentucky and Tennessee, corn and tobacco were improved, while in Arkansas the weather was too dry for corn, but cotton is doing well and is in good condition. Throughout the cotton region from South Carolina westward to Texas, the weather during the past week has been favorable for all crops, except in western Texas, where the drought continues and has caused some injury to late cotton. Cotton picking is in progress in eastern Texas and Louisiana, where some damage is reported from drought, although generally the crop is in good condition.

The weather has been favorable in the rice and sugar region, where rice harvest in progress and cane is in an unusually good condition. In some sections of Alabama cotton has been injured by rust, and in North Carolina cotton is still shedding, although the weather was favorable. More sunshine is needed in South Carolina where the crop is beginning to open. Crops were generally improved by the favorable weather of the week in the Middle Atlantic states, although some sections need more rain. All crops are growing rapidly. Potatoes and grapes promise fair in New York; early tobacco in Pennsylvania will be ready for cutting during the coming week, and New Jersey reports corn, potatoes, and all truck maturing nicely, but more rain is needed; plowing commenced, ground very hard; yield of potatoes will be large.

Gigantic Sea Monster.

HALIFAX, N. S., Aug. 18.—Captain Obed Knowlton, of the schooner Trader, at Advocate Harbor reports that while on his way from Boston he sighted what he supposed to be the wreck of a vessel. He at once bore down on it, when to his great astonishment he discovered it to be the dead carcass of a gigantic sea monster, unlike anything he had ever seen before. His vessel got within twelve feet of it and it seemed to be about eighty feet long and twenty feet broad and was covered with a shell on its back. The monster tapered off at each end and was striped like a zebra. It had the appearance of being run into by a vessel, as the shell on its back was broken in.

Engines Collide.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—Engine No. 842 in charge of engineer Smith and fireman Hester was run into by engine No. 841 near Melrose station on the Hudson river railroad. Fireman Hester was thrown to the ground and severely bruised, Smith escaped unharmed. Engine 842 was coming off the Part Marris branch of the Harlem division and engine 841 was running light from White Plains to the Grand central station at the time of the collision. The road was blocked several hours. It was denied at the grand central station that the accident was due to inexperienced switchmen.

Enjoined.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—Judge Beach of the Supreme Court on application of M. Gernsheim and Co. has issued an order to show cause why the injunction should not be issued against the Central trust company, C. P. Huntington The Southern Pacific company and others to restrain the issue of $10,000,000 of stock or the reorganized Houston and Texas Central railroad company for the reason that an assessment of $71.40 share made by Central trust company was authorized and excessive.

Fatal Surgical Operation.

DANVILLE, ILLS., Aug. 18.—Colonel W. C. Reynolds, a well known politician of this city, submitted to an operation for the removal of a portion of the jaw bone which had become diseased from an ulcerated tooth. Ether was administered by Drs. Barton, Morehouse and Clapp. Soon after the incision was made the features became blue, respiration ceased, and life was extinct. A coroner's jury was immediately impanelled which released the surgeons in charge from all blame.

Buried in Gravel.

SIDNEY, O., Aug. 18.—August Schwabrow, a farm-hand in the employ of Samuel Strahlem, was yesterday sent for a load of gravel. He did not come back and a search was instituted. He was found in a gravel pit, buried up to his neck and unconscious. The pit had caved as soon he entered it, and he had been held as in a vise four hours. One shoulder was crushed, and from internal injuries he may die.

Cut in Two by Cars.

VINCENNES, IND., Aug. 18.—Joseph Dant, a farmer, was killed by the E. and T. H. early morning express train. He had been attending the soldiers' reunion, and was caught on the way and literally cut in two and his brains scattered along the track for a considerable distance.

"Seeing is Believing."

And the best lamp ever made, like Aladdin's old, a "wonderful lamp!" A lamp absolutely non-explosive and unbreakable, which gives a clear, soft, brilliant white light of 25 candle power! Purer and brighter than gas light, softer than electric light, more cheerful than either! That lamp is

"The Rochester."

And with it there is no smoke, no smell, no broken chimneys, no flickering, no sweating, no climbing up of the flame, no "tantrums" nor annoyance of any kind, and it never needs trimming. Its founts (oil reservoirs) being tough rolled seamless brass, with central draft, it is absolutely unbreakable, and as safe as a tallow candle.

Only five years old, and over two million of these lamps in use. It must be a GOOD lamp to make such a telling success. Indeed it is, for lamps may come and lamps may go, but the "Rochester" shines on forever! We make over 2,000 artistic varieties,—Hanging and Table Lamps, Banquet, Study, Vase and Piano Lamps,—every kind, in Bronze, Porcelain, Brass, Nickel and Black Wrought Iron.

Ask the lamp dealer for it. Look for the trade-mark stamp: "THE ROCHESTER." If he hasn't the genuine Rochester and the style you want, or if no lamp-store is near, send to us for free illustrated catalogue (and reduced price-list), and we will box and send you any lamp safely by express, right to your door.

DODD'S CATARRH CURE. LOCAL AND INTERNAL TREATMENT.

In order to cure catarrh it is necessarry to allay the inflammation of the irritated membranes with a soothing application, cleanse the head of the plugging mucous secretions, and heal the discharging ulcers. For cold in the head and nasal catarrh Dodds' local treatment, does this without the aid of snuff, douches or fumes. If the disease has extended downwards affecting the bronchial tubes or lungs, digestion and blood, the internal treatment both removes from the system the scattered poison, and by its building-up properties assists nature in restoring the impaired parts. Send for our book treating on catarrh. FOSTER, MILBURN & CO., proprietors, Buffalo, N. Y. Sold in Tecumseh, Mich. by C. A. Wright & Co., druggists.

The Man Without a Stomach

May exist as a museum freak, but most of us recognize the stomach as necessary to life and comfort. Most of us experience a little trouble from this source occasionally, wrong action of the stomach causing dyspepsia, etc., and often the trouble extends, involving the liver and bowels whence we find biliousness and constipation. We find also that the bowels and kidneys (nature's sewage system) become clogged with effete matter, from which comes impure blood, boils, blotches, pimples, scrofula, scrofulous swellings and cancerous complaints. The Burdock Blood Bitters taken at the beginning, or at any later stage, arrests the trouble, restores the disordered organ to activity, thereby removing every vestige of disease. B. B. B. is an absolutely pure extract of roots and herbs, which cannot injure even the most delicate constitution; and as a cure for Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Constipation, Bad Blood, etc., succeeds in 99 cases out of 100.

Pains and Aches

19 YEARS OF PAIN

PERMANENTLY CURED BY

St. Jacobs Oil.

THE CASE.

Milroy, Mifflin County, Pa.

Editor of The World, New York, N. Y.—Dear Sir: The case of Mrs. Gemmill presents a striking example of suffering and marvelous cure. She has lived in and near Milroy for 30 years, and is 69. In 1864 she was thrown from a wagon, sustaining serious injury to her spine. From that time till 1883 she was a helpless cripple, unable to walk.

THE CURE.

During these long 19 years of suffering, she found no relief from the numerous remedies she had tried. In 1883 her daughter read the advertisement of St. Jacobs Oil, and she bought two bottles. The oil was applied, and before the second bottle was exhausted by Mrs. Gemmill she was able to walk about, and has been completely cured.

TWO GRAND DISPLAYS

THAT MUST INTEREST AND DELIGHT EVERYBODY.

A Great Convention of Man's Most Faithful Friends and Servants—Also the Wonders of the Waters—Immense Displays of Dogs and Fishes About To Be Exhibited.

Earlier than human history, either written or traditional, is the relation of master and servant between men and dogs. The earliest traces of human existence in cave drifts, and ancient mounds, and the ashes of savage villages that existed before the age when the world was covered with ice, show the bones of dogs and men commingled. It is not doubted that the dog was the first animal domesticated by man. But the dog is not, probably, an original animal. It is disputed whether nature ever produced dogs—even the wild dog—and contended that dogs are the product of unknown centuries of human breeding from wolves and jackals, gradually evolving the dog from these animals. Nature has made wolves and foxes suitable to all climates and almost all environments, though jackals adhere to warm climates. It is supposed that the mixture of these bloods under man's supervision finally produced the dog. All his cogeners are carnivorous; but domestication has made the dog omnivorous. But in the matters of scent, fleetness, courage, power, endurance and intelligence the dog is still not so far superior to his wild ancestry, the wolf, fox and jackal. His superiority is mainly in specialities promoted for human use, and this only in degree and not in kind.

In most, if not in all, respects the dog is the most intelligent of animals. So high is his intelligence that, even when still nearest a wolf ancestry, he learns to understand some human speech, and he is a keen observer of the gestures and actions of his master. No other domesticated animal serves man voluntarily, or attaches itself strongly to one person or family.

In all ages and races the relations between men and dogs have been the theme of history, tradition, poetry, and even sacred writing. Among the virtues of the dog are some of the noblest, and the animal seems to touch their acme of development. Even the wild Indian recognizes these virtues; and, in his religion—

"He seems, admitted to that equal sky
His faithful dog shall bear him company."

This universal interest in dogs is exhibited by the crowds that attend a grand dog show, like that of which constitutes an interesting part of the Detroit International Fair and Exposition, Aug. 26 to Sept. 5, inclusive. This will be the most important dog show ever held in the west. Nearly 1,000 of the finest dogs in the world will be shown, with many extraordinary entries. There will be the largest dog in the world, weighing 16½ pounds more than the smallest horse, and the smallest dog in the world, which lies at full length on a lady's hand, and is smaller than an ordinary rat. The two great bloodhounds that were used by the London police to hunt the noted Whitechapel murderer, "Jack the Ripper," are entered from London, England. A pack of enormous wolf hounds from Siberia are also entered. These grand dogs have never before been seen in America, and they are rare even in eastern Russia outside the imperial kennels of the czar. August Belmont's pack of fox terriers, that have just won the world's championship in England, will appear; also the grandest looking immense dogs in the world, of Prince Bismarck's great breed of German mastiffs, or Great Danes. Many ladies of distinction in Canada, Boston, New York, Washington, etc., have entered their costly pets for this exhibition. One dog will be shown that has in single combat. The best and most valuable dogs of all breeds will be shown. Among them will be the Gordon setter champion, Little Boy, valued at $10,000; the Irish setter champion, Elcho, Jr., valued at $10,000; also the Westminster club champion pointers, Lad and Lass of Bow, valued at $5,000 each; J. Shelley Hudson's English champion setter, Dad Wilson, valued at $5,000, and Bohemian Girl, valued at $5,000, and many other grand specimens.

KILLED TWENTY-FIVE GRAY WOLVES

In all ages fish have been objects of great and universal interest. But it is only in modern years that they have been studied and understood, and have had governments undertake their propagation and rearing. One of the greatest of these government establishments of peopling the waters is the Michigan State Board of Fish Commissioners. Under their supervision a magnificent display of all kinds of live fish that inhabit the waters of the great lakes and their tributary rivers, besides many from distant waters, will be shown at the Detroit Exposition. Enormous aquariums, with plate-glass sides, will be so arranged that visitors can see all manner of fish, each kind in its separate compartment, properly labeled, with electric lights so illuminating the crystal water that the fish seem to be swimming in liquid sunlight, bringing out all the beauties of their brilliant colors and elegant forms. There will be a canal, up which trout and salmon will leap. Animals that prey upon fish will also be shown. The fish exhibition last year was always surrounded by a dense crowd of interested people. This year it will be the finest fish exhibition ever shown, and will be one of the great features of the Exposition. Alike as a beautiful show and as a most instructive lesson in natural history, this exhibition will be one of the most rare and valuable displays ever made, and it is safe to predict that it will attract the attention of admiring thousands at all hours during the Exposition, while it will be the delight of lovers of the rod and reel, and the close study of all interested in pisciculture, which is of such vast commercial and food value throughout the immense region of the great lakes and rivers.

A Lawyer's Sensational Suicide.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 18.—A dispatch from Leesburg, Ohio, says that Samuel H. Beard, 60 years of age, an attorney residing at that place, deliberately threw himself in front of a train and was instantly killed. Grief over the death of a son and financial difficulty are supposed to have unsettled his mind.

They Owed Five Years Rent.

LONDON, Aug. 18.—The tenants of Lord Cook on the Great Blasquet islands, who owe five years rent and upwards, have been ejected from their holdings by a sheriff's posse, supported by a force of marines and the gunboat Britomart.

Count of the People

And About How Many There Are of Us.

THE DECENNIAL CENSUS ABOUT COMPLETED.

So far as it Pertains to the Counting of the Population—What the Census Will Show.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—The count of the population of the United States has been practically completed by the census office. Of the 43,000 odd enumeration districts into which the country was divided, the returns from all but about 1,200 have been received and counted. As fast as the returns are received from the districts still out they will be counted and added to the total. The result of the count as at present completed shows a population of 62,695,955, and when the entire count is finished, the population of the country will be, as Mr. Porter estimates, about 64,000,000. This will be an increase during the past decade of about thirty per cent., which is about equal to the percentage of increase of the period from 1870 to 1880. On Monday the entire force of the census office now comprising about 1,900 clerks will be merged into one bureau. The object is to concentrate the entire working force of the office in the accounts of the 50,000 enumerators, so that they can be settled rapidly and the enumerators be paid off.

During this period while the general work of the office is practically suspended, Superintendent Porter will be at Deer Park, where his family is spending the summer. He intends before his return to prepare his annual report of what has been accomplished during the year ended June 30th. He will also make a special report on "recounts" and will state that of the cities and towns, nearly fifty in number, which have asked for recounts, there have been only four or five cases where it was found that the facts would justify such action. Mr. Porter will announce as his conclusion that the vast majority of these recounts were prompted by motives of local pride and jealousy of rival cities.

Good for the Girls.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—The chiefs of the population division of the census office, celebrated the completion of the count of the population of the United States by a little dinner. Superintendent Porter in expressing his congratulations upon the rapid and accurate completion of this great work said that beginning with two or three thousand families, or ten or fifteen thousand persons per day, the operatives progressed in dexterity until last Thursday no less than forty-three counted over ten thousand families, or fifty thousand persons each, one young lady reaching the astonishing total of 16,071 families, or about 80,000 persons.

The average number counted by the women clerks was 9,590 families or 47,960 persons and by the men clerks 6,589 families or 32,950 persons. Thus it will be seen that the women average nearly one-half more than the men. It is also worth noting that of the 43 who counted more than 10,000, 38 were women and only 5 men. These facts and indeed the record of the entire six weeks show that women are better adapted for this particular work than men. Estimating the population of the civilized world at 650,000,000 we could count it in 100 days; while the bright young women and sturdy young men of our population division could run through the entire population of the earth, which, including Asiatic and savages, is estimated at 1,300,000,000 in less than 200 days.

The Anti-Lottery Bill Taken Up.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—The Senate occupied two hours on the morning session on Hawley's amendment to the river and harbor bill improvement of the Harlem river at New York and requiring railroads to rebuild their bridges 25 feet high but without draws. The argument was made against the solid bridge feature of the amendment and it was finally defeated 26 to 22. The bill as passed the House had a paragraph requiring the railroads to build drawbridges 24 feet, and this has been stricken out by the Senate committee and the bill when it goes to the conference will be subject to the action by the conference committee on this subject which is now left entirely open.

The bill to refer the claim of Nat McKey to the court of claims, which had been under consideration for several days, was passed, yeas 82, nays 65, and the anti-lottery bill was then taken up.

A Negro Pension Fraud.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA., Aug. 18.—Ten days ago a well dressed intelligent negro appeared in Limestone county and represented himself as a pension agent. He went among the ignorant negroes in the county and explained to them that congress had just passed a bill granting them a pension of $10 a month. For a fee of $5 to be paid in advance he agreed to secure their pensions for them. He collected about eight hundred dollars in fees. His victims were told to meet him at Athens, Ala., yesterday and go with him to the Government building at Huntsville where they would receive their money. His dupes were all there but the clever swindler did not appear.

Overdose of Morphine.

DETROIT, MICH., Aug. 18.—F. E. Fisher, traveling man from New York, took an overdose of morphine at Griffin hotel and was found dead. He had fifteen hundred dollars on his person. Either suicide or mistake.

Diphtheria Epidemic.

PITTSTON, PA., Aug. 18.—A serious epidemic of malignant diphtheria has broken out in Miners Mills, and over a score of children are down with the disease. Already three deaths are reported.

WINGED SWEETNESS.

ONE OF THE OLDEST AND MOST IMPORTANT INDUSTRIES.

A Craft That Is More Ancient Than History—Bees and Bee Keeping, Ancient and Modern—Lands Flowing with Milk and Honey—A Great Bee and Honey Exhibition.

When Moses promised to bring the children of Israel to a land flowing with milk and honey, that promise meant far more than it would to any modern nation. For in those days no nation on earth knew the art of making sugar. No, nor for many centuries afterward. When Rome and Greece were in the height of their power honey was the only sweetening known to civilization. Still later Richard the Lion Heart, the leader of the crusaders, never tasted sugar. Later yet, William, the Conqueror of England, and, still later, Wallace and Bruce, of Scotland, knew not sugar. For ages honey was the world's reliance for sweets. Honey was used to sweeten wine; to make lemonade with various acid juices; in all cooking; to make all confectionary and candies. Barley sugar in a rude form came first; but other sugars rapidly followed the discovery of America.

How ancient is the art of rearing tame bees is unknown. But,

AS FAR BACK AS HISTORY GOES,

even in the most ancient Egyptian records, honey is spoken of. The mention of "wild honey" in the Bible is an indication that tame honey was common; as, indeed, it must have been to supply the enormous demand. Honey is also mentioned in the other ancient Bibles of the human race, as well as in the Jewish Bible, and in such a way as to prove that bee culture must have been a common art. In Grecian history, and also in Roman, various localities, as was natural when honey was so important an article, are mentioned for the superior flavor of their honey, and also as wonderfully rich provinces, because honey was abundant there. Whether the art of bee culture was carried to so great a degree of skill and science in ancient times as it is to-day is a problem; but there is reason to suspect that the apiarists of three or four thousands of years ago were extremely skillful. Certainly to-day the Italian bees, that are deemed so superior, are the descendants of the superior bees reared by the bee keepers who with choice honey, and the very name of the choice Syrian bees of modern hives is a reminder of their immense antiquity. Probably the Syrian bees of to-day are not as highly cultivated as they were when Assyria was in her glory. Syria has long been a decaying country, going back toward barbarism from her ancient high civilization and splendidly organized industries in the days when her gardens and her honey were the pride of the Orient, and when her splendid cities and grand palaces were the wonder of the nations. And yet her long neglected bees, or long reared only by ignorant and degraded keepers, are to-day one of the two most highly valued varieties of cultivated bees in the world.

The bee is not by nature a native of many countries; yet their cultivation by man has spread bees into all countries that pretend to any degree of civilization, and escaping colonies have caused wild bees wherever they can possibly sustain the climate. In tropical countries their cultivation is said to be estopped by their speedily learning to cease storing their sweets for winter except in small quantities. Nevertheless wild bees are found in most tropical countries, though with different habits from ours. Cultivated bees have acquired, from centuries of inheritance, to climate, like the horse, the dog, and other domestic animals and fowls, so that they now flourish in climates so cold that nature would never have taken them there.

A WONDERFUL FACILITY OF ADAPTATION

How the world managed to get on so long without sugar is a thing to wonder at. Think what we should do if suddenly deprived of sugar! Yet there were mighty cooks in the ancient days, and luxurious feasts; and Roman and Grecian families of the higher classes set good tables, even judged by our modern tastes, and kept pretty comfortable homes. No doubt an ancient Roman cook, if restored to life today, could teach our most skillful housewives and caterers how to prepare all sorts of delicious viands and preserves with honey in place of sugar, that might be superior in delicacy to most of what we consider our best, of sugared cakes, pastries, preserves, jellies and confections. Most large expositions and fairs in which aparian products figure now offer premiums for cooking, preserving, jellying and candying with honey. In this the Detroit International Fair and Exposition, to be held Aug. 26 to Sept. 5, sets a notable example this year, and includes the delicious vinegar in its list.

Undoubtedly the ancients were far behind moderns, especially Americans, in their bee apparatus. Invention was not highly prized nor at all protected by governments in the old historic ages, as with us. Hence the hives of the ancients were rude, though the old, typical, pine apple shaped bee hive, that figures so largely in pictures, is a very ancient form, and figures in the most antique Syrian drawings and sculptures. But those old bee keepers had no patent hives, frames, comb foundations, extractors, or tools of any and all sorts, such as moderns use. However, they were up to all the tricks of the trade. No modern could teach them anything about diluting honey, or palming off inferior grades, or keeping over and remelting, or any other fraud that can possibly be performed without the aid of sugar. In fact, ancient history records that the Greeks knew of a way to keep honey liquid for a long period by some sort of adulteration that was difficult to detect, but reduced its sweetness materially. They also knew how to give a fresh boquet and odor to old and diluted honey. Such is

THE IMMORTALITY OF RASCALITY.

The Apiarian Department of the Detroit International Fair and Exposition will, this year, be one of the most important ever held in America. The entries are very large from the best bee keepers on the continent, who will exhibit bees, hives, combs, honey, honey cooking, confectionery and preserves, and all manner of tools, implements and conveniences for the business, with explanations of methods, and all bee products, making the most instructive and interesting exhibition ever shown in this line. Besides there will be everything else at this great fair that can attract, amuse, delight or instruct—processions, concerts, games, spectacles, fireworks, pictures, machinery, stock, balloon ascensions, and the magnificent fairy drama nightly of The Destruction of Pompeii by volcanic eruption—free daily to all who attend.

Blood Spilled!

The Pinkerton Detectives Fire in a Crowd

Upon Slight Provocation and Are Arrested.

A BYSTANDER IS SHOT IN THE LEG—THE COMPANY COMPLAINS

That the Police Are Discriminating Against Them—Exciting Scene at Albany, New York.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 18.—The greatest excitement reigns among the strikers and the public generally over a fracas between the Pinkertons and a crowd of people. A freight train was coming down the grade from West Albany about seven o'clock. The car had two Pinkerton men on it, and as they got down near the Vanwoert street crossing a small boy fired a stone, striking one of the guards. Instantly the fellow brought his rifle to his shoulder and fired. The ball missed the boy, but struck a man named John McCarthy, who was in his own yard, in the leg. Instantly the other Pinkertons, who lined the track, opened fire on the inoffensive crowd near the station. As if by magic the place suddenly swarmed with strikers, but almost as quickly a squad of blue coated police came up on a run. The crowd was kept back with difficulty. Chief of Police Willard ordered the arrest of five Pinkerton men, who were seen to shoot, and they were: Robert Taylor, Thomas O'Connor, Edward Kenny, Charles Parkhurst and Joseph Lewis. All were locked up. Telegrams were sent out to intercept the train and arrest the man who fired the shot. So excited was the crowd that the Pinkerton men, to the number of fifteen, became so scared that they applied at the station house to be locked up for protection. The Knights of Labor have just issued a bulletin calling on their members to stay away from the railroad and preserve the peace, but the excitement is still intense and trouble is feared.

LATER—A little later, Henry Douglass, another Pinkerton man, was arrested at West Albany for flourishing a revolver and attempting to intimidate a small crowd that had gathered. Had not the police arrested Douglass he would have been torn to pieces, as the crowd were thoroughly enraged. He claimed that he drew the revolver to force his way back to the yards, but despite his plea he was committed to jail. Later five Pinkerton's were arrested for encroaching on city property armed with rifles. All were locked up. The streets have been flooded with circulars containing sarcastic allusions to the Sunday services at West Albany and intimating that "Pinkerton thugs" will have charge of the meetings.

Trouble Ahead.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 18.—It begins to look as if there was going to be a row before the Central trouble is over. The leaders of the railroad labor organizations are about agreed that the action of the New York Central is the first step in a well defined plan agreed upon by railroad managers to wipe out organized labor on all the roads in the United States.

Superintendent Burrows made what seems to have been a grievous mistake here. He refused to recieve a committee of switchmen who called to present grievances. This action is widely at variance with Vice President Webb's circular, which stated that the doors of the company's offices were always open to committees from the company's employes, and precipitated a fresh trouble for the Central.

Trains Running Regularly.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—All the regular passenger trains on the New York Central ran on schedule time. The incoming trains also came in without any delay. No freight trains were sent out but the railroad officials say they will be run regularly Monday. Vice President Webb said in reply to the talked of conference with Mr. Powderly: "I will be most happy to see that gentleman, but I cannot say what the result will be."

"Will you treat with him as a labor representative on the present issue?"

"Now I cannot answer that question, the public will doubtless hear of it soon enough if I do," was Mr. Webb's reply.

Five Hundred Men Go Out.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 18.—The Central switchmen to number of 300 have gone out. Police are stationed at the yards and every effort is being made to prevent trouble by old and new men meeting.

Strike in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Aug. 18.—About 60 switchmen in the freight yards of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railroad went out on a strike last night. Their grievance is their treatment by A. B. Corey, who was appointed general yardmaster about five months ago. They have never been satisfied with Corey's appointment, and have used every possible chance to find fault with his work.

A Nickel Plate Strike.

FORT WAYNE, IND., Aug. 18.—A secret meeting of the firemen, switchmen and brakemen of the Nickel Plate railway has been called for today, at Bellevue, Ohio. As the Nickle Plate is a part of the Vanderbilt system, it is surmised that the meeting will take some action in regard to the strike on the New York Central. The men here are all in open sympathy with the strikers.

Arresting by Wholesale.

BINGHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 18.—Geo. McGuire, one of the leaders of the cigar strike here, has been arrested on the charge of conspiracy to injure the business of Barlow, Rogers & Simpson.

Three editors of the Daily Leader were arraigned yesterday on the charges of criminal libel, preferred by Recorded Downs. It is reported that warrants are out for all the leaders in the strike and for several other members of the Leader staff.

An Engineer Killed.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—James Paillon, 45 years old, a locomotive engineer, was struck by the Spuyten-Duyvild local local train at Matt Haven at two o'clock in the afternoon and instantly killed. Pallion leaves a widow who lives in Troy. He was a member of the brotherhood of locomotive engineers.

DETROIT MUSEUM OF ART.

There are probably some young people in this community who possess more or less talent for drawing, and who only need the opportunity of cultivating their talent to make an artistic and financial success, and achieve fame and fortune by their work. For the benefit of such aspiring artists the Detroit Museum of Art was founded, and it is now fully equipped for the work of thorough instruction in drawing, and painting, modeling, architecture and decorative design. The next term opens on September 15th. The rates of tuition are ganged with reference to simply paying the running expenses of the school, and are probably the lowest of any art school in the country. It is calculated that board and lodging can be procured for pupils who desire it in respectable boarding houses at low rates, so that it is anticipated that $200 will be sufficient to carry the pupil through the school year for the two principal items of tuition and board, if he is disposed to be economical.

Through the generosity of a gentleman a $1,000 scholarship will be offered for two years study in Europe. There will also be other scholarships of a term's tuition in each class. Altogether, art students in Michigan have never had better opportunities for a thorough artistic training, combined with such small expense, and such valuable prizes as are offered by the Museum of Art to sincere workers. Any further information in regard to terms, classes, etc., can be obtained by addressing the Secretary, Museum of Art, Detroit.

In the matter of the estate of Edward Rowland, deceased.

The undersigned having been appointed by the Probate Court of said County, Commissioners to receive, examine and adjust all claims and demands of all persons against the estate of said deceased, do hereby give notice that we will meet for that purpose at the store of George Heesen & Son, in the village of Tecumseh, in Lenawee County, Michigan, on the 19th day of September, A. D. 1890, and on the 3d day of February, A. D. 1891, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of each of said days.

And that six months from the fourth day of August, A. D. 1890, are allowed by said Probate Court for the creditors of said estate to present their claims to us for examination and allowance.

Dated August 14, 1890.

GEORGE HEESEN,
DELOS L. WHITENACK,
Commissioners.

ESTATE OF SUMNER F. SPOFFORD.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss.

At a session of the Probate Court for the county of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office in the city of Adrian, on Monday, the 18th day of August in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety.

Present, Richard B. Robbins, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Sumner F. Spofford deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Charles Burridge, Administrator upon the estate of said deceased, alleging that the funeral expenses and debts of said deceased and the expenses of administration thus far incurred, have been fully paid, and that he is now ready to close said estate and to render his final administration account, which he prays may be allowed and the residue of said estate assigned and distributed among the persons entitled thereto; that he may be discharged and his bond cancelled, and for such other order as to this Court shall seem proper.

It is ordered, That Monday, the 15th day of September next, at 9 o'clock in the forenoon be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

(A True Copy.)
RICHARD B. ROBBINS, Judge of Probate.

BRITTON BUDGET.

Mike Gillen has a big job of painting in Ann Arbor.

Art Lee is visiting friends at Howell, Mich., and vicinity.

Mrs. Jas. Wright has returned from her visit to the Dominion.

J. B. Coller has so far recovered as to be able to be on the street again.

Mr. and Mrs. John Britton have returned from the Straits and report a splendid time.

Our people turned out well to the band tournament at Adrian, considering the unpleasant weather.

Earl Leonardson and lady took in Blissfield last Sunday, dining with Charlie Leonardson of that place.

Elmer Osgood visited Toledo Monday. Will intended to go but changed his mind and didn't. Ask him why.

A. Brunk, the jeweler, has added a stock of jewelry and silverware and we bespeak for him a growing business.

The ladies' home missionary society held their last meeting at Mrs. Chas. DuBois' and will meet at the church next month.

Our sick list this week has the names of the following ladies: Mrs. Thos Lee, Mrs. M. J. Gillen and Miss Ellen Ousterhout.

Prof. Huston, who will have charge of our schools the coming term, has moved to the village, occupying Mr. Borden's new cottage.

Jabe Orth, who has been spending his vacation with his sister, Mrs. Dr. Hendershot, returned to his home in Dunkirk, Ohio, Saturday.

Several new houses in the north part of the village are rapidly approaching completion. The fact is, Britton never ceases to grow.

Jay Santus, the yeteran all-rounder, held down the postoffice while Mr. Britton took in the "Mackinaws" and seemed perfectly at home in the place.

Parties stand ready now to commence work on an elevator and are only waiting for the railroad companies to send engineers to locate tracks, when the work will begin at once.

W. A. Thomas, of Warsaw, Ind., now fills the night operator's chair at the Wabash depot. Sleeps days and works nights and thinks it a hard town to get acquainted in. What wonder!

To everybody intending to visit Detroit during the Exposition agent Clark has to say that he has arranged for the 5 a. m. train to stop at Britton each morning during the show and that the evening train out of Detroit leaves Detroit a little later than schedule time. Passengers can also return on No. 55, which reaches Britton about 11 p. m., thus giving a good long day in the city. The round trip and admission to Exposition is $1.90. People from Tecumseh can drive over to Britton and leave teams with Mr. Exelby at the hotel and have all day in Detroit.

FRANKLIN FACTS.

Fisk Beebe writes from Nebraska that his brother Bonk is recovering, but will always be a cripple.

Hay fever progresses apace but is not so rampant as is usual at this time of the year; this is owing to the cool weather and laying of the dust by the rains; so Mrs. Ed. Wisner thinks, and 41 years experience with the disease gives her a right to judge.

Mrs. Mellie Alexander proposed to start from Hudson last Monday for her home in Seattle, Washington; she wished to be home in time to vote at the fall elections. She writes that her mothers health continues very poor.

Alton and Howard Whelan are taking in the Detroit fair this week.

On Thursday last Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Taylor were taken by storm by a lot of their friends; the occasion proved a most enjoyable one to the guests at least. A sum of money was presented to them for the purpose of getting Mrs. Taylor a dentifone, as a slight token of the love and respect entertained by her friends for her.

The breath of a chronic catarrh patient is often so offensive that he becomes an object of disgust. After a time ulceration sets in, the spongy bones are attacked and frequently entirely destroyed. A constant sourse of discomfort is the dripping of the purulent secretions into the throat, sometimes producing inveterate bronchitis, which in its turn has been the exciting cause of pulmonary disease. The brilliant results which have attended its use for years past properly designate Ely's Cream Balm as by far the best and only cure.

A MACON BOY PROSPERING.

From a recent number of the Fort Scott Daily Tribune we clip the following. Dr. Baker is a son of J. W Baker of Macon, and has been practicing medicine at Fort Scott for about five years. His old friends throughout this section will be glad to learn of his prosperity.

Dr. H. D. Baker has returned from Chicago, where he took a final course in diseases of the eye, ear, throat and nose, under two of the most renowned specialists in this country, Drs. Hawley and Harper. Dr. Baker is to be congratulated on his fortune to get in with those gentlemen, as it is only through influential friends that students are taken into their offices and allowed the privilege of seeing their patients and witnessing their operations and treatment of the special cases that come to them. We are glad to announce that Dr. Baker has entered into a copartnership with Dr. Burson, who has been among us for one year and has built up a large and growing practice in this special line. The Doctors have purchased a large number of new instruments and appliances and intend to give their patrons the benefit of all the latest methods of treatment. Their practice will be limited exclusively to diseases of the eye, ear, throat and nose.

Some people are constantly troubled with boils—no sooner does one heal than another makes an appearance. A through course of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, the best of blood-purifiers, effectually puts an end to this annoyance. We recommend a trial

Few children can be induced to take physic without a struggle, and no wonder—most drugs are extremely nauseating. Ayer's Pills, on the contrary being sugar coated, are eagerly swallowed by the little ones, and are, therefore, the favorite family medicine.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

VILLAGE OF TECUMSEH,
Council Room, Aug. 21, 1890.

Present—Pres. Heesen and Trustees Ames, Elliott, Heck, James, Smith and the recorder. Absent, Kennedy.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

The chairman of the street committee reported that the committee had located seven new electric lights, as follows:

1 light corner Kilbuck and Oneida streets.

1 light corner Kilbuck and Van-Buren streets.

1 light corner Cummins and Pearl streets.

1 light corner Logan and Democrat staeets.

1 light corner Shawnee and Oneida streets.

1 light on Mills street near David VanTine's residence.

1 light on Chicago street, below Globe mill.

The chairman of the street committee reported that it had been found impracticable to move the target at the railroad crossing to the north side of the track, but that the objections to its present position had been obviated by trimming up the trees on Cummins street. Report accepted.

PETITIONS AND APPLICATIONS.

The petition of C. E. Williamson, A. Spayde and others, asking that an electric light be placed on the corner of Chicago and Ottawa streets was presented and on motion rejected by the following vote:

Yeas—Elliott, Heck, Field—3
Noes—Ames, James, Smith, Heesen—4

NEW BUSINESS.

On motion the street committee was instructed to sell the street lamps not needed.

J. S. Kinney requested permission to use a street lamp in the public alley back of his store, he to supply the oil and light said lamp. On motion his request was granted.

The following bills were presented and referred to the finance committee:—

Satterthwaite Bros. & Boyd, lawn seats and freight, $126 38; E. A. Hodges, street commissioner, $22 00, B. Bartholomew, street labor, $15.62; James Glasgow, street labor, $2 50

Mr. Smith, of the cemetery committee, suggested that a slate roof be put on the cemetery vault, now being repaired, and after some discussion the question was, on motion, referred to the cemetery committee.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS.

The finance committee reported favorably on the above bills as read and on motion orders were directed drawn for the several amounts.

The President stated that the City Band desired to use the room occupied by Hose Co. No. 1 for a practice room, and on motion the request was referred to the committee on public grounds and buildings.

Council then adjourned.

TECUMSEH, THURSDAY, AUG 28.

The debate on the tariff bill in the Senate will probably be brought to a close this week.

The selection of a site for the World's fair at Chicago is still hanging fire and seems to be as far from a settlement as ever.

In taking the recount of the census in St. Paul and Minneapolis, it is understood that the names on the gravestones will be omitted.

If Senator Blair's scheme to limit debate could be applied to Senator Blair himself, all opposition to the scheme would doubtless cease at once.

The full returns from the Alabama election place the Democratic majority at a round 100,000. How do the Reed revolutionists in Congress like the effect of their fraud and Force bill,—as far as they have gone?

The women of Wyoming will be voters in national elections. In case they move into another state will they be disfranchised? This feature in the Wyoming constitution is likely to raise a very important legal question in the future.

The Republican tax on tinned plate will increase the price of every can of fruit, meat and vegetables used in the country, and this increase will all go into the pockets of about a dozen men who are already millionaires a dozen times over.

The Farmers' Alliance has smashed the Bourbon Democratic ring in South Carolina. Now, if the farmers of Kansas possess the brains and backbone to smash the Bourbon Republican ring in that state, the friends of honest politics should bid the Alliance God-speed.

Reed, Hoar, Lodge and Chandler! What a name these men are making for New England in the present Congress! If the bones of some of the old fathers of free government, free legislation, free speech and free ballot do not rattle in their crumbling coffins, it will be strange indeed.—Detroit Free Press.

The Minnesota republican state convention indorsed reciprocity with South American states, favored the extension of the free list, opposed monopolies and trusts, and otherwise assumed a democratic position that is encouraging. The west is drifting away from the hide-bound republican landmarks.

The expenditures for pensions for the year ending June 30, as now officially stated, amounted to $109,357,534. In the previous year we paid $87,644,779 11, while in the year before that we paid $80,288,508 77. The cost of the German army, it may be interesting to note, is for this year estimated at $80,526,298. Besides our pensions our army costs $20,000,000.

The Tillmanites have captured the South Carolina democratic state convention and have sent the old Bourbons to the rear. Tillman is the representative of the Farmers' Alliance, and is said to be a progressive leader. It is not thought, however, that the split will jeopardise party interests in the Palmetto state, as the Tillmanites probably control five-sixths of the voters.

The laboring men of the old Bay State will be likely to remember this language used by Senator Hoar in his caucus speech favoring the Force bill:

"While I favor passing the tariff bill, sooner than that this Congress should not pass the Federal elections bill I would prefer to see every manufacturing establishment in Massachusetts burned to ashes and the people of that State required to labor in callings in which they could not make more then 50 cents a day and be required to live on codfish."

The Washington Post, a Republican paper, says: "The Senate Committee with the hope of breaking the force of public sentiment, makes haste to expunge the obnoxious provision; but public sentiment is still against the bill. A bill that is cancerous all the way through with the worst form of partisan politics cannot be cured by so slight an extraction of its virus. It requires heroic surgery, and it will be an unfortunate thing for the country if the statesmanship and patriotism of the Senate prove unequal to its execution."

SPLIT INTO FACTIONS.

The Republican party has not since the Libral movement of 1872 displayed signs of such severe fracture as have become visible within the last six months. The split in Garfield's administration between the "stalwarts," under Conkling's lead, and the President, was a difference regarding patronage, not principle. The bolt of the "mugwumps" during the Blaine campaign was due to dissatisfaction with the candidate rather than with the fundamental doctrines of the party. But the fractures visible to-day are deeper if not wider than ever before since the Greeley campaign, and the party is far less able than then to bear them. Take three of the most important measures which Congress has had to deal with this year: the currency question, the tariff bill and the Lodge bill, spoken of as the "Force" bill. On the currency question, fifteen Republican Senators left their confreres to vote with the Democrats for free and unlimited coinage of silver. It is true, a compromise measure was agreed upon, and the fifteen refractory Senators rejoined the rest of the party, with more or less distinct apologies to their constituents for doing so. But the incident revealed, nevertheless, the extent of the breach within the party on such a fundamental question as the Nation's currency. On the tariff question the breach is equally marked and appears to be more difficult of temporary adjustment. It is the issue which the Republicans made the leading one in the last two Presidential campaigns. Major McKinley, who wrote the deliverance on that subject in the last National platform, is chairman of the committee that framed the present tariff bill. Yet on that bill, which is the first attempt of the Republicans to put into specific form the doctrine on which they made the last two Presidential campaigns, we find a break which applies to the very foundations on which the bill rests. Mr. Blaine leads the revolt, and it is said that President Harrison agrees with him, while Republican journals like the New Haven Palladium, the Chicago Tribune, the St. Louis Globe-Democrat and the St. Paul Pioneer Press take the opportunity to denounce both the policy and the purpose of the bill. And now on top of these two catastrophes comes the split in the Senate on the Lodge bill. Here is involved another issue of fundamental importance to the Republican party. When tariff has not furnished sufficient campaign capital for that party, the negro has been made an issue. Yet in the Lodge bill now and in the Blair Educational bill some time since, the Republican party disclosed that in regard to the black man, as in regard to the tariff and the currency, the Republican party no longer has a policy that commands anything like substantial unity. Mr. Quay, the major domo of the party, has introduced a rule which will virtually deprive the Lodge bill of all consideration this session, and this is the pet bill of Mr. Reed, Republican Speaker of the House. The Republican press are hopelessly divided, the Tribune of New York, for instance, sternly asking Mr. Quay what he means, and the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette encouraging him in the course. The question occurs to one irresistibly: If the Republican party cannot legislate on the tariff question, the currency question, or negro question, without being torn into pieces, what is the party for and what is its future to be?—The Voice.

UNION OF SOUTH AND WEST.

The failure of the agricultual States to act together in their common interest has been the greatest obstacle in the way of the country's progress, and the National Farmers' Alliance has already done much good in what it has done to produce a better understanding. States like Kentucky, Tennessee and Arkansas are the natural allies of Illinois, Iowa and Kansas, and under natural conditions their votes would be cast together in the electoral college and in Congress. The divisions between them are entirely artificial and not destined to be permanent. The two great issues now before the country are the reduction of the tariff and the free coinage of silver. On these issues the agricultural states of the West are in substantial harmony with the agricultural states of the South. This is not shown by votes in Congress, but by the expressions of the press and by resolutions adopted in public meetings. United politically, as they are in sympathy, on either or both of these measures, the agricultual states would have an overwhelming predominance. The Plutocratic States which now dominate them would be powerless against them. Our politics would be given new direction: our national life new energies: our freedom a larger scope: our products new markets; our people more of the comforts and necessaries of life, and the old lines of blindly bitter sectional prejudice would be obliterated entirely.

All this is not only possible but probable in the near future. As General Palmer stands for it in Illinois, as Governor Boies in Iowa, as Senator Plumb in Kansas, as one leader after another in both the great parties learns from the people that it is the will of the people of the agricultural States to stop throat cutting and join in common cause against oppression, the approach of a new era in national politics becomes plainly perceptible.

The Plutocratic States have ruled for 30 years. During the civil war they held the purse, and before they would open it to relieve the necessities of the nation in a life and death struggle, they dictated the terms of their financial supremacy over the rest of the country and they have been able to maintain these terms by perpetuating the animosities and unnatural sectional divisions of the civil war period.

This cannot last much longer. In their National Alliance and Farmers' Congress the controlling element of the West and South is being brought together and unified. The effect is already noticeable, but it needs time to make itself fully manifest. Nothing is more certain than that the Western and Southern States will soon co-operate. How soon does not yet fully appear. It may not be as soon as all well-wishers of the country may hope; but it is coming. When it does come, the balance of power by which the Plutocratic States now govern the Union will have no power in it. The first national election in which Western and Southern farmers vote together is the end of Plutocratic domination in America.—St. Louis Republic.

THE REVOLT IN THE WEST.

The feeling of opposition to the McKinley bill prevailing among western farmers is constantly becoming more and more apparent. Recently it was proposed that ex Congressman Farwell should stand again as the Republican nominee for congress in the 5th Iowa district. He declines for the following reasons expressed in a letter:

"The McKinley bill, as it left the House, contains provisions that I would not support or defend for a nomination to any office. I believe in the doctrine of protection, and the results of the protective policy, it seems to me, should fill the heart of every American with pride as he witnesses the growth of all the great manufacturing industries which have been fostered by it, but in many ways it has done its perfect work; it has fulfilled the conditions for which the policy was created, and to add to the high duties levied during the war an additional per cent in these times of close competition and moderate wages is only giving the manufacturers opportunities to oppress the people by forming monopolies and trusts."

It is evident that the temper of the people is such that it will be dangerous for any man to run for congress in western agricultural districts this fall, on a platform, or with a record, which puts him in accord with the McKinley bill.—Battle Creek Journal.

A SILVER ILLUSTRATION.

The iniquity of the scheme for the demonetization of silver is illustrated by the recent substitution of the single standard by the government of Roumania for the double standard which has hitherto prevailed in that country. The minister of finance is required to exchange the $9,400,000 in silver now deposited in the government banks as a basis for the legal tenders in circulation, for gold at the ratio of 100 silver francs for 75 gold francs. The $9,400,000 will thus be reduced to $7,050,000, thus entailing a loss to the government of $2,350,000. But this government loss by no means measures the extent of the wrong done to the people of Roumania who are obliged to suffer from the depreciation not only of the silver in circulation, but of the entire property as measured by the currency standard. Every debt of 1,000 francs becomes a virtual debt of 1,333 francs, having become subject to an increase of ⅓ by the lengthening of the currency yardstick. The effect of this change has no doubt been in some measure anticipated, but the extent of the injustice is clearly manifest in these figures. The people of the United States and most of the nations of Europe have suffered the same great wrong for the benefit of financiers, money-dealers and bond-holders who have had the value of their properties increased, while that of the people at large has been correspondingly diminished. In most countries this change has gradually been made during the last sixteen years, but the transition from the double to the single standard in Roumania at one single step enables us to observe both the real extent of the change and the injustice it entails upon the suffering many to satisfy the greed of the favored few.—Battle Creek Journal.

WHAT IS

SCROFULA

It is that impurity in the blood, which, accumulating in the glands of the neck, produces unsightly lumps or swellings; which causes painful running sores on the arms, legs, or feet; which developes ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or the many other manifestations usually ascribed to "humors;" which, fastening upon the lungs, causes consumption and death. Being the most ancient, it is the most general of all diseases or affections, for very few persons are entirely free from it.

How Can It Be CURED

By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by the remarkable cures it has accomplished, often when other medicines have failed, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. Some of these cures are really wonderful. If you suffer from scrofula, be sure to try Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"My daughter Mary was afflicted with scrofulous sore neck from the time she was 22 months old till she became six years of age. Lumps formed in her neck, and one of them after growing to the size of a pigeon's egg, became a running sore for over three years. We gave her Hood's Sarsaparilla, when the lump and all indications of scrofula entirely disappeared, and now she seems to be a healthy child." J. S. CARLILE, Nauright, N. J.

Bright eyes and dull; near sighted; far sighted; anybody (except those who won't, and they are worse than blind) can see at a glance the advantages gained by using PEARLINE. We do not expect everyone will see it, but millions do, and the number increases every day.

Delicate women and strong, wonder at the amount of work they can do with the aid of PEARLINE—the time saved; the satisfactory results, and when they have used it for years they realize that everything that is washed or cleaned with PEARLINE lasts longer. This is very simple—PEARLINE does away with most of the rubbing—the greatest wear and tear that clothes are subjected to is the repeated rubbings necessary to keep them clean with ordinary soap. Your own interests should lead you to use it, if you do your own work and value your fine linens and flannels; the latter reason should surely convince any bright woman that it is to her interest to see that her servants use it. PEARLINE makes a saving all around.

Beware Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers are offering imitations which they claim to be Pearline, or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—they are not. 189 JAMES PYLE, New York.

A TARIFF TRUST.

THE NATIONAL LINSEED OIL "COMPANY" GROWING RICH.

A Trust Made Possible by Prohibitive Duties Adopts the McKinley Idea That High Prices Are Best—McKinley Comes to the Rescue.

Under the heading "Success of the Linseed Oil Combine" the high tariff New York Tribune prints a special dispatch from Chicago, giving an account of the recent meeting of the Linseed Oil trust in that city.

The dispatch says: "The first annual meeting of the National Linseed Oil company, a corporation that includes almost every linseed oil concern in the country, was held in this city. About forty-five of the fifty-two mills in the organization were represented at the meeting, voting $13,700,000 of the $18,000,000 capital stock. Alexander Euston, of St. Louis, presented a statement showing that the net earnings were almost 7 per cent. on the capital stock. In his official statement to the members Mr. Euston said that within a short time it would be necessary to increase the capital stock to $20,000,000 in order to take in the plants not numbered in the present membership."

This is the National Linseed Oil trust under a new name—an old foe with a new face. Having discovered the growing unpopularity of the word "trust" it procured a charter somewhere and now calls itself a "company." It has only changed its name; it is still a monopoly with all the schemes of greed that monopolies concoct and practice.

It will be noticed that the dispatch to The Tribune places the capital of the trust at $18,000,000, and that the number of mills is stated to be fifty-two. It is interesting to compare these figures with those given in The Chicago Inter-Ocean on Jan. 2, 1888. The trust was formed in January, 1887, and one year after its formation this high tariff Chicago paper said: "The annual production of linseed oil in the United States is 28,000,000 gallons, the west crushing about 20,000,000 gallons, and the mills of Chicago 3,750,000 gallons. The year 1887 will long be remembered, because of the formation of the National Linseed Oil trust, which was started in January and made such rapid progress that before six months had passed it virtually controlled and brought harmony among the crushers where chaos had reigned. There are now thirty-six mills in the trust, representing over one-half of the crushing capacity of the country. Certificates to the amount of $11,000,000 have been issued on the basis of $33 1-3 a share, and are now salable in the open market at that price."

This shows that since the formation of the trust its capital has been increased by $7,000,000 and that sixteen additional mills have been absorbed by it.

The most interesting result to be got from the two paragraphs quoted from these two high tariff organs is that the actual dividend of the trust, as just declared, is 21 per cent. According to the statement quoted from The Inter-Ocean certificates were issued at the rate of three for one when the trust was formed. That is to say, the man whose oil mill was worth $100,000 received stock to the amount of $300,000. Trusts always water their stock in this way in order that their enormous profits may be hidden from the public. The Tribune states that the dividend just declared was 7 per cent.; but 7 per cent. on the watered stock is 21 per cent. on the original value.

This Linseed Oil trust is a peculiarly tariff trust, and its capers have been quite in keeping with its tariff origin. When the trust was organized in January, 1887, the price of linseed oil was thirty-eight cents a gallon, and already in December of the same year the trust had squeezed the price up to fifty-two cents. At present it ranges from sixty to sixty-three cents, but it may be expected to go still higher when the trust has carried out its purpose, as The Tribune dispatch says, "to take in the plants not numbered in the present membership."

What has made this enormous advance in price possible?

The tariff—purely and simply the tariff.

There is a duty of twenty-five cents per gallon on linseed oil, which is equal to an ad valorem duty of about 74 per cent. of the English price.

The Republicans on the ways and means committee know these facts about the Linseed Oil trust. Sure enough it did not go before McKinley's committee to ask for higher duties—so far, at least, as the returns show; but the generous McKinley raised the duty for the trust unsolicited and apparently from mere force of habit. The trust now has twenty-five cents per gallon; McKinley gave it thirty cents. The senate committee changed this to twenty-seven cents; but when the senate reached that paragraph in discussing the tariff bill Senator Aldrich asked that it be passed over until a future day. This was done, and so the duty is still to be fixed.

The published reports do not show that anybody went before the McKinley committee to ask for a higher duty on linseed oil. Did the trust object to being questioned in public about its dark ways? Did it write a letter, or did it "see a man" and make liberal promises of "fat" for future campaigns in defense of protection?

At any rate the committee heard something of this trust. During the tariff hearings last winter G. W. Blakon, of Philadelphia, a manufacturer of oil cloth and linoleum, appeared at one of the meetings of the committee in behalf of his business and made known some interesting facts as to how it was hampered by the tariff and the trust. He told the committee that linseed oil was at that time sixty-two cents a gallon in New York and thirty-two cents in London. "Linseed oil," he said, "has advanced largely within the last eighteen months, and white lead also. That is done by combinations and trusts."

Ex-Governor Gear, of Iowa, took exception to the last statement and asked: "Has not the increased price of linseed oil been caused by a shortage in the crops of flax?" to which Mr. Blakon answered: "No, sir. If that were the case why would not linseed oil be much higher in London and Liverpool? In some of the linseed oil mills here they use altogether foreign seed."

In view of the arbitrary acts of the oil trust Mr. Blakon said, "Give us the free raw material and I will try to protect myself."

It is therefore seen that in raising the duty on linseed oil McKinley sinned knowingly and deliberately, and sinned for the benefit of a rich and grasping trust.

The aim of McKinley, as he himself said, was that there should be "no return to cheap times in our own country;" and as this trust had done so nobly in the grand and patriotic work of preventing cheap times, McKinley could hardly do less than give it a reward in the shape of higher protection. The trust had simply gone ahead on its own account and applied the McKinley idea that "when merchandise is cheapest men are poorest."

It is not a new thing that a trust should take this view of prices and the McKinley idea of keeping them as high as possible. Last winter the head of the great sugar trust, Theodore F. Havemeyer, defended the trust for keeping up the price of sugar in the following style: "The great cry of one of the great parties is for protection; that is, they cry for it loudly during campaigns. But when we proceed to give ourselves some protection a howl is raised. They demand protection for the industries. When an industry protects itself it is said that it is illegal."

And Havemeyer is right. If it is a good thing to have high prices, as McKinley preaches, what does it matter whether we get our high prices from McKinley or from Havemeyer and his "purely private affair?"

Restricting the Output.

The purpose of protection, according to its advocates, is to develop home competition and thus bring down the price of commodities. That is the whole of their theory in a nutshell.

But how does it work in practice? When this competition has brought down prices what takes place? The following newspaper report from a Pennsylvania paper will explain what usually happens:

"The announcement is made that the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron company will suspend operations for the present in a number of its collieries. Some of the collieries which will be closed are among the most important in the Schuylkill region. Their capacity is quite large, and the suspension means a radical restriction in the Reading's output. It is not unusual to close collieries at this season of the year, but the restriction which will now be practised is somewhat more pronounced than usual. The Reading has a large amount of coal above ground, and will ship it as soon as there is a better demand. The output of coal has been limited by the agents of the various companies to 125,000 tons per day."

Here is a combination to prevent competition by restricting production; labor, which is loved so well by these men before the committees of congress, thrown out of employment in order that the coal companies may make greater profits by charging higher prices for their product—all this for the benefit of the American people, to whom protection is so great a blessing!

And the United States senate—the millionaires' club, some call it—refused to touch the duty on coal at a time when the mine owners are combining to throw labor out of employment and charge the consumers higher prices. For whose benefit is this protection, anyway?

Sound on the Tariff.

The protectionists have been claiming that protection sentiment is growing in West Virginia, and that the state will soon pass over into their ranks on that issue. They have even claimed that the Democrats of the state are infected with the protection heresy. But the utterance of the recent Democratic convention of the state on the subject of the tariff leaves no room for doubt about that matter. The platform says:

"We favor a tariff for revenue. We demand a revision and reduction of the same to the lowest point consistent with an economical administration of the government, and in a spirit of fairness to all interests, including farming, mining and manufacturing. We favor the expansion of our trade and commercial relations with the world and especially Spanish America.

"We denounce the Republican party for its hostility to the mass of the people in its efforts to pass the McKinley tariff bill, constructed in the interest of monopolies, trusts and political friends, whereby the few are to be enriched at the expense of the many, so that in future elections the sinews of war may be supplied without stint, as they have been recently in West Virginia and elsewhere, to purchase votes and corrupt the ballot box and thus perpetuate Republican misrule."

The Organ in Despair.

The organ of the Protective Tariff league is very much alarmed for the fate of the McKinley bill, and goes so far as to insinuate that some of the Republican senators have been influenced against the measure by money, dinners and wines.

In an article headed "Important" it says: "'High authority in the senate justifies us in notifying the industries of this country which may be affected by legislation in the senate that they are in danger. The efforts of the importers—their money, their dinners and wines—have weighed down in some instances the testimony of the industries and their arguments for protection.'"

But this is evidently another "mare's nest," for Robert P. Porter, one of the high priests of protection, is still strong in the faith, and says, "I don't feel alarmed over the outlook, notwithstanding the opinions expressed in The Bulletin."

Eupepsy.

W. D. Sult, Druggist, Bippus, Ind. testifies: "I can recommend Electric Bitters as the very best remedy. Every bottle sold has given relief in every case. One man took six bottles, and was cured of Rheumatism of 10 years' standing." Abraham Hare, druggist, Bellville, Ohio affirms: "The best selling medicine I have ever handled in my 20 years experience, is Electric Bitters." Thousands of others have added their testimony, so that the verdict is unanimous that Electric Bitters do cure all diseases of the Liver, Kidneys or Blood. Only a half dollar a bottle at.

Brooks' Kidney and Liver Syrup

When the pain in the liver is accompanied by constipation, bilious patients will usually find Brooks' Kidney and Liver Syrup sufficient to relax the bowels—and it should be borne in mind that it is not a drastic purgative but will afford the hepatic organ unspeakable relief. Sold by C. A. Wright & Co.

BRONCHITIS

Is an inflammation of the bronchial tubes—the air-passages leading into the lungs. Few other complaints are so prevalent, or call for more prompt and energetic action. As neglect or delay may result seriously, effective remedies should always be at hand. Apply at once a mustard poultice to the upper part of the chest, and, for internal treatment, take frequent doses of

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

C. O. Lepper, Druggist, Fort Wayne, Ind., writes: "My little sister, four years of age, was so ill from bronchitis that we had almost given up hope of her recovery. Our family physician, a skilful man and of large experience, pronounced it useless to give her any more medicine, saying he had done all it was possible to do, and we must prepare for the worst. As a last resort, we determined to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and I can truly say, with most happy results. After taking a few doses she seemed to breathe easier, and, within a week, was out of danger. We continued giving the Pectoral until satisfied she was entirely well. This indisputable evidence of the great merit of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral has given me unbounded confidence in the preparation, and I recommend it to my customers, knowing it cannot disappoint them."

"Ayer's Cherry Pectoral cured me of a bad cough and my partner of bronchitis. I know of numerous cases in which this preparation has proved very beneficial in families of so that the medicine is known among them as 'the consoler of the afflicted.'"—Jaime Rufus Vidal, San Cristobel, San Domingo.

"A short time ago, I was taken with a severe attack of bronchitis. The remedies ordinarily used in such cases failed to give me relief. Almost in despair of ever finding anything to cure me, I bought a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and was helped from the first dose. I had not finished one bottle before the disease left me, and my throat and lungs were as sound as ever."—Geo. B. Hunter, Altoona, Pa.

HAPPY RECOVERY

There is nothing I now enjoy that I do not owe to having used Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, of Rondout, N. Y., at a time when I was suffering all that a human being could endure. My troubles began in my kidneys, from which I never expected to recover. My physicians said I had

Bright's Disease.

Later I had a bad attack of Gravel. Six years ago last June—how well I remember that day—I saw Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy advertised in our paper. After using three bottles I was well. I have never had a return of the disease, and though I am over 60 years of age I am vigorous and strong as I was in my prime What physicians and the many remedies I had taken could not do Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy did. It stayed the disease and made me a well woman.—Mrs. Emiline P. Mizner, Burg Hill, O.

The figure 9 in our dates will make a long stay No man or woman now living will ever date a document without using the figure 9. It stands in the third place in 1890, where it will remain 10 years and then move up to second place in 1900 where it will rest for one hundred years.

There is another "9" which has also come to stay It is unlike the figure 9 in our dates in the respect that it has already moved up to first place, where it will permanently remain. It is called the "No 9" High Arm Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine.

The "No. 9" was endorsed for first place by the experts of Europe at the Paris Exposition of 1889, where, after a severe contest with the leading machines of the world, it was awarded the only Grand Prize given to family sewing machines, all others on exhibit having received lower awards of gold medals, etc. The French Government also recognized its superiority by the decoration of Mr. Nathaniel Wheeler, President of the company, with the Cross of the Legion of Honor.

The "No. 9" is not an old machine improved upon, but is an entirely new machine, and the Grand Prize at Paris was awarded it as the grandest advance in sewing machine mechanism of the age. Those who buy it can rest assured, therefore, of having the very latest and best.

DR. A. TRASK'S MAGNETIC OINTMENT.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with Inflammation.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years,

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Price 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

LENAWEE PIONEERS.

THE REGULAR ANNUAL MEETING OF THE SOCIETY HELD AT BLISSFIELD LAST WEEK.

A Large Gathering Present and a Very Entertaining Program Presented. Over Fifty New Members Added to the Rolls.

The regular annual meeting of the Lenawee County Pioneer Society was held at Blissfield on Wednesday of last week. Tuesday's rain had laid the dust and the weather was all that could be desired. The townships surrounding Blissfield were all well represented and quite a number were present from other portions of the County. The exercises were divided into a forenoon and afternoon session, with a picnic dinner during the noon hour. The morning session opened at the Presbyterian Church at ten o'clock, The choir favored the audience with a fine chorus and Rev. Yager followed in prayer. The venerable Dr. Wyman, now in his 88th year, was selected to give the address of welcome in behalf of the citizens. Below is his address in full. It was given with much feeling and was received by the audience with the warmest approval.

Ladies and Gentlemen, members of the Lenawee County Pioneer Society:—The citizens of Blissfield, including some of your worthy and venerable compeers, through me, welcome you to their village. They, your compeers, unite with you in devoting this day to a renewal of old friendships, and in a vocal repetition, in the presence of one another, of the events, incidents and experiences treasured in your memories more or less for sixty years. About that period in different localities within the limits of Lenawee county, you severally selected your homes in what was then a dreary wilderness, the topography of which, with few exceptions where gravel constituted the subsoil and an occasional ground swell rose above the level of the surrounding country, presented during the season of melted snows, spring and autumn rains, little else than submerged river bottoms, an occasional morass and a series of heavy timbered swamps, thought by many citizens of older states to be suitable only for the wants of wandering trappers, chattering coons and croaking frogs. You, with a more discriminating mind and better judgment pitched here your tents, raised your cabin, inlaid it with a puncheon floor, a small window or two admitted light, hung your door with wooden hinges, opened and shut it with a wooden latch, a string, when pulled, drew up the latch and fell by its weight into place. The string, by drawing it inside, served the purpose of a key.

Simple home life among pioneers is a proper subject for discussion in afternoon speeches, but hardly admissible in an address of welcome. It has often appeared to your speaker as though there were many pleasurable preludes between the somber scenes of pioneer life. Song birds greet him before the rising sun with their melodious carols and sympathetically warble their pensive notes in his declining rays. Sporting squirrels gambol in the branches of adjacent trees. Partridges drummed heavily and persistently for their coming mates. Perchance a lonely fawn bleated plaintively for the udder of its absent dam, which, regardless, perhaps unconscious of danger, came rushing to its protection. Wild flowers diffused their fragrance through the atmosphere, their beautiful colors pleased the sight and their aroma the sense of smell. Deer browsed in the forest, wild turkeys ranged through, and at seasons these, with wild ducks and geese and pigeons, made the woods a sportsman's paradise. There was a plentiful field from which the pioneers gathered a supply of meats that were calculated to preserve the physical functions in a normal condition.

When one was prostrated with malaria, that bane which has prevailed in the first settlement of all sections of the West, and his work fell behind, you generously rolled his logs, planted his corn, cultivated his crops as seasons required: more, you were ever on hand to supply his or his family's wants, or to aid in tenderly nursing the sick. Such is the organization of our systems that we require exercise for the development of our strength. Labor is a manner of exercise more useful and profitable than that in the gymnasium. In none of our industries is a more general number of muscles called into existence than in pioneer life. Venerable pioneers, you are now retired from the toils and cares of active life and probably the sweetest solace that you enjoy in that retirement is the care you took to have your children early instructed in the rudiments of education, to imbue with a love of truth, to erect in their minds and consciences a moral standard which in coming years would guide their feet in paths of rectitude and make them worthy successors of their hardy, generous and upright progenitors. When your minds survey the wild wastes which your labor transformed into the fertile, easily cultivated and productive fields that on every hand greet your vision, covered in a majority of places with highly embellished and everywhere with comfortable residences, interspersed with thriving villages and flourishing cities, dotted over with architectural school houses filled with joyous children and aspiring youths, every township the center of plenty, comparative wealth, intelligence and moral refinement, you may enjoy a modest exultation at this expanse of material and moral beauty that your hands aided in developing—a full fruition of your early hopes. Though your persons may be a little tremulous with the weight of years, the mind is ever young and wide as it recounts the past or contemplates the future. May you long enjoy the triumph your labors achieved.

Vice President Thos. Moore responded in behalf of the Society in a few very appropriate remarks, thanking the people of Blissfield for the kind welcome extended to them. His remarks were wholly impromptu but they were warmly received.

A song by Miss Minnie Barrow was finely rendered and brought forth hearty applause.

President Dewey then read a paper on the early history of the State, which will be printed in full hereafter.

The President appointed a committee to report officers for the ensuing year, to report after the noon recess, as follows: J. B. Clement, W. W. Bliss and Samuel Sudborough.

The meeting then adjourned for dinner and the entire audience marched in a body to Carpenter's Hall, where a bountiful spread had been prepared for the guests in attendance. Three tables, the whole length of the hall, were loaded with all the substantials and delicacies of the season, and many of the company were obliged to wait till the tables were filled a second time.

At half-past one the company returned to the Church and after being called to order the first business was the presentation of the report of the committee on officers, which was as follows:

President—Thos F. Moore, Medina.
Vice President—Jas. T. Kedzie, Blissfield.
Secretary—S. C. Stacy, Tecumseh.
Treasurer—Rufus Baker, Fairfield.

The report of the committee was accepted without an opposing vote.

The newly elected President, Thos. F. Moore, then assumed the chair, and in so doing paid a handsome tribute to the retiring President and a motion was unanimously carried tendering to Mr. Dewey the thanks of the Society for his faithful services as presiding officer during the past fifteen years.

Miss Flora Sheldon then sang, "Auld Lang Syne" in a manner that elicited applause.

The reception of new members was next in order and sixty-three names were added to the roll of membership. Below is the list of names with the year of their birth or settlement in the County.

Thos. F. Moore gave some of his pioneer experiences.

Miss Barrow sang another song in a very acceptable manner.

The following resolutions were offered and adopted unanimously:

Resolved, That the thanks of the Lenawee County Pioneer Society are hereby tendered to the citizens of Blissfield for their hospitality to-day and their untiring efforts to make this meeting an unqualified success.

Resolved, That the name of Francis A. Dewey be enrolled upon our records as an honorary life member of this Society.

A sketch of a log cabin was exhibited by W. W. Bliss and he explained to the audience the difference between a pioneer log cabin and the log house of to-day. He also showed how the ladies in olden times made their starch by rubbing an ear of corn on a plane, and also illustrated how the settlers used to gring their corn, all of which looked extremely crude to the people who never experienced that sort of life.

Others also related their experience and the experience of friends, and a half hour was spent very interestingly.

On motion the officers were empowered to fix the time and place of the next annual meeting, and the Society then adjourned.

The attendance throughout the day was good and it was generally conceded that the meeting was one of the best the Society has held in recent years

OBITUARY.

Mary E, wife of Geo. S. Spafford departed this life at the home of her son-in-law, Will C. Blood, at Geneva, Ohio, on Sunday morning, August 17th, at 7:30 o'clock, aged 58 years.

Mary E. Delemater was born at Rochester, N. Y. Her fathers family moved to Ann Arbor where her early life was passed, from there to Saline and thence to this village, where the deceased continued to reside until her death. She was united in marriage to Geo. S. Spafford at Adrian, Oct. 24, 1852. The union was blessed with eight children, five of whom are now living and grown up, two sons and three daughters. During the past year her health has been quite feeble, and her friends have been much worried about her. With the approach of hot weather in July it was thought best to remove her to a cooler latitude and upon July 21st, she went home with her daughter, Mrs. Will C. Blood to Geneva, Ohio, a village located on the south shore of Lake Erie, east of Cleveland. She enjoyed the trip exceedingly and seemed to gain strength for several days after her arrival there, but her disease soon asserted itself with renewed energy; she grew worse daily and passed peacefully away on the morning of August 17th. Although she died among strangers, the neighbors extended their warmest sympathy to the afflicted family by holding a short service at the house and accompanying the sorrowing friends to the depot. Upon arriving at Tecumseh, the remains were conveyed to her old home in Brownville, where the funeral services were held on Tuesday afternoon, August 19th. Her two sisters, Mrs. John Daniels, of Plainwell, Mrs. J. W. Osborn and her brother William arrived in time to attend the funeral. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Phelps, who recited the burial service from the Episcopal ritual, assisted by the church choir. Many beautiful floral offerings adorned the casket, and the house was filled with sympathizing friends and neighbors who had known and respected the deceased for nearly forty years.

Mrs. Spafford was a woman of modest, retiring disposition, but an affectionate wife and faithful mother. Her death creates a void in that household that can never be filled. The husband is deprived of a wife's devotion and the children of a mother's loving care. She united with the Episcopal church in her girlhood and her children were reared in the paths of true Christianity. She has now gone to accept her final reward, and to receive the benediction "Well done, good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

Died at Tecumseh, Michigan, Aug. 16th, 1800, John W. Benedict, Jr., youngest child of Frank H. and S. Hartie Benedict.

On the 15th of April, 1889, this child was born at Hamlin, Brown Co., Kansas. The parents brought him with them to this, their former home, a few weeks ago. He was not well on their arrival, and after a week of more decided illness the grim reaper took him with his sickle keen. A vacant place is in the home, but with the child "it is well." So we are taught to believe in regard to all the little ones who are taken from the homes of earth. They are taken to be with Him who purchased for them a place in the kingdom of Heaven. Let the sorrow that is felt for their present loss be not without comfort, since they are safe in Paradise.

EXQUISITE BEAUTY.

GRANDEST COLLECTION OF PAINTINGS EVER SHOWN IN THE WEST.

Three Hundred of the Best American Paintings by 250 of the Best Living American Painters—Also the Most Beautiful Grand Painting in the World, Which Cost a Fortune in Europe—Don't Fail to See Them.

Every large and high class art exhibition of paintings, statuary, engravings, etchings, etc., is a liberal education to the public. It teaches the people not only to discern the superiority of good art over cheap and inferior pictures, but it trains the imagination and reason, as well as the eye, to prefer high artistic subjects as well as the best artistic execution. It chastens and educates the general taste; it creates a love both for things beautiful and for things excellent; it impresses strongly upon the memory important events and names of history, of mythology and of literature; it helps to make men and women gentler, more imaginative, intellectual and refined.

The announcement, therefore, that there will be exhibited at the Detroit International Fair and Exposition—which opens next week Tuesday, Aug. 26—300 of the best paintings of the best cotemporary American artists, these pictures carefully selected by a committee of the American artists' union, besides a number of famous European paintings, is a matter of wider and nobler interest than the mere show. It is

A REAL BENEFIT TO THE WHOLE WEST.

It will help strongly to broaden culture and refinement over a wide extent of country, through the hundreds of thousands of visitors who will enjoy its beauties and carry to their homes its lessons of taste and culture.

This collection is unquestionably the finest ever shown west of New York city. Its catalogue embraces the names of 248 of the best living American painters, who show their best productions of recent years. Not one of their paintings has ever before been exhibited west of New York city. Among the collection are some of landscape, marine and genre paintings. Among the artists and paintings of note may be mentioned Albert Bierstadt, whose picture of "Northern California Fruit," is valued at $2,500; George Edward's "Waving Grain;" Irwin Benoui's L'Improvisatori; Thos. Moran's three admirable pictures, "Rock Towers of the Colorado," valued at $2,000, "Sunset at Green River" and "A Wreck;" Richard Paull's "A Storm;" two singular oriental pictures, one by William Sartin, "A Chapter from the Koran," and one by V. G. Vereepevitch, "The Caliph's Daughter;" three strongly American pictures by C. T. Turner, "The Pride of the Farm," "A Flirtation," and "Queen of the Montauks;", and "The Veteran's Story," a singularly strong genre picture by William Verplanck Birney.

H. R Poore, the famous painter of the prize painting that attracted so much attention last year, "The Night of the Nativity," is represented this year by a strong picture, "In the Brush," before which there will be sure to always be a crowd.

Percival DeLuce has two fine pictures, "Tidings from the Sea," and "Her Choicest Treasure." Gilbert Gaul is represented in another picture that will be certain to draw a crowd, "Charging the Battery." John Hobuill, the most wonderful microscopic painter in the world, whose old coins, etc., so astonished thousands in 1889, has this year "Can You Break a Five?" which is so natural that it almost needs a policeman to prevent everybody from picking it up, and it is that it really is only a painting and not the real thing. Robert Hopkins, of Detroit, shows his "Home of the McGregors." H. G. Plumb presents "The Resurrection of Debby Ann," a fine outre painting.

Among the striking marines are George W. Edwards' "Travelers;" "Venetian Canal," by A. F. Bunner; William H. Machen's "Moonlight Marine;" Parker Mann's "The Old Wharf;" H. R. Poore's "Morning on Dordrecht Canal;" Florence Sceley's "Preparing for Sea;" James D. Smillie's "Harbor Islands, Lake George;" G. W. Waters' "Return of the Tide;" L. S. Woodward's "Coast of Cape Ann;" J. H. Witt's "A Fishing Party;" L. M. Wiles' "Breaking Waves; A. Elms' "Lobster Fishing;" Stanley Inchbold's "Hay Barges, San Francisco Bay;" M. Rouzee's "French Coast," and L. E. Van Gorder's "Along New York Bay."

There are many cattle and farm scenes; wild scenes of forest and mountain; and landscapes, many of them distinctively American. A. P. Proctor shows "A Bear Family;" G. F. Zagbaum, "Ambushed;" J. B. Sword, "October Quail Shooting;" B. Harrison, "In the Forest;" Agnes D. Abbott, "The Land of the Mikado;" J. W. Champney, "Among the Pines."

But it is difficult to select among so many fine works. It is enough to say that nearly all

THE NOTED ARTISTS OF AMERICA

Are represented in the collection, while there are some just rising into repute whose pictures are undeniably gems. The selection has been made with a view to give every variety of style, subject, technic and coloring, so as not only to please but instruct all tastes, and form a fairly representative gallery of the American art of to-day. That this has been happily attained will be the verdict of all who visit the exposition. It is safe to assert that a better or more varied collection has never been presented to the inspection of either artists or the public in the west.

In addition to this will be exhibited the most beautiful grand painting in the world of modern times, and perhaps of all times. Constantine Mokoffsky's exquisite dream of beauty

"THE JUDGEMENT OF PARIS."

When the goddesses of Greek mythology quarreled as to which was most beautiful, and the gods themselves could not decide, they called upon Young Paris, a mortal, to give judgment. His choice fell upon Venus, the goddess of love. She gave to him, as a reward, Helen of Troy, the most beautiful women in the world; from which sprang the wars of Ulysses and the Greeks against Troy, celebrated by Homer, the immortal poet. This picture has been declared by the art critics of Europe almost perfection in its delicate drawing and rich coloring. It is, in truth, a dream of more than mortal beauty; and to say that it is a marvel of painting is only to state what all who saw "The Russian Wedding Feast" last year will readily believe. This painting alone is worth a large fortune, and costs $300 per day for its exhibition with electric lights. Its owner, Mr. Schumann, the millionaire banker, of New York city, has jealously guarded it from being photographed or engraved, so that it will be a complete surprise to the public, and those who do not see it at the Detroit Exposition may never again have an opportunity.

D. C. LeBaron, of Toledo, was in town Tuesday, and went to Clinton to attend the 18th Regt. Reunion.

Mrs. Abbie Fisher and daughter went to Detroit yesterday for a week's visit with Rev. Mr. Conley's family.

Mrs. James Mitchell was called to Hillsdale last Saturday by the serious illness of her brother, Geo. Lockwood.

Ladies, do not forget the school meeting to be held at the Central school building on Monday, Sept 1st.

Mrs. Will Blood and Maggie Spafford went to Manitou Beach yesterday for a short visit at Uncle Charley Spafford's.

Wm. Totten returned on Monday from his visit at Petoskey. He enjoyed his visit very much, as he was there during the hot spell.

Gus Cowley, of Hudson, was shaking hands with his old friends last Monday. He came over to attend the 18th reunion at Clinton.

Geo. P. McCoy, of Milford, Mich., spent a portion of last week at A. D. Hall's, returning home with his wife and daughter on Monday.

Tecumseh is well nigh deserted today. A big crowd went to the Devil's Lake picnic this morning, and a good delegation went to Detroit.

The yearly meeting of the Friends is held this week at Damascus, Ohio. Several members of that church in Tecumseh and Raisin are in attendance.

Mrs. W. H. Zinn and daughters, Mary and Nellie, after a two-weeks visit with Mrs. Abbie Fisher, returned to their home at LaFayette, Ind., last Tuesday.

Mrs. Wm. Carnes was brought here last spring to be treated for a cancer. She died last Tuesday at the home of her sister, Mrs. Mills, who lives near Evans lake, in Franklin.

Mrs. E. J. Hollister returned last week from a six weeks visit at Sarnia, Ont. Her niece, Miss Anna Hall, accompanied her, who will make an extended visit in this vicinity.

The ladies of the Baptist church will hold their regular monthly social at the church parlors, on Thursday, Sept. 4th. Supper from 5:30 till 7:00 o'clock. All are cordially invited.

Will and Fred McNair gave a reception to their friends last Thursday evening, at their father's, residence in this village. It was largely attended and was a very enjoyable occasion.

It was rather a damp day last Tuesday for the Bridgewater picnic and the rain badly damaged the attendance. It was a mistake appointing it on the same day with the 18th Regt. Reunion at Clinton, as the two meetings rather conflicted with each other.

Will Anderson has sold his grocery store to Geo. Ellis and Frank Averv, who will take possession the 1st of September. Will has been in the grocery store here for nine years, and he proposes to take a rest. Although we dislike to lose Will from the street, we are glad to know that his business will fall into good hands.

Prof. E A. Wilson was chosen secretary of the county board of school examiners last Tuesday. This selection is one eminently fit to be made Prof. Wilson has had over ten years' experience as superintendent of graded schools, and is thoroughly qualified for the position. We congratulate the board upon the wisdom of their choice and Prof. Wilson upon his good luck.

Mr. J. F. Barton, a gentleman who owns several patents on threshing machines, has obtained funds from a few of our enterprising citizens for the purpose of testing his new machine, one of which is now being constructed at Battle Creek. This is the beginning of what may develop into another manufacturing industry for Tecumseh. If it "pans out" we shall have more to say about it.

Mrs. S. Kemp has recently secured of Fred Brown two magnificent oil portraits, which were presented to her daughter, Mrs. C. S. Pentecost of Napoleon.

We received a spicy letter from Tipton last week, and if the author will send his name we shall take pleasure in publishing it. We presume it is all right, but how do we know?

Tribou LeBaron of Toledo, drove over from that city last Friday with a horse and buggy and remained in town till Sunday. It was his first visit to Tecumseh this summer.

A. A. Besemer is in attendance at the Detroit Fair this week and next, to exhibit his new water moter. We believe he has a valuable invention which ought to come into general use.

Elizabeth Stuart Phelps's article in the August number of The Forum on "The Decollete in Modern Life," has caused such demand for that number that a second edition has been issued.

Mrs. Custer's new book, Following the Guidon, a collection of reminiscences of military life on the frontier, and a worthy companion to her former work, Boots and Saddles, has just been published by Harper & Brothers.

Bert McNair has been heard from He has halted at Aspen, Colo, hung out his shingle and gone to practising law. Aspen is a growing town located about one hundred miles west of Denver. Bert has obeyed Horace Greeley's injunction and we wish him success.

We are requested to make a slight correction in our report of the Bush presentation, as published last week. So far as the responsibility of originating the project goes Dr. Loree pleads guilty, but to Dr. Nelson belongs a large share of the credit for raising the necessary funds.

"Two Old Chums" at the Opera House last night made a decided hit. The company is a strong one, and Messrs. Field and Winchell are clever comedians of more than ordinary ability. Their support is strong throughout, and the costumes, stage settings and scenery are handsome and attractive. Harry Austin gives a musical act which is very pleasing. His playing on all sorts of instruments is unexceptionable, and his tunes upon sleigh bells simply exquisite.—Toronto (Can.,) Mail.

IN THE BALANCE

All Eyes Turned Toward Terre Haute

Where the Question of to Strike or Not

IS BEING DEBATED BY THE LEADERS OF THE UNION.

An Early Decision Expected—What the Prospect is—Latest Indications.

TERRE HAUTE, IND., Aug. 25.—The fate of the New York Central railroad for the time being as well as the decision so anxiously awaited by thousands of its employes and tens of thousands of the traveling and mercantile public, rests in a large measure at the hands of three men who are closeted in a room on the third floor of the Terre Haute hotel. They are secretary E. V. Debs, of the Fireman's Brotherhood, S. E. Morrissey, of the Trainmen's and John Downey, of the Switchmen's Union. In the opinion of those most familiar with the policy of the Federation the appointment of this committee means that a calling out of all the members of the trainmen's Federation on the central road has been practically decided upon. The committee went into session at half past eight with the understanding that the remaining members of the council would remain within call until midnight in order to receive any report that might be agreed upon. If the Council finds that it is impossible to reach final action tonight its session will be resumed at nine o'clock tomorrow morning.

When the supreme council got together the prospects for a strike were exceedingly dubious. It was known that the delegates from the Switchmen's union were opposed to a declaration of hostilities at this time; that the representatives of the conductors were uncertain of their ground, and that at least one of the subordinates from the Brotherhood of Trainmen had formed an opinion that would require facts and figures to remove.

Just as soon however, as the key had been turned in the lock, President and Grand Master Sargent proceeded to get down to business in his characteristic sledge-hammer manner. Beginning with the incention of the trouble on the Central he went through the story in detail fortifying his memory with numerous documents and reports, the majority of which have never been in print. He rattled on in this way for two solid hours, stopping now and then to reply to questions and concluded by submitting the appeal of the Knights of Labor for the assistance and support of the federation. Sargent made no recommendations preferring as he said, to leave the council untrammeled until general debate was in order. When he had finished, Sweeney, of the Switchmens Union, who has been on the ground in New York, came to the front with a report which in the main was a corroboration of the facts that had already been presented. By this time it was half past one and as nearly all of the delegates had breakfast at an early hour, it was considered advisable to pay some attention to the wants of the innerman.

The delegates must have been possessed of extraordinary appetites, for they tarried nearly two hours at the dinner table and it was not until 3:30 that they resumed their places around the oak table in the Club room. This time Delegate Morrissey, of the Brotherhood of Trainmen, who had also happened to be in New York at the interception of the trouble, set the ball rolling with a carefully prepared statement which was strongly favorable to the Knights. After this a general discussion was initiated. Sweeney for the switchmen, Howard for the conductors, and Wilkinson for the trainmen, being the principal participants. It was quickly developed that a decided difference of opinion was entertained concerning the advisability of the federation taking up the cause of the knights. Everybody present was agreed upon the main question, that the cause of the knights was a just one; that Powderly had throughout pursued a wise and prudent course, and that Mr. Webb was wholly and solely to blame for the present situation by his persistent refusal to consent to an amicable adjustment of the difficulties. But whether, granting all these facts, the way was open for the federation to take charge of the battle flags, and whether, supposing it so ordered, the Supreme Council would be supported by the orders behind it, were questions upon which serious doubts were expressed by at least four of the dozen dozen delegates. As the discussion proceeded and the portions of the various documents already presented were read and re-read, the debate assumed a complicated form. The Knights, however, were not without their champions and several stirring speeches were made in which the council was urged to display its manhood by standing shoulder to shoulder with Powderly. It was contended with emphasis that even if it refrained from entering the ring at this time it was evident—judging from Webb's attitude, that it would be compelled to do so in its own defense in the near future, inasmuch as it was clear that the Central proposed to rid itself of organized labor. Finally, after the debate had dragged along for four hours and at least two of the waverers had been brought around to the side favoring decisive action the committee already named was appointed to prepare certain "propositions," as the member of the council put it, or "ultimatums," to quote another and the council took an indefinite recess.

This matter is much more complicated than the public has any idea of, said a leading member of the council last night. "There are certain formalities to be gone through, before, under our constitution, we can take decisive action. We are compelled to have a formal bill or schedule of grievances upon which to act. In the present cases some schedules have, I understand, been prepared, while others have not. In the cases of the latter there is consequently nothing so far before us. The case of the switchmen who struck at Buffalo contrary to laws of their order is one in point. Then there is the question as to whether this is an opportune time for action or whether it would not be better to await later developments. We see, however, agreed on the main question that the fight will have to be fought at one time or the other."

"We are not crazy men, neither fools," said Grand Master Sargent late tonight. "We are going about this thing deliberately; what we finally decide upon will, I am satisfied, be satisfactory to the railroad men of the county and the public at large."

"Have you had any communication directly or indirectly with Mr. Webb since your return from New York, or has the council?" the grand master was asked.

"No," was the reply emphatically. Then he added with a sarcastic laugh. "And there won't be any." Those who are deep in the confidences of the Governing powers of the Firemens Brotherhood say to-night that judging from the developments of the day it is absolutely certain that the Federation will enter the fray. A final effort may be made, they say, to induce Mr. Webb to treat with the Federation on the basis of the schedule of grievances, but it will be but a matter of form, as his action clearly indicates that he intends to follow along the course he has hewed out for himself and his corporation. At the same time the ultimate outcome must remain a matter of pure speculation until the official decision is given to the public. The members of the supreme council have solemnly pledged themselves to maintain strict secrecy regarding their deliberations [illegible] a discretionary power, and even those intimately acquainted with the representatives of the press on the ground are decidedly non-committal in their confidences. It is admitted, however, that an extremely bitter feeling toward Webb was manifested at the sessions yesterday and that both Chiefs Sargent and Sweeney are highly incensed regarding what they consider as his superfluous conduct. Delegate Hanahan of the Firemens Brotherhood voiced this sentiment tonight when he said: "Webb and Vanderbilt are only carrying out the "Public bedamned policy." If General Manager Toucey had had his way there would never have been any strike."

It is given out officially tonight that strike or no strike, the national conventions of the firemen, conductors and trainmen, which have been announced for next month at San Francisco, Los Angeles and Toronto respectively, must take place. Under the constitution of each order a postponement can only take place upon an affirmative vote of a majority of the lodges, and it is now too late to put this machinery into operation.

At 10:30 the supreme council adjourned until Monday morning. The sub-committee will be in session throughout Sunday. The advices referred to in Sargents letter to Powderly are the bills of grievances upon which the council is required to act.

Dispatch to Powderly.

TERRE HAUTE, IND., Aug. 25.—Mr. Sargent late last evening sent the following dispatch:

To T. V. Powderly, Grand Master Workman, 251 L. St. Cloud Hotel, New York.

The supreme council has been in session all day but no decision has yet been reached. We are now awaiting important advices. The council fully realizes your position and the position of your order and you may be assured that your interests will receive due consideration. You will be promptly advised of further developments.

FRANK P. SARGENT, President.

All Quiet at New York.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—All was quiet at Grand Central depot, and there were few indications that there was a strike on the New York Central. Superintendent Vorhees was at his office. He had heard nothing new from Terre Haute and did not anticipate any. Two men were arrested and held in $200 bail for throwing stones at the men on freight trains.

IMMUNITY.

The Notorious Eversoles Terrorize the Grand Jury.

LOUISVILLE, KY., Aug. 25.—Although the Perry county grand jury has returned over a thousand indictments at the special term of court now going on, word comes here that it has refused to indict any member of the famous Eversole band of outlaws. Witnesses have been examined and have testified against Eversole and his ring leaders, but the jury has declared they would return no indictments without more proof. It is likely a new jury will be panelled. Captain Ganthur, in command of the state troops, telegraphs the manner in which he captured the outlaw Joe Davidson: "The officers have been betraying us, but we foiled them. I refused to furnish them any men, and at 11 o'clock started a detail under Lieutenant Wolcott. They walked twelve miles, secured horses, and after riding at full speed the rest of the night, they came on Joe at 8 a. m. It was raining hard, as it had been all night. We counted on driving him to shelter. He had been sleeping out. I delivered him to the jailer in the morning, and he is now in jail, having been denied bail." He is the most dreaded of the outlaws, and his capture has greatly frightened the friends of the others. Davidson is under three indictments for murder.

DEAD LOCKED.

The Commandant at the Ohio Soldiers' Home Can't Resign.

SANDUSKY, O., Aug. 25.—The managers of the Ohio Soldiers Home are in a dead lock over the election of a new commandant. At the meeting here Friday the commandant of the home read his regular monthly report, and ended it by offering his resignation providing that three members desired it so.

Colonel Charlesworth moved to accept the resignation, when a vote was taken, Messrs. Charlesworth and Brown voting to accept, and Messrs Paxton and Orr to the contrary.

Colonel Charlesworth will prefer charges in writing against the commandant at the next regular meeting, charging incompetency and inefficiency.

Broke the Bicycle Record.

CHICAGO, ILL., Aug. 25.—Edward Checkley, of Brooklyn, rode into Chicago on a "safety wheel" having broke the bicycle record from New York to this city by sixteen hours. The previous record for the distance, which was established some years ago by Neilson, was fourteen days, twenty-three hours and thirty minutes. Mr. Checkley rolled his machine over the road in fourteen days, six hours and twenty-five minutes.

A United Press Man Dead.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—Stephen S. Scandlon, for many years with the United Press and well known throughout the country as an expert telegrapher died at his home in Woonsocket, R. I.

Hired Assassins

Is What They Call Pinkerton Men

OVER IN MORE ENLIGHTENED LONDON.

Meeting of Dock Laborers at Which John Burns Makes a Spirited Speech and Denounces the Pinkerton System—Other Foreign News.

LONDON, Aug. 25.—A large meeting of dock laborers was held at which John Burns, the creator of their union and who is looked up to by them as almost superhuman, delivered a spirited harangue, exhorting them to be firm in maintaining the rights which they had acquired with so much difficulty and suffering. He referred to the proposed union of ship owners, and warned the men that this combination of $100,000,000 capital would enter upon a life and death struggle with the dock laborers organization if the latter showed the slightest prospect of weakening.

Mr Burns said he had heard that the ship owners were considering the advisability of establishing a "Pinkerton" force similar to that which was employed by private corporations in America. He excitedly declared that if this were attempted, the dockers would "raise the lair" of these hired assassins in less than twenty-four hours. "We will compete with these Janizaries, devoted to revolver," cried the orator, and his words were greeted with tumultuous applause. Burns remarks were probably intended chiefly to arouse the feelings of the men and stimulate their enthusiasm, for he knows as well as any one that the Pinkerton system would be tolerated in England.

The demonstration at Limerick in honor of John Dillon and William O'Brien was a great one in both point of numbers and enthusiasm. There were 30,000 men in the procession, with bands and banners innumerable. The meeting was intended as a testimonial of sympathy with Mr. Dillon in his controversy with Bishop O'Dwyer over the Perstion mission, as well as a sort of farewell to Messrs. Dillon and O'Brien before their departure for America. The speeches were of a character to encourage the Irish people in their recent political course. Mr. Dillon indulged in some denunciation of Bishop O'Dwyer.

The house of Mrs. Moody was burned at Kilrush. Mrs. Moody was rescued with great difficulty, but despite the efforts of hundreds of neighbors her two children were burned to death in their beds.

The burgomaster of Osterwoeck has been convicted of forgery and sentenced to a long term of imprisonment. For such an esteemed functionary to be convicted of a crime is so bad in Germany that the incident attracts much attention.

Congressional Forecast.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 25.—Tariff discussion to the exclusion of almost every thing else, will again predominate in the Senate this week. In conformity with the mutual agreement of Republican and Democratic leaders in the Senate, Mr. Aldrich, it is expected will some day during the week, ask that a day be fixed for a final vote on the bill. The discussion may be interrupted by the conference on the sundry civil bill. Should an agreement be reached this week on the irrigation bill it will be.

Monday in the House will be given to the committee on District of Columbia. Tuesday and Wednesday have already been set apart for consideration of the Butterworth bill to prohibit dealings in futures, etc., on which a vote will be taken on Wednesday. The committee on rules will bring in an order setting apart Thursday and Saturday for business brought up by the committee on labor, and this order will probably be agreed to. Friday will be private bill day.

WHOLE FAMILY BUTCHERED.

Montana Man Kills His Wife and Five Children.

GALLATIN, MONT., Aug. 25.—Joseph Quinn, a miner at Timberlin, killed his wife and five children. He had suffered so severely from a fever that he had been slightly demented for some weeks. His insanity took a violent form and he took the life of every member of his family. He had used a large knife and an axe to commit the awful deed. When discovered he held the bloody axe in one hand and the severed head of his eldest daughter in the other. Seeing that he was about to be captured he made a dash for the nearest man, but was shot through the heart and died instantly.

Famous Case Reopened.

DOVER, N. H., Aug. 25.—On Wednesday, September 3, the famous Sawtelle murder case will come up again, when the grand jury of Stafford county will be asked to find an indictment against Isaac B. Sawtelle for the murder of his brother Hiram. It is said that a mass of strong evidence has been secured to prove that the crime was committed in New Hampshire and not in Maine. The question of judicial action seems to be the most important to be considered by the grand jury, and its decision will be of vital importance to Sawtelle, since conviction in New Hampshire means death, while in Maine the extreme punishment for murder is life imprisonment.

Candidates in Trouble

MILLERSBURG, O., Aug. 25.—James Rowland, ex auditor of this county, was was arrested on complaint of David Cutter, charging him with obtaining his signature to a note of $500 by false pretenses last April. Rowland was a candidate for probate judge last spring, and it is charged that he made false representations of his financial standing and of the liens on his property. Mr. Cutter was compelled to pay the note on which his name appeared, the same having been sued.

Killed by a Mad Horse.

WICHITA, KAS., Aug. 25.—A farmer named H. H. Smith was killed on his place near Mulvane by a mad horse. Smith was tying up the beast, when the latter turned on him, seized him by the shoulder and threw him down. Just then the barn door closed, shutting off all means of escape, and the horse viciously attacked man, biting, pawing and kicking, until Smith seized a club and with it killed his horse. He was so badly exhausted, however, that he died shortly after being discovered, when had just strength enough to tell of the fight.

Do you want to buy a Lamp?

And the best lamp ever made, like Aladdin's of old, a "wonderful lamp!" A lamp absolutely non-explosive and unbreakable, which gives a clear, soft, brilliant white light of 85 candle power! Purer and brighter than gas light, softer than electric light, more cheerful than either! That lamp is

"The Rochester."

And with it there is no smoke, no smell, no broken chimneys, no flickering, no sweating, no climbing up of the flame, no "tantrums" nor annoyance of any kind, and it never needs trimming. Its founts (oil reservoirs) being tough rolled seamless brass, with central draft, it is absolutely unbreakable, and as safe as a tallow candle.

Only five years old, and over two million of these lamps in use. It must be a GOOD lamp to make such a telling success. Indeed it is, for lamps may come and lamps may go, but the "Rochester" shines on forever! We make over 2,000 artistic varieties,—Hanging and Table Lamps, Banquet, Study, Vase and Piano Lamps,—every kind, in Bronze, Porcelain, Brass, Nickel and Black Wrought Iron.

Ask the lamp dealer for it. Look for the trade-mark stamp: "THE ROCHESTER." If he hasn't the genuine Rochester and the style you want, or if no lamp-store is near, send to us for free illustrated catalogue (and reduced price-list), and we will box and send you any lamp safely by express, right to your door.

DUDD'S CATARRH CURE.

LOCAL AND INTERNAL TREATMENT.

In order to cure catarrh, it is necessary to allay the inflammation of the irritated membranes with a soothing application, cleanse the head of the plugging mucous secretions, and heal the discharging ulcers. For cold in the head and nasal catarrh Dodds' local treatment does this without the aid of snuff, douches or fumes. If the disease has extended downwards affecting the bronchial tubes or lungs, dizzy ness and blood, the internal treatment both removes from the system the scattered poison, and by its building-up properties assists nature in restoring the impaired parts. Send for our book treating on catarrh. FOSTER, MILBURN & CO., proprietors, Buffalo, N. Y. Sold in Tecumseh, Mich. by C. A. Wright & Co., druggists.

The Man Without a Stomach

May exist as a museum freak, but most of us recognize the stomach as necessary to life and comfort. Most of us experience a little trouble from this source occasionally, wrong action of the stomach causing dyspepsia, etc., and often the trouble extends, involving the liver and bowels, where we find biliousness and constipation. We find also that the bowels and kidneys (nature's sewage system) become clogged with effete matter, from which comes impure blood, boils, blotches, pimples, scrofula, scrofulous swellings and cancerous complaints. The Burdock Blood Bitters taken at the beginning, or at any later stage, arrests the trouble, restores the disordered organ to activity, thereby removing every vestige of disease. B. B. B. is an absolutely pure extract of roots and herbs, which cannot injure even the most delicate constitution, and as a cure for Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Constipation, Bad Blood, etc., succeeds in 99 cases out of 100.

St. Jacobs Oil Cures

PROMPTLY AND PERFECTLY

BRUISES, SWELLINGS, CUTS, &c.

A bruise is a contusion; swellings are inflammations; cuts and wounds are alike disturbances to natural action, through which the veins are clogged, circulation impeded, congestion sets in and pains ensue. Nature is impatient—it tries to right itself and pain intensifies. Bruises and swellings need a soothing influence, but in cuts and wounds hardly any one would pour a liquid remedy into a gaping wound. So soon as nature brings the parts together, almost at once,

St. Jacobs Oil soothes clears away obstructions, heals the injured tissues and restores. Used according to directions, it helps nature and cures

THE DOVE SONG.

With Modern Improvements.

I'm tired of singing to my love
That she is like a rose,
A glistening pearl, a turtle dove,
A star that shines in Heaven above,
The fairest flower that blows;

That she is like a day in spring,
A luscious caramel,
A humming bird upon the wing,
And every other hackneyed thing
That lovers know so well.

So, now—in earnest, not in jest—
With burning words I swear
That she is like my Sunday vest,
The one that fits and suits me best,
As doth my Stella fair.

Sometimes I tell my only flame
That to my fancy she
Is like a well played base ball game—
Such joys goes surging through my frame
Whenever I chance to see.

Or else I tell my staffordi,
Who says she's mine alone,
She's like a new ten dollar bill
It gives me such a gladsome thrill
To have her for my own.

THE WRONG LETTER.

How My Friend Got Out of a Very Bad Predicament.

One evening last winter as I was walking up and down the platform at the Lyons railway station, waiting for the departure of the southern express, some one tapped me on the shoulder. I turned and saw my friend Jacques.

"Where are you going?" he asked.

"To Nice," I replied.

"So am I. My wife is there."

"Good, we will go on together."

We continued walking up and down the platform, talking about one thing and another. As we passed before the mail-car I said to Jacques: "What a hard life those postal-clerks lead. They must be in a terrible state when they arrive at Marseilles."

"Yes," replied Jacques, "they are completely used up. I can speak from experience, for I once rode two hundred miles with them."

"You have traveled in a mail-car! What for?"

"I will tell you. It's a curious story and one that concerns my marriage."

We took our places, the signal was given, and the train started. Then Jacques told me the following story:

"At that certain epoch a certain blonde countess whom you know—for I suspect that you were a little in love with her yourself—had been a widow for two years, and it was almost decided that she was to become my wife.

"At the time when my story begins it was autumn, and the countess was at her country-house in the Var. We wrote to each other nearly every day—I, in order to tell her that I adored her; she, to occupy her leisure and give me errands to do, for I was then in Paris. At the same time—let those who have not done likewise cast the first stone—I was breaking oil with another sweetheart. That one was not a countess. She was a brunette, and lived in Normandy. Poor Louise! In one respect she resembles the countess—she gave me no end of errands to do.

"One morning the porter brought me two letters and two lists of things to get. Happily I could fill both orders at the Louvre. I ate my breakfast and wrote my replies—one very fervent for the countess; the other, calm and cool, for Louise. Then I started for the Louvre. I selected the samples requested, put them into the unsealed envelopes, closed both letters, and placed them in my pocket. As I was coming out of the Louvre I met our friend Maxime, who was driving on his way to the Bois. He took me along with him, began to tell me some of his stories, and I had quite forgotten my two letters, when a branch post-office at the corner luckily refreshed my memory.

"Maxime pulled up his horse, I got down, bought some postage-stamps, slipped the countess' letter into the box, and while putting the stamp on the other letter, I thought I felt some samples of cloth instead of some pieces of silk that it ought to contain. A cold perspiration poured down my face. I opened the envelope. My boy, I had made a mistake. My letter to Louise had gone to the Var, and, as you may imagine, it was simply the breaking off of my marriage.

"There was no time to weigh the probabilities. I told Maxime to continue his drive alone, and went back into the office to try to undo my stupid blunder.

"Perhaps you think that was an easy matter. The clerk looked at me askance, asked me all sorts of questions, and gave me a sermon on the disadvantages of absent-mindedness. I have not much patience, and I presently got angry and sent the clerk about his business.

"I remembered that I had an acquaintance who held an important position in the post-office department. I jumped into a cab and went to the head office. When I got there, I found that my friend was absent on business connected with the new building. Once there, it took me half an hour to find him. We returned to the head office, where I obtained a letter from the minister's secretary that would open all the post-office bags and boxes throughout the country. But when I got back to the branch post-office, it was five-forty, and I saw the mail-wagon starting off. My letter was, of course, in that wagon.

"I told my cabman to follow the wagon. When we reached the central office at the Tuileries, I showed my ministerial paper. They said to me, very politely:

"'Well, sir, we have three-quarters of an hour to sort two or three hundred thousand letters that go to all parts of the world. You will readily understand that it would be impossible to find yours in that lot. The best thing for you to do is to go to the mail-car at the station. As you have a ministerial order, the clerks there will find your letter for you.'

"I got into the cab and started for the station. As soon as I arrived I went to the car. The clerks wanted to send me to Jericho, but I insisted, and showed my authorization. The head-clerk, thinking probably that I was a detective, said to me: 'Well, sir, get in. We will try and arrange your matter after we start. But for the moment I can not do any thing.'

"I got into the car, which was already half full of sacks, and they had only begun to arrive. They came from all sides, and sometimes it took two men to raise one of the bags. The car was soon full to the top, and the five clerks and myself did not know where to squeeze ourselves. And we expected to find a letter in all that mess. I was losing courage, but there was nothing to be said. If the countess received the letter destined for Louise, I should be done for. I was very much in love, and it was, moreover, a very fine marriage.

"Finally all the sacks had arrived. I crouched into a corner where I nearly stifled between dirty leather pouches that had traveled all over Europe. All I could see were the lamps in the top of the car and the numerous pigeon-holes for the letters. Suddenly I felt the wheels revolve. We had started. The head clerk came to me and asked what I wanted. I explained to him that I wished to get a letter addressed to the Chateau of Beillous, near Barjols, Var.

"'In that case it belongs to the Lyons division. We sort these letters after leaving Dijon. Until we arrive there, all you can do is to wait.'

"I will shorten the tale of my misery. At ten in the morning I arrived at Saint Maxime station. It is at that station that the post-office bag for Barjols is left, and my letter had not yet been found! Just at the moment when the train slackened speed the reason was explained. The clerks, seeing what importance I attached to the unlucky letter, concluded that it must be registered, and so they had not looked for it in the ordinary mail.

"There was nothing to be said, for the train had already stopped. The sack for Barjols was thrown out on the platform. I followed it, for I was determined to have my [illegible]

"I got into the [illegible] on that was to convey the ma[illegible]—the only passengers—to [illegible] How it rained! With my cane, white waistcoat, and tall hat, you can imagine how I looked. The driver told me that it was about sixteen miles from Saint Maxime to Barjols. We didn't say much to each other on the way—I was too busy with my reflections. We crossed deserted spots, and I was separated from my letter only by the hard board on which I was seated. I could have strangled or bribed the driver, but I had not strength enough left for the first operation; as to the second, I had only a few louis in my pocket, and if I had suborned the driver, I should not have had money enough to get back to Paris without begging.

"At last we arrived at Barjols, a pretty little village, containing a thousand inhabitants. I was on the point of going to the post-office to ask for my letter, when a thought came to my mind. What will they say when they see a gentleman coming from Paris in a pouring rain, with a cane for his only piece of baggage, and presenting a ministerial order for a letter addressed to Countess X., well known throughout the neighborhood? The story would soon spread all over the place and the countess would be sure to hear it.

"I decided to be more diplomatic. An hour afterward, when the country letter-carrier left the village of Barjols to go to the chateau, I overtook him, as if by chance, and asked him the way to the countess's residence.

"'I am going there,' he replied; 'if you like to come along with me, do so; it is nine miles.'

"Nine miles! My patent-leather shoes trembled at this announcement. Nevertheless, I started along through the mud. We stopped at each inn and I invited my companion to refresh himself. He kept up well until the fourth village on his route, but after that he was tipsy. As we passed along by a ditch, apparently by accident, I tripped him up, and he rolled over into the opening, which was about three feet deep. To jump in after him, under pretense of helping him out, open his box, secure my letter, and stuff it into my pocket was the work of a minute. To get my man out of the ditch was not so easy. Just as I was succeeding in my task I heard a noise of rolling wheels along the road. I turned around. The rain had ceased and the countess was coming along in her pony wagon.

"How she recognized me in the state I was in, I do not know yet. But she did recognize me, and her stupefaction was equal to my embarrassment, for I had intended to return to Paris without saying a word.

"'Well!' she cried; 'what is the matter? How did you get into such a plight?'

"It was the moment when a man should, if ever, exercise a little imagination.

"'Do you believe in presentiments?' I said to her in a voice made thick by a frightful cold in the head; 'yesterday, at the very moment when I went to put a letter for you into the post-office, I distinctly heard my name pronounced by you in an agonized tone. I thought it was one of those mysterious warnings, of which I know so many examples, and, seized with terror, I started at once for your chateau without returning to my house. I love you so much, Amelia.'

"'I saw her beautiful eyes moisten. As for mine, the cold in my head filled them with tears that were not feigned. Amelia asked me to take a seat beside her, and we drove to the chateau. This proof of love had touched her, and when we arrived before the door, she had pronounced the famous 'yes' that she had hesitated to utter for six months.

"And that is how I came to be married."—Translated for the Argonaut, from the French of Leon de Tinseau.

ENTERING THE KINGDOM.

LESSON IX, THIRD QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, AUG. 31.

Text of the Lesson, Luke xviii, 15-30. Commit Verses, 15-17—Golden Text, Luke xviii, 17—Commentary by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Compiled from Lesson Helper Quarterly by permission of H. S. Hoffman, publisher, Philadelphia.]

15. "And they brought unto Him also infants, that He would touch them: but when His disciples saw it, they rebuked them." The two incidents of this lesson—the little children, and the rich young ruler—are recorded also in Matt. xix, and Mark x. According to Mark and Luke the request was that He should touch them, but according to Matthew He was asked to put His hands on them and pray.

16. "But Jesus called them unto Him, and said, Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not: for of such is the Kingdom of God." Mark adds that He was much displeased. Is there a possibility that we displease Him by not being more interested in bringing the little children unto Him? Surely here is great encouragement for the teachers of the infant class. But in what sense can it be said that "of such is the Kingdom?" It cannot be their innocence, for all are born sinners, children of wrath (Rom. v, 12; Eph. ii, 3), and we go astray as soon as we be born. But see how empty, helpless and dependent an infant is; it has nothing, needs everything; and when we see that that is our condition before God, and come in our helplessness to Him, we shall be accepted of Him, and become children of the Kingdom. As to the safety of little infants who die before they come to the knowledge of good and evil, see Deut. i, 39, and remember that God knows how to make the precious blood of Christ avail for them. The streets of the city shall be full of them (Zech. viii, 5).

17. "Verily I say unto you, Whosoever shall not receive the Kingdom as a little child, shall in no wise enter therein." What, then, shall become of such as will not accept the humiliating truth that "in them dwelleth no good thing," and that "by the deeds of the law (our very best doings) no flesh can be justified in His sight" (Rom. vii, 18; iii, 20), who persist in thinking that if they do as near right as they can God will not cast them out?

18. "And a certain ruler asked Him, saying, Good Master, what shall I do to inherit eternal life?" Mark says that he came running and kneeled to Him. Here is great earnestness, and in an all important matter. Here is humility also. He has none of the proud, self-righteous spirit of the Pharisee in our last lesson; but we shall also see that He has neither the deep conviction of sin of the publican, nor the empty condition of the little child.

19. "And Jesus said unto him, Why callest thou me good? None is good, save one, that is God." Jesus knew just how much he meant by "good," and would awaken him to think. His question may have had this meaning, Do you believe that I am God, and therefore do you thus address me? When we address God in prayer it is well to use only such titles as we understand the significance of, otherwise we are saying meaningless words, as far as we are concerned.

20. "Thou knowest the commandments."

21. "And he said, All these have I kept from my youth up." He, no doubt, thought he had. He was righteous in his own eyes.

22. "Now when Jesus heard these things He said unto him, Yet lackest thou one thing." Mark says that "looking upon him He loved him." There must have been something specially sincere about him that commended him to Jesus, who read his heart. A lovely character no doubt he was, moral, amiable and earnest. But what availed it all if the one essential thing was lacking?

"Sell all that thou hast and distribute unto the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in Heaven: and come, follow me."

23. "And when he heard this he was very sorrowful, for he was very rich." Mark says that he went away grieved. He would not follow Jesus at such a price. The cross was too heavy. His own wealth was more real to him than treasure in heaven. It seems strange to the natural man and unreasonable, but it is the law of the Master for His followers, that to give away is to keep forever, and to keep for one's self is to lose forever.

24. "And when Jesus saw that he was very sorrowful, He said, How hardly shall they that have riches enter into the Kingdom of God." Riches in themselves are not sinful, but it is hard to have them and not be entangled by them. If we could gratefully enjoy and use for the glory of God the things of this world all would be well; but when the good gifts of God take the place of God in the heart then all is wrong.

25. "For it is easier for a camel to go through a needle's eye than for a rich man to enter into the Kingdom of God." It is said that the small gate for the foot passengers might possibly be entered by a camel, if unloaded, but for a loaded camel to pass through it would be an utter impossibility.

26. "And they that heard it said, Who then can be saved?" Perhaps they did not notice that Jesus spoke only of such as, like this man, trust in their riches. In I Cor. i, 26, the Spirit does not say, "Not any wise, or mighty, or noble," but "Not many wise, not many mighty, not many noble are called," and again the Lord said, "Thank God for the latter clause." When we look about us and see the race for wealth, may we not well ask, "Who can be saved?" But it is better to look within, or rather ask the Lord to look within us, for His eyes are sharper than ours, and see if there is any idol in our heart that is either keeping us from being saved, if saved, that is keeping us from being wholly His for His service.

27. "And He said, The things which are impossible with men are possible with God." Or, according to Mark, "With God all things are possible," and "All things are possible to him that believeth" (Mark x, 27; ix, 23). "Ah, Lord God, behold Thou hast made the Heaven and the earth by Thy great power and stretched out arm, and there is nothing too hard for Thee" (Jer. xxxii, 17). His name is Wonderful (Isa. ix, 6; Judg. xiii, 18, R. V.), and He delights to do wondrously. The Greek word for "too hard" and "wonderful" in these passages is the same.

28. "Then Peter said, Lo we have left all and followed Thee." According to Matt. xix, 27, he asks, "What shall we have therefore?" It seemed to Peter that he and the other disciples had done, in their measure, what Jesus had asked the rich ruler to do. But they were not rich; they had only forsaken boats, and nets, and occupation, and home, and friends; yet it was their all.

29, 30. "Manifold more in this present time, and in the world to come Life Everlasting." Mark says, "An hundred fold now in this time," but adds, "with persecutions." Matthew adds that in the regeneration, when the Son of Man shall sit in the throne of His glory, they also shall sit on twelve thrones judging the twelve tribes of Israel (Mark x, 30; Matt. xix, 28).

Why it is Popular.

Because it has proven its absolute merit over and over again, because it has an unequalled record of cures, because its business is conducted in a thoroughly honest manner and because it combines economy and strength, being the only medicine of which "100 Doses One Dollar" is true—these strong points have made Hood's Sarsaparilla the most successful medicine of the pay.

THE OLD EIGHTEENTH.

THE TWENTY-THIRD ANNUAL RE-UNION OF THE REGIMENT HELD AT CLINTON LAST TUESDAY.

The Old Vets Turn Out in Goodly Numbers and Enjoy a Fine Meeting, Despite the Inclement Weather.

The reunion meetings of the Eighteenth Regiment of Michigan Infantry are always well attended. The companies were all recruited in this section of the State, and hence the surviving members can attend the meetings without too great a sacrifice of time and money for the privilege. The boys turned out about one hundred strong at Clinton on Tuesday, and notwithstanding it was a very drizzly disagreeable day, they held a very interesting meeting.

A large number had gathered there at eleven o'clock A. M., and they met at the Town Hall, with the Tecumseh Band. At noon they formed in procession and marched to the depot to meet the contingent arriving on the noon train; the procession was again formed and proceeded to the Town Hall. The boys were called to order by President Hathaway. Prayer was offered by Rev. J. M. Getchell, and the minutes of the last meeting held at Milan were read and approved. An adjournment was then taken for dinner. The procession was again formed and marched to the M. E. church, where a fine collation was served by the ladies of Clinton. Four large tables were spread in the basement of the church and they were twice filled to accommodate the crowd. Nearly two hundred meals were served in all, and it was a dinner such as the old vets who had lived on "hard tack" could fully appreciate.

After dinner the crowd returned to the hall, and at two o'clock the assemblage was again called to order. The Secretary first read several letters and telegrams from absent members regretting their inability to be present, some of which called forth hearty applause. A report of the deaths that had taken place during the last year was presented.

Rev. Williams of Clinton in behalf of the citizens made a neat welcome address to which Rev. Putnam of Tipton, responded in appropriate words.

The President then announced the "The Volunteers of Michigan," to which Gen. Geo. Spaulding was called upon to respond. As the General ascended the platform, the audience welcomed him with three rousing cheers, all rising to their feet. He was quite effected with the heartiness of his reception, and his address, altho' brief, touched the hearts of all present.

On motion, Clayton was chosen as the place for the next meeting, and a special committee was appointed to fix the date. A vote of thanks was extended to the ladies who provided the dinner and to the citizens in general for their hospitality.

Editor Stearns of Adrian was called for and responded in a few well chosen words, saying that he was not a member of the 18th, but was glad to meet them as a common comrade who had fought for the same old flag. Music followed by the old soldiers of the 18th.

J. D. Shull of Tecumseh, was then introduced, who gave the formal address of the day. It was an eloquent effort, finely written and earnestly delivered. Mr. Shull's modesty alone is responsible for its not appearing in print. After the transaction of a little routine business the meeting adjourned for supper.

EVENING SESSION.

At seven o'clock the hall was again filled to overflowing to listen to the exercises of the evening camp fire. The program was opened by the Clinton Glee Club, who sang the old hymn "America." Comrade Henry W. Stevens acted as toastmaster of the camp fire and announced the toasts.

The first sentiment was "Our Fallen Heroes." Rev. J. M. Getchell responded in a neat little speech, and the glee club sang, "Marching through Georgia."

The second toast was "Michigan in the War," which was responded to by Gov. Cyrus G. Luce. The Governor attended the Bridgewater picnic in the afternoon and came over to Clinton in the evening, which proved to be an excellent arrangement, for the boys pressed him into service at the camp fire. He gave the audience an excellent talk of about half an hour, which was heartily appreciated by all.

Capt. Davis' three daughters gave a song, "My Michigan," in a very acceptable manner.

Comrade A. P. Coddington of Tecumseh gave a short talk in his usual happy style.

A song followed by Henry W. Stevens, entitled "We are Comrades together."

Capt. Davis' girls rendered the songs, "Tramp, tramp, tramp" and John Brown very finely.

After a few more short talks the President declared the reunion of 1890 at an end.

The business houses of Clinton were all decorated with flags and bunting and preparations had been made to entertain a big crowd. The inclement weather spoiled the crowd, but the exercises were very interesting and the attendance of the soldiers themselves fully up to the average.

A Mad Murderer.

Mystery of a California Killing

RESOLVES ITSELF INTO AN INTELLIGENT EXPLANATION.

And a Gory Spectacle That Presented Itself to a Curious Boy, is Made a Murder, and the Perpetrator Arrested.

SAN DIEGO, Aug. 25.—Last September a small boy had occasion to visit the lonely cabin of Miss Abbey, a spinster dressmaker, who had taken up a government claim on Otay Mesa, several miles below this city, spending part of her time alone and the rest in San Diego. After knocking and getting no response he pushed open the door and found the woman lying in a pool of blood. Her head was crushed in as if with the heavy blows of an axe, and two bullet holes were in her body. She had apparently been dragged out. No clew of the murderer has ever been discovered. Yesterday a man was arrested. The prisoner's own relatives are his accusers. His name is J. W. Porter. Until recently he was a justice of the peace at Tia Juana, on the Mexican border. The boy who made the discovery of the murder was his son. Thursday Porter walked into the district attorney's office and said that as a warrant had been issued for his arrest upon the charge of being crazy and dangarous to the community, he wanted to give himself up. He was examined by a commission in lunacy in the Superior court and discharged as sane. Immediately upon his release, however, he was rearrested and accused of the murder of Miss Abbey. Several witnesses testified that Porter at various times acted like a lunatic. He chased the members of his family around with revolvers and shot guns several times, while others who had known him for years say that they never knew him to act otherwise than sane. It is supposed that during a frenzy he went to Miss Abbey's cabin and beat her brains out with an axe and then shot her. He is sixty years old and has snow white hair and beard.

A DEADLY BLOW.

Citizen of London, O., in a Precarious Condition.

LONDON, O., Aug. 25.—One week ago, Darius Ladley, a well known farmer and trustee of Oak Run township, went into the grocery store of ex-Councilman George Killeen, of this city, and became engaged in a quarrel with the proprietor over a watermelon. Later the quarrel was renewed at Gould's planing mill, it having come to Killeen's ears that Ladley had said something reflecting on Killeen's wife. Killeen struck Ladley a heavy blow on the side of the head with a heavy gas pipe. After receiving the injury Ladley visited several places, and then suddenly lost consciousness. He is now in a very precarious condition, one side of his body being paralyzed. The attending physician says there is a blood-clot on the brain, and the outcome can not be foretold.

FOUND DEAD.

An Akron Man Who Was Mysteriously Butchered.

AKRON, O., Aug. 25.—The body of Thomas Cardinal, with the throat cut from ear to ear and garments crimson with blood, presented a ghastly appearance when found at the fair grounds. Cardinal had been dead for several hours, and there is strong evidence that he took his own life with a razor that was found about forty feet from where the corpse was discovered. The leaves and earth had been badly kicked about, showing that a horrible struggle had taken place. Cardinal was a highly educated German, about forty years of age, and came here a month ago from Cincinnati. He has appeared very despondent of late, probably due to the fact that his wife died shortly before his leaving Cincinnati.

After the Lottery.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25.—The Louisiana lottery company got another dose in Washington from the authorities. Their headquarters were raided under the direction of Postoffice Inspector John D. King, and a lot of books and tickets seized. Everything was cleaned out. The agent was not arrested because he is now on bail, but he gave bonds to appear before the grand jury. A sub-agent was also arrested and his place raided. The new order of business in the Senate will include the House anti-lottery bill, and congress will not adjourn before this measure becomes a law.

Too Much Married.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., Aug. 25.—L. E. Rheinhold, an attorney of this city, made the astounding discovery that he has been living with a woman who has another husband, since 1882, and he filed suit to have his marriage annulled. His wife was away from home, and while looking over some papers he discovered that his wife had contracted a marriage prior to her union with him, and that the first husband is now a private in the regular army, he having deserted his wife shortly before Rheinhold met and subsequently married her.

A Horrible Find.

NEOSHOE, NEB., Aug. 25.—The head of Charles Thomas, colored, who has been missing since Monday, was found yesterday buried in a field. His arms and legs were found in a thick brush heap near his house and his body in a field, where a fire had been built. The murderer or murderers had tried to burn the corpse, as all the parts were literally roasted. In the ashes were found two nickles and Thomas's knife. Thomas had two sons and two daughters nearly grown, and these and his wife are suspected and have been arrested. He was well-to-do.

Killed by the Cars.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Aug. 25.—John Lake and James Dorsey, well known known residents of this city, were struck by a New York Central train while walking over a trestle just above the depot, and thrown a distance of thirty feet. Lake was killed but Dorsey escaped with slight injury.

Instantly Killed.

BLOOMINGTON, IND., Aug. 25.—Christopher Wolfe, the foreman of the Big Creek quarry, at Stinesville, one of the best stonemen of the county, was instantly killed by the breaking of a derrick. His head was mashed almost off his body. He was a married man.

COMMISSIONERS' NOTICE.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee—ss.

In the matter of the estate of Edward Rowland, deceased.

The undersigned having been appointed by the Probate Court of said County, Commissioners to receive, examine and adjust all claims and demands of all persons against the estate of said deceased, do hereby give notice that we will meet for that purpose at the store of George Heesen & Son, in the village of Tecumseh, in Lenawee County, Michigan, on the 19th day of September, A. D. 1890, and on the 3d day of February, A. D. 1891, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of each of said days.

And that six months from the fourth day of August, A. D. 1890, are allowed by said Probate Court for the creditors of said estate to present their claims to us for examination and allowance.

Dated August 14, 1890.

GEORGE HEESEN,
DELOS L. WHITENACK,
Commissioners.

ESTATE OF SUMNER F. SPOFFORD

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss.

At a session of the Probate Court for the county of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office in the city of Adrian, on Monday, the 18th day of August in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety.

Present, Richard R. Robbins, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Sumner F. Spofford deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Charles Burridge, Administrator upon the estate of said deceased, alleging that the funeral expenses and debts of said deceased and the expenses of administration thus far incurred, have been fully paid, and that he is now ready to close said estate and to render his final administration account, which he prays may be allowed and the residue of said estate assigned and distributed among the persons entitled thereto; that he may be discharged and his bond cancelled, and for such other order as to this Court shall seem proper.

It is ordered, That Monday, the 15th day of September next, at 9 o'clock in the forenoon be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

(A True Copy.)

Sadie Taylor starts this week for her school in Indiana. She will stop at Hillsdale and visit a day or two on her way.

Rodman Taylor received a telegram Friday evening, announcing the death of his only sister, Mrs. Mary Parker, at Eaton Rapids. He left on the noon train, Saturday, to attend the funeral.

Can any one tell why the first frost of the season nearly always comes at the time of the full moon? We escaped this time "by the skin of our teeth" and are glad crops can have a few more days grace. So unfavorable a season for fall crops has scarce ever been known in Michigan.

MACON MUSIC.

Persis Rimert, who has been visiting at Bellevue for the past month, returned home last Saturday.

Mrs. Wm. Aten is visiting friends here for a few days.

Will Hatch started last Friday for the State of Washington, where he has a situation as bookkeeper in a store. Here is success to the young adventurer. Go west, young man, go west!

Rev. Mawherter preached his farewell sermon here last Sunday. He has decided to devote his whole time to his charge at Samaria.

Horace Burgess has been trading horses. He now has a young horse and we expect the mail will be on time as usual.

The barn of Mrs. Samuel Robinson was struck by lightning last Thursday night and burned to the ground, with a large quantity of hay and wheat. There was some stock in the barn but it was all saved. We understand it was fully insured.

Minta Jackson, Katie Ellis and Emma Cotton will attend school at Clinton this fall and winter.

Geo. Frost realizes that a cold winter is approaching and is preparing for it by putting a cellar under his house.

TIPTON TOPICS.

Farmers are having excellent weather for seeding.

Liva G. Wilbur, of Palmyra, has been visiting her many Franklin friends the past week.

The entertainment given by Mrs. Kemp's class of elocution, last Friday evening, was a grand success and every one felt well repaid for time spent.

Quite a number from Tipton anticipate attending the exposition this week.

The M. E. society will hold a peach and cream social at the home of C. W. Luce next Friday evening. All are cordially invited to attend.

Will Boyce of Jackson is spending a few days with his relatives here.

HANDLING THE WORD OF GOD DECEITFULLY

H. L. Adams, of Battle Creek, has an article in the HERALD of Aug. 7, intended, he says, to correct the misleading statements made by this correspondent in a former article.

The "statements" were these: I said the book he carried was not orthodox and I do not take back the assertion. The columns of the HERALD would hardly be available for a discussion of the religious tenets of any sect, but I am willing to leave the question of orthodoxy to the intelligence of the reading public.

I said it was an Adventist book and the agent does not attempt to deny it. I said that in every case that had come to my knowledge the fact of its being an Adventist book had been carefully concealed from the purchaser and he does not pretend that it was otherwise in any case. Where, then, are the "misleading statements" he complains of?

I have not the slightest objection to people buying that class of books, if they want them, and had no desire to accomplish the "downfall of the agent." All I wanted was to let people know what they were getting—a thing he was careful not to do. If, as he says, my article helped him to make a "good and speedy delivery" he ought to thank me, instead of feeling so bitter about it.

He says in the book is "the Bible, pure and simple." It is made up of leading questions cunningly devised and arranged and answered in Bible language. I have not read all the book—it was not necessary but have given it a thorough examination, and, I may add, have read all the Scriptures quoted therein many times and read them, too, in their proper connection. It is easy to take isolated passages, interpret them as you choose and make them prove whatever you wish. In the case of prophecies, especially those clothed in such mystic imagery as the book of Daniel and Revelations, it is always safest to interpret them after they are fulfilled. In that way one may avoid the mistakes Adventists have so often made in fixing the date of the world's destruction—a line of prophecy now abandoned, I believe.

God forbid that our salvation should depend, as they would have us to believe, on a correct understanding of those mysterious writings. Rather let us shun vain disputations and build our faith on those Scriptures which make the way so plain that a wayfaring may, though a fool, need not err therein.

A FINE SORGHUM MILL.

Business calling us to Britton one day last week, we took occasion to visit the Sorghum mill of Gripton Bros., located one mile east of the village. They have been making some additions and improvements to their works this fall and they are now better equipped than ever for manufacturing sorghum molasses of prime quality. Their power for grinding the cane and furnishing steam for boiling consists of a fifteen-horse power engine and boiler. They have a three roller grinder, one of the best made. The sap, as the cane is crushed, first flows into a vat beneath, thence by a two-inch pipe into a barrel, which is sunk into the ground just inside of the main building. From there it is pumped by machinery into an upper reservoir. It is then fed into two tanks six feet long and two feet square, with a coil of iron pipes in the bottom, where it receives its first boiling by steam. It is then drawn into a Cook's evaporator, where it is subjected to a further boiling with fire heat. Thence it is drawn into the finishing tank, whic has a coil of copper pipes in the bottom, where it receives its last boiling by steam heat. It is next drawn off into a half-barrel can and hoisted into the second story and thence slowly conveyed through a zinc cooler back to the lower floor, from which it is drawn into barrels or cans for use. This cooler is Charley Gripton's own invention. It is made with two sets of pipes, one inside of the other. The syrup flows through the inner pipes and a stream of cold water is kept flowing through the outer pipes. The syrup enters the cooler at 230 degrees and when it escapes it is cool enough to be used on the table. The sap is run through a strainer at every change, from the grinder to the cooler going through five strainers. The works will turn out about 150 gallons of finished molasses per day. Each man's cane can be kept separate, no matter how large or small an amount he may have, so every customer can be certain of receiving the molasses made from his own cane. The boys began making sorghum syrup about thirty years ago, the very first season that cane was raised in this vicinity, and they have been making improvements ever since. They are experts at the business and their appliances are of the very best order. They have three acres of splendid Amber cane on their own farm which they will begin grinding on next week, and the season will run about six weeks. They expect to turn out at least four thousand gallons this fall.

GOOD NEWS FOR THE SICK.

We would call our readers' attention to the fact that the well-known specialist, Dr. Kalkhoff, will be in Tecumseh at the Lilley House on Tuesday, September 9th, where he may be consulted free of charge in four different languages. Dr. Kalkhoff is not only a graduate of the leading American College, but also of the most celebrated College in Europe, the Royal University of Vienna, where he has studied the special diseases he treats, under the leading specialist in such diseases in the world. His treatment is original and entirely different from anything you have ever had before. He cures chronic diseases where others merely relieve. His remedies are mostly imported and come from the great laboratories of the German chemists and importers. Since his permanent location in Lenawee county he has treated and cured more patients than any physician who has ever lived here. He can refer you to persons by the dozen, right in this county, who have lingered for years from some chronic ailment, and who are now permanently cured. Dr. Kalkhoff's experience has been so extensive that he can locate your disease without asking any questions. If a physician can not do that he simply does not understand your case, and how can you expect him to cure you? Remember the date—Tuesday, September 9th.

Democratic Representative Convention—First District.

The Democratic convention for the First Representative district of Lenawee County, composed of the townships of Blissfield, Clinton, Deerfield, Macon, Ogden, Palmyra, Riga, Raisin, Ridgeway and Tecumseh will be held at Music Hall in the village of Blissfield on Thursday, Sept. 11th, 1890, at 2 o'clock p. m., to nominate a candidate for Representative in the state legislature and transact such other business as may properly be presented. By Order of the District Com.

TECUMSEH, THURSDAY, SEPT. 4.

The vote on the tariff bill in the Senate will begin on Monday, Sept. 8th.

If the personal squabbles in the House of Representatives are to continue Congress should make an appropriation for boxing gloves.

The Wisconsin Democrats have caught the general enthusiasm and they are going in to win this fall also.

An exchange pronounces this epitaph on the Force bill: "Born twenty-five years too late."

The Ohio Democracy held a rousing convention last week. They are going in to win again this fall.

James M. Turner is the Republican nominee for governor. The Republicans have blundered. Now, if the Democrats will nominate Judge Winans they will stand more than an even chance of success.

Gen. John M. Palmer has opened the campaign thus early in Illinois and is already making it hot for the high taxers all along the line.

The political pot is beginning to bubble right here in Lenawee County. The Congressional and County tickets will soon be in the field. There will be lots of fun this fall.

There is some talk now of calling an extra session of Congress immediately after election to pass the Force bill. We predict that the result of the elections will effectually squelch that scheme.

Speaker Reed's services are badly needed in Kansas and Nebraska to quell the mutiny in the Republican ranks. The farmers are in open revolt against the McKinley tariff bill.

Reed's gag rules were adopted to "expedite business." Their only value practically has been to stifle discussion and to retard legitimate legislation. The real business of the session is still dragging its slow length along.

If there are any partisans so maddened by sectional hate as to yet want the Force election bill passed let them read the following election figures from the great industrial centers of Northern citizens and capital in Alabama:

	1888		1890
	Rep.	Dem.	Rep.	Dem.
Jefferson (Birmingham)	3,001	5,508	921	7,921
Lauderdale (Florence)	1,12)	1,637	437	1,473
Talladega (Talladega)	2,179	1,983	637	2,472

There is no pretence that anybody was hindered from voting at the late election, and it is admitted on all sides that property-owning Republicans, white and black, voted the Democratic ticket to emphasize their opposition to the then pending Force bill.

The leaders of the Republican party are displaying a great deal of energy just now, but as it is being expended in contests between themselves, which have approached the point of extreme bitterness and fury, the Democrats can afford to look on complacently and approvingly. The present state of internal dissension, which bodes the overthrow and dissolution of the party in power, is the logical and natural outcome of the grotesque union of elements which brought about its temporary success. The Puritan and the blackleg may for a time combine, but they are sure to fall out.—Courier Journal.

An exchange sizes up the present situation in these words:

The Republican leaders at Washington have succeeded in placing themselves in a most embarrassing position. If they enact the McKinley bill into law, it is already a foregone conclusion that their party will be defeated at the next election. The same result is inevitable if they pass the Force bill and thus demoralize the business relations between the North and South. On the other hand, if they abandon either or both of these measures, they stand convicted of cowardice before the entire country. They are evidently in the position of the traditional gentleman who bit off more than he could conveniently masticate.

RECIPROCITY AND THE FARMER.

And now republicans are retorting to Mr. Blaine (and with good reason) that if the McKinley bill will not open a market for a barrel of pork or a bushel of wheat, neither will this proposed reciprocity measure, for the reason that the South and Central American countries feed themselves chiefly and some of them export breadstuffs quite extensively. Official figures show that breadstuffs imported from this country into those states are ridiculously small in amount and are scarcely worth considering. The hordes which are hungry for American foods dwell across the sea, and with them, this country refuses interchange of necessary commodites by prohibiting their wares from entering our ports under tax penalty. France and Germany emulate our example and decree that that their people shall pay high prices for scarce products to maintain the home market, and here, are farmers may burn their corn for fuel and shut down their over productive mills, likewise to preserve the home market. England retaliates by buying of us only when she must. This is republican policy and in its workings there is no hope for improvement in the farmer's condition.

Reciprocity treaties with the South American states ought to increase our exports of manufactured goods to those countries. According to official figures, Brazil, the Argentine Republic, Chili, Mexico and the United States of Columbia together import yearly a little below $40,000,000 worth of cotton goods alone, from Great Britain, France approximates $4,000,000 and the United States a little more than $2,000,000. It would seem in view of our proximity and our wealth of raw material, that this country ought to have that trade in cotton goods. If reciprocity will do that it will accomplish something for the manufacturer, but nothing for the farmer. But go ahead with your reciprocity—limited as it is, it is according to the Democratic faith, and must expand. To help the agricultural community which is suffering from long depression, the result of unjust discrimination, the reciprocity idea must be extended to the countries where there is demand for our surplus food product.—Toledo Bee.

ADVANCE IN PRICE OF SILVER.

The theory of the intrinsic value of the money metals has received a severe if not fatal shock in the recent advance in the price of bar silver throughout the world. The United States congress, by ordering the purchase of 4,500,000 ounces monthly, to be used for money, largely increased the demand for silver. Already the price has advanced 15 cents an ounce in this country and eight pence an ounce in England. Not an ounce has yet been purchased, but the prospective demand has increased the price, and if there is no further advance, the present increase will put an extra $675,000 a month into the pockets of the silver mine and the bullion owners equivalent to $8,100,000 a year. In London the unprecedented rise in the value of the precious metal throughout the world is attributed to the passage of the silver bill in this country. Indian and Chinese exchanges are especially effected, because India and China are silver countries. The effect is so marked that the remonetization of silver is again becoming the chief topic of discussion in Europe.

The effect of the increased demand for silver for use as a money metal illustrates the point heretofore made by the Patriot, that making gold by law the only money metal increased its value largely and decreased the price of all commodities when measured by it, impairing the debt-paying ability of the the people, and making the burden of debt, interest and taxes heavier.

The blunder if not crime, committed by our present congress, consists in not providing for the free coinage of silver, and restoring the silver "dollar of the daddies" to its old place as the unit of value in our monetary system. But with a congress made up of ignoramuses, and the majority led by a few adroit knaves of the Tom Reed type, the people must suffer.—Jackson Patriot.

WHAT RECIPROCITY MEANS.

It is charged that BLAINE'S reciprocity theory means free wool and free iron ores for the languishing manufacturers of New England. Of course it does not, and it would be valueless if if meant anything else. He sees what the lesser party leaders either can't or won't see, viz.—that we must have free raw material even to save our home markets to our home industries and that the utmost cheapness of product consistent with well-paid labor must be attained to enable our industries to enter the markets of the world. He sees that the people of this country won't submit to taxes on wool, in the growth of which there is practically no labor, when the only result is to increase the cost of clothing and other necessaries for the masses and give English mills and English labor the supply of all our better grades of woolens; and seeing this, he seeks the remedy without demoralizing the party by directly ordering a retreat from the indefensible party entrenchments. BLAINE calls it reciprocity; it means free raw materials for our labor and the reciprocity logically follows.—Philadelphia Times.

TARIFF REFORM IN 1877.

The idea that all manufacturers are necessarily high tariff men is receiving some severe shocks these days. To show that "tariff reform" has long been working with them we print the clipping below, which we found among some old old newspaper clippings a few days ago. The letter was written by Gen. Withington, treasurer of the firm of Withington & Cooley, of Jackson:

JACKSON, Mich., Dec. 13, 1877.

The Hon. James H. McGowan:

DEAR SIR—I notice by the papers that the Ways and Means committee are in receipt of various communications from manufacturers and others protesting against reductions in the tariff, etc.

As a point on the other side, will you please submit to the committee the fact that the manufacturers of hay and manure forks, cast steel hoes, garden rakes and like tools, are able not only to sustain themselves at home against foreign manufacturers, but to export their product to England, France, Germany and other European countries. Not less than 30,000 dozen hay and manure forks were shipped from this country to Europe last year, had I think more than that.

The chief cost of a fork is in the steel and the labor thereon. It is comparatively a plain tool, and not protected by patents. England has been supposed to excel in the production of steel and goods therefrom. We ask no protection on our part against her or any other country.

Half of our product of forks last year went abroad. Very truly yours,

W. H. WITHINGTON, Treas.

THE TIN PLATE TARIFF.

While this tin-plate tariff discussion is proceeding, a few facts for reference may be noted. The people of this country use about four hundred thousand tons of tin plate every year. Every householder in the land, from the cabin to the castle, knows how largely tin enters into the domestic economy of living. The duty on tin plate imported last year amounted to $7,541,000. As yet, no tin has been produced in this country, but in anticipation of what may be done in the South Dakota district, where it has been discovered, this yearly tax is raised by the McKinley bill to $10,000,000 a year (proportionately on the same amount.) The prospective tin mine is owned principally by English capitalists; and it is for these that sixty-five million Americans are to be taxed.

It might be pertinent to ask why a tax of seven and a half millions yearly has been collected on an article that was not produced here and not remotely liable to be (until the recent discovery.)

If the users of tin in this country must pay tribute to the one mining company, two-thirds of whom are foreigners, then Senator Plumb's proposition is worthy consideration: "Allow the price of tin-plate to adjust itself and pay a bounty for every pound manufactured in the United States. The tax upon the people would not be so heavy for a great number of years, and when the contributors to the fund for the aid of the business became convinced that such levy was unjust, unwise and unnecessary, a repeal of the provision might not be impossible."

ELECTORAL REFORM.

Since the Force bill has been neatly done up in lavender and carefully laid upon the shelf for the summer, the venerable Hoar might put in some of his leisure profitably laboring for electoral reform in Massachusetts. On a free vote and a fair count Massachusetts would be more apt to go Democratic than Mississippi would be to go Republican, even with the Force bill. The slaughter of several thousand negroes at the polls in Mississippi every year is not nearly so effective in suppressing votes as is the Massachusetts plan of starving by depriving of work the factory operatives and other hired people who presume to vote the Democratic ticket in the midst of New England enlightenment, morality and godliness. The slaughter of the negroes is not so well authenticated as it might be, but there is no doubt about the wholesale suppression of Democratic votes by the tariff barons in all the "industrial" States of the East. Mr. Hoar should look to this thing. Reform, like charity, should begin at home. Besides Massachusetts claims the honor of leading all the great moral reforms, and its example just now would be very helpful to the benighted South as well as to the intelligent but unregenerate managers of the Harrison campaign. As the New York World somewhat heartlessly puts it, "You should stop buying 'floaters in blocks of five' in Indiana and purchasing voters en bloc in this city and Brooklyn before you take charge of reforming other people." If Mr. Hoar expects to be listened to with patience in advocacy of the Force bill at the next session, he should take care that every man in Massachusetts casts an absolutely free and unintimidated vote at the coming November elections.—St. Louis Republic.

It Removes Pimples and Blotches.

I take pleasure in recommending Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) as a Blood Purifier. A few bottles cured me of a blood trouble after all other remedies had failed. It also removed pimples and blotches from my face, leaving the face clear and smooth. While taking S. S. S. my appetite increased and my general health improved. Its effects as a tonic are unequalled.

Sores on his Hands.

I cheerfully bear testimony to the curative properties of your wonderful Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) I was troubled with sores on my hands which I could not cure, my blood was so out of order. I was advised by a friend to try S. S. S., and was surprised to find that after using one bottle I was entirely cured, and have not been troubled since.

Brooks' Kidney and Liver Syrup.

Will achieve the desired result without griping the bowels. The liver gland is gently but effectually impelled to perform its duty of secreting the bile and that fluid is directed into its proper channel. The billious complexion, pains the region of the organ afflicted, fur upon the tongue, an unpleasant odor of the breath, and other symptoms of chronic liver derangement, will vanish with promptitude and certainty, in consequence of the powerful action exerted upon the liver and by this safe, painless and invigorating medicine. Persons afflicted with deranaged liver and kidneys, biliousness and sick headache, are earnestly advised to take Brook's Kidney and Liver Syrup. It is pleasant to take and powerful and effective in its action.

For Sale by C. A. Wright & Co.

Important.

Disease of the kidneys is regarded by the medical profession as one of the most serious afflictions that affect the human body. Too great care cannot be used in preserving these organs. Brook's Kidney and Liver Syrup can be relied upon to give tone and strength to deceased kidneys, and restore them to a healthy action. For sale by C. A. Wright & Co.

A Fortunate Young Lady.

Miss Jennie Martin, 176 North St. Rochester, N. Y. says: I suffered long from Kidney complaints—home physicians failed to afford relief. A friend induced me to try Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, made at Rondout, N. Y. The effect was wonderful. When I had taken two bottles I was cured and have had no trouble since. I write for the benefit of others.

It is the Experience of Multitudes.

Of intelligent people that a preseverving use of Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, of Rondout, N. Y. will cure Fever and Ague, Billiousness, Rheumatism, Debility of the Stomach, Bowels, Kidneys, and Bladder, and all disorders arising from an impure state of the blood, when no other medicine or treatment has been of any permanent benefit.

The importance of purifying the blood cannot be overestimated, for without pure blood you cannot enjoy good health.

At this season nearly every one needs a good medicine to purify, vitalize, and enrich the blood, and we ask you to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. It strengthens and builds up the system, creates an appetite, and tones the digestion, while it eradicates disease. The peculiar combination, proportion, and preparation of the vegetable remedies used give to Hood's Sarsaparilla peculiar curative powers. No other medicine has such a record of wonderful cures. If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to take any other instead. It is a Peculiar Medicine, and is worthy your confidence.

Peculiar To Itself

Hood's Sarsaparilla is sold by all druggists. Prepared by C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Less House-Cleaning More Health

Less Annoyance More Comfort

Such is the experience of women who use Pearline for house-cleaning, and the degree of health and comfort is largely due to the way they use it. Directions for saving labor on every package. Delicate women can clean house by its aid; children will be a help, and husbands will never know the work is going on—out of the way, and they will be ignorant of it. It is bosh to say that Pearline hurts the clothing, the paint or the hands. Numbers of people clean their teeth with it; many babes have been washed with it from their birth; the most delicate of laces and linens have been subjected to the severest of tests. Everything washable, and everybody who must do this work, is benefitted by reason of the use of Pyle's Pearline. It's the modern soap. You'll know it and use it sooner or later. Your grocer keeps the goods.

Beware Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers are offering imitations which they claim to be Pearline, or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—they are not, and besides are dangerous. 164 JAMES PYLE, New York.

MILLS SHUT DOWN.

WHY THE COTTON MILLS RESOLVED TO CLOSE THEIR DOORS.

An Over Production of Cotton Cloth for the Home Market—Protected Mills Stand Idle and Make No Struggle for a Foreign Market.

A late number of The Boston Commercial Bulletin makes the following statements in regard to the shutting down of mills in the cotton manufacturing industry:

"This week's manufacturing news shows a long list of silent wheels in the cotton industry. Some of the mills reported closed have shut down merely to make necessary repairs or to change machinery; others are factories running on print cloths, which are closed to relieve the overstocked market, and still others shut down on account of labor troubles. The print cloth companies which agreed to the shut down, as reported last week, have not generally closed their mills as yet, but intend to do so next week. There is some talk in Fall River of an annual stoppage of machinery for a period of six days. This would certainly do much toward keeping the market on a more even basis and would go far toward preventing such an overstocked print cloth market as there is at present."

These cotton manufacturers are great believers in the "home market;" but, as they can make more goods than the home market can consume, they find it necessary to shut down their mills to let the consumption overtake the supply.

It is stated by The Dry Goods Economist that the surplus stocks now on hand at the mills will reach nearly 900,000 pieces. The mills affected by the shut down have a weekly output of about 465,000 pieces, and the agreement is that the stoppages shall be for one week, with the probability that it may extend to two weeks. It is even suggested that the shut down continue for one month.

But why should these manufacturers shut down their mills at all? Is it not clear that after the people have voted high taxes upon themselves in order to protect the mill owners these latter should keep their mills in operation all the time in order to give the taxpayers the benefit of the cheapest possible goods? Is it fair to ask the people to tax themselves for the benefit of mills that stand idle a part of the time? These cotton mills have the advantage of protective duties ranging from 39 to 69 per cent. ad valorem. Does not that fact lay them under some obligations to the public?

But it will be answered, "The manufacturers have already supplied the home market, and yet they have 900,000 pieces of cloth left over. They are compelled to shut down—what else shall they do?"

To which it is reasonable to answer, "Let them launch out into the markets of the world—anything rather than that American enterprises should halt for one day and stand idle in the market places of the nations."

But just there is the fatal weakness which protection has fostered in our manufacturers—an exclusive reliance on the home market, which is guaranteed to them by their country's laws, and an excessive timidity and self distrust when they are invited to cease clinging to the shore and to steer out into wider waters.

This is not an idle indictment based upon outside opinion. The feeling of our cotton manufacturers toward the foreign market and their astonishing lack of enterprise in not cutting a large figure in that market may be seen from the following words, which were written by an agent of one of these very mills:

"If the cotton mills would only cater more to the foreign trade they would have a market for their goods whenever business gets dull at home. The South American trade is especially desirable, and could be easily built up if the manufacturers would look into and consider the necessary points to be covered. Whenever there is a depression at home, as at present, they think of the export trade more seriously, but the very minute the home demand springs up and increases they have entirely forgotten export interests, which if developed in the proper way would serve them well in future dull periods."

And precisely the same opinion is expressed by The New York Dry Goods Economist, which is the principal trade paper of the dry goods business in the United States.

This paper says of the cotton manufacturers: "The majority never give any thought to the export trade until the home market is glutted and stocks must be moved. Then they sell at any prices they can get until they bring the home market to the better condition previously described. That is the sole reason why the export trade in cotton goods is no larger and so variable."

It will not do for these manufacturers to plead any longer that they cannot compete in foreign markets. As a matter of fact there are a few enterprising mills which export a very large quantity of cotton cloth. The Jackson Manufacturing company at Nashua, N. H., exports more than 30,000,000 yards a year. Another mill exports 10,000,000 yards. There are other large mills which export considerable amounts. Our total exports of cotton cloth last year were 118,000,000 yards.

But it is true that the great mass of our cotton mill owners give themselves absolutely no concern about the foreign market. Why? They prefer the higher profits which protection guarantees to them in the home market, even though they have to shut down their mills for a time to keep up their home market prices. Figures are frequently published in the trade papers giving the annual dividends of these mills, and many of them show very large earnings, and the stocks of some of them are at an enormous premium. A case was recently pointed to in the senate where the stocks of a certain New England cotton mill were held at more than double their original value.

The trouble about the whole thing is that American manufacturers can be satisfied only with dividends which to ordinary people seem excessive. That is why they give so little attention to building up a foreign market for cotton goods. They prefer the larger profits of the protected home market, and in the home market they prefer to confine themselves to the most highly protected and consequently most profitable forms of manufacturing.

Senator Plumb said in the senate, speaking on this very point, that "the American manufacturer does not manufacture anything he cannot make a certain and great profit on, and he stands out of the way of the foreign manufacturer as to other articles on which he cannot make satisfactory profits."

GEN. GRANT AND MARK TWAIN.

How They Felt on Going Into Their First Battle.

Gen. Grant tells us that when he went into his first battle he was very much afraid, but that he picked up courage when he thought that perhaps the fellows on the other side might be just as much afraid as he was. Now, Mark Twain happened to be on the other side in the same fight, and he tells us in his humorous way that he went through precisely the same fears.

It is a curious incident, but it illustrates exactly how one protected nation feels toward another protected nation.

Maj. McKinley says in his report accompanying the tariff bill: "The 'world's market,' to which the advocates of a tariff for revenue only invite the farmers of this country, is today crowded with the products of the cheapest human labor the earth affords. All over the Old World there is a rush of their surplus to that market, and it is to such a contest as this that free trade would allure American agriculture."

That is how Gen. Grant felt—all fear and trembling; but perhaps Mark Twain—the fellow on the other side—feels the same fear. Let us see.

Some time ago the Austrian government sent Professor Wilckens over here to study the agricultural conditions prevailing with us. The professor has written for a German paper, The Farmer, an account of what he saw here, and in this account he makes a comparison between the condition of the German and the American farmer. Consul General Edwards, of Berlin, has sent this article by Professor Wilckens to the state department at Washington, and a translation of it appears in the consular "Reports" for May.

Professor Wilckens says: "I am convinced that if American business men call an enterprise into life they will put it through with all their energy and in spite of all obstacles, even if there is a loss at the outset. I also do not doubt but that America in the near future will introduce into Germany with profit great numbers of living food cattle. We, moreover, dare not hold to the conviction that Germany, in the masses of agricultural production, can compete with North America." In the closing paragraph he says: "It were folly for German farmers to shut their eyes to this mighty intellectual movement of North American farmers, and it were madness to believe that they can compete with North America in the mass of farm productions."

But this is not the only case to show how "the fellow on the other side" feels; the same feeling prevails in France. A leading French economist, M. Joseph Chailley, writes for "L'Economiste Francais" an account of the McKinley bill, and the majority and minority reports accompanying it, in which account he says: "The McKinley bill has recently excited considerable discussion. It would be worthy of this attention by reason of its provisions alone; but the analogy which the bill discloses between the state of opinion among American protectionists and our own makes the bill still more interesting. In fact, when you read the bill you would think it had been made not for the United States but for France. The same complaints which we bring up against American producers they themselves bring up against us. For these reasons the reading of the bill and the two reports which accompany it is eminently instructive."

From all which it appears that Mark Twain is just as much afraid as was Gen. Grant.

The quotations above made have some bearing upon the "pauper labor" arguments. McKinley tells us, upon the authority of Statistician Dodge of the agricultural department, that the cost of farm labor in Germany is $90, and in France $125, while in America the cost is $220; and yet protection on the other side is upheld by the cry that they cannot compete with us! Is it not extremely foolish, then, for Maj. McKinley to give the cost of farm labor in those countries and among us, with absolutely no regard to the greater productiveness of our labor—and make this the excuse for his "tin-whistle duties," as Butterworth says, on farm products?

Hurrying Up Imports.

The largely increased importation of dry goods at New York is very significant in view of the probable passage of the McKinley bill. In order to avoid the enormous duties imposed by that measure the importers have been hurrying goods into the country at an unusual rate. For the third week in July the dry goods imports at New York reached the sum of $3,978,202, as against $2,562,587 for the corresponding week last year.

During the month of May the imports of woolen cloths and knit goods into the United States were double the amount for May, 1889, and the imports of women's and children's dress goods for May were more than a million yards greater than for the same time last year. The meaning of this haste to get foreign goods into the country is that the tariff is a tax, and like all other taxes the men who pay it want as little of it as possible. The pretense that the foreigner pays this tax is not for a moment admitted by the men who do our importing. They know too well that they pay the duty, and that it is shifted back upon the consumer, who pays it finally

Brooks' Kidney and Liver Syrup

When the pain in the liver is accompanied by constipation, bilious patients will usually find Brooks' Kidney and Liver Syrup sufficient to relax the bowels—and it should be borne in mind that it is not a drastic purgative but will afford the hepatic organ unspeakable relief. Sold by C. A. Wright & Co.

The Liver

When out of order, involves every organ of the body. Remedies for some other derangement are frequently taken without the least effect, because it is the liver which is the real source of the trouble, and until that is set right there can be no health, strength, or comfort in any part of the system. Mercury, in some form, is a common specific for a sluggish liver; but a far safer and more effective medicine is

Ayer's Pills.

For loss of appetite, bilious troubles, constipation, indigestion, and sick headache, these Pills are unsurpassed.

"For a long time I was a sufferer from stomach, liver, and kidney troubles, experiencing much difficulty in digestion, with severe pains in the lumbar region and other parts of the body. Having tried a variety of remedies, including warm baths, with only temporary relief, about three months ago I began the use of Ayer's Pills, and my health is so much improved that I gladly testify to the superior merits of this medicine."—Manoel Jorge Pereira, Porto, Portugal.

"For the cure of headache, Ayer's Cathartic Pills are the most effective medicine I ever used."—R. K. James, Dorchester, Mass.

"When I feel the need of a cathartic, I take Ayer's Pills, and find them to be more effective than any other pill I ever took."—Mrs. B. C. Grubb, Burwellville, Va.

"I have found in Ayer's Pills, an invaluable remedy for constipation, biliousness, and kindred disorders, peculiar to miasmatic localities. Taken in small and frequent doses, these Pills on the liver, restoring its natural powers, and aiding it in throwing off malarial poisons."—C. F. Alston, Quitman, Texas.

Act Well

"Whenever I am troubled with constipation, or suffer from loss of appetite, Ayer's Pills set me right again."—A. J. Kiser, Jr., Rock House, Va.

"In 1858, by the advice of a friend, I began the use of Ayer's Pills as a remedy for biliousness, constipation, high fevers, and colds. They served me better than anything I had previously tried, and I have used them in attacks of that sort ever since."—H. W. Hersh, Judsonia, Ark.

Marvelous Endurance.

The vast amount of labor performed by the heart in keeping all portions of the body supplied with blood is not generally known. It beats 100,000 times and forces the blood at the rate of 168 miles a day, which is 3 000,000,000 times and 5,150,880 miles in a life time. No wonder there are so many HEART FAILURES. The first symptoms are shortness of breath when exercising, pain in the side or stomach, fluttering choking in throat, oppression, then follow weak, hungry or smothering spells, swollen ankles, etc. Dr. Franklin Miles' NEW HEART CURE is the only reliable remedy. HAPPY RECOVERY

There is nothing I now enjoy that I do not owe to having used Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, of Rondout, N. Y., at a time when I was suffering all that a human being could endure. My troubles began in my kidneys, from which I never expected to recover. My physicians said I had

Bright's Disease.

Later I had a bad attack of Gravel. Six years ago last June—how well I remember that day—I saw Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy advertised in our paper. After using three bottles I was well. I have never had a return of the disease, and though I am over 60 years of age I am vigorous and strong as I was in my prime. What physicians and the many remedies I had taken could not do Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy did. It stayed the disease and made me a well woman.—Mrs. Emiline P. Mizner, Burg Hill, O.

THE FIGURE "9."

The figure 9 in our dates will make a long stay No man or woman now living will ever date a document without using the figure 9. It stands in the third place in 1890, where it will remain ten years and then move up to second place in 1900 where it will rest for one hundred years.

There is another "9" which has also come to stay. It is unlike the figure 9 in our dates in the respect that it has already moved up to first place, where it will permanently remain. It is called the "No 9" High Arm Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine

The "No. 9" was endorsed for first place by the experts of Europe at the Paris Exposition of 1889 where, after a severe contest with the leading machines of the world, it was awarded the only Grand Prize given to family sewing machines, all others on exhibit having received lower awards of gold medals, etc. The French Government also recognized its superiority by the decoration of Mr. Nathaniel Wheeler, President of the company, with the Cross of the Legion of Honor.

The "No. 9" is not an old machine improved upon, but is an entirely new machine, and the Grand Prize at Paris was awarded it as the grand est advance in sewing machine mechanism of the age. Those who buy it can rest assured, therefore, of having the very latest and best.

WHEELER & WILSON M'F'G CO.,
150 and 127 Wabash Ave., Chicago.
Sold by J. S. Kinney, Tecumseh.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with Inflammation.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years,

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Prices 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by dealers in medicine.

FIFTY YEARS AGO.

Paper Read at the Last Pioneer Meeting by the Retiring President, Francis A. Dewey.

I wi l here add a few lines about the first family of this county, their number being five. Mr. Evans surveyor, surveyed the U. S. military road from Detroit to Chicago, 285 miles in the year 1825. In 1832 surveyed the military turnpike, from Monroe to Cambridge, distance 50 miles. Our enterprising pioneer removed with his family from Tecumseh. in 1836, to Texas, where he died at the age of 65 years. Thus passed down to the tomb a noble, generous and intelligent man; in my opinion we have had no better citizen than the first pioneer. I will say a word about the mails of 1829, which were carried from Detroit to Tecumseh three times a week and to Adrian twice a week. Also once a week from Tecumseh to Chicago, being transported on an Indian pony and French rider, which got their fodder ing luncheon near the forest trail day and night. We now see the improvement: In former years it took seven days to carry the mail from Detroit to Chicago with about a pound of mail matter, at the present time with nearly 200 lbs. daily, the same distance it is moved over the road in about eight hours. We see a share of the monumental forests are gone and with gratification we look over the fertile and unexcelled farms, for grass grain and excellent fruits, with towns and genuine, business cities in all directions and a population with large scientific attainments; but for generous friendship and cordial good will there has not been, in my opinion, so much improvement.

In the year 1832 was the Black Hawk war which called out a large share whose bravery did not falter in the Indian country. Your speaker was in that memorable wilderness campaign and respectfully says was drum major of the regiment, and will also say the first tenor drum brought to this county came with my baggage.

It is with pleasure we sometimes review. My father bought 160 acres of land at Tecumseh, of Luther Rawson with log house on it, a few acres cleared, and the best framed barn in the county; this was the year 1829, and the same season he wished me a boy of 18 years to try the wilds of Michigan. From Buffalo took passage on the steamer Enterprise, Capt. Miles; third day arrived at Detroit; then two days on the road to Tecumseh, I passed the time very leisurely with my dog and gun until November; then with Wm. Camburn's ox team went to Detroit. Then with Capt. Fox and schooner Commerce started for Buffalo; after three days favorable sail landed in Buffalo and soon learned had passed our family on the Lake. After two days time the vessel was loaded and to sail for Detroit. I was a passenger; with a freshening wind, until we were opposite of Cleveland, when at midnight a tremendous gale struck the schooner; Capt. Fox let off some very plain unpolished words, the vessel was turned about and in less than 24 hours was in Buffalo harbor. The next night the harbor froze over. I then began my second trip on foot and alone for Michigan, and trudged along day after day until Monroe was reached; was late up at the tavern next morning and started for Blissfield and it was nearly eight o'clock in the evening when the first glimmering light of the candle shone through the woods at the welcome and cheerful home of Mrs. Kedzie. Here I was an entire stranger, but with the glowing chimney fire all seemed cheerful and contented at this genuine forest home. On that long ago kindly home evening we remember a girl visitor who was there, 15 or 18 years of age; her name, if not mistaken, was Eliza Clark. She was afterwards lost in the woods and wandered for three days and nights without anything to eat but browse and roots before she saw a white person. This proved the heroism and endurance of the pioneer stock of Blissfield. Next evening after leaving Blissfield arrived at the log house in Tecumseh, where my father and mother, brothers and sisters received me with a bountiful welcome.

Now I will bring my hastily written lines down to a close. Our record shows that the pioneers of this county are nearly all gone. The past year numbers 202 gone down to the silent tomb, 66 over 80 years of age, one 101. I keep a record of the residence and name of the pioneers in this county. Also annually, for 16 years past have made a report to the State officers at Lansing of the number of pioneers who have died—their names, age and residence. We love to bear in remembrance with grateful friendship those who with wise forethought laid out the institutions and possessions we are now enjoying. It brings to mind a fragrant and blessed memory. When with ceaseless course the sun, a few more years her race is run, the last of the noble band of pioneers of this county will have passed the golden gates of time. A large number of their names and records will be preserved by this society and future generations will learn to whom they are indebted for the benefits we now enjoy.

It is really a pleasure, with cheerful good will, that I make one of your members to-day. With my brief outline and short address we hope it may meet with approbation among the intelligent industrious citizens, in the fertile and well remembered historic town of Blissfield. We will begin with the first actual settlement of Michigan, which dates from the founding of Detroit by DeLamotte Cadillac, the French Commander, July 24th, 1701. In the year 1789 Detroit was made the seat of government, which was administered by Governor and three Judges under the British rule. In the year 1796, when the revolutionary war predominated, Michigan, with its British fortifications was surrendered to General Anthony Wayne the United States officer. The first Governor of Michigan Territory was General William Hull, March 1st, 1805. This commander for a weakness, 'tis said for British gold, his armies sold, Aug. 16th, 1813, to General Brock, and surrendered the fort at Detroit and Michigan Territory. For this delinquent and dastardly failure, Hull was tried by court martial at Albany and was sentenced to be shot; afterwards sentence remitted.

We will now add a few notes about surveying in Michigan. The Surveyor General, in the year 1815, sent out a corps of surveyors to examine the country near Detroit, with a view of appropriating by congress military bounty lands to the soldiers of the war of 1812. By the report of the surveyors to congress there was not 500 acres arable land in the whole Territory. Also another company of surveyors was to explore the country about Pontiac, in the year 1817. After a month's service their report was, that the land would not sell for enough to pay for surveying—We will here add that preseverance and active energy, a few years later, when the lakes and marshes were frozen, large counties and townships were surveyed with most excellent farm lands—and we now see admired and fertile plantations, beautiful villages, large cities and a healthy population.

General Lewis Cass was appointed Governor of the Territory October 20, 1813, and was Governor for six years. First land bought in Lenawee County was by Hon. Austin E. Wing, at Tecumseh, April 24; first actual settler, Musgrove Evans and family at Tecumseh in the month of June 1824. Wing and Evans built the first saw mill in 1824, and the first grist mill was built 1825, dimensions were 20 by 25 feet; the first wheat ground July 4th, 1825, and was raised by Jesse Osborn at Tecumseh the same year. The year 1825 Darius Comstock settled in Adrian, when it was a wilderness with lands in all directions, for $1 25 an acre—with enterprising citizens has become the admired city of the State, with a population of over 10,000. In November, 1826, this county was detached from Monroe county. The year 1829 the court house was built at Tecumseh; several years later county seat was removed to Adrian. November, 1829, Gov. Cass and General Chas. Learnerd came on horseback from Detroit to Tecumseh, and a meeting was held in the school house for military officers. Joseph W. Brown was commissioned colonel, Wm. McNair Lieutenant, and E. P. Champlin Major of the 8th Regiment.

DEATH OF MRS. JUDGE COOLEY.

Mary E. Cooley, wife of Judge Thomas M. Cooley, died at her home in Ann Arbor last Sunday morning, of cancer of the stomach. The funeral services were held Tuesday forenoon and were conducted by Prof. W. H. Ryder of Andover.

She was born in June, 1830, in Genesee county, New York, and seven years later her father, David Horton, settled in Adrian, Mrs. Cooley of course making Adrian her home. Nearly all the older inhabitants of the city will remember "Mary Horton" as a school girl, and later, Mrs. Cooley, as wife and mother.

In 1846 Judge Cooley moved from Tecumseh, where he was in partnership with the late Judge Stacy, to Adrian, and was married to Mary Horton in December of that year. Their home was in Adrian for thirteen years thereafter, the Judge having been a partner with the late Governor Croswell. Since 1859, when Judge Cooley received the appointment to a professorship in the University, their home has been at Ann Arbor, where Mrs. Cooley has been prominent in Congregational church work, being one of the most active in procuring the erection of the new stone church building. She was also one of the founders of the Ladies' Library Association. Under Gov. Jerome she was placed on the Board of Control of the State Industrial Home for girls, in Adrian, and her colleagues had honored her by making her president of that board. She was a member at the time of her death.

Mrs. Cooley had six children, all of whom are living: Eugene, largely engaged in business at Lansing, Mich; Edgar, a lawyer at Bay City; Fanny, wife of Alexis C. Angell, a lawyer of Detroit; Charles, now in Washington, in charge of statistics of street railways for the Census Bureau; Thomas, now a senior in the University, and Mary.

Mrs. Cooley had many friends and admirers in Lenawee county who will learn of her demise with the keenest sorrow. She was a woman of rare accomplishments and intellectual worth, whom to know was to love. The Judge will receive the profound sympathy of his old friends in Lenawee, in this, the greatest affliction of his life.

A SHOCKING ACCIDENT.

Our citizens were startled on Monday by the report that Finlay Deuel, who has been working for the Lake Shore railroad company at Elkhart had been killed by the cars. The report proved only two true. The full particulars of the sad affair taken from the Elkhart Daily Review are given below.

A week ago Saturday evening the community was shocked when informed that Jud Angell, an old employee of the Lake Shore, had lost an arm while coupling cars in the yard here. Just a week later, last Saturday night, a much more distressing accident occurred, the details of which have moved the community deeply. Finlay Duel, another experienced and trusted employee, acting in the capacity of switchman, lost his life while performing his duties in the east end of the yard. Stephen Dusseau, with warehouse poney 154 was making up a train on the Air Line and Mr. Duel was doing the switching and coupling. He had given the engineer the signal to back up, and as the cars came back stepped in behind them, taking hold of the rod with one hand, and, as is supposed, endeavoring to get the link and pin ready with the other hand to make the coupling with the car a short distance away. In this position he would have to walk backward, and in doing so the heel of his right boot caught in the frog at the caboose track switch, over which the car was passing, and he was pulled down and under the car, the wheels running along the inside of his right leg until they reached his body, when they crushed along the entire right side to the shoulder, cutting off the right arm. One car and one truck of another passed over him. His cries, plainly heard for a block or more away, arousing some people in the neighborhood who had retired, soon brought a large crowd of people. His cries were a series of shrieks, "Oh! Oh!" William Posey, night target tender, was soon at his side and Mr. Duel, who had thrown himself from the track, was still conscious and asked for assistance but none could be rendered and at 10:32 he died. His watch stopped at 10:15, which is supposed to be the time the accident occurred. Coroner Johnson held an inquest yesterday, returning a verdict of accidental death. Notwithstanding any evidence that may have been produced in the coronor's court, there are a good many men who say the frog was not properly blocked, there being a space of three or four inches between the end of the block and the rail. It may be a significant fact that the company tore up the rail and put in a new block there this morning. Mr. Duel was twenty-eight years old and and leaves a young wife and two little children to mourn his untimely death. He is given an exemplary character by all who knew him. Short services will be held at the house this evening at half past six o'clock and to-morrow his remains will be taken to Tecumseh, Michigan, for burial, where funeral services will be held. Mr. Duel was insured in the order of Chosen Friends for $1,000, but did not belong to the switchmen's union. At one time he worked in the west end of the yard, and had Jud Angell for his partner.

The remains were brought to Tecumseh on the noon train Tuesday and conveyed to the residence of Fred Duel, father of the unfortunate young man, where the funeral services were held yesterday afternoon. Co. C. attended the funeral in full uniform, led by the Tecumseh band and the G. A. R. and W. R. C. also attended. The services were conducted by Rev. Joslin in the presence of a large concourse of sympathising friends and neighbors. Finlay was born here in Tecumseh and his home has been here except at short intervals. For the past year he had been in the employ of the Lake Shore Railway at Elkhart. His stricken parents and brother have the heartfelt sympathy of our entire community in their awful affliction.

"Just as Good,"

Say some dealers who try to sell a substitute prepration when a costomer calls for Hood's Sarsaprilla. Do not allow any such false statements as this induce you to buy what you do not want. Remember that the only reason for making it is that a few cents more profit will be made on the substitute. Insist upon having the best medicine—Hood's Sarsaparilla. It is Peculiar to Itself.

Few children can be induced to take physic without a struggle, and no wonder—most drugs are extremely nauslating. Ayer's Pills, on the contrary being sugar coated, are eagerly swallowed by the little ones, and are, therefore, the favorite family medicine.

Hall's Hair Renewer eradicates and prevents the formation of dandruff thickens the growth, and beautifies the hair as no other preprration will.

M. L. Blair, Alderman, 5th Ward, Scranton, Pa., stated Nov. 9, '83: He had used Dr Thomas' Eclectric Oil for sprains, burns, cuts, bruises, and rheumatism. Cured every time.

Some people are constantly troubled with boils—no sooner does one heal than another makes an appearance. A through course of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, the best of blood-purifiers, effectually puts an end to this annoyance. We recommend a trial.

ANNUAL SCHOOL MEETING.

The regular annual school meeting of this district was held at the Central Building last Monday evening. The attendance was rather small, not more than fifty voters being present altogether, including the ladies. Moderator Mills called the meeting to order, and the Director Dr. North then read the minutes of the last meeting and presented the annual report. The minutes were approved and the report was adopted. Three trustees were then chosen by ballot, two for the regular terms and one to fill Mrs. Hardenburgh's vacancy. Mrs. Jno. F. Hicks was elected to the full term in place of A. W. Mills. O. P. Bills was reelected for the full term. Dr. Geo. Howell was chosen to fill the vacancy. The census of children of school age, between 5 and 20 years old, showed 581 in the district. Mr. A. W. Mills retires from the Board after three terms of faithful service with a good record behind him. During his incumbency, the new West Branch building has been erected and new heating apparatus has been put into both the Central and East buildings. He has acted as Moderator of the Board during most of the time and the present prosperous condition of the school is due in no small degree to his efficient labors. Below is the annual report in detail.

The breath of a chronic catarrh patient is often so offensive that he becomes an object of disgust. After a time ulceration sets in, the spongy bones are attacked and frequently entirely destroyed. A constant sourse of discomfort is the dripping of the purulent secretions into the throat, sometimes producing inveterate bronchitis, which in its turn has been the exciting cause of pulmonary disease. The brilliant results which have attended its use for years past properly designate Ely's Cream Balm as by far the best and only cure.

A SIXTEEN PAGE WEEKLY.

A Fearless Exponent of Principles and a Weekly Record of Important Facts Affecting Social Problems and Rational Politics.

Interesting to all, and indispensible to the student of political principles and the great social problems of our times.

THE STANDARD advocates The Single Tax, which means the abolition of all taxes on labor or the products of labor; that is to say, the abolition of all taxes save one tax levied on the value of land, irrespective of improvements.

Free Trade, not tariff reform, but REAL free trade; that is, free ports—freedom of trade with the whole world as now exists between the States of our Union.

Ballot Reform, no humbug envelope system, but the real Australian system, the first requisite of which is the exclusive use at elections of official ballots, furnished by the State, and prepared and cast by the voter in compulsory secrecy.

Terms: One year, $2.50; six months, $1.25. Payable in advance. Sample copies sent free on application.

For the convenience of those who wish to inform themselves as to the general principles, we will send on receipt of a two cent stamp, three tracts: "The American Farmer," by Henry George; "Farmers and the Single Tax," by Thomas G. Shearman; and "The Case Plainly Stated," by H. J. King.

CAMPBELL'S HORSE FOOT REMEDY.

Is the best article on the market for horses' feet and has all the merits claimed for it. How to prevent and cure corns, quarter cracks, split hoof, sand cracks, hard dry, brittle and contracted feet, sores, bruises, cuts, swellings, sprains, foot rot, thrush and scratches, also treatment for founder, mange, vermin and all skin diseases.

Under these circumstances we have accepted the agency for this city and vicinity and shall always have on hand a stock from which to supply dealers and horse owners. We shall sell it with the understanding that if used as directed, and it fails to do what is claimed for it, when your can is empty come back and get your money. Suggestions—a book containing valuable information on the care and treatment of horses' feet, on how to keep horses' feet in perfect condition without the labor of packing and soaking. J. J. Orr, druggist agent, Tecumseh, Mich.

Homeseekers' Excursions.

NOTICE TO FARMERS.

Osgood Bros. of Britton are now ready to manufacture Sorghum and Cider. They have added new and improved machinery for the manufacture of Sorghum. Having had long experience in the manufacture of Sorghum they are not afraid to guarantee their work to be first-class. They have facilities for working up cane very rapidly, therefore there will be no danger of cane spoiling after receiving at the mill.

They are located in the village of Britton and solicit the patronage of farmers having cane to be made up to give them a call.

SORGHUM MOLASSES.

Having thoroughly repaired our Sorghum mill, and added several improvements, we are better prepared than ever before to manufacture first-class Sorghum molasses. Farmers having small or large lots to make can bring their cane to us and be sure of receiving molasses from their own cane. We shall also have a quantity of syrup on hand to sell by the barrel or single gallon. Give us a trial and we will guarantee satisfaction. Having had 30 years' experience in the business, we claim to be well posted in the art of syrup making and can manufacture an article second to none.
GRIPTON BROS., Britton.

1st. Sergt.—Richard Farley.
President—Geo. S. Field.
Vice Pres —S. S. Walker.
Secretary—Will H. Hayden.
Treasurer—W. C. Burridge.

We took in the Detroit Fair last Monday and much regretted that we were compelled to return the same night. It requires two full days at least to do full justice to the entire exposition, and we had to slight many of the departments and give some the go by wholly. There is no discounting the fact that it is a splendid exhibition and has been a grand success from the first day.

It has been reported that Hayden & Bennett's team balked while drawing the hearse at the late Mrs. Spafford's funeral, and that their teams are in the habit of doing so. The team was a little frightened at the blowing off of steam at the paper mill and stopped, but were immediately started. Whoever alleges that our Railroad street liverymen send out balky horses are grossly misinformed as to the facts.

Beers Post, No. 140, G. A. R., at their regular meeting, Aug. 18th, was presented with a large and beautiful steel engraving of Gen. George B. McClellan. Remarks were made by several of the Comrades expressing their high appreciation of the gift, and also a desire to have the pictures of all their old comrades with which to decorate the post room; after which a motion was made and unanimously adopted that the thanks of the Post be extended to Mr. James Elliott, (the donor,) for his beautiful gift.

OVER THE OCEAN.

The Change in the Policy of Trades Unions.

A Sensation in Political Circles Imminent

If Queen Natalie Does as Threatened.

Bishop of Lincoln Judgment Ready.

BUT PUBLICATION DELAYED IN INTEREST OF THE CHURCH.

The Bishop of Oxford Materially Assists in Its Compilation. The Bishop of Lincoln Will Conform to the Primate's Ruling, But Under Protest—A Horrible Murder in an Old Convent—Best News From European Points.

LONDON, Sept. 1. THE change which has come over the policy of the trades unions in recent years is made the subject of various long editorial articles in the newspapers. It is pointed out that the objects of the unions are approaching more nearly to those of the socialists, especially in regard to limitation of the hours of labor and various other radical propositions. The prospectus has been issued of a general labor union, which is described as being in the interest of both capital and labor. One of its chief objects will be to decide disputes in regard to wages, and other differences between employers and employes. It is evident that this is a scheme devised by the employers in the hope of diverting their attention from purely labor organizations. An attempt will be made to get this plan adopted by the labor congress which is about to meet at Liverpool. Great interest centers in congress. There will be 420 delegates, many of whom have already arrived. A struggle between the conservative and radical elements of trades unionism is expected to occur during the sessions of the body.

A sensation in political circles is likely to be afforded if Queen Natalie, of Servia carries out her threat to publish certain letters written by her divorced husband, the Ex-King Milan. The letters, if described correctly, were written after the Slivnitza defeat of the Servians, and in them the king declared that he was determined to forsake Austria and inaugurate a policy of conciliation toward Russia, with a view to form a ultimate alliance with that country. This disclosure ought to complete the disgrace of Milan, if indeed, any desirable reputation still remained with him.

Some dissatisfaction is being expressed in Wesleyan ministerial circles at the manner in which the lists were made up of representatives to attend the forthcoming American Methodist Oecumenical Council, and it is notorious that among many of the elected representatives, both Cleric and Lay, official influence and personal canvass had to do with their election. Several, of the more prominent Wesleyans who did not stoop to such practices, failed to obtain the sufficient number of votes, and thus, American methodism will be deprived of their presence at what promises to be one of the most important ecclesiastical councils held in modern times.

Politicians who have watched the growing unpopularity among his countrymen, of Signor Crispi, the Italian Prime Minister, and of the foreign policy with which he is identified, now predict a rearrangement of the balance of power in Europe hardly less important than that which followed the conclusion of the treaty between Germany and Austria. They state that the action of the Austrian government in dissolving the Society Pro Patria, a sort of political club of the Italian residents of Triests, because Austrian officials regarded it as the centre of the Irredentist agitation, will undoubtedly hasten the downfall of Signor Crispi and a complete change in Italy's foreign policy. This act of the Austrian government has given great offense to the not insignificant portion of the Italian Liberals, who still in some form cherish the desire of one day completing the unification of Italy by the annexation of Trieste and of the Trentino. The Italian premier has for some time past had to face a growing opposition, and his assumed acquiescence in the dissolution of the society Pro Patria gives a handle to the parties opposed to the triple alliance. Accordingly, unless the edict is rescinded or some satisfaction accorded to Italian susceptibilities, the triple alliance will be seriously compromised, as Signor Crispi will no longer be able to justify to his countrymen the policy which his government has hitherto adopted.

The German newspapers are commenting in a very disgruntled fashion on the fact that the Germans resident in the Russian Baltic provinces were not allowed to take any part in welcoming Emperor William during his visit to Russia.

It is learned on the best authority that that the judgment of the Primate of England in the Bishop of Lincoln case was prepared, and that the archbishop was ready to deliver it the Saturday before the long vacation, but he was urged to delay its promulgation in the interests of the church. It is also learned that in its compilation he has been largely assisted by the Bishop of Oxford. Dr. Stubbs, who has frequently stayed at Lambeth to discuss the points on which the assessors had been unable to come to a decision, for up to the present the Bishop of London has withheld his signature, as he does not at all coincide with the views of the majority of the bishops on the eastward position.

The ceremonial mixing of the water with the wine will be condemned, and probably wafer bread by inference, but Sir R. Phillimore's views on the injunctions of Edward VI, as to the two altar-lights, will be re-established. Vestments will not be touched upon, and of course no question has arisen as to the bishop's cope or mitre. It is learned from a staunch friend of the Bishop of Lincoln that so far as the latter is concerned he will at once conform (it may be under protest) to the primate's ruling, but as Lord Halifax has pointed out to the members of the English church union that the judgment concerns the Bishop of Lincoln alone, and will not be binding upon the clergy not cited in the Arch-Bishops court, its general acceptance is not assured. Sir W. Phillimore, the chancellor of the diocese of Lincoln, who is a vice president of the English Church Union, has declined to allow a faculty to issue for a holy table with a marble slab, or for the erection of a retable, cross and candlesticks in the Chapel-of-Ease at Boston, on the ground that though he has no doubt as to their legality, there is a strong prejudice against them. He decreed that a "Three-decker" in front of a holy table should be removed, on the ground that within certain limits the congregation ought to be able to feel sure that the acts directed to be performed by the minister are so performed, in fact, that the celebrant should be visible and hearable.

The condition of Ireland is becoming more and more gloomy. While the National League tenaciously holds to the plan of campaign, the landlords, aided by the royal constabulary and the British army and navy, have very generally been successful in evictions. Few dare take an evicted farm, and the consequence is that the crops have gone to waste, or when gathered in, have been sent to a distant market for the benefit of the land owner. In many instances evicted tenants on the west coast and islands have been deprived even of the boats with which they reaped a scanty living from the sea, and left helpless to await the winter. Meantime the funds of the National league are running short, and contributions are lessening both in Ireland and America, although the next general election will undoubtedly be the supreme struggle for Irish home rule.

Dispatches from Rome tell of a terrible murder at Narni, in Umbria. About 42 miles from the city of Narni, on the side of a mountain, is an ancient convent called Lo Speco, in the woods near which St. Francis of Assisi used to wander about in contemplation. The convent has lately been inhabited by only five Friars, who were greatly respected by the people of Narni. On Sunday morning two of them went to celebrate Mass in a village near by, it being the feast of St. Lorence. The other three, about 12 o'clock, went as usual to their dinner in the refectory. While they were eating they were surprised by four individuals with their faces masked, and armed with long knives and sticks, with which they attacked the friars. One of the monks was beaten to death, another killed by having his throat cut, and the third stabbed and left for dead, although he did not die until he had told the story. A boy of fifteen years, who lived in the convent, was also killed. The motive is supposed to have been robbery. So far the assassins have escaped arrest. Brigandage is again becoming somewhat frequent in Italy, and one brigand upon being offered a bribe by a captive to permit him to escape, said that he would willingly comply, but that, should he do so, the other brigands would pursue him, even to America, to wreak vengeance upon him.

Brewery Accident.

BERLIN, Sept. 1.—While a number of workmen were in the cellar of a brewer in Sloetteritz, Saxony, it caved in, burying sixteen of them. Of these seven were killed and the others severely injured.

An epidemic of influenza has broken out in the Garrison at Glozan, Silesia, and fifty cases are already reported.

Flood in Europe.

VIENNA, Sept. 1.—The villages of Albach, Hohen, Ens, Hoechst, Lustnan and Fuessah, in Vorarlberg district, have been flooded by the overflowing of the Rhine. Many persons have been drowned and much property destroyed.

Disastrous Landslide.

BERNE, Sept 1.—By the continuance of heavy rains in Switzerland, rivers have overflowed doing much damage and cutting off communication in some sections. A disastrous landslide occurred in St. Gothard Pass.

A Horror at Pesth.

PESTH, Sept. 1.—By the collapsing of a burning house in the village of Mejoe Keresteze, fifteen persons, endeavoring to save their property were killed.

THE GREAT RACE.

Booth Speeders in Great Trim—Two Fast Miles Travelled.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 1.—Sunol and Palo Alto were given their first mile at speed since their arrival at Belmont Park, Palo Alto, driven by Marvin, made the mile in 2.13, after which Marvin brought out Sunol and speeded her a mile in 2.12 1-2. The track was dead, owing to the rain which fell during the night, and as the horses went entirely on their own courage it is evident that they are in good shape, and that the track, if the weather holds good it will be fast next Thursday when they go against the records.

New York Labor Day Festivities

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—All arrangements for the labor day parades have been completed and it is intended to make demonstrations remarkable in numbers and enthusiasm. There will be a double parade due to the recent split in the Central Labor union. The parades will march simultaneously by different routes and wind up with picnics and festivals.

Robbed His Father.

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 1. — Andrew Oehler, Jr., a dashing young gentleman of eighteen, clerking in his father's jewelry store, is a fugitive, and with him $140 in cash and $1,500 in jewelry, diamonds, &c., which he abstracted from his father's safe. Two years ago the youngster was under suspicion of complicity in the burglary and robbery of Alfred's cigar store, but the affair was compromised and hushed up. Mr. Oehler, Sr. will now prosecute.

The Yacht Capsized.

GLOUCESTER, MASS., Sept. 1.—Haywood Hall, aged 17 years, of Cambridgeport, and W. H. Seymour, aged 21, of Holyoke, were drowned by the capsizing of a small yacht in Ipswich Bay.

Big Attachment Case.

BOSTON, Sept. 1.—The property of Potter, Lovell & Co., of Boston, was attached in the sum of $60,000 in the Norfolk court, at Dedham, by Irving A. Evans & Co., of Boston.

NICARAGUA CANAL.

THE HOUSE COMMITTEE ON COMMERCE REJECTS THE BILL

To Repeal the Act Incorporating the Great Canal Company—They Say That to Revoke the Act Would be a Great Wrong—The United States Should Keep out of the Muss.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—The House committee on commerce through its chairman, Mr. Baker, of New York, has made an adverse report on the bill to repeal the act incorporating the Maritime Canal company of Nicaragua. The report says: "Having carefully examined into the condition of the affairs of said company for the purpose of determining whether any abuse of the powers and privileges conferred by the act of incorporation has been practiced or whether any of its corporate duties or obligations have been disregarded or whether in the exercise of its sovereign power, congress should say that the "public good" is to be subserved by a repeal of the charter, your committee conclude that the exercise at this time of the powers invoked would be a great wrong. Such powers have never been exercised except for the gravest reasons, and your committee believe that congress is not yet prepared exercise reserved powers of repeal when every reason exists why should commend rather than criticise."

After reviewing the condition of affairs along the line of the canal the report continues: "The committee deems it but fair to an enterprise of such magnitude that it should be given a reasonable time to demonstrate that those who have undertaken it are prosecuting the same in good faith, and that in their early movements they ought not to be hampered by captious and carping critics. If prosecuted in earnest the enterprise is entitled to the encouragement of the government and those who have embarked capital and labor in it are entitled to the opportunity to demonstrate their good faith or the reverse.

Your committee further beg leave to express the opinion that it would be a gross breach of faith for the United States government to permit in any way the embarrassment of the project by considering unfounded propositions from any source for the repeal of the companys charter."

WAR TO THE KNIFE.

Between the two Republican Factions of Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, MD., Sept. 1.—It is war to the knife now between the two republican factions in this city. Neither will submit to a compromise and both propose to make nominations for the city council. It is a fight of the administration winning against Antis. The latter succeeded in obtaining the control of the state central committee and proceeded to dispose of Emil Budnitz, post master, Johnson man, and the chairman of this city the executive committee. The latter refuses to recognize the authority of the state committee and is now arranging for the primaries.

There will be two sets of candidates in every ward and the democrats will owing to the split make a clean sweep.

The anti administration or Henderson crowd, say they care nothing for the local ticket. The purpose is to knock out the administration, which has snubbed them by sending anti-Harrison candidates to the next national convention. The Democrats enjoy the fight.

RIDDLED WITH BULLETS.

A Patriot Who Would Die But Never Surrender.

CITY OF MEXICO VIA GALVESTON, Sept. 1.—A San Jose S. De., Guatemala despatch says: "Everything was prepared to capture the revolutionist Gen. Martin Barrundia who was on board a passing American steamer. The port captain, boarded the the steamer and demanded the surrender of Barrundia from Captain Pitts, who answered that he would deliver up the revolutionist and invited them to Barrundia's cabin. The assistant chief of police, Captain Calderon and three officers were among those who went with the captain to the cabin. When there Major Toriello made known to Barrundia that the captain of the vessel had decided to deliver him up. Barrundia thereupon opened fire with his revolver upon the party who answered his fire. Barrundia fell riddled with bullets. His body was taken to the port captain's office.

INCENDIARY FIRES

Result in the Serious Injury of Several New Yorkers.

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—Fires that were plainly of incendiary origin started in six different localities in Brooklyn last night and early in the morning and resulted in the injury of several persons and the arrest of two men on suspicion of being the incendiaries. Two of the fires were started in the cellars of crowded tenemant houses and in the last one, which occurred at 1:30 in the morning, three of the occupants were severely burned in making their escapes. Their names are Mary Moore, aged 19 years; John Schmidt, aged 19 months, and Ann O'Reilly, aged 2 years. The aggregate loss was small, as the fires were promptly extinguished.

ELECTROCUTED.

Not as a State Penalty, But the Result of an Accident.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 1.—Thomas Dow, aged 22, a lineman in the employ of the Brush electric light company, while standing on the fire escape of the Caxton printing works building at 35 East Third street, caught hold of a live wire and received a charge of two thousand volts of electricity and fell back dead. His right hand was burned to a crisp.

Engineer and Fireman Killed.

SHAWNEE, OHIO, Sept. 1.—A serious accident occurred a few miles from here today on the O. S. and H. railroad by which engineer Edward Hill and fireman John Scanlon were instantly killed. The accident was caused by the engine jumping the track at a curve. Hill's body was taken to his home, at New Concord to-night on a special train.

Saratoga Suicide.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Sept. 1.—John F. Rouse aged about 35 years fatally shot himself in the head in his room at the Commercial hotel. He registered from New York Aug. 27, but later letters found in his pockets lead to the belief that Peoria Illinois was his home. He arrived in Saratoga July 7, and boarded at the Waverly hotel until Wenesday last, when he changed to the Commercial hotel. Coroner Carr has charge of the case.

Fifty Spasms a Day.

Had Mrs. H. A. Gardner, of Vistula, Ind., lived two thousand years ago she would have been thout to be possessed by evil spirits. She was subject to nervous prostration, headaches, dizziness, backache, palpitation and forty to fifty spasms a day. Though having been treated by eight physicians for years without success, she was permanently cured by one bottle of Dr. Miles' Nervine. A trial bottle of this new and wonderful medicine, and a finely illustrated treatise free at Baker & Halls Drug store, who recomends and guarntees it.

Fortunate Father and Son.

"I am as certain as I now live," says C. E. Bartholomew, of Kalkaska Mich "that Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, of Rondout, N. Y., saved my life when I was a victim of that terrible renal disorder—Brights Disease. My son had a fever sore on his leg. He, too, used Favorite Remedy, and is now well. But for this medicine I am sure both father and son would have been six feet under the sod.

COOD'S CATARRH CURE.

LOCAL AND INTERNAL TREATMENT.

In order to cure catarrh it is necessary to allay the inflammation of the irritated membranes with a soothing application, cleanse the head of the plugging mucous secretions, and heal the discharging ulcers. For cold in the head and nasal catarrh Hodds' local treatment does this without the aid of snuff, douches or fumes. If the disease has extended downward affecting the bronchial tubes or lungs, the internal treatment both removes from the system the scattered poison, and by its building-up properties assists nature in restoring the impaired parts. The Man Without a Stomach

May exist as a museum freak, but most of us recognize the stomach as necessary to life and comfort. Most of us experience a little trouble from this source occasionally, wrong action of the stomach causing dyspepsia, etc., and often the trouble extends, involving the liver and bowels, whence we find biliousness and constipation. We find also that the bowels and kidneys (nature's sewage system) become clogged with effete matter, from which comes impure blood, boils, blotches, pimples, scrofula, scrofulous swellings and cancerous complaints. The Burdock Blood Bitters taken at the beginning, or at any later stage, arrests the trouble, restores the disordered organ to activity, thereby removing every vestige of disease. B. B. B. is an absolutely pure extract of roots and herbs, which cannot injure even the most delicate constitution, and as a cure for Dyspepsia, Biliousness Constipation, Bad Blood, etc., succeeds in 99 cases out of 100.

FIFTY YEARS HENCE.

A Prophecy by the Past Master of St. Cecile Lodge, F. and A. M.

There is a Masonic Lodge in New York which holds its meetings in the day-time. It is known among the fraternity as the "afternoon lodge," or the "matinee lodge," and its membership is chiefly made up of actors, musicians, morning newspaper men and others whose occupations oblige them to be on duty at nights.

This lodge, the designation of which is St Cecile, No. 568, F. and A. M., celebrated its twenty-fifth anniversary on June 17 in the commandery room of the Masonic temple. A large audience of members and friends were most agreeably entertained by a number of actors, singers and instrumentalists, including Fred. Solomon and George Olmi of the Casino, the "County Fair" quartet, Geo. W. Morgan, the organist, and others.

When the programme was rather more than half finished, Mr. Chas. H. Govan, a former master of the lodge, was presented to the audience, and gave a most unexpected address. He began by saying that twenty-five years was quite long enough to determine the vitality of an organization, and that it was reasonable to suppose that St. Cecile Lodge was destined to an existence of great duration and vigor. "I have no doubt," said he, "that fifty years from now, in this same indestructible edifice, there will be a celebration by the members of this lodge of the magnificence of which we can form only a slight conception. I expect to be present on that occasion. (Laughter.) It has often been said that sickly people live the longest if they are not too sickly. They are prudent and temperate because they have to be. Therefore, as I have not enjoyed robust health for over twenty years, and never will again, I expect, by reason of the extraordinary precautions I will have to take, that I will be alive when all my big red-faced brethren of middle age have died off from congested livers, apoplexy, fatty degenerations and other ailments peculiar to those who live not wisely but too well. I will ask you to imagine that the seventy-fifth anniversary has arrived, and that an old gentleman—not a 'lean and slippered pantaloon,' but a tolerably well-preserved old chap—by the name of Govan is brought forward and introduced as the oldest living past master of St. Cecile lodge. I will pull myself together and say something in this strain:

"Brethren: I have just arrived from the great metropolis—Chicago—where I have been making a visit to some of my grandchildren and great grandchildren, who are settled there. Worshipful Bro. Griffith of this lodge, accompanied me to the station, and as the electric express was about to start, not more than six hours since, his last words were: 'Tell the brethren of St. Cecile that although I can not be with them in the flesh I will be with them in the spirit. Tell them also that I will address them for a few minutes through the macro-telephone.' Fifty years ago it took me nearly a third of the time to reach this spot from the eastern section (then called Brooklyn) as it did to-day to come from Chicago, and as I overlooked this beautiful city from the top of the tunnel tower, at the western end of this street, before descending the chute, and recalled the smoke-enshrouded desert of brick and mortar known as New York in the past, I rejoiced that I had been spared to see this happy time. I can appreciate the change as you men can not. You have never known what it was to live in a city with so few parks; that the only playground for most children was the streets; where instead of the beautiful elevated sidewalks, with all the retail stores on the same level, with roadways underneath, and the ground floors of the business district given up to wholesale traffice, horses, carriages, carts and pedestrians, bales, barrels and boxes were all jumbled together on the dusty ground, and you had to risk your life at every crossing; where, instead of the silent electric motor, which takes you wherever you want to go at the rate of five miles a minute, you had to depend on a horrible, nerve-wearing arrangement on stilts, called an elevated railroad, which roared like a leviathan while it crept like a snail, and on which you shivered in winter and stewed in summer.

"This is now a city of homes, but in my younger days it was largely a city of hovels. Since the Government first took the transportation business out of the hands of rascally corporations it has gradually become possible for every workman to sit under his own roof-tree, for it now costs no more either in time or money to ride twenty miles than it formerly did to ride one mile, and the portions of Westchester and Long Island and East Jersey lying within a radius of twenty miles from this spot, which were once solitary and desert-like, now blossom like the rose. In my early days hundreds of thousands of strong men tramped the country looking vainly for somebody to hire them. I have seen women picking up rags and paltry odds and ends in the street for a livelihood. I have seen little children barefooted on November nights selling papers or begging pennies. I have seen swarms of them at work in dingy factories when they ought to have been at play. I have seen sick men at work, when they ought to have been in bed, because they could not afford to stop. All these evils were rife in my time, because of a system of taxation which choked production at the fountain head and permitted a few idlers to grow rich at the expense of their toiling brethren.

"Meanwhile the people, though dimly conscious of a great wrong, were sorely confused by the sophistries of the press and the pulpit, both of which tried to delude us into the belief that we were a free and happy people, amid the clamor of socialism, anarchism, nationalism and I know not how many other isms, each of which was warranted to be a sure cure for all the ills afflicting the body politic. I am thankful that the people had at length the wisdom to see that the remedy for all the evils besetting them lay in a simple amendment of the laws by which the products of labor were released from taxation, and all Government revenue was derived from a single tax on the rental value of land. No words of mine can describe the magical change which followed when the incubus of land monopoly was lifted from our civilization. The good results were so pronounced and unmistakable that our example spread like wildfire throughout the world. Natural opportunities being everywhere set free, no man suffered from enforced idleness. Land speculation was abolished, for the reason that holders could no longer afford to keep land idle, but had to build, cultivate or sell. This caused such a demand for labor that wages went up like a rocket and have staid up ever since. The working and business day was gradually shortened from ten or twelve hours to six—from 9 a. m. to 3 p. m.—because every labor saving invention, instead of serving to still further enrich the land owners, went to lighten the burdens of life for all mankind.

"St. Cecile, as you all know, was once an afternoon lodge. Now, the only difference between this and other lodges is that we meet two hours later—at 9 in the evening instead of at 7. Theatrical and musical performances being now given between the hours of 5:30 and 8:30, actors and musicians are able to attend lodge in the evening and meet with their brethren in other walks of life. The ladies are no longer obliged to wear themselves out and spoil their beautiful complexions over cooking-stoves and wash-tubs, or to roughen their fingers with ashes, clinkers and caustic soda, washing powders, or to burn themselves up with kerosene oil; for all laundering is now done as if by magic at the public laundries, hygienic knowledge has become so widespread and the race has so gained in vigor that raw food has largely taken the place of cooked, and tea and coffee are no longer a daily necessity; every house has its own electric light plant and its own ice machine; manufacturing and culinary operations are now conducted by means of water gas, which is far cheaper than coal used to be, and a roaring fire is now started by simply turning a gas-cock, which at once turns on the gas and ignites it. The whisky business has ceased to be profitable; the old Prohibition party found out long ago that the chief cause of intemperance was poverty—that men drank to forget their misery—but when poverty was abolished there was comparatively few troubles left to be drowned in the flowing bowl. Drunkenness is now considered a disgrace, because there is no excuse for it. Inventions have not proved an unmixed blessing, however, for us Masons, for since the wonderful improvements in flying machines we are obliged, during our meetings, to have a tyler at every window.

"The beautiful and spacious parks and commodious dwellings which distinguish the east central quarter of this island occupy ground once the site of wretched tenement houses, where decency nor comfort was possible and where children died like murrian-smitten sheep. The struggle for existence is no longer the desperate battle it once was, in which men grew prematurely old and sank into the grave before their time; business and professional jealousy no longer array men against each other; standing armies, so long a standing menace to the peace of nations, have been disbanded to engage in peaceful pursuits, and the lesson of universal brotherhood set for mankind one hundred and fifty years ago by Brother Robert Burns has been so well learned that, really, my brethren, I do not see that there is much further use for our order, except to preserve well loved traditions and to promote sociability."

Mr. Govan then proceeded to recount fanciful incidents in the past lives of his fellow-members, one of which, he said, occurred, as nearly as he could recollect, "shortly after Henry George had declined nomination for a third term as President of the United States." He then concluded his portion of the entertainment by singing an old man's comic song, which he said had been a favorite of his fifty or sixty years ago, when "he little thought that he should live to see the day when he could sing without the necessity of acting." Though he and the few friends who had been made aware of the ulterior purpose of his address had been somewhat apprehensive regarding its reception, they were both surprised and gratified at the result. He was listened to with close attention throughout, and was congratulated on all sides for his effort. What amazed him especially was the enthusiasm displayed by many of the most conservative and well-to-do of his fellow-craftsmen, who a few years ago had been outspokenly and inveterately opposed to Henry George and all his works.

To Freemasons, Odd-Fellows, Knights of Pythias and craftsmen generally:

Go thou and do likewise.

Rent Goes Up: Wages Don't.

The union printers of Chattanooga, Tenn., have gone on a strike against the Daily Times and Daily News. The rate paid for composition up to the time of the strike was 33⅓ cents per one thousand ems. The strikers have put their case before the citizens of Chattanooga thus:

Before the [land] boom in 1887 the printers agreed upon a scale of 30 and 33⅓ cents per 1,000 ems, which at that time was fair wages. But as every expense of the printer has since increased, they think their wages should increase also.

It would seem as if the printers had the best of the case, so far as argument goes. Affairs were in a normal condition when they made the scale under which they have ever since been working. But what our newspapers call "an era of prosperity" struck that city, the effect of which, so far as wage earners are concerned, has been to increase the cost of living—rents being higher and food costing more. Under the circumstances the printers are justified in their claim for more wages. But will they get more? We hope they will; but we fear they will not. Thirty-three cents a thousand for setting type is very small money; [illegible] idle p[illegible] eager to get work even at that price. The employers will depend on empty bellies to defeat the strikers, and, sad to say, they may succeed.

ZACCHEUS THE PUBLICAN

LESSON X, THIRD QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, SEPT. 7.

Text of the Lesson, Luke xix, 1-10. Commit Verses, 7-10—Golden Text, Luke xix, 10—Commentary by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Compiled from Lesson Helper Quarterly by permission of H. S. Hoffman, publisher, Philadelphia.]

1. "And Jesus entered and passed through Jericho." The last verses of the previous chapter tell of His healing a blind man as He came nigh to Jericho; while Matt. xx, 29-34 tells of His healing two blind men as He departed from Jericho.

2. "And, behold, there was a man named Zacchæus, which was the chief among the publicans, and he was rich." We are not told whether the other publican was rich or poor, but we are sure that he was poor in spirit. Instead of a rich ruler, esteemed by the people as in the last lesson, here is a rich publican, one of the class whom the Pharisee thanked God that he did not belong to; but presently we shall find this rich chief among the publicans, in the company of the healed blind men, a follower of the meek and lowly Jesus.

3. "And he sought to see Jesus, who He was; and could not for the press, because he was little of stature." His motives are not given, but we infer from the rest of the story that he, too, would be a follower of Jesus if He would have him. Perhaps up to this moment he was merely curious to see this great Teacher and worker of miracles, as when people go to church to hear a new preacher. But how many have thus gone, just to see and hear something new, or even to scoff, and there they were found of Him whom they sought not.

4. "And he ran before, and climbed up into a sycamore tree to see Him: for He was to pass that way." He was in earnest to see Him, he came out from the crowd, and unconsciously hid himself. In listening to the preaching of the gospel, or the teaching of the Sunday school lesson, all are too apt to lose themselves in the crowd, instead of taking the truth home to themselves. If we are to profit our own souls it must be by separating ourselves from others and by believing that He means me.

5. "And when Jesus came to the place, He looked up and saw him." He who knows our 'down sitting and uprising and understands our thoughts afar off (Ps. cxxxix, 2); who saw Nathanael under the fig tree (John i, 48), saw also this man when he left the crowd and climbed up into this tree. The leaves of the sycamore could not hide him any more than the trees of the garden could hide Adam and Eve. He saw also the desires of his heart, for He knows the things that come into our mind, every one of them (Ezek. xi, 5). Here is a seeking sinner and a seeking Saviour face to face. What a glorious meeting. The Holy Spirit brought it about. He does all these things.

"And said unto him, Zacchæus, make haste and come down; for today I must abide at thy house." How Zacchæus' heart must have leaped at these words; and then He called him by name, there was no mistaking it, He surely meant him.

6. "And he made haste, and came down, and received Him joyfully." Thank God for that. However, he came down; he came quickly and received Christ gladly. As the angel hurried Lot out of Sodom, saying: "Escape for thy life; haste thee, escape thither" (Gen. xix, 17, 22), so we who are saved would urge the unsaved to make haste and come to Jesus, if we only heartily believed what we profess to believe.

7. "And when they saw it, they all murmured, saying, that He was gone to be guest with a man that is a sinner." Here is Satan resisting, the devil angry because he has lost a captive. In Zech. iii, 1, we see a man clothed with filthy garments standing before God, and Satan at his right hand to resist him, but a little further on in the chapter the filthy garments are gone, and Satan is gone, too; there is a glorious change of apparel and the angel of the Lord stands by. Whenever a sinner comes to Christ, the devil is sure to find fault and point to the filthy garments. He did so through Simon, the Pharisee, when the poor woman came to Jesus (Luke vii, 39), and again in chap. xv, 2, when the publicans and sinners came near to Jesus. He is always doing it; it is his business to resist everything truly good; to hinder sinners from coming to Christ, and to hinder saints from serving Christ. He is the devil (i. e., the accuser or slanderer) and Satan (i. e., the adversary); he is a serpent, for he is subtle and his ways are crooked; and he is a dragon, having great power; but he has not all power, Jesus has that, and He, blessed be His name, will yet destroy all the works of the devil, and the devil, too. Let him resist and accuse all he has a mind to; we will overcome him by the Blood of the Lamb, and by the word of our testimony, even if we die for it.

8. "And Zacchæus stood, and said unto the Lord." He could not walk with Christ till this was settled. With sin on the conscience there can be no true fellowship with God. But here comes the evidence of the sincerity of his conversion. His faith becomes manifest in his works. He shows that he has truly repented.

"Behold, Lord, the half of my goods I give to the poor; and if I have taken anything from any man by false accusation, I restore him fourfold." These things were neither his salvation, nor the ground of it, but rather the evidences that he had passed from death to life. We must keep in mind and stand firm on this, that there is no salvation by works revealed in Scripture (Rom. iii, 20; iv, 5; Eph. ii, 9). We rest only and wholly in Christ for salvation, but being saved we must prove it in our lives. Titus iii, 8, is just as faithful a saying as I Tim. i, 15: "This is a faithful saying, and these things I will that thou affirm constantly, that they who have believed be careful to maintain good works."

9. "And Jesus said unto him, This day is salvation come to this house, forsomuch as he also is a son of Abraham." "Salvation is of the Lord." "Behold, God is my salvation." "Neither is there salvation in any other" (Jonah ii, 9; Isa. xii, 2; Acts iv, 12). God manifest in the flesh had come to that man, and to that house, and had been received; and where Jesus is there is salvation. It is all in Him, and apart from Him there is none. He that hath the Son hath life, and he that hath not the Son of God hath not life (I John v, 12). The salvation begins when we receive Jesus, but it shall never end. When He comes even our bodies shall be like His, and then shall we be forever with the Lord. Whether he were Jew or Gentile before he is now a true son of Abraham and therefore an heir of the world (Gal. iii, 29; Rom. iv, 11, 13). Not many see the glory of being children of Abraham, and cannot appreciate it, for they see not the meaning of the Kingdom: but blessed are the eyes which see, for therein lies the secret of being able to give cheerfully one's goods to the poor.

10. "For the Son of Man is come to seek and to save that which was lost." This name, "Son of Man," has special reference to the Christ as Son of David, and yet reaches beyond to Christ as the true Isaac, the true seed of Abraham, in whom all nations shall be blessed.

Why it Is Popular.

Because it has proven its absolute merit over and over again, because it has an unequalled record of cures, because its business is conducted in a thoroughly honest manner and because it combines economy and strength, being the only medicine of which "100 Doses One Dollar" is true—these strong points have made Hood's Sarsaparilla the most successful medicine of the pay.

Economy: "100 Doses One Dollar."
Merit: "Pecular to Itself."
Purity: Hood's Sarsaparilla.

TO REDEEM $20,000,000.

Secretary Windom's Second Circular on the Four and a Half Percents.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—Secretary Windom has issued another circular offering to redeem twenty millions four and a half percent bonds, at par with interest to and including August 31, 1891, at the treasury in Washington, or at the office of any assistant treasurer of the United States, providing they are presented for that purpose not later than the 16th of September next. Notice is also given that after the 16th of September, or whenever the twenty millions shall have been presented, redemptions of four and a half percents will be made only at the treasury department at Washington, and upon such terms as may hereafter be made known.

Iowa Crop Report.

DES MOINES, IOWA, Sept. 1.—This week's bulletin of the Iowa weather and crop service says: Corn is maturing quite rapidly, and two or three weeks of favorable weather will place the bulk of the crop beyond danger of injury by frosts. Sorghum and broom corn are in a promising condition, and late potatoes will yield beyond previous expectations if not cut short by untimely frosts. Pastures have been greatly improved, and fall plowing is in progress.

LEPERS REVOLT

AND ASSAULT THE SUPERINTENDENT OF THE PLACE.

Twenty-nine Participate in the Outbreak and Fourteen Are Sentenced—Sandwich Island Politics—Movements of Cruisers.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 1.—The steamer Almeda, from Sydney via Honolulu has arrived here. Advices from Honolulu to August 23 state that the sixty-second day of its session had been reached by the legislature, and that a great amount of work had been done. The only political event of importance was the presentation to the king by native Hawaiians on August 14 of a petition praying for the appointment of a convention to revise the constitution. The matter was referred to the legislative assembly by royal message.

A banquet was given to Rear Admiral Brown by King Kalakaua, previous to the departure of the cruiser Charleston for the United States.

Advices from Molokai to August 11th, state that an outbreak of Lepers had occurred there, during which Superintendent Evans was badly maltreated. Out of 29 natives who took part in the disturbance, 14 were convicted of assault and sentenced to different terms of imprisonment. The disturbance arose over a report that Evans intended to pull down all the houses in Kalavag.

HARD TO PROVE

Will be the Charges Against the San Francisco Ring.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 1.—The charge made by M. W. Fox, of the mining stock association that Hale and Norcross shareholders, have been robbed of about two million dollars through the operations of a corrupt ring will be hard to prove. Said a prominent broker: "It is an old story and has not affected the market." Mr. Fox, who brings the charges of crookedness, says in explanation of how the branch mint at Carson could be used by a schemer: "Senator Jones is the president of the Comstock Mill Co., which controls all the mills operating on the ores of the mines which are being robbed. He is also with his friends in control of the Virginia & Truckee railroad, on which ores are shipped, and of the Virginia & Goldhill water company, which cuts a large figure in the mining industry. The superintendent of the mills mentioned, is Evan Williams, who is manager and three-fifths owner of the Bullion Exchange bank of Carson City, where bullion from the mines is taken. The cashier at the bank is also by federal appointment secretary of the United States mint at Carson City, and in that capacity takes care of the bullion which is taken into that institution. Thus the matter stands, the accused parties apparently being the least worried of all those concerned."

BLOOD POISONING.

Is the Fatal Result of Removing a Corn.

DAYTON, OHIO, Sept. 1.—Stephen J. Rigler, forman of the Religious Telescope news room, of this city, and well known in Masonic circles throughout the State, is lying at his home slowly nearing death from blood poisoning, caused by the removal of a corn from his left foot.

Shortly after the operation the foot swelled to abnormal size, and then gangrene set in. The flesh began to mortify and drop off until nothing but the framework of bones and tendons remained. The rot then spread on the leg, and the flesh began to drop off.

No alternative remained but amputation, which, on account of his age and weakened condition, has not been resorted to. His fate, therefore, is sealed.

THREE MEN KILLED.

Passenger Train Strikes a Beer Wagon With Fatal Results.

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 1.—Lake Shore passenger train No. 14 struck a beer wagon at the Hoyt avenue crossing at 7 p. m. The wagon contained Rhinehart Snyder, Fred Dooley and Michael Daley. The wagon was carried over 300 feet and the men were all killed instantly. Freight cars obstructed the view of the track, their position being a direct violation of the city ordinance. The engine was badly damaged.

Complicated Matrimony.

LOUISVILLE, KY., Sept. 1.—Daniel Webster, a young farmer living near Timble county run off last week with Mary Calloway, the daughter of a prominent farmer. Mr. Calloway followed and overtook the pair. He compelled Webster to marry the girl at the point of a pistol although the young man said there were reasons why he should not marry.

Since then it has been learned that Webster was married a year ago in Evansville where his wife now resides. He admits that he has never been divorced and Mr. Calloway is now preparing to have his supposed "son in law" prosecuted for bigamy.

LETTER FROM CHICAGO.

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 19, 1890.

DEAR HERALD—We Chicagoans of moderate means are dismayed at the prospect of an early fall and winter and all that means in the way of increased cost of living and the discomforts of winter. And, too, it seems such a pity for our beautiful parks to be despoiled of all their wealth of foliage and flowers. I think our parks have never been prettier than they have this summer.

Never in my recollection has there been such a season of tearing down and rebuilding as we have seen this summer and see now each day. Buildings that would be looked upon as palaces in smaller cities are being torn down to make way for magnificent structures that would be a credit to any city in the world. The new edifice built on the foundation of the old board of trade building is about completed and is one of the finest structures in the country. It is fourteen stories high and I heard a man say that three thousand people could live in it with comfort.

There is a prospect that we will have enough elevated roads by the time of the fair. One company has been chartered with a capital of $25,000,000 to build and equip elevated roads. The Randolph and Ogden Avenue line is in a fair way to be started soon. The Lake street road is towering over the streets as far as the point midway between Morgan and Carpenter streets. There is one curious thing about the building of the Lake street road that I think none of the city papers have commented upon. It is well known that the king gambler, Mike McDonald, is at the head of this road and I have noticed that when there has been a raid upon the gambling dens the work on the elevated has stopped. Can it be possible that Mike has been working on the profits of his gambling den and that when raids have been pushed by other than the city authorities, he has been forced to stop work on his pet?

The work done by the Chicago Daily News, that fearless champion of right and foe of wrong, in fighting the gamblers and other promotors of vice, has won the hearty praise of all good citizens. It must be a great gratification to Victor Lawson to see all the great papers swinging into line with him in fighting the common foe of virtue and prosperity.

The world's fair directorate are having a hard time to decide on a site, but that matter will be settled soon and then the world will see the work pushed with an energy that will astonish even the people of this city, who are used to the wonderful vim of its business men.

Hooley's Theatre reopened last night after a summer of quiet, with the New York Lyceum Theatre Company in "The Charity Ball." Of course it was a great success. At the Chicago Opera House the long run of "The Crystal Slipper," (its second season of prosperity) testifies to its wonderful drawing power.

At the Grand Opera House Bobby Gaylor, hitherto known as an Irish character impersonator and song and dance man of the variety stage, blossomed out as a star in the comedy, "An Irish Arab." He made a great hit and has jumped at once into popularity and fame, and has in his comedy a gold mine that will undoubtedly pan out for a long time. The play is far above the better class of so-called farce comedies, and is given a magnificent stage setting, some of the scenes being worthy of places in some great art gallery.

Henry E. Dixey has just completed a ten weeks' run at the Columbia Theatre, appearing in his three plays, "The Seven Ages," "Adonis" and "Rip," the latter a burlesque of Rip Van Winkle. While I think Dixey rather clever I still think him an altogether overated actor. At McVicker's "Shenandoah" is still drawing crowded houses, having run over one hundren nights this season.

Next week all the old theatres will be running and on the first of September Jacob's new Alhambra, at the corner of State street and Archer Avenue, will be opened by the Emma Juch Grand Opera Company. This new theatre is expected to be a great surprise to the Chicagoans, the majority of whom did not know that it was being built. It is a very showy building on the outside and it is said to be a very grand interior.

Mrs. J. T. Isham, of Coffeyville, Kansas, formerly of Tecumseh, is having a nice visit with friends in Chicago. Miss Mabel VanCamp is visiting in the city. Miss Caddy Cotton, having finished her school course at Winona, Minnesota, is at home in the city.

I seldom see any of the Tecumseh residents of this city, and I sometimes wonder that I do not meet more of them on the street. I frequently pass buildings in which I know that old acquaintances are employed, but time is such a precious thing here that one can spare none of it to make calls. There have been no meetings of the Lenawee Club for a long time for the reason that I have not had time to attend to the society. I was in hopes that such an organization could be kept up without so much work, but increased patronage made it necessary for me to drop the matter until I could spare the time.

Alba Heywood and his wife passed the summer in Chicago. Alba has been very busy reorganizing his company and getting a new and extensive stock of lithographs and other paper. He goes out this season with a company of fourteen. Mr. Heywood left for Grand Rapids last week and will rehearse his troupe until the 1st of September, when he commences his season, and with better prospects than ever before. L. F. W.

Conger by Commissioners in partition upon the estate of Stephen D. Conger; thence east on south line of that parcel so allotted to said Franklin H Conger as aforesaid thirteen and 96-100 chains to place of beginning, containing seven acres of land more or less.

Terms of sale made known at time of sale.

Dated August 25, 1890.

MARY E. MATTISON,
Guardian.

ESTATE OF MARY LOTTRIDGE.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss.

At a session of the Probate Court for the county of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office in the city of Adrian, on Monday, the 25th day of August, in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety.

Present, Richard B. Robbins, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Mary Lottridge, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Charles Burridge, executor of the last will and testament and upon the estate of said deceased alleging that the funeral expenses and debts of said deceased and the expenses of administration thus far incurred, have been fully paid, and that he is now ready to close said estate and to render his final administration account, which he prays may be allowed, and that the residue of said estate may be assigned according to the provisions of said will, that he may be discharged and his bond cancelled, and for such other order and decree as to this Court shall seem proper.

It is ordered, That Monday, the 29th day of September next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of said Petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered That said Petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee for three successive weeks, previous to said day of hearing.

RICHARD B. ROBBINS, Judge of Probate.

"Seeing is Believing."

Do you want to buy a Lamp?

And the best lamp ever made, like Aladdin's of old, a "wonderful lamp!" A lamp absolutely non-explosive and unbreakable, which gives a clear, soft, brilliant white light of 85 candle power! Purer and brighter than gas light, softer than electric light, more cheerful than either! That lamp is

"The Rochester."

And with it there is no smoke, no smell, no broken chimneys, no flickering, no sweating, no climbing up of the flame, no "tantrums" nor annoyance of any kind, and it never needs trimming. Its founts (oil reservoirs) being tough rolled seamless brass, with central draft, it is absolutely unbreakable, and as safe as a tallow candle.

Only five years old, and over two million of these lamps in use. It must be a GOOD lamp to make such a telling success. Indeed it is, for lamps may come and lamps may go, but the "Rochester" shines on forever! We make over 2,000 artistic varieties,—Hanging and Table Lamps, Banquet, Study, Vase and Piano Lamps,—every kind, in Bronze, Porcelain, Brass, Nickel and Black Wrought Iron.

Ask the lamp dealer for it. Look for the trade-mark stamp: "THE ROCHESTER." If he hasn't the genuine Rochester and the style you want, or if no lamp-store is near, send to us for free illustrated catalogue (and reduced price-list), and we will box and send you any lamp safely by express, right to your door.

FRANKLIN FACTS.

Sowing wheat will begin in earnest this week, although a few sowed some the last of August.

The last few showers have brightened up mother Nature and she has taken courage again and pasture fields are looking quite green, of which we were badly in need, as a great many farmers were foddering their stock.

The annual school meeting was held Monday night in district No. one. All passed off without a ruffle, electing E. J. Whelan assessor. 13 votes were cast, he getting 9. It was voted to buy a new dictionary and stand for same; also to have a well, of which they have long been in need.

Excelsior district held its annual meeting the first Monday in August. All districts should do the same. The weather being quite warm it had some influence on its members, as it would seem, for they voted not to pay over $30 for the fall term. The director and moderator said they were not used to having their hands tied and would therefore resign, and that they might as well close the house for a year, for they could have no school. Their resignation was accepted and new officers elected in their stead. School commenced in due time, with a first grade teacher, having taught in the State Normal one year.

But things did not pass off even as well in the Evans Lake district. One of the officers, who is a deacon in the M. E. Church at Tipton, was charged by one of the boys in the district with cheating him out of ten cents in a book exchange. Words grew hot, explanations would not do, director ordered them out of doors. Did they go? Well, they did, and before the director could get out the good deacon had the young lad going home—Oh, no!—going over backwards to change his luck and see if he couldn't find his ten cents. The young fellow did not get his meaning and was in the act of getting up when the deacon put his No. 10 where a warm breakfast would have set better, doubling the young lad up as though he had been eating green cucumbers. He began to look as though he didn't care for the ten cents, anyway, but the good deacon did not feel that way He said he had so much "love thy neighbor as thyself," that he wished there were ten instead of one. He could administer to all of their wants.

TIPTON TOPICS.

CAMBRIDGE CLIPPINGS.

The cucumber vines are now yielding their best.

Miss Mattie Graves has been visiting friends in Tecumseh the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Dewey went to Toledo last Wednesday to attend the Exposition.

Ed. Richardson of Franklin was buried at the Episcopal burying ground Sunday last. He was 24 years of age.

Last Sunday, during the rain storm, David Neely had a mare and colt and a two-year-old killed by lightning while standing under a tree.

A. T. Graves returned to Detroit last week Tuesday and got his watch, which he lost while at the Exposition. The thief had been caught and he went to prove property.

Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Dewey spent Thursday and Friday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Dewey. He was on his way from the Agricultural College, where he has been an assistant teacher for the past two years, to Washington, D. C., where he has secured a position as an assistant in the Botanical department at a salary of $1400 a year.

A Mr. Rowe, son of Rowe, the one who made the fastest mile record on a bicyle, took dinner at E. B. Culver's hotel last Thursday. He was on his way to California from New York. He was racing with another young man, whom he supposed to be about one hundred miles south of here. He rode a Victor Safety. This is the first time anyone has attempted to cross the Continent on a Safety. May success meet his weary limbs.

Catarrh Can't be Cured

with Local Applications, as they can not reach the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you have to take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure is no quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years, and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers acting on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing catarrh. Send for testimonials free.

CLEVELAND, OHIO.
J. M. Loose Red Clover Co., Detroit,
I was recommended, by one who had been cured by it, to use your Red Clover Extract. I done so and have been a happy woman ever since. The first application gave me more relief than all the medicine I had ever taken. After using less than one third of the solid extract sent me, I walked from my home down town, a distance of one mile, for the first time in 34 years. I can be on my feet all day, without any suffering, my work is a pleasure to me and I no more look forward with dread to days of pain and suffering. Your Red Clover has given me new life and am positive of a speedy cure.
Yours gratefully,
Mrs. M. G. KEITH.

TECUMSEH, THURSDAY, SEPT. 11.

Under Reed's gag rules the House of Representatives has degenerated into a veritable Donnybrook fair.

The Maine election is an oasis in the desert of Republican defeats this fall. Speaker Reed has been vindicated.

Congressman Kennedy's excoriation of Boss Quay has rarely been equalled in Congress, and it was all in the Republican family, too. And what is more to the point, it was all true.

Blaine's reciprocity is all right as far as it goes. Now if Congress would bury the McKinley bill and enact an entire tariff law built on a reciprocity platform, it would display both political wisdom and business good sense.

Congressman Bynum of Indiana was censured in the House last spring for indecorous language. That was before Joe Cannon had made his record. What does Speaker Reed propose doing in Congressman Cannon's case?

The Republican Congressional Convention that nominated Capt. Allen for a third term passed a set of resolutions, fully endorsing his record in Congress, the McKinley tariff, the gag rules, the Force bill and all. This is well. It will present the issue fairly and squarely to the voters of this district.

The tariff reform squall has struck the Green Mountain State. From 1856 to 1888 the Republican majority in Vermont has ranged from 22,000 to 28,000. Last week it fell to 16,000. A majority of less than twenty thousand in Vermont in September means a general Republican rout in November.

Read these bold words from a Republican paper, the St. Paul Pioneer Press:

The tin-plate duty has been tried by every possible test, and found wanting. It is not a question of party, but a question of whether there is sufficient reason for the serious step of adding $10,000,000 annually to the taxes of poor people. On public grounds, there is no act which less needs explanation or apology than a vote against the tin-plate tax enormity.

Speaker Reed's attention is respectfully called to the suppression of the Republican vote in Vermont last week. The Democratic vote was slightly in excess of that in 1888, while the Republican vote was 10,000 less. We expect the rascally Democrats to suppress the Republican vote in the South, but when they resort to the same tactics in New England it is high time "something was did." Hurry up the Force bill, gentlemen.

The Democrats should keep one eye on the Force bill, for it is not dead yet, by any means. Quay has declared for the bill, and it is doubtful if a single Republican senator would vote against it. Its fate will be pretty well settled by the people in November. A general rout of the Republicans would prevent its being revived. If Democrats think it is dead they should keep their heels on it for fear of a resurrection.

An exchange truthfully says: "Some of our Republican contemporaries try to console themselves with the reflection that if the McKinley bill is enacted the Tariff question will be settled for years to come. Let them not fool themselves. As well might it be said that when one man picks another's pocket and escapes with the booty, that puts an end to the transaction so far as the victim is concerned. The tariff agitation will continue until the question is settled in the right way."

The Grayling Democrat says: "At the Republican state convention there were two prominent candidates for the office of Auditor-General, which is, no doubt, the most remunerative office on the state ticket. One was Theron F. Giddings, of Kalamazoo a wire-pulling politician and stay-at-home during the war. The other was Oscar Janes, of Hillsdale, an old and badly wounded soldier. The former easily secured the prize, and thus again the G. O. P. exemplifies its love for the battle scarred veterans of '61-'65."

FARMERS AND NATIONAL POLITICS.

There is no longer a doubt as to the intention of the farmers to take a hand in national politics and to emphasize in a practical way the need for legislation in the interests of the great agricultural sections of the country.

The methods employed by the farmers in attempting to secure greater recognition in congress are worthy of practical politicians. They have organized themselves into an offensive and defensive alliance with other classes of laboring men, and have set out to control as far as possible the nominations for seats in the next congress. This is especially true in the south, where the congressional nominations in many districts are already in the hands of the Farmers' alliance.

A leading Alabama congressman has publicly expressed his opinion that the Farmers' alliance may hold the balance of power in the next house of representatives. As a basis for this opinion it is pointed out that the great strength of the Farmers' alliance in the south and west is causing so much factional strife in the dominant parties that the alliance frequently steps in and controls nominations for congress. In the south the democratic leaders are often forced to make terms with the Farmers' alliance, and a similar condition often prevails in the republican strongholds of the western agricultural states.

If the next round-up of congressional representatives shall prove that the farmers have really captured the balance of power in the popular house it is easy to predict that a radical reconstruction of parties will be inevitable. It will no longer be possible to ignore the needs of agricultural voters to legislate for the monopolists. The farmers will not take their tariff doctrine from the agents of pampered monopolies, and there will be a scattering of the promoters of class legislation that may presage a more wholesome era. The farmers will also have something to say as to trusts and railroad corporations that will overthrow many preconceived ideas as to the rights of the public to protect itself against the subtle encroachments of legalized tyranny.—Chicago Herald.

THE FARMERS' DEMANDS.

The farmers of the United States, in convention assembled at Council Bluffs, have spoken their mind touching our system of licensing the few to take tribute from the many. "Believing in the doctrine of equal rights to all and special privileges to none," they say, "we demand that our national legislation shall be so framed as not in the future to foster and build up one industry at the expense of another; we further demand a removal of the heavy tariff tax from the necessaries of life, that the poor of our land must have, and placing the same upon the luxuries of life, that the wealthy can do without and not suffer." They also "demand that national taxation be limited to the wants of the government economically administered."

There is nothing uncertain or equivocal about that. The farmers do not approve of the course of the present congress because they do not believe in prodigal and wasteful expenditures. They propose that the government shall take no more from the people than it needs under economical administration. They do not believe in inventing ways to spend money simply to provide an excuse for perpetuating war taxes and making them still higher.

They do not approve of the course of the present congress because they believe in equal rights and no special privileges, and are opposed to the policy of licensing favored industries to prey upon others and arming the few with power and authority to appropriate to themselves without compensation the earnings of the many. And they "demand a removal of the heavy tariff tax from the necessaries of life, that the poor must have." What heresy is this? Have not the farmers been told with endless iteration that the tariff is not a tax? Are they not assured of this every day by the attorneys of McKinleyism? Are they not assured that the tariff is twice blessed, enriching him who pays more than him who receives? And yet here they come talking about the "heavy tariff tax" on the necessaries of life." Evidently they do not accept without question the dicta of their self-appointed teachers, the attorneys of monopoly and class privilege.

No wonder the New York Tribune turns and rends them. No wonder it tells them they have grown wealthy and selfish, and taxes them with base ingratitude now that they refuse to believe that they have been made rich by class legislation and the granting of special privileges to favored industries other than their own. How strange that they do not swallow the bait of higher tariff taxes on barley, and potatoes, and steers. Now that the farmers are aroused, woe to privilege and monopoly.—Chicago Times.

Fall advertising is beginning to come in this week.

BEAT IT AT THE POLLS.

The postponement of the Force bill until December should not make the Democracy too confident. The Republicans count upon electing Senators from the new States of Idaho and Wyoming, and with four additional votes their prospects of having in the next session the forty-three votes necessary to change the rules and set up a gag are not hopeless.

The Democratic Senators, under the skilful leadership of Mr. Gorman, can be depended upon to resist with every parliamentary resource and to the last extremity the passage of the bill; but it is for the Democratic party to beat it at the polls next November, and then the result of the contest which is to come in December will be known. No amount of bulldozing and no exercise of party discipline can drive the reluctant Republican Senators who distrust the measure to its support if the country declares against it unmistakably at the Congress elections. By the manufacture of new States the Republicans have apparently secured control of the Senate for a number of years to come, but a good sound drubbing next fall will teach them that there is a God in Israel. They will not dare to oppose the will of the people.

With this attack upon the liberties, the peace, and the business of the country, repulsed but not yet broken, the Democratic party returns to its old and natural place as the champion of the Constitution and the enemy of Federal encroachment. The wildest Free Trader and the most inflexible Protectionist can get together in defence of free elections.

Mr. Reed and Mr. Lodge have unwittingly done a great service to the Democracy. They have given it a basis of union and the certainty of victory.—N. Y. Sun.

THE BETTER BLAINE.

Mr. Blaine has certainly added to his good fame by his recent utterances. In a self-governing Republic it ought not to be a rare thing for a politician to put the permanent interests of the country above temporary interests of party, but it is; and when Mr. Blaine does this, even though he he may have an ulterior personal motive, it cannot fail to raise him in public esteem.

At the same time, it throws into still smaller proportions the knot of politicians who are now engaged in piloting the Republican party to its ruin. Compared with Blaine, how small appears McKinley, with his narrow, near-sighted and one-sided opinions in favor of trade repression; how small is Reed with his unscrupulous willingness to destroy the fabric of the government for the sake of immediate party advantage.

Though Mr. Blaine's tariff views are still far from broad he has proved himself capable of looking beyond mere partisanship, and courageous enough to tell his party plainly that it is on the wrong track. After Reed and Lodge it is refreshing to find a Republican leader who does not regard the country as the party's legitimate prey.—Boston Globe.

BLAINE AS A FREE TRADER.

Mr. Blaine is a free trader—not a mere tariff reformer, but a radical free trader so far as the Southern and Central American republics are involved—he has officially and in the plainest and most emphatic manner declared. He desires that between all the free states of North and South American hemisphere, trade shall be as free as it is between Pennsylvania and New Jersey. And who shall say he is not right? The tariff is a business, not a political affair; it is a local, not a general matter. A tariff set up against the pauper labor competition of Europe, from which comes almost exclusively manufacturers, is a good and desirable thing if it is based upon the strict principle of adequate protection for American capital and labor; but a tariff set up against the pauper labor which supply chiefly, almost exclusively, raw materials for our manufacturers, and which are not manufacturing but consuming nations, is neither wise nor expedient.—Philadelphia Telegraph (republican.)

Uncle Jere Rusk sees it. "If these countries"—France and Germany—"should levy a high import duty on cattle or meats we could not complain; we ourselves have a protective tariff," says Uncle Jere. It is so. Neither can we complain with justice that they discriminate directly against our products when we discriminate in a roundabout way against others. All is fair in commercial war as in war of every other kind. It is for each country to choose its own weapons and follow its own methods.

The Democratic majority in Arkansas has reached 30,000 and the figures keep growing as the returns come in from the back towns. Another response to the Force bill.

Golden rod is now in bloom and there is lots of it.

Peculiar

Many peculiar points make Hood's Sarsaparilla superior to all other medicines. Peculiar in combination, proportion, and preparation of ingredients, Hood's Sarsaparilla possesses the full curative value of the best known remedies of the vegetable kingdom. Peculiar in its strength and economy—Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine of which can truly be said, "One Hundred Doses One Dollar." Medicines in larger and smaller bottles require larger doses, and do not produce as good results as Hood's. Peculiar in its medicinal merits, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures hitherto unknown, and has won for itself the title of "The greatest blood purifier ever discovered." Peculiar in its "good name at home,"—there is now more of Hood's Sarsaparilla sold in Lowell, where it is made, than of all other blood purifiers. Peculiar in its phenomenal record of sales abroad, no other preparation has ever attained such popularity in so short a time, and retained its popularity and confidence among all classes of people so steadfastly. Do not be induced to buy other preparations, but be sure to get the Peculiar Medicine,

PROTECTION ARRAIGNED.

HOW IT ACTS AS A CORRUPTING POWER IN ELECTIONS.

How Protection Gained Its Foothold on the Continent of Europe—Extension of Suffrage and Growth of Socialism the Causes—The Wage Earner's View.

Mr. E. L. Godkin, editor of The New York Evening Post, has just made a striking contribution to the tariff discussion, which appears in the September Forum.

He first seeks to account for the growth of protectionism on the continent of Europe during the past ten or twelve years.

David A. Wells accounts for that growth by pointing to the increasing risk of the European armaments, the increased production resulting from the use of imported machinery, and fiercer competition in effecting sales of the surplus product of that machinery in neutral markets. All this had the effect of depressing prices very greatly, and the use of the new machinery displaced a great deal of labor. Then came the panic of 1873, which was world wide in its effects and extended its baneful influence over several years.

Mr. Godkin does not think that these causes are sufficient of themselves to account for the radical change of tariff policy, for the non-restrictive system had worked so well that with the same leaders of opinion at the helm so great a change would have been impossible. That system had worked most successfully. Mr. Wells himself shows that under it "the European trade of the six nations of Austria, Belgium, France, Holland, Italy and Great Britain increased during the years from 1860 to 1873 more than 100 per cent., while the aggregate population during the same period increased only 7.8 per cent."

Mr. Godkin is of the opinion that the change of policy must be further explained by the extension of the suffrage in the continental nations, which brought forward new men with new ideas. Especially was this true in Germany, where protection is one expression of that socialism which preaches the regeneration of society, not through individual enterprise, but through governmental paternalism. The doctrine most prominent in this socialism is that the chief function of government is, in some way, to make the poor comfortable.

The changed political condition of Europe, then, had brought forward the working classes—with the political economy of the working classes—and these classes in Europe had had no political experience up to that time.

The prime error in the thinking of all people who earn wages or a salary is to estimate their condition according to the amount of money received, without regard to its purchasing power. "They think in money and not in goods." Consequently everything that will increase wages is set down by the working classes as an unmixed good. The laborer has nothing to sell except his labor, and he thinks only of how he may sell that labor for the most money—seldom thinking of himself as a buyer and consumer. It is the ready cash in hand that is the all important thing. Now protection promises more of this cash to the laborer—can in some cases give it—and this is what decides him in favor of protection.

Another idea which has come forward with greater force with the working classes is to exclude as many others as possible from the market in which you have to sell. As the laborer has only his labor for sale, he adopts through his trades union measures to restrict the number of apprentices entering his trade. Thus he holds the central idea of the protectionists without knowing it—that there must be as large a demand as possible for your particular kind of commodity or industry, and as few persons besides yourself to meet that demand as possible. This, with laws to enforce it, is protection. Its striving is to shut up your own market to all sellers and to open up all other markets for yourself to sell in. The impossible is attempted—to sell without buying. But both must go together, there must be a balance of the two. The great object of human industry must not be forgotten—human enjoyment; and the aim of civilization is not to make men toil, but to make the fruit of their toil abundant and attractive.

The Eighteenth century made its chief contribution to the cause of good government in raising the consumers into notice as the objects most deserving the statesman's attention and care. Under the teaching of Adam Smith the consumer began to feel that he, too, had just rights and held a larger place in the scheme of civilization.

That teaching spread over all Europe and was accepted by practically all educated men. Now, however, that the working classes have come into power the lesson will have to be learned by them also; and with them the process will be slow, for the teaching must be by experience and observation rather than from books and by arguments.

The demand that government shall supply producers with a market for their wares and relieve them of the necessity of pushing their own fortunes has had the result of making politics more and more a game of money making.

The tendency to make money out of the government has grown enormously, and the taking of government aid has ceased to be a thing from which men shrink. Bounties in the shape of increased duties have been bestowed lavishly and in every direction, without inquiring as to the manner in which the need of them had risen, whether through the applicant's incompetency, or laziness, or want of enterprise, or through his misfortune, or through unlooked for changes in the conditions of his business. As a general rule congressional committees have simply asked whether he was satisfied with his business, and if he said he was not up went the duties.

The fact that people knew that money was so easy to be got from the government has had a wide reaching effect upon the extravagant demands made upon congress. Men who have invested money under tariff protection become dependent upon the political party that gives them this protection, and here is where the tariff touches the suffrage. Whenever it is in danger, money will defend itself with money. Any weapon within reach will be used by the man who thinks he will be ruined by the success of a political party. That is to say, whenever protection is threatened with overthrow it will buy as many votes as it thinks necessary for its security. This is perhaps the most important political truth of the day.

Too Much Tariff for Him.

Ex-Governor Ames, of Massachusetts, has just returned from Europe, and has taken the first occasion to express some views on the tariff. It will be remembered that he was one of the signers of the petition of New England manufacturers last winter in favor of free coal and iron ore and for a 24 per cent. duty on pig iron. The ex-governor is the manufacturer of the celebrated Ames shovel, and he has for some time felt the tariff pressure, which is gradually driving out of New England most firms of manufacture in which iron plays an important part.

Governor Ames indorses Blaine's reciprocity plan. "Mr. Blaine," he says, "has exhibited a wise and far seeing statesmanship entirely worthy of him, and unless the Republican party takes his platform it is done for. I am a protectionist, but I believe in common sense."

The industries of the country, he says, "are in the main well established, and there is now no longer any need of excessively high duties." He has strong sympathies with those Republican papers of the west and the northwest which contend that "revision" in the party's platform two years ago meant "reduction." He identified himself with those papers and says: "We believe that when the Republican party undertook a revision of the tariff, if there happened to be palpable injustice done by too low duties, that revision was to consist in the raising of the duty so that justice should be done; but it was understood, I think, that the revision meant in most cases reduction, so that there should be a lowering of the high duties all along the line."

Retaliation Probable.

The editor of The New York Dry Goods Economist has been traveling in Europe, visiting the great manufacturing centers from which we draw large supplies of dry goods. His observations as to the feeling in regard to the McKinley bill lead him to remark, "I only wish that every member of our honorable congress could have had my experience of the last two months before casting his final vote on the McKinley tariff bill."

In Chemnitz, Germany, from which we get immense quantities of knit goods, he found very earnest opposition to the bill. He talked with leading merchants and manufacturers there, including the president of the chamber of commerce, and while these gentlemen admitted the right of America to pursue a policy of protection, they united in saying that when there is such a measure under consideration as the McKinley bill "there remains but one answer for Europe, and that is absolute retaliation, and Germany for one will resort to it promptly if we pass a prohibitive tariff."

The editor's conclusion is that "all foreign governments, though they may be divided in all other things, will, if driven to it by our congress, unite in the most rigid retaliation ever known in commercial war, and will reduce our exports to a degree we do not now dream of."

As we export $3.02 worth of agricultural products to every one dollar's worth of manufactures it is easy to see who will suffer most if Europe adopts a policy of retaliation.

To Pay France's Tax.

They say the foreigner pays the tax. If that be true let us see how it works when it is tried on us.

France has just revised her tariff laws, and while she was about it she thought she would just as well give us a good dose of McKinleyism to let us see how it tastes. Accordingly she put a duty of 33 cents a bushel on our grain, while the duty on grain from other nations is only 15 cents.

Now the question is, Will the American farmer have to pay that tax to France? That is precisely what the protectionists say the foreigner does for us, and it is a mighty poor rule that will not work both ways.

But is it not a rascally trick in France to make our farmers pay her tax? She must have heard some of our high tariff orators rejoicing in our double-back-action tariff, which compels foreigners to pay our taxes; else how could France have her moral sense so blunted as not to see what a dishonest way of treating foreigners this is? What a wonderful thing a tariff is any way.

Where the Laugh Came In.

Some protectionist statesman recently sent off a telegram to one of the leading manufacturers of agricultural implements in the country, asking him to send a strong denial of the statement that foreigners got goods at less price than Americans. This denial it was proposed to read in the house with crushing effect, and put to confusion the enemies of the holy system of protection. In a short time the answer came; but it was not what was ordered. It read as follows:

"Of course we sell cheaper to foreigners than to Americans. What is protection for?"

Then The American Economist, the organ of the Protective Tariff league, took the matter up, called the whole thing a "mare's nest," got a denial from two or three sources, only one of which is named, and then abandoned itself to the cry of "falsehood."

"The tariff should be revised by its friends." That has been for some years the catchword of the protectionists. But how the Farmers' alliance of Macon county, Ills., has "revised" that setiment and say, "The tariff should be revised by its victims."

The Best
Blood Medicine
So say Leading Physicians and Druggists, and their opinion is indorsed by thousands cured by it of Scrofula, Eczema, Erysipelas, and other diseases of the blood.

"Ayer's Sarsaparilla has won its reputation by years of valuable service to the community. It is the best."—R. S. Lang, Druggist, 212 Merrimack st., Lowell, Mass.

Dr. W. F. Wright, Paw Paw Ford, Tenn., says: "In my practice, I invariably prescribe Ayer's Sarsaparilla for chronic diseases of the blood."

Dr. R. R. Boyle, Third and Oxford sts., Philadelphia, Pa., writes: "For two years I have prescribed Ayer's Sarsaparilla in numerous instances, and I find it highly efficacious in the treatment of all disorders of the blood."

L. M. Robinson, Pharmacist, Sabina, O., certifies: "Ayer's Sarsaparilla has always been a great seller. My customers think there is no blood-purifier equal to it."

"For many years I was afflicted with scrofulous running sores, which, at last became so bad the doctors advised amputating one of my legs to save my life. I began taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla and soon saw an improvement. After using about two dozen bottles the sores were healed. I continue to take a few bottles of this medicine each year, for my blood, and am no longer troubled with sores. I have tried other reputed blood-purifiers, but none does so much good as Ayer's Sarsaparilla."—D. A. Robinson, Neal, Kansas.

The figure 9 in our dates will make a long stay. No man or woman now living will ever date a document without using the figure 9. It stands in the third place in 1890, where it will remain 10 years and then move up to second place in 1900 where it will rest for one hundred years.
There is another "9" which has also come to stay. It is unlike the figure 9 in our dates in the respect that it has already moved up to first place, where it will permanently remain. It is called the "No 9" High Arm Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine.
The "No. 9" was endorsed for first place by the experts of Europe at the Paris Exposition of 1889, where, after a severe contest with the leading machines of the world, it was awarded the only Grand Prize given to family sewing machines, all others on exhibit having received lower awards of gold medals, etc. The French Government also recognized its superiority by the decoration of Mr. Nathaniel Wheeler, President of the company, with the Cross of the Legion of Honor.
The "No. 9" is not an old machine improved upon, but is an entirely new machine, and the Grand Prize at Paris was awarded it as the grandest advance in sewing machine mechanism of the age. Those who buy it can rest assured, therefore, of having the very latest and best.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.
It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.
The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.
WHAT IT CURES.
All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with Inflammation.
It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.
Over 40 Years,
This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates it cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

THE WRONG WAY TO TEST A BOY.

The lesson taught by Jonathan H. Groves, of Hillsboro, Ill., comes in good time. It is the height of the watermelon season, and the country was never, perhaps, more generally infested by small boys than it is now. All kinds of plans will be resorted to to protect the watermelon patches ranging from bear traps to mor l suasion, and from a decoy melon loaded with dynamite to a vain attempt to satiate the enemy by giving him free melons during the day. but there is danger in some methods carried out in certain ways. Jonathan H. Groves tried one of the dangerous plans. We should scarcely need to recite the story of Mr. Grove's unfortunate experience were it not for the fact that a grossly careless local correspondent omitted some of the important details in the meagre account sent out.

Mr. Grove's watermelon patch has long been his pride. It is situated behind the horse barn by the side of the five-acre field and just up from the back wood lot. The soil is sandy and warm and no melons grown in Illinois surpass Mr. Grove's in point of either size or flavor. After Mr. Groves has had four tumblers of cider and smoked two pipes he is wont to wink at the company and explain how the watermelon vines in that patch grow so fast some years that they wear the melons all out dragging them across the ground; but as the effect of the cider and tobacco gradually wear off he never fails to explain that this is a joke. Last season the boys got most of the melons from this patch, but this season Mr. Grove's determined to defend it at any cost. Monday evening after supper, and after the cows had been milked, and he water pumped in the upper pasture, and the horses fed and bedded, and the hen-house shut, and the pigs and calves looked after, and the wood-box filled, and the front bars put up, and the rat-trap set in the cellar, and various other little matters arranged, Mr. Groves called his boy Ike. twelve years old, and told him to keep his eye on his honored father. Then he took down the old double barrel shotgun and loaded it as never gun was loaded before. First he put two table-spoonfuls of powder in each barrel and then half of a "Hillsboro Mirror and Banner." Then he poured in a few handfuls of buckshot, musket-balls and irregular chunks of lead, and finished with a few shingle nails for good measure, securing all in place with the rest of the "Mirror and Banner." Then he adjusted waterproof caps and handed the gun to Ike and told him to get behind the big burdock in the corner of the melon patch and shoot anybody he saw trying to steal melons. Ike said that he would. and took the gun and started for the melon patch whistling "I want to be an Angel." Mr. Groves went to bed.

But the owner of the best melon patch in Illinois could not sleep. He doubted if Ike was "game." "He's blame heavy on the whistle, but he can't shoot," he remarked to Mrs. Groves. A few minutes after he got up and said that he was going to test Ike. Don't make a tarnel fool of yourself," remarked Mrs. Groves with pleasing wifely candor. "You shut up," returned Mr. Groves gently. "That air boy takes after you, and he's a coward." Mrs. Groves said no more. She recognized that it was one of those rare occasions when she could gracefully keep still. Mr. Groves went out into the the darkness. Five minutes later he was in the middle of his watermelon patch. He took out his jack-knife and stooped over the largest melon in the patch. There was an explosion which rattled the barbed-wire fence and cracked the back window in the sheep-house. Ike had given his able father both barrels in the legs. Mrs. Groves rushed out and dragged her intelligent husband to the house by the collar. Ike loaded up again, a little heavier than before, because he saw there was going to be good shooting before morning. In ten minutes his mother came out and implored him to come into the house. He threw his gun over his left arm, drew a "bead" on the old lady and replied: "You can't come that game on me—you ain't my mother. Skip, or I'll give you the right!" Mrs. Groves returned to the house. Sunrise found the doctor picking shot out of the clever Mr. Grove's legs, while Ike still stood behind the burdock, softly whistling the doxology and peering around for game.

Mr. Groves made a mistake, and he sees it himself now. As he lies in bed waiting for his legs to get well he remarks a dozen times a day to his wife that what he should have done was to send the hired man out to test the boy.—New York Tribune.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

The following is the annual report of the Woman's Missionary Society, of the M. E. Church, read at their meeting last Sunday evening:

As we are about closing up the work of our Society for the year, we thought it might be of interest to give a brief report of our work during the year that is past. Although we have not accomplished all that we desired, yet we are not discouraged, for the Lord is with us.

We have in our Society 34 members, 6 of whom are life members. We have 8 subscribers to the "Heathen Woman's Friend," and some 18 or 20 mite boxes are distributed among the ladies of our Society. During the year we have sent to the Branch Treasurer

For dues,	$32.25
Thanksgiving gift,	5.00
Mite box money,	6.00
Elizabeth Hoag sch'p fund,	10.00
Making a total of	$53.25

But in looking over the general report we find that the Northwestern Branch, of which we are an auxiliary, gave $50,000 for missionary work during the year 1889. Now this little mite that we have given seems but a drop in the bucket compared with what the whole branch has given; yet, while we feel that we have done so little, the fact comes to us that this Northwestern Branch is made up of 1075 of these little auxiliary societies, scattered here and there through the States of Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana and Michigan, with a membership roll of 24,127, saying nothing of the nine other branches, each doing nearly the same amount of work, and we as a society feel it a great privilege to belong to this great army of missionary workers. And yet how much more might be done toward sending the Gospel to these sisters who sit in heathen darkness if every lady in our churches could become interested in this work. In our own church there are perhaps 150 ladies whose names are written on our Church record and not over 50 who are doing active missionary work. The thought will come to us—where are the ninety and nine who are doing nothing toward helping to carry on this great work? If there are any of that number here tonight we earnestly invite you to come to our meetings, which are held the first Wednesday afternoon of each month, for we need your help, your encouragement and your prayers. That heathen sister across the sea is pleading for you to send her the Light. Christ is saying to you, "Lift up your eyes and look on the fields, for they are white already to harvest." Oh! let us begin the new year with renewed consecration and earnestness,—to do in Christ's name what our hands find to do.

MRS. P. C. SNELL,
Rec. Secretary.

THE PROHIBITION MASS MEETING.

The Prohibitionists of Lenawee Country rallied in force last week at the County seat to listen to ex-Gov. St. John and Mrs. Lathrop.

They came by crowds to the city, and an immense procession of teams wended its way to the fair grounds, leaving Winter street at about 11 o'clock. In the procession were many banners and mottoes, some of which were appropriate, and some of which were probably a dead blank to the minds of those bearing them. One very suggestive motto, however, conveyed a warning to the Republican party—"No more prohibition laws with holes in, for us."

R. W. Boyd was grand marshal, and in due time the long procession, preceded by a fine brass band, took up its line of march to the fair grounds, where a picnic dinner, with cold tea, ice water and lemonade was enjoyed by the throng. It was an immense audience that Gov. St. John looked upon as he arose and began his speech. For nearly two hours this gifted and eloquent speaker presented his views upon the political issues of the day, and his audience listened spell-bound. Many Republicans and Democrats were present and took a keen interest in the argument.

In the evening Mrs. Lrthrop, of Jackson, spoke to a large audience at the opera house, and the Prohibition leaders are jubilant over their day's work.

Card of Thanks.

We earnestly desire to express our sincere thanks to all our friends who so kindly assisted us in our late bereavement, and especially do we thank the W. R. C., the G. A. R. and Co. C. and Band for their kindness and attention.

MR. AND MRS. F. P. DEUEL,
FLORENCE DEUEL,
FRANK A. DEUEL.

Card of Thanks

We wish to extend to our many friends our heartfelt thanks for their sympathy and assistance in our recent affliction and for their beautiful floral gifts at the time of the funeral.

ANOTHER BIG PICNIC.

The Devils Lake picnic at Beardsell's Landing on Thursday of last week was attended by an enormous crowd as usual. The special train from this end of the Mackinaw road contained seven coaches. The largest crowd however came on the South branch from Ohio. The people in attendance however were not as liberal as in former years and the hotels, refreshment stands and boats had their receipts curtailed from former years. The literary program was full better than the average. The following officers were chosen for the ensing year:

President—I. N. Hathaway, Raisin.
Vice President—Calvin H. Crane, Madison.
Secretary—A. M. Sickley, Woodstock.
Treasurer—Wm. H. Wiggins, Adrian

DIRECTORS.

Adams—Norman Sharp.
Moscow—Hon. Geo. W. Willis.
Hudson—I. S. Phelps.

Palmyra—Chas. Keeber.
Tecumseh—D. T. Hall.
Medina—Chas. F. Morse.

WAR IN PALMYRA.

The Palmyra patrons, having secured the consent of the school district to hold their meetings in the school house, the school board gave their permission. The mistake made in this matter appears to have been in not obtaining the permission of citizen Harvey Parker, instead of the school district and board. Harvey believes that the tenets of the order and the doctrines taught by the patrons of industry, unathical from a republican standpoint, in fact rank heresy, and he resolved that no session should be held without his honoring presence. Thursday evening of last week he appeared on the scene, and "sat it out" with the patrons, who, of course, did not go into secret session. Parker was not thrown out, and was allowed to remain and listen to the pretty remarks made to and concerning him. It is said that he proposes to attend all subsequent meetings of the patrons that may be held at the school house, which evidently means that he intends to be there as an intruder. This looks like a very ill-advised course on Mr. Parker's part, and many republiaan patrons are "hot" about it. The contest between Parker and the patrons will be watched with interest.—Adrian Press.

CHICAGO INTER-STATE EXPOSITION.

The eighteenth Annual Exhibition of this organization opened Sep. 3, and close Oct. 18th. Our information gives assurance that the preparatory work is completed. All the available space in the immense building is fully occupied. The novelty and high character of the exhibits in every department of Industry, Art, and Science make the Exhibition, as a whole, seem more like a rehearsal for the World's Fair than like an ordinary local event. The display of electric lights by the "Sun Electric" and the "Edison" Companies surpassed anything of the sort heretofore seen in America, and is worth a journey to see. The Art Galleries contain the best collection ever made in this country, aggregating a value of nearly half a million of dollars. All Western Railways transport passengers at excursion rates.

Burdock Blood Bitters taken after eating will relieve any feeling of weight or over fulness of the stomach. Sold everywhere.

A SHORT VISIT AT ELGIN.

We left home last Saturday on the afternoon train, bound for Elgin Ill., to make Geo. N. Stacy a little visit. Took the night train from Adrian on the Lake Shore, arriving in Chicago about eight o'clock Sunday morning. Upon taking the train at Adrian we found Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Burlingame of Coldwater. They were just returning from a trip of four weeks through the west. They visited Kansas City, Denver, and St. Joseph and took a ride through the Indian Territory and Oklahoma. They enjoyed their journey tip-top, although feeling pretty well tired out.

Finding that we had to wait in Chicago until four o'clock in the afternoon to catch a Sunday train we took a street car and went up to L. F. Wheeler's. Found him at home and passed a few hours there very pleasantly. He is doing well in business, and his time is fully occupied at portrait painting.

At four o'clock we boarded a train on the C. M. & St P. road and a run of an hour and a half brought us to Elgin. We gave George a nice surprise, having sent him no notice of our coming, and arriving there in a rain storm. We found the family all at home however and all well.

Monday forenoon we visited the new watch case factory. This is a new enterprise lately started in the Northern shberbs of the city. It will employ about 500 hands when it gets in operation and will be a valuable addition to the manufacturing interests of that thriving city. We also visited the new building just erected for the electric light plant. They have started an electric street railway. The motive power for the street cars and also for lighting the city is now all furnished in one electric light plant. The building is an admirable one for the purpose. In the main room there are four engines of 150 horse power, each of which runs two large dynamos, and the boiler room is equipped with six mammoth boilers.

George has lately been indulging in a little real estate speculation. He has sold his house and lot for $2000, which is quite an advance over the original cost and will at once build another house on a lot he owned on the same street in West Elgin. That part of the city is growing very rapidly now and real estate is advancing accordingly.

Going back to Chicago on the noon train we spent the afternoon in transacting some business at several houses. Chicago seems to "hustle" more and more with each year. The principal streets were all crowed to overflowing that afternoon In the evening we attended the Exposition with friend Wheeler. While doing the art gal lery we met Harry Dunn, and also Miss Maud Eccles, who is spending a few weeks in Chicago visiting friends. Among the exhibits we saw Brewer's tile and brick machine and clay crusher, and one of T. O. Perry's air moters.

We took the midnight train for home, arriving in Adrian Tuesday morning with the delegates to the Republican convention, and got home safe and sound Tuesday noon.

The ideal magazine should be like a perfect dinner: seasonable, tempting, satisfying, never heavy, each course perfect in itself, with dainty entrees and entremets to give zest and piquancy, the whole affording such pleasure and satisfaction that it leaves a desire for a repetition of the feast. This is the case with Demorest's Family Magazine for October, just received; when one has read it all through (and everyone who takes it up will do so) there is a desire to begin at the beginning and enjoy it all over again.

OBITUARY.

Richard C. VanAntwerp was born at Canajoharrie, N. Y., Nov. 21st., 1830, where he lived until attaining his majority. At the age of 24 he was united in marriage to Hattie W. Jones of Ilion, N. Y. This union was blessed with three sons, all of whom are living and were present at the funeral. In the year 1860 he moved to this state and lived in Kalamazoo nine years; afterwards spent some time in other parts of the state, and has lived in Tecumseh for the past thirteen years. For the past five years he has been a sufferer from Bright's disease, but has generally been able to attend to his daily avocation. About two months ago he became worse and has since been confined to his home. Death brought a welcome relief from his sufferings on Friday last.

The funeral services were held at the residence last Sunday afternoon and were largely attended by sympathizing neighbors and friends. Rev. J. S. Joslin officiated, and he was assisted by a former pastor, Rev. R. S. Pardington, who happened to be in Tecumseh on a visit. The services were deeply impressive and affecting throughout.

Thus has passed to his final reward a kind husband and an indulgent father. He will be missed in that household more than words can tell, but his earthly sufferings are now over and he has gone to that bourne from whence no traveler returns.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Elliott visited the Exposition Monday. They will make a short visit with friends in Canada before returning. Tom has been on the sick list and we hope that Canadian air and water will make him to wield the sledge with accustomed vigor on his return.

Miss Mabel Hayden left home last Friday for a year's sojourn in Dresden where she will take an advanced course of instruction upon the violin. She sailed from New York Monday evening on the Freeland. She leaves home with the hearty good wishes of all for a safe journey across the Atlantic and abundant success in her studies.

Albert N. Conger, who lives north of the village, has attended school here for the past four years. He left Tecumseh last Monday morning for Fayette, Ohio, where he expects to take a years' course at Fayette College. His stepfather, W. E. Matteson, went over with him to see him settled and speaks highly of the Business College.

One of the unique eatures of the September Magazine of American History is a descriptive view of the first croton water celebration, in 1842, in contrast to the second in 1890, accompanied by a reproduction of the only picture made at the time known to exist. The rare old print is attached to the historic music (also reproduced in fac-simile) arranged for the famous Croton Water Ode of George P. Morris, and sung in front of the park fountain at the celebration by members of the Sacred Music Society of New York. Both the picture and the music are priceless relics, and it was a clever thought which led to their preservation in this standard periodical, where they will be greatly prized and appreciated.

Miss Susie Reeves of Cone, is visiting her friend, Angie Nyland.

Thomas Wyrill is smiling, having obtained an increase of pension.

Francisco Horning of Tecumseh, has obtained an original pension.

An infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bice died last Saturday night.

"The Story of a Magazine" is the title of a neat little pamphlet giving an account of the rise and progress of the Ladies' Home Journal. The growth of that Magazine has been wonderful. It was started in 1883 and has attained a circulation of half a million copies.

The Prohibition Club of Macon will meet at the home of J. W. Baker on Monday evening, Sept. 15th, for the purpose of electing delegates to the County Convention, and to transact other important business. It is hoped that every member will be present.

BY ORDER OF PRES.

A project has been started to have a Lecture Course in Tecumseh during the coming winter. J. H. Osborn is making a canvass to get pledges of one hundred shares at $5.00 each. Seventy have already been taken and there is no doubt but what the whole number will be forthcoming. As soon as they are all taken a meeting will be called to elect officers and inaugurate the course.

The last week in August, H. Brewer & Co., received orders for six brick and tile machines. One came by telegram from Denver, Col., and a second by telegram from Clinton, S. C. Geo. S. Roach of Savanah, Ga., came here personally and engaged the first of five machines. A Mr. Blaisdell of Parkersville, Ga., bought one, having come here purposely to examine them. Parties at Chattanooga, Tenn., and Bridgeport, Ala., each took one machine.

A new book by Captain Charles King, entitled Campaigning with Crook, and Stories of Army Life, is announced for immediate publication by Messrs. Harper & Brothers. It includes the narrative of the author's adventures while with General Crook's Big Horn and Yellowstone expedition against the Indians in 1876, together with three short stories of frontier military life, and several illustrations by leading American artists.

Mr. Fred Slocum, of the Caro Advertiser, has assumed the management of the circulating department of the Detoit Journal, and Mr. A. H. Finn, late of the Port Huron Tribune, has taken the management of the Journal's advertising department. In securing these two additions to its working force the Journal has made a hit. They have already built up fine newspaper properties in their former locations and will undoubtedly succeed equally as well in their new field of labor.

The report in the papers that Dr. Robt. Stephenson died from the effects of morphia, etc, are all false reports. Dr. J. F. Jenkins arrived home Monday noon and went to Adrian Tuesday with official report of the post mortem examination which was given to the family, which explains all to them in a satisfactory way, and they say Dr. J. F. Jenkins did all that could be done.

Francis Labadie has delighted Tecumseh audiences heretofore and he will do it again in the popular play of Blue Beard, to be presented by his combination on Sept. 22d.

NOTICE TO FARMERS.

Osgood Bros. of Britton are now ready to manufacture Sorghum and Cider. They have added new and improved machinery for the manufacture of Sorghum. Having had long experience in the manufacture of Sorghum they are not afraid to guarantee their work to be first-class. They have facilities for working up cane very rapidly, therefore there will be no danger of cane spoiling after receiving at the mill.

They are located in the village of Britton and solicit the patronage of farmers having cane to be made up to give them a call.

SORGHUM MOLASSES.

Having thoroughly repaired our Sorghum mill, and added several improvements, we are better prepared than ever before to manufacture first-class Sorghum molasses. Farmers having small or large lots to make can bring their cane to us and be sure of receiving molasses from their own cane. We shall also have a quantity of syrup on hand to sell by the barrel or single gallon. Give us a trial and we will guarantee satisfaction. Having had 30 years' experience in the business, we claim to be well posted in the art of syrup making and can manufacture an article second to none.

One Section of a Rio Grande Train

DASHES INTO ANOTHER CAUSING GREAT LOSS OF LIFE.

Five Bodies Are Taken from the Wreck and Twelve Are Still Missing—Forty Persons Are Reported to Have Been Seriously Wounded—Many Will Die.

DENVER, COL., Sept. 8.—The Times Canon City, Colorado, special says: A terrible accident has occurred on the Denver and Rio Grande road near Adobe. The train was running in two sections. The first section had two day coaches loaded with laborers and had become derailed four miles below Florence. The second section dashed into them with terrific force, smashing the two coaches, injuring from 35 to 40 men and killing a number outright. The bodies of five have been recovered and twelve are still missing. The wounded are being cared for at Florence, Coal Creek and Canon City.

Of the forty-seven men known to have been in the car, five were killed instantly and thirty-seven wounded. Two of the injured can not recover.

The dead are: H. L. Winters, Idaho Springs, Col.; Jonathan Falks, Pueblo, A. M. Mayer, Pueblo; James Donovan, Pueblo; C. B. Williams, Leadville.

The most seriously injured are: James Faust, J. P. Orenti, Ed Brown, John Walsh, E. L. Fash, John Palmer, Ernest Scott, Ubaldo Maschutt, John Delduen, Ed Martini, Michel Burke and David Ashberry.

CLEVELAND COLLISION.

Nickle Plate Engine Strikes a Cable Car With Fatal Results.

CLEVELAND, OHIO, Sept. 8.—A dozen people were badly injured, some of them fatally, by an accident at the Wilson avenue crossing of the New York, Chicago and St. Louis railroad, in this city, about 7:30 last night. As an electric motor with one trail car was crossing the track it was struck by an engine running at a high rate of speed. The pilot of the engine struck between the motor and trailer, tearing them apart and throwing one to each side of the track in a badly wrecked condition. There were about 20 passengers on the trail car and they were thrown in all directions, some being buried under the debris. Relief was soon at hand and the injured were cared for.

The following is the list of injured: Minnie Mock, aged 24, crushed, died at the hospital; J. A. Moore, 39 Hamlet street, aged 24 years, arm crushed and leg injured; Annie Nieman, collar bone broken and face cut; Louisa Mock, cut on head and arms; Edward Watson, of Kent, Ohio, right foot crushed; Charles Woods, 19 Hamlet street, body bruised; George Somers, leg cut; George Neef, 31 Alexander avenue, severely bruised; Lizzie Cable, body bruised; Lizzie and Eliza Bragg, 184 Petrie street, cut and bruised; Mrs. Mooney, 142 Petrie street, leg sprained; Frank Rose, of Kent, O., badly bruised; Leora Howell, Kent, O., cut about head and legs.

Another Accident.

SOUTH NORWALK, CONN., Sept. 8.—The express train due here from Boston at 5:20 p. m., ran into a Danbury and Norwalk railroad commuters train at the Junction in this city. About thirty passengers were injured, and both trains were badly smashed.

The express was over an hour late, and the accident was due to the fact that the Danbury and Norwalk train was being made up on the main track, without proper regard for safety. The engineer of the express train was unable on account of a curve to see the other train until too late to prevent the collision. The express dashed into the second coach from the rear of the Danbury train, throwing it from its tracks.

The passengers on both trains were badly shaken up, but only those in the wrecked car were injured, none however, seriously. Their names so far as can be learned are: W. G. Coates, Newark, N. J.; Aaron Lockwood, Sanford's Station; George B. Waterman, Sanford's Station; Charles Godfrey, Sanford's Station; Matilda E. Richardson, Newark, N. J.; Mary A. Godfrey, Sanford's Station, and Miss Emily Martin, New York, N. Y.

Every physician in the city was summoned to care for the injured and the patients are all doing nicely.

The officials of both roads arrived an hour after the accident and are now endeavoring to place the blame. From all that can be learned, it seems to fall upon the head of the draw tender, who, although on duty, with a red lantern failed to give the signal of danger. The west bound track on the Consolidated and the single track on the Housatanic are effectually blocked and traffic is not likely to be resumed before morning.

Still Another.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Sept. 8.—The engine and thirty-six cars of a north bound freight train on the Richmond Danville railroad went through a bridge near Salisbury into the Yadkin river yesterday. The caboose was saved, Conductor Scott uncoupling it just in time to prevent its going down with the train. The fireman and engineer saved themselves by jumping, and were but slightly. Brakeman Arrington went down on a car, but came to the surface of the river unhurt despite his fall of sixty feet. The loss to the company is estimated at $100,000, and it is said to be the biggest freight wreck the road ever experienced.

Texas Fever in Iowa.

WATERLOO, IA., Sept. 8.—Texas fever has broken out among the cattle near Elberon, Tama county. One farmer has lost thirty-three head in the past week and the disease is spreading. It was introduced by a cow which was brought from Texas while it was suffering from the disease.

Well Known River Man Dead.

RONDOUT, N. Y., Sept. 8.—D. H. Bishop, first mate of the steamboat Mary Powell, died at New Hamburg. He was a steamboat man for over 30 years and well known all along the river.

Sixty Thousand Laborers.

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 8.—The number of men participating in the labor parade, on the occasion of the Trades Union congress, is estimated at sixty thousand.

STALLION NELSON

Tries to Break the Record on a Very Slow Track.

BANGOR, ME., Sept. 8.—The stallion Nelson made two attempts Saturday to lower the record. The track was slippery and the air heavy and sultry. The first mile was trotted in 2:15¼, and half an hour later the second trial was given, he making the mile in 2:15¼, the quarter in 34½, half in 108, three-quarters in 1:40 and the mile in 2:15¼.

Very Fast.

INDEPENDENCE, IOWA, Sept. 8.—The pacer, Roy Wilkes, owned by the Calumet stock farm of Chicago, that lowered the world's stallion pacing record to 2:08¼ last week, went a half mile yesterday in 1:14½, the fastest half mile ever paced or trotted by any horse. M. E. McHenry has offered to match him against any pacer on earth for $5,000 a side, Adonis or Hal Pointer preferred.

GOOD WEATHER

FOR GROWING CROPS, ESPECIALLY IN CORN STATES.

Weekly Weather Crop Bulletin Reports a Generally Encouraging Condition of Crops of All Kinds Throughout the Country.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—The Weather Crop Bulletin issued for the week ending to-day says: The weather during the past week in the states of the Upper Mississippi, Lower Mississippi and the Ohio valleys was generally favorable for growing crops, especially throughout the principal corn producing states. Considerable damage is reported in North Dakota from hail and severe local storms. More rain is needed in portions of Illinois and Missouri, but the ground is generally in favorable condition for fall plowing, which is general throughout the winter wheat belt. "Kentucky reports weather favorable for a large corn crop, a short tobacco crop of excellent quality; pasture best in years." Cotton is opening well in Tennessee; picking in progress; late corn greatly improved; tobacco being out; and an increased wheat acreage.

Reports from the West Gulf states indicate that the cotton crop was improved by the favorable weather of the past week. In Louisiana and Texas picking is progressing rapidly. No serious damage from worms, and no fears entertained.

Rice and corn harvesting is progressing favorably in Louisiana and cane continues in the best condition.

The low average temperature in Mississippi and heavy rains in southern portions of South Carolina, caused some slight injury to the cotton crop. In Alabama and North Carolina the weather was more favorable, and the crop is being secured rapidly. Small crops are reported as doing well.

Rain is needed in the central portion of Virginia for late tobacco and fall plowing, the ground being very dry in the northwest; pastures dried up.

In New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, the weather conditions are very favorable for maturing crops, and considerable progress has been made in plowing with prospect of an increased acreage of wheat.

New England reports "good tobacco crop nearly all secured, and root crops promise well. The yield of cranberries will be good but less than last year. The yield of beans is good with a large acreage. Apples will yield from one-fourth to one-half a crop."

There was no damage from the light rain in Oregon on Sunday last, and reports indicate that there will be an excellent yield of wheat, oats and barley in that state, where fruit is in good condition and hop picking in progress.

POLITICAL OUTRAGES

Are Denounced by the Texas Republican State Convention.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 8.—The Times-Democrat, San Antonia, Texas special says: Just before the close of the Republican State convention the following important resolutions were adopted: "That we, as the Republican State convention, do most vigorously, fearlessly and explicitly denounce the outrages committed on the Republicans by Democrats in various parts of the state; that we censure the present state governor for failing to subjugate the perpetrators of such offenses; that we demand of congress emphatically the enactment of the Lodge election bill."

A resolution heartily endorsing the position taken by Speaker Reed that this is a government of majorities was also passed.

The New Battle Ships.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—The plans and specifications for the three great battle ships and the swift three-screw cruiser to be built for the navy, bids for which are to be opened October 1, have just been completed by the bureaus of construction and steam engineering. All of the actual work designing, planning, drawing, calculating, verifying, copying and printing on these specifications, which relate to a project that will cost $15,000,000, has been done within the past nine weeks, with a short force in both bureaus.

Ocean Mail Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—Mr. Bingham, of Pennsylvania, the chairman of the House committee on postoffices and post-roads, submitted the favorable report of that committee on the Senate bill to provide for ocean mail service between the United States and foreign ports. The report is devoted largely to statistics and other information concerning ocean mail service and contains arguments in support of the bill which were urged in the Senate at the time it was under discussion by that body.

Wisconsin Cyclone.

WAUSAU, WIS., Sept. 8.—Aniwa, a small town a few miles north of here, was swept by a cyclone. The path of the storm was eighty rods wide and six miles long and it left a clean swath through the woods. The residence of J. Carpenter was almost entirely demolished, but the occupants escaped without injury. Mr. Ryland's residence was unroofed and blown from its foundation, and the front of the postoffice was entirely demolished. No lives were lost.

The Bank Statement.

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—The bank statement shows the banks to have increased in reserve during the past week $2,431,700. Now hold below legal requirements $1,401,015.

MURDERERED FOR MONEY.

Villainous Assault Upon a Coal Merchant by a Former Employe.

SEA CLIFF, N. Y., Sept. 8.—J. H. Worth, a coal merchant, was assaulted yesterday in his office by a man known as "William," who formerly worked for Mr. Worth. The man crept into the office and struck Mr. Worth on the back of the head with a wrench. He was about to continue his murderous work when Robert Dayton, one of Mr. Worth's drivers, who had been attracted by hearing Mr. Worth fall to the floor, rushed in and grappled with the assailant. A strugle ensued, but other help soon arrived, and the would-be murderer was overpowered and placed in custody. Mr. Worth was unconscious and up to a late hour had not rallied. It is feared he will die of concussion of the brain. It is supposed that "William," who knew that Mr. Worth drew money Saturdays to pay off his men, intended to kill Mr. Worth and obtain the money. "William" had not been in Sea Cliff since he stopped working for Mr. Worth, two years ago, until recently, when he reappeared and professed to be looking for work. The affair has caused great excitement among the residents of Sea Cliff and the neighboring villages.

EMANCIPATION DAY.

A MOVEMENT ON FOOT BY THE COLORED PEOPLE

To Establish the Custom of Annually Observing This Day by a National Affair—Meeting Called for Richmond, Va., Next Month.

RICHMOND, VA., Sept. 8.—A number of leading colored men of Virginia are arranging for a national celebration of the issue of Abraham Lincoln's proclamation of emancipation, to take place at Richmond, October 15, 16 and 17. On the second day delegates from every county in the state and from all parts of the Union are invited to meet in council for the purpose of maturing plans for the annual celebration by the colored race in America of this most momentous event in its history. The celebration will be held on the exposition grounds, under the auspices of the executive committee. In its address the committee advise that the old costume and wearing apparel used during the days of slavery be brought to Richmond; also such articles as spinning-wheels, old cards that were used for carding cotton and wool, as relics of those days. Speakers from nearly every state in the Union will be invited to be present. The committee has arranged to bring together the relatives and friends who were sold during the days of slavery and have never been able to get any trace of each other since that time. Among the features of the occasion will be a sham battle by colored soldiers. Old plantation songs and religious hymns will be sung.

COMMISSIONER RAUM.

Says He Will Not Resign—He Never Runs Under Fire.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—Concerning the statement that he was about to resign his office because of charges made against him, pension commissioner Raum says in an enterview published here: "There is not a single word of truth in the whole story. I have not resigned nor have I the slightest intention of resigning. I never yet have run when under fire and I have no intention of beginning that sort of thing just now. It will be very easy for me to clear myself of all these charges against me, and what is more, I can prove that the charges and the investigation are alike the results of malice and bad blood. That is really all I care to say just now.

CONGRESSIONAL.

Further Discussion of the Tariff Bill on Monday.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—In the House the conference report on the river and harbor bill was discussed and agreed to. The bill for a lighthouse at Smith's Island, Virginia (with Senate amendments), was sent to the commerce committee, after some discussion, on a ruling of the speaker pro tem.

The Senate resumed consideration of the tariff bill. An agreement was reached to extend the time for discussion of the bill so as to consider the sugar schedule Monday under a thirty minute rule. All the bill except a few paragraphs (which included the sugar and reciprocity paragraphs), was disposed of before adjournment.

AT DEVIL'S LAKE

A Terrible Hail Storm Prevails, Destroying the Crops.

DEVIL'S LAKE, N. D., Sept. 8.—The worst hail storm on record has prevailed here. All the crops in this country that were spared from the drought and ready for harvest are utterly ruined. Immense hail stones fell for an hour, smashing every window in the city. The extent of the damage is not yet known, but destitution next winter will be much greater than last year.

ON FRENCH SOIL

Prince Bismarck Stands for the First Time Since 1871.

LONDON, Sept. 8.—Prince Bismarck has arrived at Nice, touching French soil for the first time since the Franco-Prussian war. He is accompanied by his son, Count Herbert, and has evidently been assured of a not unfavorable reception.

Killed by Lightning.

VANDALIA, ILL., Sept. 8.—At Mulberry Grove Friday evening, Charles Riley, sought shelter under a tree during a thunder storm. A bolt of lightning struck the tree, killing Riley instantly.

Still Another.

GREENBAY, WIS., Sept. 8.—During the storm Saturday lightning struck the barn of Jacob Bodart, near this city, firing the building and killing Mr. Bodart and a team of horses.

Can Cabbage Supplant Potatoes?

DUBLIN, Sept. 8.—Mr. Davitt has sent half a million cabbage roots to the districts of Ireland affected by the potato blight. It is hoped that the cabbage crop will to a considerable extent mitigate the distress caused by the failure of the potato crop.

Obituary.

LONDON, Sept. 8.—The Earl of Rosslyn is dead.

DUBLIN, Sept. 8.—John Leahy, Catholic bishop of Dromore, died yesterday of paralysis.

They all Failed.

The following letter from Mr. W. A. Thomson, of Columbus, Wis., is peculiarly interesting: "My wife," says he, "has been treated for her head, stomach and nervous prostration by three doctors in New York, two in Chicago, one in Philadelphia, one in Cincinnati, and at the large institute in Buffalo for 16 months. They all failed. But one bottle of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine helped her wonderfully." This should be used in all headaches, backaches, changes of life, nervous disturbances, fits, rheumatism, etc. Ask at Baker and Hall's drug store for a free trial bottle and Dr. Miles' new book on the Nerves and Heart.

DODD'S CATARRH CURE.

LOCAL AND INTERNAL TREATMENT.

In order to cure catarrh it is necessarry to allay the inflammation of the irritated membranes with a soothing application, cleanse the head of the plugging mucous secretions, and heal the discharging ulcers. For cold in the head and nasal catarrh Dodds' local treatment does this without the aid of snuff, douches or fumes. If the disease has extended downwards affecting the bronchial tubes or lungs, digestion and blood, the internal treatment both removes from the system the scattered poison, and by its building-up properties assists nature in restoring the impaired parts. Send for our book treating on catarrh. FOSTER, MILBURN & CO., proprietors, Buffalo, N. Y. Sold in Tecumseh, Mich. by C. A Wright & Co., druggists.

ESTATE OF MARY LOTTRIDGE.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss. At a session of the Probate Court for the county of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office in the city of Adrian, on Monday, the 25th day of August, in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety.

Present, Richard B. Robbins, Judge of Probate. In the matter of the estate of Mary Lottridge, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Charles Burridge, executor of the last will and testament, and upon the estate of said deceased, alleging that the funeral expenses and debts of said deceased and the expenses of administration thus far incurred, have been fully paid, and that he is now ready to close said estate and to render his final administration account, which he prays may be allowed, and that the residue of said estate may be assigned according to the provisions of said will, and for such other order and decree as to this Court shall seem proper.

It is ordered, That Monday, the 29th day of September next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court then to be holden on at the Probate office, in the City of Adrian, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of said Petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said Petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee, for three successive weeks, previous to said day of hearing.

A NEW YORK DUDE.

A Genius Whom the World Calls a Fool.

A short time ago, says a New York correspondent in the San Francisco Argonaut, while sitting at a table in a Cooney Island restaurant with the redoubtable B——, best company to be found in town, our attention was attracted by the entrance of a most peculiar-looking man. Every one's attention was attracted in the same direction. It was funny to see how the contagion of amused curiosity spread from table to table, till in the farthest corner of the room people were craning their necks and bulging their eyes to have a look at the new-comer. Then, after a glance of arrested surprise, each turned to his neighbor with some ejaculation of wonder on his lips. The cause of the commotion was only a dude. It would hardly be worth while describing him, but a Western man, who had lived in New York once, told me that there was not a genuine dude west of the Mississippi, so the type may be odd enough to excuse the description.

He was with a friend, a good-looking young fellow, and the room being crowded they stood, for some moments, in the doorway, looking rather aimlessly about. Then a waiter hailed them over in our direction, and they sat near us. The dude was perhaps twenty-three or four years of age, and looked younger. He was tall, long-limbed, extremely thin, and walked feebly, with chest hollowed, and his chin stuck a long way out of the highest collar that ever encircled a neck. He wore loose, light clothes, shoes of the most amazing length and ending in sharply-pointed toes, white-duck gaiters, and carried a cane with a bent-over top. This he dragged behind him as he walked in, as if too weak to lift it. As he entered he took off his hat, worn back on his head like a little boy's, and disclosed shining hair, brushed well down on his forehead and parted up the back and combed forward over his ears. As he read the carte, one could study his face. It was perfectly vapid. The forehead receded, like an anthropoid's, from the eyebrows. The chin receded, like a rodent's, from the lower lip. In profile, the head was like a triangle, with the tip of the nose for the apex. On the overhanging upper lip, there was a mustache curled up at the points, and the eyes, under straight brows, were peculiarly dull and lifeless. They looked like the eyes of a very old person, or a bird's when it sleeps.

Settled in his chair, he stuck a glass in his eye and looked about, but without any appearance of interest. He seemed listless and lifeless, the product of an exhausted race. His figure seemed to fall together, as though the muscles of his back had lost their power, and occasionally, when his friend spoke to him, he shot his long neck up out of his collar like a snapping turtle. There were but two things to be said in his favor: he looked clean and he had beautiful hands—the long-fingered, loose-jointed, supple hands, with languid movements, which bespeak the artistic temperament and, sometimes, that their possessor is well-born. The people at the surrounding tables stared at this creature as though he had been Buffalo Bill or Mrs. Langtry, and he seemed as wearily oblivious of their attention as he was of every thing else.

Presently he met B——'s glance, and with a stately and absurdly affected air bowed and then looked away. B——, with much gravity, returned the salute, then said in a low voice:

"What would you take that fellow to be?"

"An egregious ass."

"That's what every one says and thinks. What would you say if I told you he was exactly the contrary?"

"That you were an ass yourself."

"Well, I know that fellow intimately, went to school with him and then to college—"

"And he bows to you as if he met you last night at a ball."

"That's his little way—his weakness. I understand him and we get on perfectly. I don't believe there are half-a-dozen people in New York, besides myself, who understand or appreciate that man. Do you know that he's very nearly a genius."

"He looks as if he might be. I never met but one genius in my life, and he was one of the most successfully, triumphantly idiotic people that I ever came in contact with."

"That fellow—his name's Tompkins—isn't in the least idiotic. I think the root of his eccentricities arises from the fact that he's morbidly sensitive. He was always a little queer in his style, and he has been guyed all his life. He's used to it now; he doesn't mind. That indifference of his to the sensation he creates is not in the least affected, it's perfectly genuine. He really doesn't care or know what people say or think of him. Half the time he doesn't see them."

"Are you going to try to make me believe that the man who has the facial angle of an ourang is a visionary dreamer?"

"No—he's not a dreamer; that's not his type of mind. But fate has forced him into a sort of isolation. As I said before, he was always queer, silent and morose. You can imagine how a fellow like that is treated at school, and afterward at college. His life was a martyrdom. He never complained, and when he began to grow up he never noticed. Some dead and gone ancestor bequeathed him that extraordinary face and head, but the mind that went with it was left behind. Still every one judged him by his appearance, and after awhile he didn't seem to resent it or even try to make himself known as he really is. He is one of the few men I've ever known who seem to me absolutely indifferent to public opinion. He wears his clothes in that absurd manner just from a sort of bitter bravado."

"And what's the feeling that makes him play he's a fool?"

"He doesn't. You do just what every one else does—judge only by his appearance. He is less of a fool than any one I ever saw. I told you he came near being a genius. If his talents had been more concentrated, he would have been a genius. But they're too spread out for absolute success in any department. He can do any thing he wants. Once, when we came home from college together, I went to his house with him while he was looking for some books. He lived with his grandmother and some old fossilized aunts who adored him. They were very rich and prosy and prudish, and lived in a huge old barrack far down-town below Tenth street. The house on the outside looked like a prison; on the inside it was the most beautiful place I ever had been in in my life."

"Was it illumined by your friend's beauty or his wit?"

"Both, you might say. I have never seen any thing more artistic than the interior of that house. There is not an artist's studio in town that compares with it. Nowhere, from one room to the other, was there one jarring color or one incongruous piece of drapery or carving. I couldn't believe they'd had a decorator at it—those men always leave their stamp on every thing—yet you could see the person who had arranged the place knew the whole business. I complimented one of the aunts on it, and she said her nephew had fixed it. He had wonderful taste—he had bought every thing and always arranged it himself.

"That was the first surprise. The second was when they took me into a little sort of breakfast-room—I suppose you call it—to have something to eat. It was a little eight-sided room, with low book-cases built into the wall and round mirrors set above them at intervals. Standing on the top of the shelves were some water-color sketches in plain frames. You know I'm something of a critic in water-colors, and my brother-in-law, the artist, has cultivated my taste. Well, these things were gems, so lucid, so clear, so fresh, executed by some one whose force and originality were stronger than their conventionality. This was 'my nephew' again. I never knew he drew or painted. He did it as he did every thing—perfectly quietly, never alluding to it. He could make a name for himself by it to-day if he wanted."

"Go on—what else could he do? I'm expecting to hear that he led a ballet, or invented a patent medicine."

"Not quite so bad as that. But the third shock was a few evenings after, when I again went to his place to spend some time with him hunting up more books. He took me upstairs that time to his rooms. He had a bedroom like a monk and a boudoir like a girl, and out of that a study with a piano in it. Heavens, you ought to have heard him play on that piano! Schumann, Chopin, Beethoven—I hardly ever heard such playing. I don't suppose it was so marvelous—but it was so unexpected—such a shock to see this fellow, with his unearthly face, playing away there like Saint Cecelia. And later in the evening he took me down into some dark cubby-hole in the bowels of the earth, it seems to me, where there was an old organ built into the wall, and there he sat in the gloom with a few candles burning and played Bach till near midnight. I felt creepy down my spine, as if I were in the company of a wizard."

"Did he ever have a love affair?"

"I don't believe so. I think he rather scorns women. They mostly make fun of him, you know, and as he knows his own worth it makes him despise them. I've seen him snubbed and openly made a fool of by some little dunce of seventeen who thought a young man who could play tennis was the noblest work of God. He never seemed to notice her. But once I saw him take his revenge on a girl in masterly style. It was that Robinson girl—you remember her; she was very handsome and a perfect cow. He was rather soft about her, and she amused herself by openly guying him when her other admirers were around. One night, at a dance, he turned upon her—it was all done in the most gentlemanly way you can imagine—and simply obliterated her in the most exquisitely delicate and sarcastic manner I ever heard. She was knocked out, couldn't think of any answer, and he bowed and walked away. I think she must have told the other girls, for I've noticed they are careful of offending him now.

"But she was mean enough to take her revenge on him in her own way—the spiteful way that a woman only understands. A little while after that scene at the dance I went to see her, and, in the course of the visit, she said: 'Did you ever know Mr. Tompkins wrote poetry?' I didn't know it. Well, she got out of a portfolio some sonnets and things he had written to her. I'm not as good a judge of them as I am of the water-colors, but they seemed to me something wonderful. I wouldn't have believed he'd written them if I hadn't heard him play and seen his paintings. I had got to the point where nothing that he did could have surprised me. If some one had said to me: 'Do you know they say that ape-headed Tompkins is the author of "Paradise Lost," or was the real sculptor of the Bartholdi Liberty,' I would have believed them. He's a wonder, and all his world takes him for a fool."

Food for a Life-Time.

A curious calculation of the amount of food consumed in a life-time of seventy years has recently been made by M. Soyer, a French savant, now chef of the Reform Club of London. Among other things, M. Soyer says that the average epicure of three-score and ten will have consumed 30 oxen, 200 sheep, 100 calves; 200 lambs, 50 pigs, 2,200 fowls, 1,000 fish of different kinds, 30,000 oysters, 5,475 pounds of vegetables, 243 pounds of butter, 24,000 eggs and four tons of bread, besides several hogsheads of wine, tea, coffee, etc. This enormous amount of food will weigh but little short of forty tons.—St. Louis Republic.

Has to Be Careful.

Husband—Humph! Then I didn't have to pay for it.—Texas Siftings.

PARABLE OF THE POUNDS

LESSON XI, THIRD QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, SEPT. 14.

Text of the Lesson, Luke xix, 11-27—Commit Verses, 12-13—Golden Text, Luke xix, 26—Commentary by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Compiled from Lesson Helper Quarterly by permission of H. S. Hoffman, publisher, Philadelphia.]

11. "And as they heard these things, He added and spake a parable, because He was nigh to Jerusalem, and because they thought that the Kingdom of God should immediately appear." Although He had said again and again that He was going to Jerusalem to be crucified and to rise again from the dead (chap. xviii, 3-34; Matt. xvi, 21; xvii, 23), yet they understood not, and thought that now they should see Him proclaim Himself king of Israel and restore the throne of David, or the throne of the Lord, at Jerusalem, on which David and Solomon sat as the representatives of Jehovah (I Chron. xxix, 23). That this was the Kingdom they expected is clearly stated in Luke xxiv, 21; Acts i, 6; and that they had a right to expect this is seen in the Davidic covenant (II Sam. vii, 12-16; I Chron. xvii, 11-14); also in all the prophets (see Isa. ix, 6, 7; Jer. iii, 17), and in the words of Gabriel to Mary (Luke i, 32, 33).

That they had much ground for expecting the Kingdom at that time is seen in the fact that John the Baptist, Jesus himself, the twelve, and the seventy, all preached that the Kingdom was at hand (Matt. iii, 2; iv, 17; x, 7; Luke x, 9). Why then this parable, and why was the Kingdom not then to be established? The Kingdom in the person of the King—Jesus, the son of David—had been at hand and in their midst, but they knew Him not, received Him not, and were now about to kill Him. Therefore He said: "The Kingdom of God is taken from you and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof" (Matt. xxi, 43). Their rejection of Him as a nation postpones the restoration of the throne of David until His return (Acts iii, 21), and they have lost certain high privileges which will be given to another elect nation, even the church or body of Christ, now being gathered out of all nations (Acts xv, 14; I Pet. ii, 9).

12. "He said, therefore, A certain noble man went into a far country, to receive for himself a kingdom and to return." He refers to Himself and the Kingdom now postponed, but to be established on this earth at His return. His approaching death he speaks of as a journey into a far country.

13. "And He called his ten servants, and delivered them ten pounds, and said unto them, Occupy till I come." While He is absent He expects His servants to be busy in His affairs, and He gives them something with which to work or do business for Him. In this parable each one receives the same, while in the parallel parable of the talents (Matt. xxv, 15) each receives according to ability. The pound to each may signify the Spirit, which is given to every man to profit withal, while the talents may refer to the special gifts of the Spirit given to each as He (the Spirit) willeth (I Cor. xii, 7, 11).

14. "But His citizens hated Him and sent a message after Him, saying, We will not have this man to reign over us." In verse 27 these citizens are called enemies.

15. "And it came to pass, that when He was returned, having received the Kingdom, then He commanded these servants to be called unto Him, to whom He had given the money, that He might know how much every man had gained by trading."

16. "Then came the first, saying, Lord, thy pound hath gained ten pounds."

17. "And He said unto him, Well, thou good servant; because thou hast been faithful in a very little, have thou authority over ten cities." All that is intrusted to us to do here in this present time is but a very little compared with our service in the Kingdom when it shall come; and it is not success that He commends, but faithfulness.

18. "And the second came, saying, Lord, thy pound hath gained five pounds." Each one shall give account of himself. Every man shall receive his own reward according to his own labor (I Cor. iii, 8).

19. "And He said likewise to him, Be thou also over five cities." There is no reproof because his pound had not gained ten. In his measure he has been faithful, and in that measure he is rewarded. Every one according to his own labor.

20. "And another came, saying, Lord, behold, here is thy pound, which I have kept laid up in a napkin." The Lord's gift unused and therefore not improved. Like some who say that years ago they were converted; but no one ever heard them tell another how to get eternal life. They can talk, but not of Jesus and His love; they can sing, but not of Him; they have time enough at their disposal, but instead of using it for Him they labor to while it away; they have money, but it is spent upon themselves; yet they profess to have eternal life, and are members in good standing of some orthodox church.

21. "For I feared Thee, because Thou art an austere man; Thou takest up that Thou layedst not down, and reapest that Thou didst not sow." Having received salvation as a free gift from God, we are then to work it out with fear and trembling, for it is God who worketh in us (Phil. ii, 12, 13). We are to fear lest we grieve one who so loves us, and to tremble lest we misimprove so important a trust, or hinder God from working. Had this servant had in him this proper and filial fear he had not brought his pound thus misimproved.

22. "And He saith unto him: Out of thine own mouth will I judge thee, thou wicked servant." By our words we shall be justified or by our words condemned (Matt. xii, 37). God reads the heart, but out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh. Jesus is the Word of God and the faithful manifestation of what God is. As the Father sent Him, so He sends us to be His witnesses; and no matter what, or how much, profession we make, unless both words and deeds testify of Him that He is a loving, soul satisfying Saviour, we must be wicked servants, liars, false witnesses.

23. "Wherefore then gavest not thou my money into the bank, that at my coming I might have required mine own with usury?" It is God who giveth us all things, and whether it be eternal life, His holy spirit, or the ordinary temporal blessings of daily life, all come under the head of "His money," "His own," which He expects us to use for His glory. Glorify God in your bodies and spirits.

24-26. "Take from him the pound and give it to him that hath ten pounds." So every one who uses well what he has will have more intrusted to him, while the wicked servants who bear the Master's name but know Him not shall lose what they have, or rather what they seem to have, or think they have (Luke viii, 18 and margin). For what we do not enjoy or make some use of we cannot truly be said to have.

A Woman's Discovery.

"Another wonderful discovery has been made and that too by a lady in this country. Disease fastened its clutches upon her and for seven years she withstood its severest tests, but her vital organs were undermined and death seemed imminent. For three months she coughed incessantly and could not sleep. She bought of us a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption and was so such relieved on taking first dose that she slept all night and with one bottle has been miraculously cured. Her name is Mrs. Luther Lutz." Thus write W. C. Hamrick & Co., of Shelby, N. C. —Get a free trial bottle at

PROGRESS.

It is very important in this age of vast material progress that a remedy be pleasing to the taste and to the eye easily taken, aceptable to the stomach and healthy in its nature and effects. Possessing these qualities, Syrup of Figs is the one perfect laxative and most gentle diuretic known.

A Weak Back, with a weary aching lameness over the hips, is a sign of diseased kidneys. Use the best kidney curative known, which is Burdock Blood Bitters.

PERHAPS no local disease has puzzled and baffled the medical profession more than nasal catarrh. While not immediately fatal it is among the most distressing and disgusting ills that flesh is heir to, and the records show very few or no cases of radical cure of chronic catarrh by any of the multitude of the modes of treatment until the introduction of Ely's Cream Balm a few years ago. The success of this preparation has been most gratifying and surprising.

OVER THE GORGE

High Above the Foaming Torrent

OF NIAGARA'S ANGRY AND LEAPING WATERS

A Nervy Canadian Walks Upon a Cable—He is Watched by Multitudes Who Momentarily Expect to See Him Dashed to Pieces on the Rocks Below.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Sept. 8.—The name of Samuel John Dixon, a photographer of Toronto, has been added to to the list of "Heroes of Niagara," for he successfully performed this afternoon the daring feat of crossing the cable stretched across Niagara river at a point midway between the suspension and Cantilever bridges. The cable is ¾ of an inch thick, and 923 feet long.

A huge British flag floated gracefully from the Canadian end of the cable, and the American flag ornamented the cable on the American side. A good deal of interest was manifested in the photographers' adventure, but not as much as was expected. Both banks of the river were thronged, especially the Canadian side, from which the start was made. A number of persons on the Cantilever bridge obtained a fine view of the affair. Toronto, the home of Dixon, was numerously represented, and the Canadians went wild over the rope walker's success, and insisted upon exhibiting him to the admiring crowd from the veranda of a neighboring hotel. They also carried away pieces of the cable, Dixon himself securing a piece about ten feet long. It was generally expressed that Dixon would back out at the last moment. He was quietly sleeping in the room at his hotel at 3 p. m. When he arose soon after, he took a look at the cable, gave a few directions to a photographer, who arranged his camera on the cliff, and returned to the hotel.

The time fixed for the feat was 3:30 o'clock, and two minutes before the appointed time he reappeared dressed in yellow tights, a black silk waist band, red silk socks, a black coat and black silk cap. He glanced across the great river from the lofty cliff and took off his coat just at the minute appointed. Seizing the balancing pole, he spoke a few words to the crowd and started on his great walk. He appeared the least bit excited and his legs trembled slightly as he walked out a few feet. When about 200 feet from the starting place he raised one foot and balanced the pole on his leg. A little further and he demonstrated to the crowd that he was full of nerve and confidence by bending one knee to the wire and saluting the people. He picked his way very cautiously as he went down the slope near the center, when he sat down on the wire. A little further on he resumed his seat on the wire and performed a few tricks, raising both feet over the pole, the latter resting on the cable. Continuing his journey he looked up at the people on the Cantilever bridge and waved one hand to them. A passing train seemed to interest him fully as much as he interested the passengers. On the upward slope he sat down several times, finally straddling the cable and pole as comfortable as if on horseback. Again he sat down and moved his hands to the people. His walk was then continued and in exactly 12 minutes after starting out Dixon struck the terra firma on the American side and was enthusiastically received by the Americans. After a rest of four minutes he reappeared on the wire and walked out to the American flag, where he rested himself and wrapped the stars and stripes around himself. After a few tricks, he went back to the American side and was conveyed in an open carriage across the bridge to the Canadian side. Without pausing for rest he again went out on the wire, backward, and when he reached the British flag he sat down and folded the flag over his shoulders being photographed in this position, as well as in an upright position. He then gave a brief exhibition. Dixon was then lionized by the crowd, and some of his enthusiastic friends took up a liberal collection for him.

SPEAKER REED

Closes His Campaign With a Grand Meeting at Portland.

PORTLAND, ME., Sept. 8.—The campaign in Speaker Reed's district closed last night with a mass meeting at the City hall under the auspices of the Young Men's Republican club. Over 3,000 persons were present. Mr. Reed and Major McKinley came upon the platform together and were loudly applauded. The speaker delivered a short address. He referred to the influence of the McKinley bill on business; also to the silver bill, saying the United States circulating medium was the best in the world.

Mr. Reed then introduced Major McKinley, who delivered the most eloquent speech of the campaign. The address was devoted to the tariff as affecting business prosperity.

Mr. Reed stated tonight that he anticipated a majority of 1,000 in his district, but his friends are confident that it will reach 1,500.

THE SALVATION ARMY.

Great Eastern Congress Called for November 1.

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—The salvation army is to hold a "Great Eastern congress" of its staff and field officers "between Rockies and Atlantic," in this city and Brooklyn, for the week beginning November 1. It is expected there will be 100 staff officers in attendance, besides 300 field officers and 200 local officers. "Thousands of soldiers and friends" are expected and "monster demonstrations and parades" are promised.

Will Visit America.

LONDON, Sept. 8.—William O'Brien and John Dillon have difinitely arranged to leave for America October 1, to raise money for the campaign fund, but Mr. Harrington will not accompany them, in consequence of the hostility of Devoy and others to his proposed visit to the United States.

Bond Purchases.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—The treasury department purchased $330,400 four and a half per cent. bonds under the terms of the circular of August 30.

A TALE OF HORROR.

Georgia Negro Who Has Poisoned Thirteen People.

ATLANTA, GA., Sept. 8.—Rev. W. Boone, colored, who is in the Calhoun county jail charged with the poisoning of the family of ten on his plantation, three of whom are dead, has a strange record. His wife makes a confession which recalls a number of mysterious deaths in Florida. Four years ago Boone, with a wife and two children, settled in Floyd. He was attracted by McCarver's wife. The woman returned his regard. McCarver, Mrs. Boone and her two children died suddenly. A few months later Boone married Mrs. Carver and the pair moved to Gordon county where the latest poisoning took place. The former Mrs. McCarver is heartily tired of her change of husbands and voluntarily tells the story.

Famous Mining Suit Settled.

BELLEFONTE, Pa., Sept. 8.—The third trial of the suit of the Tyrone Mining and Manufacturing company vs. James Cross, defendant, resulted in a verdict for the defendant. The suit has been in litigation six years and is an ejectment case over a valuable tract of ore land, the location of which is disputed, the whole depending on surveys made in 1790.

Smokeless Powder Successful.

BERLIN, Sept. 8.—The use of smokeless powder in the German military manœuvres at Flensburg has proved highly successful. A notable feature of the experiments was the fact that even when incessant firing was maintained for a long time the guns did not even become over-heated.

HEAVY TORRENTS.

DISASTROUS FLOODS IN THE VICINITY OF NEWARK, O,.

Ruining the Crops in the Field, and Washing Out Two Miles of the B. & O. Railroad—Houses Submerged—Heaviest Rainfall Ever Experienced There.

NEWARK, O., Sept. 8.—The heaviest rain storm in years visited this section Saturday causing untold damage. All streams are raging torrents. The Baltimore and Ohio track on the C. O., division, east of here, is washed out for two miles, while no trains can pase. Captain John Stase and son, Rufus, were caught in the Licking river and almost drowned, being rescued when life was nearly extinct. The latter had his pocket-book with $200 swept from his pocket. Many houses in the flats are submerged and families had to seek shelter elsewhere.

CARDINAL NEWMAN'S SUCCESSOR.

Archbishop Stonor Likely to be the Man—His History.

LONDON, Snpt. 8.—It seems probable that Archbishop Stonor will receive the red hat as the late Cardinal Newman's successor. No fitter appointment could be made. The Stonors are a Catholic family who have never changed their faith. At Stonor, their beautiful seat near Henley, the mass has never been intermitted even in the dark days of the penal laws. The father of Archbishop Stonor successfully claimed the ancient Barony of Camoys, created in 1264, and was called to the House of Lords in 1829. He was a staunch Whig, and his grandson, the present peer, was a lord-in-waiting in Mr. Gladstone's last government. Edmund, Archbishop Stonor, was born in 1831, and has long been officially attached to the Court of Rome. Four of his sisters have been nuns.

WILL NOT BE AT TOLEDO.

President Harrison Spends a Quiet Day at Cresson Springs.

CRESSON SPRINGS, PA., Sept. 8.—President Harrison had a very quiet day. The rain in the morning prevented outdoor exercise, and he spent the time looking over his mail and talking with General Eakin, ex-quartermaster general. After dinner the president and Mrs. Diminick took advantage of a lull in the storm and walked out to the famous Iron spring. Last night the president enjoyed the children's hop in the parlors of the Mountain house. Early in the evening, M. H. Darlington, of Pittsburg, gave an informal tea to the ladies of the president's household. Secretary Halford says that the president has been compelled to decline the invitation of the Army of the Cumberland to attend the reunion at Toledo on the 17th and 18th instant.

HE PREFERRED DEATH

To Spending the Rest of His Life Behind the Bars.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 8.—Henry Mersman, a life prisoner at the penitentiary, committed suicide at 7 o'clock in the evening. The method by which Mersman took his life showed remarkable ingenuity as well as the utmost determination. He rolled a newspaper into the form of a tube some four feet long and wrapped it with thread to make it as nearly as possible air-tight. Then fastening one end of the tube to the gas jet with his handkerchief, he lay on his cot and sucked the deadly vapor with his mouth. When found by the guard he was past recovery. Mersman was twenty-six years old, and was received at the penitentiary October 20, 1887, from Hamilton county. He was serving a life sentence for manslaughter.

The Raging Danube.

VIENNA, Sept. 8.—The Danube is again rising. The Danube Navigation company has been obliged to stop running its steamers. Freight boats on the river have also been laid up. The landing stages are flooded, so that business is impossible. Several sections of the Northeastern railway are made incapable of operation by the floods.

Plead Guilty to Murder.

MORRIS, ILLS., Sept. 8.—Maxwell and Fitzhugh, the murderers of Charles E. Decker, were brought into court for arraignment. The negro, Fitzhugh, plead guilty to the charge of murder. The prisoner was remanded to jail to await the opening of court Monday morning when sentence will be pronounced.

Strikers Return to Work.

BELLEFONTE, Pa., Sept. 8.—The heaters and nailers at the Bellefonte works, who, with the puddlers, have been on strike, have gone back to work and will continue until all the iron is used. The puddlers are still out. The proprietors refuse to sign the scale.

Commissioners.

"Seeing is Believing."

And the best lamp ever made, like Aladdin's of old, a "wonderful lamp!" A lamp absolutely non-explosive and unbreakable, which gives a clear, soft, brilliant white light of 85 candle power! Purer and brighter than gas light, softer than electric light, more cheerful than either! That lamp is

"The Rochester."

And with it there is no smoke, no smell, no broken chimneys, no flickering, no sweating, no climbing up of the flame, no "tantrums" nor annoyance of any kind, and it never needs trimming. Its founts (oil reservoirs) being tough rolled seamless brass, with central draft, it is absolutely unbreakable, and as safe as a tallow candle.

Only five years old, and over two million of these lamps in use. It must be a GOOD lamp to make such a telling success. Indeed it is, for lamps may come and lamps may go, but the "Rochester" shines on forever! We make over 2,000 artistic varieties,—Hanging and Table Lamps, Banquet, Study, Vase and Piano Lamps,—every kind, in Bronze, Porcelain, Brass, Nickel and Black Wrought Iron.

Ask the lamp dealer for it. Look for the trade-mark stamp: "THE ROCHESTER." If he hasn't the genuine Rochester and the style you want, or if no lamp-store is near, send to us for free illustrated catalogue (and reduced price-list), and we will box and send you any lamp safely by express, right to your door.
